

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Extraordinary Men

Lesson for July 4, 1965

A YOUNG GIRL from the city was having her first visit to a farm. The calves interested her, she had never seen a live one before. An idea struck her and she said to the farmer: "Do you think it really pays to have cows as small as that?" No, of course it wouldn't, if the cows grew no larger. In the farmer's eye those calves had a future. The farmer did not expect Dr. Foreman them to grow into saleable cattle overnight. The same goes for other crops. There's many a crop that hasn't been gathered by the fourth of July. The farmer is very much interested in what the casual observer can't see at all. The farmer counts on growth. He judges his success by an invisible standard, the perfect cattle, the perfect crop.

Sharecroppers What Paul was a city man but he uses figures of speech that show he was interested in what goes on in the countryside. He speaks of himself as a planter, and of his friends as slaves, and the man with the watering can. He and Apollo, Paul suggests, are not the owners, they are simply sharecroppers in the fields of the true Owner who is God.

But what was the crop for which these men worked and waited? Men. And where were these men? You might see all Paul saw with your physical eye and miss what he saw with his inner eye. You might have seen a city parish and a little group of worshippers, but neither all grown-ups. What Paul saw in his mind's eye was a lot of babies, now babies are lovable and "cute," but if a person is still a baby at an age when he should be an adult, it is nothing to smile about. Paul knew the people he was talking about. They were all saved — he had no doubt of that. They were mostly grown persons to the observer's eye; but as Paul saw them, they were no more than a batch of retarded Christians, Christians who had never grown up. A modern church likewise can be a discouraging sight to the minister, or any one with eyes to see beneath the surface. The church building may have developed the latest architecture and the church's parking lot may have many Cadillacs in it; but that's not what makes a church. The question is: Are these people growing as Christians, or are they still babies?

Act Cautiously On Streets

Hills city officials did well Monday when they failed to accept the apparent low bid for street work in Hills. The contractor in question proved not to be licensed to do the proposed street work, and, according to information given in this newspaper, the town would have been liable for fines of $100 per day and also any legal complications. We readily understand the intent of the board to save the town as much money as is possible, but the legal aspects of any contracts awarded must be studied carefully. We would urge that all bidders be investigated before any bid is accepted.

Traffic Toll Still Rising

With the Fourth of July weekend yet to come, the highway death toll in Tennessee continues to climb well beyond the 1964 mark, with 477 deaths through June 27th, as compared to 448 last year. We know, of course, that many are planning fishing trips, a visit with homefolks, or a short vacation during the long Fourth of July weekend, but may we urge that all who can stay off the highways?

Fishing License Costs Up

If you are planning a fishing trip and haven't yet bought your license, you may be in for a shock. Resident fishing and hunting licenses rose to $5 July 1st, as compared to a former cost of $3. Residents 65 years of age or over may obtain a free license by filling out an application and submitting it to the Tennessee Game & Fish Commission in Nashville, along with proof of age.

Countians Happy They Didn't Miss Grassland Event

More Than 40 At Field Day

Term It A World's Fair For Growers Of Pasture

By F. H. Paschal

Grassland Field Day was acclaimed by the more than 40 people who attended from Lauderdale County as equal to the New York World's Fair, as far as farmers are concerned. W. B. Hall, county office manager of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service; Bob Reviere, director, and W. C. Vlar, manager, of Production Credit Association; Robert Lewis, Henning banker and farmer; Bill Moffitt, of the Soil Conservation Service; and Robert Maxwell, manager of Fort Pillow State Farm, were among those attending. Russell Evans, president of Lauderdale Livestock Association, was accompanied by Taylor Rice, Lewis Walker, and W. E. Conner. W. L. Partain went with Joe Barfield and Joe, Jr. Eddie Owen went with Bill Harlan, who demonstrated Herd King silos. J. N. Roberts, Johnny Roberts, E. M. Steelman, Jr., Billy Spence, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lazure went from the Hills area. J. P. Elder, Sam Williams, Billy Thomas, Roy Thompson, and W. H. Jordan, Jr., went from Durhamville. Others in attendance included T. G. Langley, Spurgeon Smith, L. O. Gillespie, George Williams, Rogers Watkins, Levi Shofner, and Jerome Curry. May, Silage Exhibits Judged. Charles Peal, assistant county agent, took a team composed of David Barnes, Bill Sweet, Johnny Brasfield, and Danny Meadows, to the field day to judge silage and hay in the judging contest. Joe Clay Davis sent an exhibit of silage which contained 9.2% protein and 64% total digestible nutrients. He sent an exhibit of alfalfa hay which contained 20.3% protein with 56.5% of total digestible nutrients. Both of these exhibits were high in the judging and represent the highest quality silage and hay. Cyst Nematodes Hit Soy Beans. Soy bean producers from Ripley to Ashport are reporting severe infestations of young soy bean by cyst nematodes in fields where none were present last year. Beans get about eight inches tall and begin to turn yellow, then brown, and die or fail to get larger. The nematodes seem to weaken the plants, which are then infested with bacterial leaf spot. The nematodes are spread in soil which can be carried in combines, by trucks, by seed soy beans, and by cultivating implements as they move from field to field. There is still no practical control of these nematodes except to rotate soy beans with other crops on a year by year basis. This can result in soy bean yields being kept to a profitable level. To Explain Man-Power Training. Joe Moss, county supervisor for the Farmers Home Administration, has called a meeting in the county agent's office at 9 a. m. Tuesday for representatives of various organizations to get a full explanation of a demonstration project proposed by the office of Man-Power Development. Extension Agents, agriculture teachers, school officials, the county judge, welfare officials, and representatives of the Department of Employment Security and the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service have been requested to attend the meeting. Livestock Leaders To Meet. Russell Evans, president of the Lauderdale County Livestock Association, is inviting his directors and others interested in livestock in this area to attend a meeting at the experiment station at 10 a. m. next Thursday to hear a discussion of proposed laws and other matters that affect livestock producers in particular, in order that they may work together more effectively to increase their income from livestock production.

GUTTMAN'S GIGANTIC! TREMENDOUS SAVINGS! BRAND NEW! South Side Of Square, Ripley, Tennessee

State Library... HALLS, TENNESSEE, FRIDAY, JULY 10, 1966. PUBLISHED WEEKLY

Confidential Corner... City Board III Advised... Seems to your editor and many others in Halls that the city board was ill advised when it failed to give local implementers an opportunity to bid on the backhoe attachments which they purchased in Ripley.

As we remember, one of the issues in the recent election was a failure to take bids on city expenditures of any size, and certainly on the purchase of a backhoe.

Members of the board felt in April that bids should be taken when money is to be spent, but there can be no reason or excuse for not feeling the same way in July.

We have no idea whether any of the local dealers would have been able to make the sale, but they are the people who are paying taxes and creating payrolls in Halls.

The city board would do well to remember that it is representing one of the people of the county, and the people a disservice when they proceed as they did with the transaction in question.

Need To Be Informed... Monday of last week, the County Court failed to consider a resolution to authorize a study of court re-appointment. The motion was withdrawn when it was noted that the court would just vote approval.

It seems to us that some revision of the civil districts and the county court is inevitable and necessary, but we think perhaps the most serious study is due before any action is taken.

In our opinion, one of the greatest failures in our government is the failure to inform the people of what is going on in their government. The court would do well to know some things in advance just what their position is, let it be a much better position.

We have talked with a number of magistrates during the past few days, and all have felt that they have not been sufficiently informed prior to meetings. Prepared reports on the part of the court would be a great help.

Some of the members of the general public become more conscious of this through the news which has had little chance of a cutback in highway traffic deaths.

Traffic Deaths Score Up... Traffic deaths through July 11th show an 8% increase over the same period last year. This year's total is 460 in 1965.

The deaths toll continues to rise despite all efforts by the state Highway Patrol and the Department of Transportation.

The Vietnam deadlock puts the President's policy... Some of the members of the United States in a dead end which is becoming more dangerous by the day.

The Vietnam deadlock puts the President's policy... Some of the members of the United States in a dead end which is becoming more dangerous by the day.

Hems Eight Inches Over Knees? Hose Makers in Shock

Remors that designer Andre Courreges will lift hemlines eight inches above the knee are striking panic into the ranks of the manufacturers of hosiery, who are already having trouble making fabric ends meet, according to The New York Times. "Short hems no longer mean last year's top-of-the-line arrangements, but three, four and even five inches of bare thigh, particularly when the wearer sits down," writes Angela Taylor. "Even the woman willing to go to any length to be in fashion is running into a problem. When she raises her hemline, the welt at the top of her stockings shows. She must, for the sake of sanitation, have a new stocking wardrobe and, in turn, shorter undergarments, so that garters are higher on her legs. The hosiery mills, who thought they had infinitely solved most problems with patterned stockings with narrow or patterned welts, are now facing a new dilemma with their regular, smooth stockings. Several of the large companies have shortened welts (Bertha, Dior, Beaudette) or eliminated the underwelt in some of their styles (Beynon, others, like Kay-shook and Hanes) and still looking for an ideal solution. "Kathleen Brennan, vice-director for Hanes, said this week her organization had found, in tests, that each successive shortening of welts brought more complaints about wear. Women used to stand with four to five inch and-a-half length) were gathering in the sheer part of the stockings and getting run. "Mary Corkey, fashion director for Kayser-Roth, said her employer had experimentally eliminated underwelts but was not satisfied with results. The lower welt seems to control both fit and wear," she explained. "The solution! All the mills are in a quandary. They are being careful about length when purchasing stockings, taking into account not only the length of their legs, but the length of their garters. The cone industry, too, may be in a quandary. It is the engineering of garters."

Quacks Extort Millions With Phony Cure-alls and Gadgets, Says AMA

Today there are thousands of quack-promoting quick cures for every disease known. They extort millions of dollars annually from their glib patients. Yet, the quack's promises, cure-alls and gadgets are as phony as a fast-punching wheel or a "son man's" scheme, said J. E. Shanahan, M.D., executive vice president of the American Medical Association.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

 Lesson for August 1, 1965

Background Scriptures: Romans 14:1-12
 1 John 1:1-7
 Devotional Readings: 1 John 2:1-7

THERE WAS no one in the great world-capital city of Rome who had had Christian training in a Christian home. Christianity was very new. And yet it was so much the answer to the problems of mankind that converts were coming into the Christian church from all walks of society. What Christianity had to say struck people where they lived; it spoke to the people of the Roman Empire of all. So when Saint Paul wrote to the Romans, whom as a church he had never seen, he could write as a friend of long standing. He didn't know them, but their trouble he knew very well.

Other People
 One of the problems, probably the most serious, about which Paul writes to the Romans, is the problem of fellowship. A good deal of the problem can be put into focus by calling it the problem of other people. If you don't think that's a problem, you should try living with them a while. It is easy to be resentful of other people. Somebody always seems to get to the post office window before you do, somebody else got the job you wanted, some one else got the prize you deserved. A contemporary has put it sharply: "Other people are hell." What he means is that even if only one other person were living on earth, each would be a threat to the other. Each one would hate the other. A theatrical critic once put his philosophy into this one sentence: "The world is my orange, and I intend to SQUEEZE IT." (The gentleman has since become a Christian and presumably has left that savage philosophy behind him.)

Special Christian Fellowship
 Clubs, societies, fraternities, — stamp clubs and clubs for swapping baseball cards, — most gatherings of human beings have selfish reasons impelling persons to join. They exist for the improvement and comfort of the members. The Christian impulse goes deeper than self-interest and self-promotion.

Breaking the Fellowship
 Fellowship — the thing, not the word, — is a precious gem, but like all jewels it is easily lost. Some of the best things in life, the truly best, are terribly fragile. Christian fellowship is an example. What trifles lead to quarrels in the church! Paul suggests the kind of thing that can break down even the church itself. One source of difficulties (or even death) in a Christian fellowship ("church" for short) is a habit too many people, including Christians, indulge in: namely the habit of criticism. It is easier to judge a person unfavorably than fairly. It comes naturally to find fault. Paul does not mean that one should never criticize others or their work. In that case we should have to abolish schools and teachers, and fire all the supervisors in industries. What Paul means is constant nagging criticism, or maybe excellent criticism which has no love in it. Constant criticism and counter-criticism has killed large numbers of churches. The other poison of which churches die is breaking of fellowship by inducing others to go against their conscience. Many a man has blood on his soul tonight for putting temptation before some young man, some temptation that the older can resist without trying but the younger man or woman can't. This is the kind of thing Paul calls putting a stumbling block in weak Christians. The true fellowship in Christ often has to pick up the pieces left by "strong" Christians who so often suppose the fellowship is composed entirely of persons who can stand off temptation as well as they can. So by this fellowship the weak Christian grows; but also by imitation fellowships he can break his soul.
