Republicans Are Trying

As we have predicted a number of times the Republican party is now prepared to do all it can to lose the coming presidential election.

With the coming of New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller into the race, we probably can expect a wide split in the party just as in 1964, when Rockefeller, Scranton and others refused to support Barry Goldwater. In all probability California Governor Ronald Reagan will also enter the race.

We are firmly convinced that the Republican party will do its best to lose the election. Incidentally, we can see no reason for a conservative to support Rockefeller because his whole platform will be a duplicate of the Democratic platform with the contention that he can do it better.

Dangerous Situation

We are very apprehensive about the chances of violence in connection with the so-called "Poor People's March" which will walk across the nation and descend upon Washington, D. C., within the next two weeks.

Despite the protestations of Dr. Ralph Abernathy, Hosea Williams and other civil rights leaders, past events lead to the conclusion that violence is almost a certainty. Failure to control any rioting, etc., immediately will be a disservice, not only to white citizens but to the greater portion of the negro citizens of the United States. It is our belief that federal authorities should have stopped this march before it started and certainly they should be prepared to control it.

Scout Uniforms Needed

Halls Scoutmaster Jerry England has appealed to mothers of former Scouts who have old uniforms to make them available to the present Scout troop. Anyone having such uniforms which they will give or sell to the Scouts should call 234-7861.

Hartwell Strain

Hartwell M. Strain, 54, who was born in Halls, died Monday in Miami, Fla.

He moved to Memphis as a child and was employed by Memphis Credit Bureau before moving to Miami a year ago.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Wavel Strain, of Memphis; a son, Hartwell M. Strain, Jr., of Memphis; a sister, Mrs. Lovelace Wortham, of Covington; two brothers, A. B. Strain and Leo Strain, both of Memphis; and two grandchildren.

Mentally Retarded Children Offered Camp Opportunity

Vacancies are still available for Lauderdale County mentally retarded children of elementary school age in a camp being sponsored June 3rd-7th by Memphis Association for Retarded Children.

Miss Roberta M. Brown, coordinator of Mental Services for West Tennessee, says the camp will be at the Baptist Church camp facility in Cordova. There will be a $30.00 charge per child each week. Any church or civic group interested in sponsoring a child unable to pay the fee should contact Mrs. Harvey Webb or Mrs. Edric Owen, Jr., at the Lauderdale County Welfare office.

Facilities at the camp include a pool, indoor play area, ten cabins accommodating eight children each, a lodge, dining hall, pavilion and lake.

A staff of professionally trained personnel in special education, health and physical education will supervise all activities. A registered nurse is on 24-hour duty.

The welfare office has a limited number of applications and interested parents should complete these as soon as possible.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick Finds Poisonous Spider In Pantry

Brown Recluse Spider Bite Is Extremely Dangerous; Controls Are Listed

By F. H. Paschal

Mrs. Don Kirkpatrick recently found what she thought was a brown recluse spider in a perfectly clean bowl in her pantry, but she wanted to be sure.

She had read how the bite of this spider can be really serious, because the flesh around the wound is destroyed. She had read how the spider hides behind pictures and is likely to be found at any place in the home.

She brought the spider into the county Extension office where it was put in a bottle of alcohol and sent to an expert for identification. Word came back that this was the brown recluse spider—the dangerous kind—which may hide in shoes in closets, in toys not recently used, and in many other dark places in homes.

Control recommendations include frequent use of vacuum cleaner attachments for clearing out adult spiders and webs and spraying with 0.5% Dieldrin or 2% Chlordane in basements, attics, and around the lower parts of closets. Clean up debris where spiders may hide.

Mixes Cotton Fertilizer

Joe Conley, of Lightfoot, got some good cottonland tested recently and found that the pH was 6.6 and that the phosphate content was high, but he needed 75 pounds of actual potash per acre.

In order to get that and have the right amount of phosphate and nitrogen, he plans to mix 200 pounds of 15-15-15 fertilizer with 75 pounds of 60% potash and then side dress by June 1st with 150 pounds of ammonium nitrate to get a total of 80 pounds of actual nitrogen.

Mr. Conley said he did not mind mixing the fertilizer and going to extra trouble to get the amounts required on the basis of soil tests, because he wants to get the highest possible yield of cotton.

On another field not so low in potash he was able to get the right amounts by using 300 pounds of 15-15-15 and side dressing with 100 pounds of ammonium nitrate.

Cotton Varieties Planted

Phillip Hoskinson and James Mullins of West Tennessee Experiment Station planted 72 plots of cotton containing 12 different varieties on the farm of Clifford Sweat on April 30th on Mississippi bottom land which has been fertilized according to soil test and treated with an incorporated weed killer.

The total area involved in these plots includes 50 rows which are 455 feet long. These variety trials are part of the recently initiated intensive cotton research program sponsored jointly by the Tennessee Farm Bureau and the University of Tennessee. It includes one of these variety trials in each of 23 counties and a number of whole-farm demonstrations. In this county these are being carried out by Jim Fullen, Billy Thomas, Clyde Younger and Edric Owen III.

Thomas Using Borax

Widely spaced tests made by Tennessee Experiment Station have shown that on most of the land being planted to cotton which has a pH of 6 or more a half pound of actual boron per acre is needed to insure high cotton yields. These tests have shown that no boron is needed on any of the land in Mississippi bottom.

This half pound of boron can be mixed in cotton fertilizer and several companies are making these mixtures at the request of farmers, but W. S. Thomas, of Durhamville, is using a soluble form of borax called Solubar.

It takes 2.44 pounds of this Solubar to contain 0.5 pounds of boron and Mr. Thomas is applying this in the same solution which contains the pre-emergence weed control chemical. He has been doing this for several years and believes it to be good insurance against poorly shaped bolls and other problems brought about by the need for boron.

Mr. Thomas is also putting down a mixture of fungicide and insecticide at the rate of five pounds per acre through hill-droppers on his cotton planters to control fungus diseases causing damping off of cotton and to control thrips which can delay the early growth of cotton and hence its maturity.

Learn to use your head, but don't concentrate on the part that eats, drinks, and talks too much.

BIBLE SPEAKERS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE AGE OF "OH YEAH!"

Lesson for May 12, 1968

Background Scriptures: Genesis 1:1-2:25; 2:20-25; 3:1-13-17.

"You can always tell a high school senior, but you can't tell him much!" proclaims an old saying.

For most adults the palindromes of this truth is rendered just a little less acute by the remembrance that it was no less so when we ourselves were young. If there is any difference at all between the generations of "now" and "then," it is that today's youth are much more open and honest in their desire for their elders' advice than were the generations that preceded them. There was a time when youth listened with apparent politeness and then, for the most part, did not respond anyway. Young people today are much more likely to say their "Oh yeahs" aloud.

It's natural.

Thus it has been and thus it is ever likely to be: youth wishing their elders would stop trying to pass on their unwanted and outdated advice, and their elders, wishing that youth would listen to and learn from their valuable experience. It is a natural, if not a successful attempt at communication that makes worthwhile the frustrating failure that precedes it.

As children we are likely to think that our parents know and can do everything. Later in adolescence, we find that their limitations. Too often youth go to the extreme of discounting, if not ignoring, their parents' counsel thereafter. Who does it? To be sure, it usually hurts the parents; but much more, in the long run, it hurts the youths themselves.

This is precisely the wisdom the writer of Proverbs is trying to get across. "... keep my commandments and live." If youth as follows the guidance of their elders, their lives will often be richer, fuller, happier. Why? Because their elders have benefited by experience. It has taught them that is beneficial and what it harmful.

Many of these good precepts parents have learned through painful personal experience or observation. As we have noted before, the teachings of those who are wise can often be substituted for painful personal experience. Why not learn from the wise if we can? Why should we have to learn everything through trial-and-error?

What a miserable world it would be if every new generation would have to accept the accumulated learnings and wisdom from the generations that preceded it. How terrible for each new generation to have to "start from scratch" in all fields of human knowledge. There would never be any human advancement or progress.

It's! Nor can there be any wisdom for us if we will not acknowledge it in others. If we are too proud or stubborn to learn from others, we keep the door shut tight against growth in wisdom and knowledge. If adults expect children and youth to be receptive to learning from them, they must also be humble enough to acknowledge that adults can also learn from those younger than themselves. How often in the Bible we find that "a little child shall lead them," that God is able to reveal his truth, not to those supposedly mature, but to "little ones?"

Thus it is not just the high school seniors who are hard to "sell anything." It is human nature itself, adult and adolescent, from which the defendant "Oh yeah!" is likely to spring.

A lot of people don't know it, but, when the telephone was first invented, there were no phone numbers and no directories. Telephone numbers came into being during a severe measles epidemic in a New England town. The local doctor realized that phone service would practically stop if the town's four operators should get sick. The operators had memorized the names of the town's 250 place calls in case of such an emergency.

The idea spread. Pretty soon everybody in the U.S. who had a phone also had a phone number. And, before long, a directory for keeping track of other people's numbers. It was still fairly easy, for a while, for people to remember most of the numbers they called often. And phone service in an area was usually handled by a central operator, who kept a list of information in her head. But today, with millions of subscribers everywhere, it's become a little more complicated.

Your telephone directory gets fatter—and more necessary—by the year. Which means it has to be designed so you can use it easily and efficiently. Emergency numbers up front, so you can find them fast. Area code numbers in a special section. And all phone numbers listed in alphabetical order.

Using the directory is a fast, easy way to find a phone number. To make it even faster, we suggest you try underlining the numbers you call most often. Or, better yet, write them down in your own personal directory. But, no matter how you use your telephone directory—use it! You'll discover it's one of the biggest time-savers around!

The local doctor realized that phone service would practically stop if the town's four operators should get sick. The operators had memorized the names of the town's 250 place calls in case of such an emergency.

The idea spread. Pretty soon everybody in the U.S. who had a phone also had a phone number. And, before long, a directory for keeping track of other people's numbers. It was still fairly easy, for a while, for people to remember most of the numbers they called often. And phone service in an area was usually handled by a central operator, who kept a list of information in her head. But today, with millions of subscribers everywhere, it's become a little more complicated.

Your telephone directory gets fatter—and more necessary—by the year. Which means it has to be designed so you can use it easily and efficiently. Emergency numbers up front, so you can find them fast. Area code numbers in a special section. And all phone numbers listed in alphabetical order.

Using the directory is a fast, easy way to find a phone number. To make it even faster, we suggest you try underlining the numbers you call most often. Or, better yet,

Civic Club Hears Dr. Winfield Dunn

Dr. Winfield Dunn, Memphis dentist and well-known Republican political leader, spoke Monday evening to Halls Civic Club's ladies' night meeting.

Sammie Arnold, club president, presented Dr. Dunn.

Mr. and Mrs. Sergio Alvarez, who have recently moved here from Spain, were welcomed to Halls.

Mr. Alvarez is maintenance superintendent for the Tuppersville plant which is located in Halls.

They have occupied one of the Dyer houses on Chester Street.

Louis Levy, Boy Scout fund drive chairman, announced that $780 has been collected in this year's drive.

Robert Meeks, Jr., Jaycee president, informed the club that Miss Phyllis Hartfield, Halls High senior, had won the $2,000 Ira Whaley scholarship.

Miss Hartfield was selected as the representative of the local chapter two weeks ago, was chosen as Region 17 candidate, and Thursday of last week received notice that she had been selected as state winner.

The scholarship is payable at $300 each year for four years. Miss Hartfield must attend a state-supported college or university and maintain acceptable academic record.

Miss Hartfield will go to Nashville this Friday to be formally awarded the scholarship in ceremonies in Municipal Auditorium.

Halls Garden Club Hears About Birds

Mrs. John Lamb, of Dyersburg, discussed birds when the Halls Garden Club met Thursday before last with Mrs. Oliver Nunn, with Mrs. Jim Jaynes, Mrs. E. C. Thurmond, Mrs. Royce Baker, and Mrs. Milo Hurt as co-hostesses. Mrs. David Hurt, Jr., welcomed 29 members and three guests. Mrs. Charles Alshoberg and Mrs. Sammie Arnold were welcomed new members. Mrs. Frank Young brought the devotional before Mrs. Nunn introduced Mrs. Lamb, a well known authority on bird life, who said the spring migration is at its height about May 1st in the Mississippi River flyway, one of four in the nation — the others being the Rocky Mountain, Atlantic, and Pacific. Several unusual bird sightings were reported — a red tanager, by Mrs. W. C. Viar, and several rose-breasted grosbeaks, by Mrs. Nunn. Mrs. Lamb discussed the dangers of insecticides to birds. She suggested such trees as dogwood, holly, magnolia, and cedar, with privet and multiflora rose hedges. The club presented Mrs. Lamb with a road-runner lapel pin.

Warning: Delay Is Deadly For News

Despite repeated pleas in these columns, The Graphic continues to receive articles which their writers have neglected submitting for many days or even weeks after the events which they report. These are simply no longer news and cannot be published, no matter how deeply we regret the necessity of disappointing any contributor or reader. Competition for news paper space is intense: type-setting facilities are always under pressure and cannot be diverted from current news to set dust covered items which have grown old and stale. Submit news promptly after the event, and give it a head start toward the press.

PEOPLE PROTECTORS

Did you ever think of ads as guardians of your individuality? They are, you know. In a time when the edges are being eaten off our personalities and we're all being reduced to card-index numbers, we need to hang on to some things. Like our freedom of choice. And that choice is yours only so long as competition and free enterprise and advertising are working for you. Guard them. For they stand between you and a dull and standardized life.

Gates Requests Survey To Spur Federal Grant

State And County Health Departments Begin Sanitation Checks Tuesday; Sewer System Financing Sought

GATES, May 22—At the last meeting of the Mayor and Board of Aldermen of Gates, it was decided to ask the State Health Department and the Lauderdale County Health Department to make a sanitary survey of Gates. The survey will begin Tuesday, with four or more people from the departments making premise inspections. The inspections will be an outside tabulation of all conditions that pertain to sanitation. There will be no inside inspections.

Results will be compiled in a report by the State Health Department. After the report is filed, a request from the Mayor and Board of Aldermen will be made for federal grants on a city sewer system.

"We believe this report will greatly help us obtain this grant," says Gates Mayor Cecil Baker.

Bride's Tea Fetes Miss Christy Dyer

Mrs. Sammie Arnold's residence in Halls, Tenn., was the setting Sunday afternoon for a bride's tea honoring Miss Christy Dyer, bride-elect of Dennis Hogue. Assisting Mrs. Arnold as hostesses were Miss Susan Craig, Mrs. Charles O. Vlar, Mrs. Jerre Jordan, and Mrs. Charles Albrook.

Miss Darlene Arnold and Miss Gaye Arnolds registered guests in the entrance hall.

Mrs. Bobby Phillips, sister of the bride-elect, in a yellow knit ensemble, and Miss Craig, in a printed silk, poured coffee and iced tea from the dining table, which was draped with an imported embroidered linen and lace cloth and centered with a silver centerpiece of red American Beauty roses.

Guests served themselves from trays filled with pecan tarts, frosted fresh strawberries, thin slices of chicken salad, assorted home-made cookies, and mints.

Miss Dyer, radiant in a navy dotted Swiss dress with a daisy trim, received with her mother, Mrs. Gilreath Dyer, in a yellow suit. Mrs. Robert Hogue, mother of the bridegroom-elect, in a navy voile with white trim and white accessories, and Mrs. Arnold, in a blue and white sheath. They wore Shasta daisy corsages, gifts of the hostesses.

Among the 75 guests attending were Mrs. N. Hill Martin, of Dyersburg, Mrs. Marvin Nunn, of Laocasia, Mrs. David Nunn Hall, of Jackson, Miss Becky Young, of Fortsgrove, Mo., and Mrs. Edwin Wilson, of Fayetteville, Ark.

Miss Dyer was also complimented with a kitchen shower from 2 until 4 Saturday in the home of Miss Janet O'Dell, of Poplar Grove. Assisting were Miss Cherry Agree, Miss Mary Jo Parrish and Miss Linda Lindley. The hostesses served punch, cakes in a heart shape with

INTRODUCING NUANCE

We care where our product is served. Beer served in pleasant and wholesome surroundings is the aim of the United States Brewers Association. And we are always striving to do something about it.

The USBA is represented by field men around the country. They meet with proprietors of establishments where beer is sold. They work in every way possible to promote a set of high standards wherever beer is served.

This USBA effort means even more enjoyable places for America's great beverage of moderation.

Looking Around

Police in Porterville, California, are on the lookout for a woman with "fuzzy red hair and large red eyes" who caused a stir in the business district by claiming to be a witch. They said she cast spells on salesmen in two stores and pulled down several shelves before driving out of town.

Yugoslav Radivoje Moniraki claims to have written the shortest book. Twenty-seven years ago he published a book with the title "Who Rules the World?" Inside was a single word: "money."

Gerardo Jena caused a stir when he turned up at his home in Porto Alegre, Brazil, half an hour before his funeral. His mother had mistakenly identified him as one of the victims of a fire in a Porto Alegre suburb. Mr. Jena explained that he had been away on business.

Psychologists tell us that it is hard to be an orphan, terrible to be an only child, damnable to be the youngest, crushing to be in the middle and taxing to be the oldest. There's no way out except to be born an adult.

In the height of a Denver thunderstorm, The Rocky Mountain News found its telephone hooking with the Weather Bureau strangely silent. Then, after a few minutes, the following message worded slowly over the wire: "Sorry I'm late, but I'm sitting in water. Machines soaked. Bear with me. I refuse to get electrocuted."

Three men dashed into a Goleta, California restaurant and began to rough up a customer. Then they opened fire with cap pistols. They were sociology majors — conducting an experiment on how the public would react in a given situation.

The birth control pill seemed to disagree with Mrs. Marjorie Price of Morriston, Wales. So she stopped taking it. She is now expecting Wales' first quadruplet.

Herchel Phillips of Cocoa, Florida, was robbed the other day by a porpoise. While fishing on the Indian River, Phillips dropped his hat into the water. As he bent over to retrieve it, his billfold fell out of his shirt pocket. A porpoise grabbed it and swam off richer by $4.

STILL ONE THING
 Lesson for June 2, 1968

Background Scripture: Job 31.
 Devotional Reading: Matthew 5:3-11.

"A good man is hard to find,"
 goes the old saying.

But what is a "good man"?
 It all depends what you use as your standard of measurement. For some people, a "good man" is synonymous with a "respectable man" of the community. He has a fine position, is active in civic matters, and leads a quiet, orderly life, bothering no one.

To others, however, this "goodness" may be more specifically defined: he does not smoke, or drink, or curse, or tell offcolor stories. Furthermore, he is an active member of a church, a man abounding in good works and worthy projects.

What standards?
 To still others, the "good man" is the man who is free of racial prejudice, interested in social uplift, and deeply concerned with all issues of justice and equity.

There are others for whom the word "good" has an unpleasant connotation. They think of someone who is "goodly-good," too sweet, too nice to be true. The goodness of such men is either painfully naive or deceptively artificial.

Thus, it all depends upon what you mean by "good," how you set the standards by which goodness will be measured. Men have a habit of writing the standards according to their own private desires and capabilities. I do not smoke, so for me, "goodness" means abstaining from tobacco. Thus, I am "good" and my smoking neighbor is not.
 On the other hand, my neighbor is a man with a small appetite, so temperate eating is an essential for "goodness" to him and a mark of condemnation against me.

We are not too unlike the South Sea islander who, when asked to distinguish between his understanding of good and evil, said: "Evil is if my neighbor steals my cattle or my wife; good is when I steal my neighbor's cattle or wife." We all tend to load the scales of righteousness in our own favor.

No one is good
 If ever any man was ever truly good, it was Jesus. Yet even he said, "Why do you call me good? No one is good but God alone" (Luke 18:19 RSV). In Romans 3:10-12 (RSV) Paul freely quotes the Psalmist: "None is righteous, no, not one... no one seeks for God. All have turned aside... no one does good, not even one." (See Psalms 14:1, 2; 53:1, 2.) We must therefore conclude that the New Testament sees man's claim to goodness as a self-delusion.

This is how it was with Job.
 He was certain that he was "good" in the sight of God. Yet, if this were so, then there was something wrong with God's justice. If Job were really "good," then his suffering would be quite incomprehensible.

One of Job's redeeming qualities is his honesty. He believes he is righteous and he tells God so in no uncertain terms.
 Too many of us would feel as he did and yet present to God a facade of false modesty. Chapter 31 is a sincere, if naive, recital of Job's goodness. In a sense, he is honestly challenging God to show him where he has gone wrong. "Lord, show me," he says, "I don't see where I've failed."

In time Job will discover that there is more to goodness than he would have imagined. He is like the rich young ruler who told Jesus that he fully observed all the commandments. What more would God require of him for eternal life? Yet, Jesus surprises him, indicating that there is still one thing lacking.

For all of us, there is, at the very least, always still one thing!

electrically

One of the big benefits from electric air conditioning is filtered air.
 Cleaner air.
 For even purer air, some central systems combine special equipment, such as electrostatic filters, to provide extra air cleaning. Or electronic air cleaners may be installed in the return air duct of your cooling system. There are also several air cleaning units in portable, plug-in form.
 Cleaner, cooled air contributes to both health and comfort. And to keeping down housecleaning work and cleaning bills.
 See your appliance dealer today about air purifying devices. Or ask

There's A NEW FRONTIER
 In Office Efficiency

Significant break-throughs in design and production of familiar products are revolutionizing the office supply field.

Good businessmen are improving efficiency and earning credit on income tax returns.

Before you invest unwisely in office tools of obsolete design, don't fail to see the newest and best.

NEW COMPACT STANDARD TYPEWRITER

underwood

Standard keyboard, standard large platen, every big-machine feature including half-spacing, tabulation—now even automatic indentation—yet missile age techniques have reduced bulk and weight so that this heavy duty machine is easily carried. This all-purpose typewriter shames flimsy lightweights costing far more... outperforms expensive giants. It's writing sales history for Underwood. Fully guaranteed, naturally!

$98.50
 Carrying Case Included
 Portables From $48.50

NEW UNDERWOOD-OLIVETTI BUSINESS MACHINES

They perform far beyond simple addition—subtract, give credit balance, multiply, calculate discounts and percentages, total capacity 99,999,999,999! Just 5 1/2 inches high, desk space 8 1/2 x 14 1/2—yet with big machines' high efficiency and rugged dependability! Choose one-hand-operated Prima 20 at $99.50, the electric Quanta at $159.95, or the automatic multiplication, heavy-duty Multisuma, $269.95.

NEW EVERY OFFICE MACHINE DESERVES AN A-1 RIBBON

Nothing peps up any office machine's performance—and actually prolongs its life—like a first quality NYLON ribbon... the only ribbon we handle because it's the only one we can sell with pride... Yet some folks persist in using cheaper quality ribbons which date from the pre-nylon era—and actually pay more for them than our $1.25 price for nylon. By handling one grade in volume, we're holding the price line on the best ribbon you can buy. At that price, you can't afford any other ribbon for your machine.
