Fair Guessing
Well, we're not too unhappy with our guessing on the various bowl games, although Georgia Tech and Florida crossed us up with Tech losing and Florida winning after we had guessed the other way.

As far as we could tell, we did about as well as most of the so-called experts.
Incidentally, we watched the Rose Bowl game and we are far from convinced that Southern Cal and Wisconsin are the top two teams in the nation.

Worth Attending
Announcement that a selection of library books, "Books On Exhibit," will be open to the public at Halls Elementary School next Monday should be of interest to all parents of school-age children. These are reputedly the finest books available for students from kindergarten through the eighth grade.

Postage Going Up
Just a reminder that first class postage will go up to 6c and air mail postage to 8c beginning Monday. All other mailing charges, including postage on newspapers, will be raised at the same time.

Families Moving In
Families began moving into the federal housing project Wednesday, with two or three families completely moved and others expected to move this weekend.
Offices of the project are located just north of the houses.

Congratulations Due
Despite the fact that they lost, we are rather proud of the HES boys' basketball team for its showing at Obion Central last weekend.
Handicapped by illness and injuries, they still did a fine job and congratulations are in order for Coach Paul Kelley and his team.
We're sorry that our own illness kept us away from the games.

Grave Problems
The 1963 General Assembly will convene Monday for perhaps one of the most important sessions in many years.
Facing the lawmakers will be the problems of setting up a satisfactory means of re-apportioning the legislature and of finding additional money for teachers, education, the highway program, and other problems.
We hope that the legislators will make haste slowly—very slowly—before committing themselves to the re-apportionment program sought by the cities and also before passing additional taxes.

Readers Speak
Editor:
I read from time to time where some proponents of evolution are ashamed of Tennessee's law forbidding the theory of evolution being taught in our public schools. Let the atheist, communist and ungodly howl and be ashamed, but their idea of creation will always remain only a theory—the theory of evolution. The term itself implies that creation could have been another way. Jesus Christ, the founder of Christianity, in Matthew 19:4-5 refers to the Genesis account of creation of man. He placed his approval on that account. Christ never dealt in theories. He never answered a question with "I think so" or "Well, I don't know, I will have to look it up." He never said "Maybe" or "My opinion is . . ." He gave straight forward factual answers when people were earnestly seeking information.
I challenge any man to show proof that he knows more about the origin, purpose and destiny of man than did our Lord Jesus Christ. Yet, there are those people who out of one side of their mouths say "I am a Christian" and out of the other call Christ a liar, saying he did not know what he was talking about; that his knowledge of things was limited to his time and location.
I affirm that Jesus Christ helped create the world and all things in it. The follower of Christ must support him as Creator, sustainer of life, and deliverer from evil. When Jesus approved the Genesis account of creation, it was for all times removed from the realm of theory and put squarely into the area of fact. Insofar as the theory of evolution is concerned, one can not consistently be a follower of Christ and a proponent of evolution.

Year Dawns With Various Meetings Vital To Farmers

Durhamville Club Studying Farm School; Truck Crop, Swine Institutes Slated

By F. M. Paschal
Durhamville-Orysa Community Improvement Club will begin its year's activities with a covered dish supper meeting at the community center under the leadership of B. F. Escue, Jr., its new president.

The club will get organized at this meeting for activities to follow. The program will consist largely of an explanation of the plan for the county-wide Farm Management School to be held at the Farm Bureau building in Ripley beginning next Tuesday, with a discussion on the management of a profitable beef cattle program led by Bill Brown, of Jackson, Extension animal husbandman.

A high proportion of the men in Durhamville-Orysa community have attended the Farm Management Schools held the last two years. Farmers from all over the county are invited to come to these meetings on Tuesday afternoon from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m.

It's Soil Testing Time
Theo Smith, of Eylau, got boxes and mailing cartons from the county agents' office this week for use in sending samples of his fields to the Extension laboratory in Nashville for testing and recommendations for the lime and fertilizers needed for maximum yields of crops at lowest cost.
He has used these soil tests before on another farm and knows their great value.
Soil samples may be taken any time when the land is dry enough to plow. The total cost of 50¢ per acre makes this one of the most profitable investments of time and money farmers can make.

In many counties over Tennessee, farmers send samples from more than 1,000 fields to the laboratory each year.
Lauderdale County farmers should make greater use of this laboratory.
Tested Bull Sale Set
W. L. Partain, of Glimp, and a number of other breeders of Polled Hereford, Horned Hereford, and Angus cattle will offer performance tested bulls for sale at the Mid-South Livestock Center near Brownsville Wednesday afternoon, beginning at 1 p. m.

Each bull in this sale was graded at weaning time. Each was put on a 100-day feeding test this fall and was weighed at its beginning and end to determine average daily gain on a specified ration. All this information on performance will be available at the sale to producers who want the best breeding animals available.
Horticulture Meeting Slated
Producers of strawberries, tomatoes, sweet corn, string beans, and other truck crops are invited to attend a meeting at the West Tennessee Experiment Station at Jackson next Friday, beginning at 9:30 a. m.

Experiment station men, horticultural specialists of the Extension Service, and leading growers will discuss new varieties and successful management practices and marketing methods on truck crops.
The county agent will attend this conference and will be glad to have interested producers ride with him. They may telephone the county agents' office, 234, for additional information.

Plan Swine Feeding Tour
A swine feeding tour to outstanding farms in West Kentucky is being arranged by the Memphis Chamber of Commerce for Jan. 9th and 10th.
Buses will leave Memphis on the morning of Jan. 9th and will return the night of Jan. 10th.
Cost to individuals will be bus fare, meals, and lodging, estimated at not more than $30.
This tour is being held to give interested producers more information on newest methods of feeding hogs, with the idea of encouraging the production of more hogs in this deficit hog producing area.
More information is available from the county agent.

Mrs. Williams

Mrs. Mamie Burke Watson Williams, of Halls, died at 11 p. m. Wednesday last week of a heart attack at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Spencer, in Brighton, where she had been visiting several weeks. She was 87.
Services were at 2 p. m. last Friday at Halls Baptist Church, of which she was a member. Burial was in Gates Cemetery.

Born and reared in Lauderdale County, she had lived in Halls for many years.
She also leaves a son, John A. Scott, of Columbus, Ga.; two other daughters, Mrs. Ted Bonham, of Little Rock, Ark., and Mrs. E. H. Hinton, of Tazewell, Ark.; two brothers, Jack Watson, of Covington, and Aslie Watson, of Dyerburg; two sisters, Mrs. Neenie Herring, of Halls, and Mrs. Beulah Asbury, of Trenton; six grandchildren; and four great-grandchildren.

503 Choice Books Going On Exhibit

Dale Overton, Halls Elementary School principal, invites the public to attend a showing of library books for kindergarten, elementary and junior high school students at the school between 8 a. m. and 3 p. m. Monday.
"Books On Exhibit" includes 503 volumes from leading publishers, touring the country.

Books cover the fields of science, mathematics, literature and grade level interests.
On order for over a year, the books will be shown here throughout the week but will be open to the public only Monday.

March of Dimes Clinic Teams Parent, Doctor

By DR. CHARLES RAGAN
Committee on Research Medical Sciences
The National Foundation—
March of Dimes

A physician must have the understanding and co-operation of parents if he is to be successful in treating children who suffer from juvenile rheumatoid arthritis.

During the ten years I have been concerned with treatment and study of this disease, I have seen daily evidence of this fact. We stress this aspect of treatment at the Arthritis Clinical Study Center at the Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons, in New York City.

Our work there is supported by The National Foundation—March of Dimes, which has expanded its program to include arthritis and birth defects. It is estimated that more than 11,000,000 people suffer from arthritis and rheumatic diseases in this country today, about 48,000 of these are children or adolescents.

Over the years, we have found that both the young patient and his parents are in need of reassurance.
Frequently, the patient is frightened and insecure. And he might well be, for juvenile rheumatoid arthritis is a painful, disabling disease which brings drastic changes into the child's life. He suffers from inflammation, swelling and pain in his joints. He can't run and play with his friends. He is listless and lacks appetite. He almost always, he is physically small for his age.

Parents Feel Guilty
The parents, watching the effects of the disease on their child sometimes feel guilty—naturally so. We find that parental guilt and anger are often particularly excessive before the parents bring the child to our clinic, especially so if no diagnosis has been made for many months and deformities

Overcome by tension and anxiety, the parents frequently vacillate between coddling and scolding the child. Sometimes, the child feels that a younger or healthier brother or sister receives more attention than he does. This is a potentially explosive situation.
We have found that educating parents to be consistent in their behavior toward the patient has been most helpful in reducing the patient's anxiety. It often takes months before parents catch onto what we are trying to show them. When they do, tensions usually lessen between the parents and their child.

March of Dimes Vital
Since few people are able to afford such intensive care, the work of the March of Dimes is vitally important in this field. Real treatment progress demands the skills of even more medical workers—among them, pathologists, physical therapists and nurses.

Our work at the Arthritis Clinical Study Center has these three aims:

- to provide exemplary care of patients—to find the best possible way to treat victims of juvenile rheumatoid arthritis.
- to learn all we can from treatment of the individual patient in order to apply these findings to other patients.
- to provide better training for physicians and other professionals in the total care of patients, to help physicians recognize juvenile rheumatoid arthritis most of her life. Her husband, Joseph J. Crittenden, a retired railroad blacksmith, died in 1955.

Perhaps the most hopeful news to parents whose children are victims of rheumatoid arthritis is the fact that the March of Dimes supports a rapidly expanding network of special treatment and clinical study centers across the country, dedicated to providing the best in patient care.

Consult Your Doctor
I urge these parents to consult their family doctor about the possibility of securing treatment for their child at one of these centers. The physician can secure full information from The National Foundation chapter in his county, listed in the telephone directory.

Although we still do not know exactly what causes rheumatoid arthritis, there is hope for parents and their children who suffer from this disease. At the moment, our research in treatment methods seems to be ahead of laboratory research. We know how to help the child. We can relieve pain. If the child comes to us in time, we can help him grow up without deformity.
At present, we still cannot prevent this disease. But that day will come. The March of Dimes, by a far-sighted program which involves research, treatment and training of professional workers, is helping to bring that time closer.

Free Foods List Being Revised

Steps are being taken to review the eligibility of all recipients of federal surplus commodities throughout Lauderdale County, with prospects for a reduction in the number receiving the free food.

New applications for the foodstuffs are required to be made this month. Failure to reapply will delay the receipt of free foods for January.

The head of each household concerned must come to the commodity warehouse, which is located near the Illinois Central Railroad depot in Ripley.

Recipients must be able to prove that they are Lauderdale County residents.

Persons employed full or part time should bring with them statements signed by their employers, stating the amount of time worked each week and the amount paid for such work.

Those receiving unemployment compensation or Social Security checks should have with them records or checks verifying the details.

Those receiving public assistance (welfare) monies must know the monthly amount received.

Farmers will need statements of last year's crop acreage; the dollar value of each crop's or livestock's proceeds; and their expenses for last year. Income tax reports for the year will best give the necessary information.

Persons without visible income will be required to complete some additional forms. The commodity warehouse will provide these.

Applicants are reminded to bring all information concerning their income with them, including signed statements from any employers they may have, verifying their income.

Verification of eligibility must be made before approval of any person's application.

Ike Taylor Earns Mention On Little All America Team

Named By Associated Press After Outstanding Years With Delta State Squad

Ike Taylor, 1958 Halls High graduate, has been awarded honorable mention on the Associated Press Little All-American Squad. Playing offensive guard and defensive end, Taylor has starred for Delta State College, Cleveland, Miss., for two years.

His coach, Horace McCool, says Taylor, a senior, will be missed next year as "he was always willing to put it on the line, even after he had been hurt." A Delta teammate, Donnie Cotten, of Baton Rouge, La., was also honored.

The Statesmen won seven and lost two.

in a free choice economy such as ours, advertising is a most democratic process for encouraging economic growth.

Advertising gives us a free, well-informed choice of what to buy. And helps to encourage freedom of initiative to produce what is wanted.

Advertising serves our economy by making possible mass production and mass distribution. These are the keys to a dynamic economy. Working together with advertising they reduce unit costs, increase productivity and thus improve the earning power of labor.

In addition, advertising creates new markets. It can do this more economically than any other method of selling.

This creation of markets and the expansion of demand creates employment opportunities. More labor can be employed at better wages.

January, 1945 marks the 25th anniversary of the Dimes Drive. In 1941, Franklin D. Roosevelt, founder of the National Foundation, donated (top left) with patients Jerry Gould, Scranton, Pa., and Reese Doly, a tiny miss from Spring Valley, N. Y. Harry S. Truman presented a check (lower left) to Terry Tullis, 3, Laurel, Miss., at the White House, in pre-Salk vaccine 1948. Dwight D. Eisenhower, in 1953, turned on his famous smile (lower left) for polio-stricken sisters Pamela, 5, and Patricia O'Neil, 6, Raleigh, N. C. John F. Kennedy charmed Debbie Sue Brown, 5, Clarston, Wash., a birth defects victim. The March of Dimes finances nationwide programs of medical care, research, professional and public education in the fields of birth defects, arthritis and polio. Campaign theme is "Give for the Life of a Child."

In a free choice economy such as ours, advertising is a most democratic process for encouraging economic growth.

Advertising gives us a free, well-informed choice of what to buy. And helps to encourage freedom of initiative to produce what is wanted.

Advertising serves our economy by making possible mass production and mass distribution. These are the keys to a dynamic economy. Working together with advertising they reduce unit costs, increase productivity and thus improve the earning power of labor.

In addition, advertising creates new markets. It can do this more economically than any other method of selling.

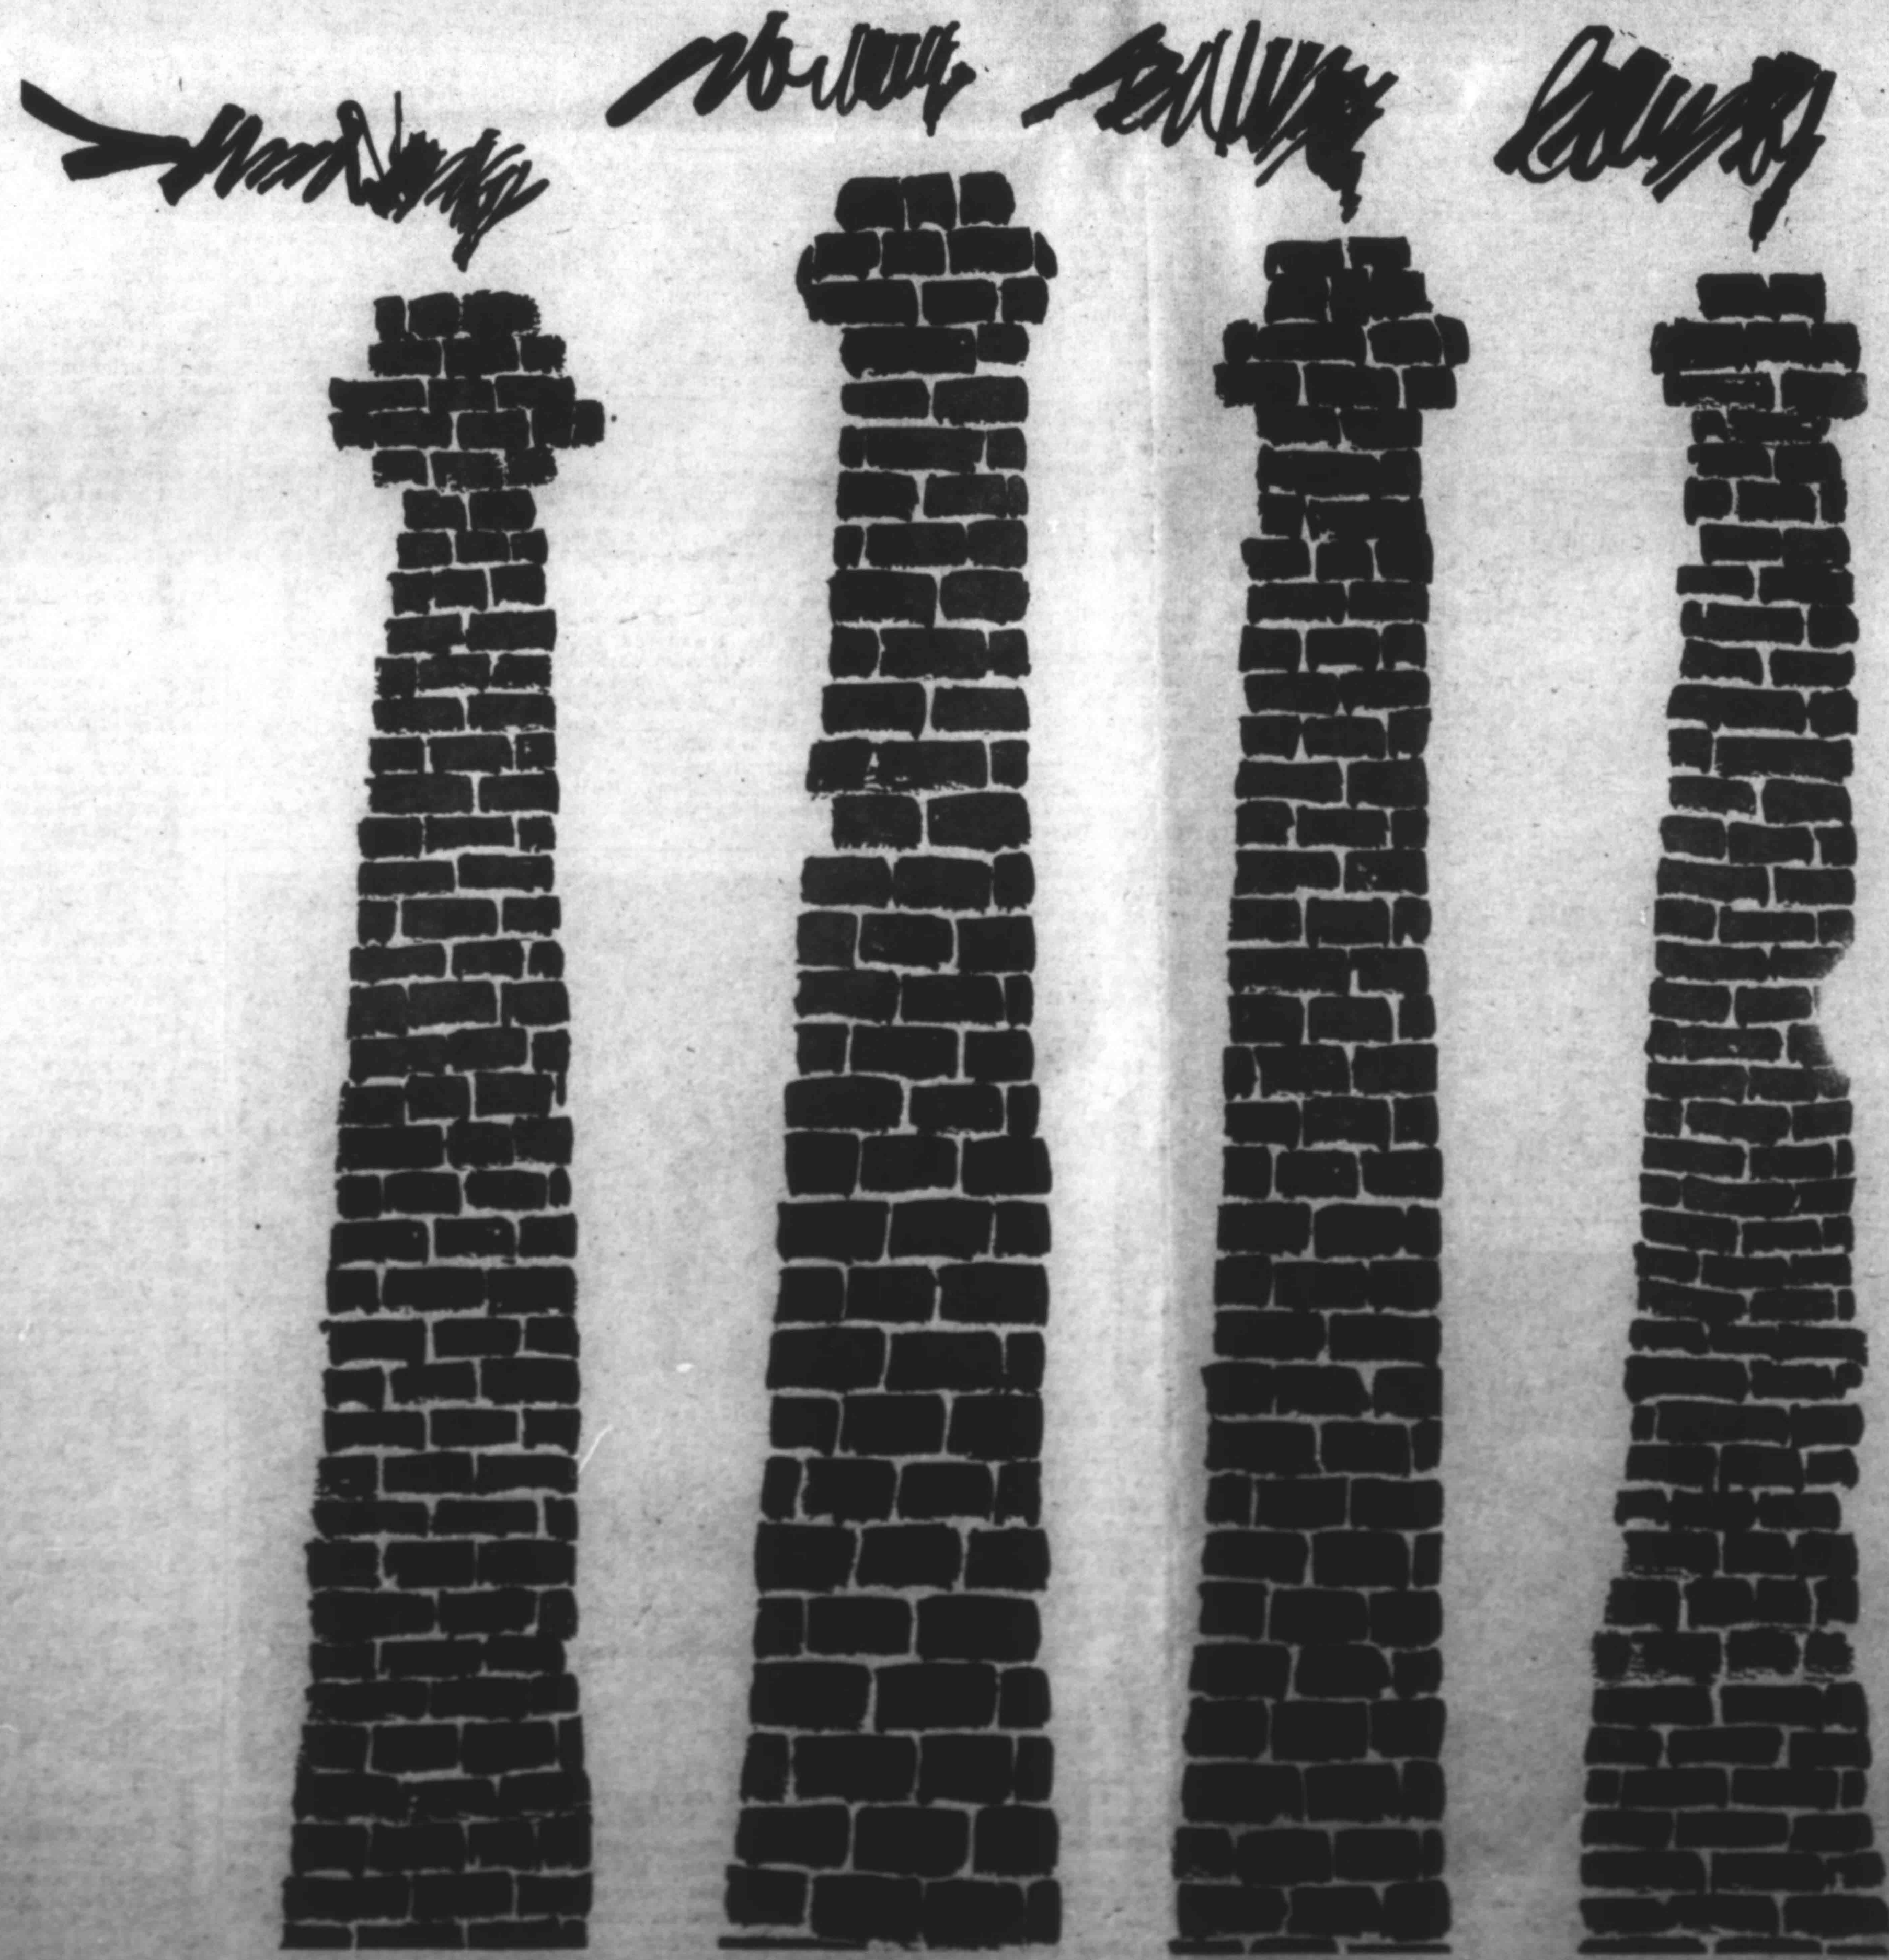

This creation of markets and the expansion of demand creates employment opportunities. More labor can be employed at better wages.

PREPARED BY J. WALTER THOMPSON COMPANY
AND PUBLISHED BY THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST

For a further exposition of these facts, there is available on request a free illustrated booklet entitled, "ARE WE SHACKLING ECONOMIC GROWTH BY OVERLOOKING THE CONSUMER?" Based on a recent study by Arno H. Johnson, Vice President and Senior Economist of the J. Walter Thompson Company, this booklet has been widely acclaimed by marketing executives, educators and editors. Address your request to The Chicago Tribune, 435 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago 11, Illinois.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
International Bible Students Association
BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Single Material: Mark 1:14-45.
Devotional Reading: Philippians 2:1-11.

Jesus Beginning
Lesson for January 13, 1963

JESUS of Nazareth always had grumblers or complainers in his audience. They could always find fault—though that was no discredit to him. God on high has many self-appointed critics, but he was never known to change his way on their account.

One can easily imagine what some of Jesus' listeners might have said when Jesus preached his first sermons. Neither Dr. Foreman Matthew nor Mark gives us a whole sermon, only a sketch of his general line. The reader who will compare Matthew 3:2 with Matt. 4:17 can guess what the unfriendly listener might say: "There's nothing new here, I've heard this before." Word for word, the report of what John preached is just what Jesus preached. The Master added something, but it did not change the fact that—at first—what Jesus preached was so much like what John preached that you might be tempted to call it an echo.

N. C. UTLEY, Clerk.
Robert S. Thomas, Sol. for Compl't.

Prayer and Planning
Jesus did not spend all his time preaching. When a woodsman has a hard day ahead of him, he does not rush out and start chopping. He spends some time in sharpening his axe.

So it was with Jesus. One of the first things we hear of his doing, was to call certain fishermen to be his followers. Some people think that the little scene by the lakeside, pictured in few words by Mark, was the whole story: Jesus just walked up to four total strangers and said, "Follow me." Other Bible students see this incident as part of a longer story, most of it untold, of gradual acquaintance, culminating in this definite "call." However that may be, it is clear that Jesus was already planning ahead for the days when he would no longer be on this earth as he then was. To put it in one word, he was thinking ahead to the church. If the life of Jesus in Chapter One in the great story of Christianity, the rest of the chapters are the life and adventures of the Church. Jesus was already thinking into the distant future, when he began to choose his Twelve.

Before everything else
Mark first mentions Jesus' prayers after all the healings at Capernaum, after the calling of some of his disciples and the casting out of a demon in the synagogue. But it is likely that Jesus would have put off praying till then? Mark, the shortest of the Gospels, does not try to tell us everything—and neither did the other three gospel-writers. Luke tells us that Jesus was praying at the time of his baptism; and we may be sure that that was not the first time. Along with planning, ahead of planning, goes prayer. Knowing what we do about Jesus, we can be sure he did not just make his plans first and then ask his Father to approve. The best planning is that which takes God in—not as a postscript, a formal last minute unnecessary bit of religious courtesy. The best planning is that which consults with God first, makes the plan step by step with prayerful listening to hear God's whisper. If Jesus found it so important to pray that he would rise before dawn to find time for it, surely the ordinary Christian needs to pray even more. For prayer is not only telling God what we want—he knows that already. It is listening for him to tell us what he wants.

LETTER FROM POSSUM TROT
Big Heap Of Wasted Dough

But over on the minus side, the Pentagon is still buying a ten-cent soap dish made to special order. A manufacturer in Chicago says he gets a pamphlet of specifications and requires ten cents plus postage on this ten cent soap dish. He figures it costs the taxpayers more to get out the pamphlet than the dish costs. I have written to my Congressman about this item, hope you will do likewise.

But the biggest minus sign we got for 1963 comes from the civil defense department. They fella has up and bought 70 million "survival biscuits" for fallout shelters at a cost of $8 million. These are special biscuits, they explain, in case of nuclear attack. And now we got $8 million worth of special biscuits and no fallout shelters to put 'em in. That's a heap of wasted dough, Mister Editor, if you'll pardon this oldtimer for a slight pun.

And I see where one of them Washington column writers announces that the $100 million we loaned to the United Nations comes to 55c per adult in the nation. We ain't going to get it back, so I mailed my 55 cent to Washington this morning.

Don't it beat all?
Yours truly,
Uncle Mess.
