OUR STORY

Lesson for July 6, 1969

Background Scripture: Genesis 1:1-4:16; 6:5-8; 11:1-9.
Devotional Reading: Genesis 1:26-2:3.

Man has it made! Just take a look at the scoreboard:
— created in the image of God
— God's greatest and highest creation
— appointed to have dominion over God's whole creation
— blessed with the power to "be fruitful and multiply"
— Who could ask for anything more?
But that isn't the whole story, is it? Genesis tells us not only how man came, but also the bad in addition to our divinely-given potentialities, there is another side to man's nature, a side over which there is far less reason to be optimistic.

Rev. Althouse the good news about man, but also the bad. In addition to our divinely-given potentialities, there is another side to man's nature, a side over which there is far less reason to be optimistic.

"Some other fellow"
The story of Adam is not just the story of "some other fellow." It is our story—you, me, all of us. The name "Adam" means man or mankind. Thus, as we think about Adam and Eve, let us remember that we are thinking about our own human nature which we share in common with all men. Adam's story is ours: what went wrong in him, what goes wrong in us. If we understand his failure, we will also understand our own.

It starts out well enough—most things do—as we find Adam entrusted with the task of tending and keeping the beautiful garden in which he has been placed. If Adam is faithful in his task, the garden of God will continue to supply all his needs in abundance.

If Adam really represents all men, how does the picture of Adam-the-gardener check-out with us today? Man is still dependent upon God's good gifts. All that we have—food, clothing, shelter, family, love—all these come from God's hand. We today also have a God-given task of being, in our own way, the "faithful gardener" over all that God has provided. Also, as with Adam, there are certain things from which God has restricted us. As with the "forbidden fruit" of Eden, there are for us some off-limits.

"Too good to last"
"It was too good to last," we might say. The wonderful picture of Man-the-gardener was bound to be marred by something. And it was! A serpent, representing all of men's tempters, tears away the best intentions of Adam and Eve and they do precisely what God has expressly forbidden.

Stop and think for a minute. What truth does this tell us about human nature? Does it not remind us of the subtle form in which temptation usually comes? It says confusion ("Did God say 'You shall not eat of any tree in the garden'?" doubt ("The serpent said to the woman, 'You shall not die'), selfish pride ("For God knows that when you eat of it your eyes will be opened, and you will be like God, knowing good and evil").

"Just one more"
Even though Eve had the whole garden full of trees from which to pick fruit, her appetite led her to seek the fruit of the one tree which she knew was forbidden. Isn't that often true of us too? It is not because we are not given much by God to do with our needs, for no matter how well supplied with his gifts, we always seem to want the one more he has forbidden to us.

Eve also disobeyed God because she wanted to step into God's shoes. She wanted to be like him, with just one of God's creatures, she wanted to stand on the same level with the Creator. Isn't that our problem too? Our rebellion is usually willful, for we know we are rebelling, deliberately choosing to do so.

Thus, life is full of conflict and insecurity, not because a man named Adam once lived and rebelled against God, but because every man continues to rebel against his Creator. That's why Adam's story is our story.

NOTHING WILL CHANGE

The present furor in Washington over predicted changes in school integration guidelines has brought on several "I told you so" remarks to your editor.

Any belief on the part of local citizens or school officials that there will be any change in the demand for total school integration is destined to prove to be a huge disappointment.

For one thing, there can never be a return to the old system, as one Lauderdale County school official said to us several months ago, and so far as we can see, there shouldn't be.

We hope, but can hardly believe, that any change in guidelines will simply mean that the federal authorities will take their foot off the necks of school board members and school officials and allow them to proceed at a pace that will least disrupt the students and school systems involved.

Sadly enough, the negroes as well as the white population are disturbed by the indiscriminate closing of schools, the moving of one group of students from one school to another, etc.

Maybe, just maybe, the schools will cease to be a tool for so-called civil rights, and the needs and welfare of all students will again become the deciding factor.

Integration is here to stay, any belief to the contrary is hopeless, but certainly it can be accomplished without a total destruction of school systems.

BEGINNER'S LUCK
Becky Carson McWilliams rushed in to see us Wednesday to bring us a cotton bloom but was a day behind Joyce Spry in reporting a bloom.

Becky, however, went everyone else one better by also finding a small boll.

Becky probably wouldn't have been so excited, but this is the first year that her husband, Larry McWilliams, has grown cotton, so she was highly pleased.

Don't tell Larry, but we think it was probably beginner's luck.

DOWN WITH PROGRESS!
As we have said before, there can be no progress without some discomfort and disruption, but the continued condition of Circle Drive is about to turn us against progress.

Actually, we suppose work on the street is progressing at a normal rate, but we'll sure be happy when we can reach our home without wading through either mud or dust.

More Than 7,000 See Farm Show

Unmanned Tractor Intrigues Many At Jackson Showing Of Newest In Farming

By F. H. Paschal
More than 7,000 people attended the Agriculture Progress Show at the West Tennessee Experiment Station last week, including at least 50 from Lauderdale County.

Many people were highly complimentary of the high quality of the exhibits and presentations which were given through moving pictures, slides, lectures, and demonstrations.

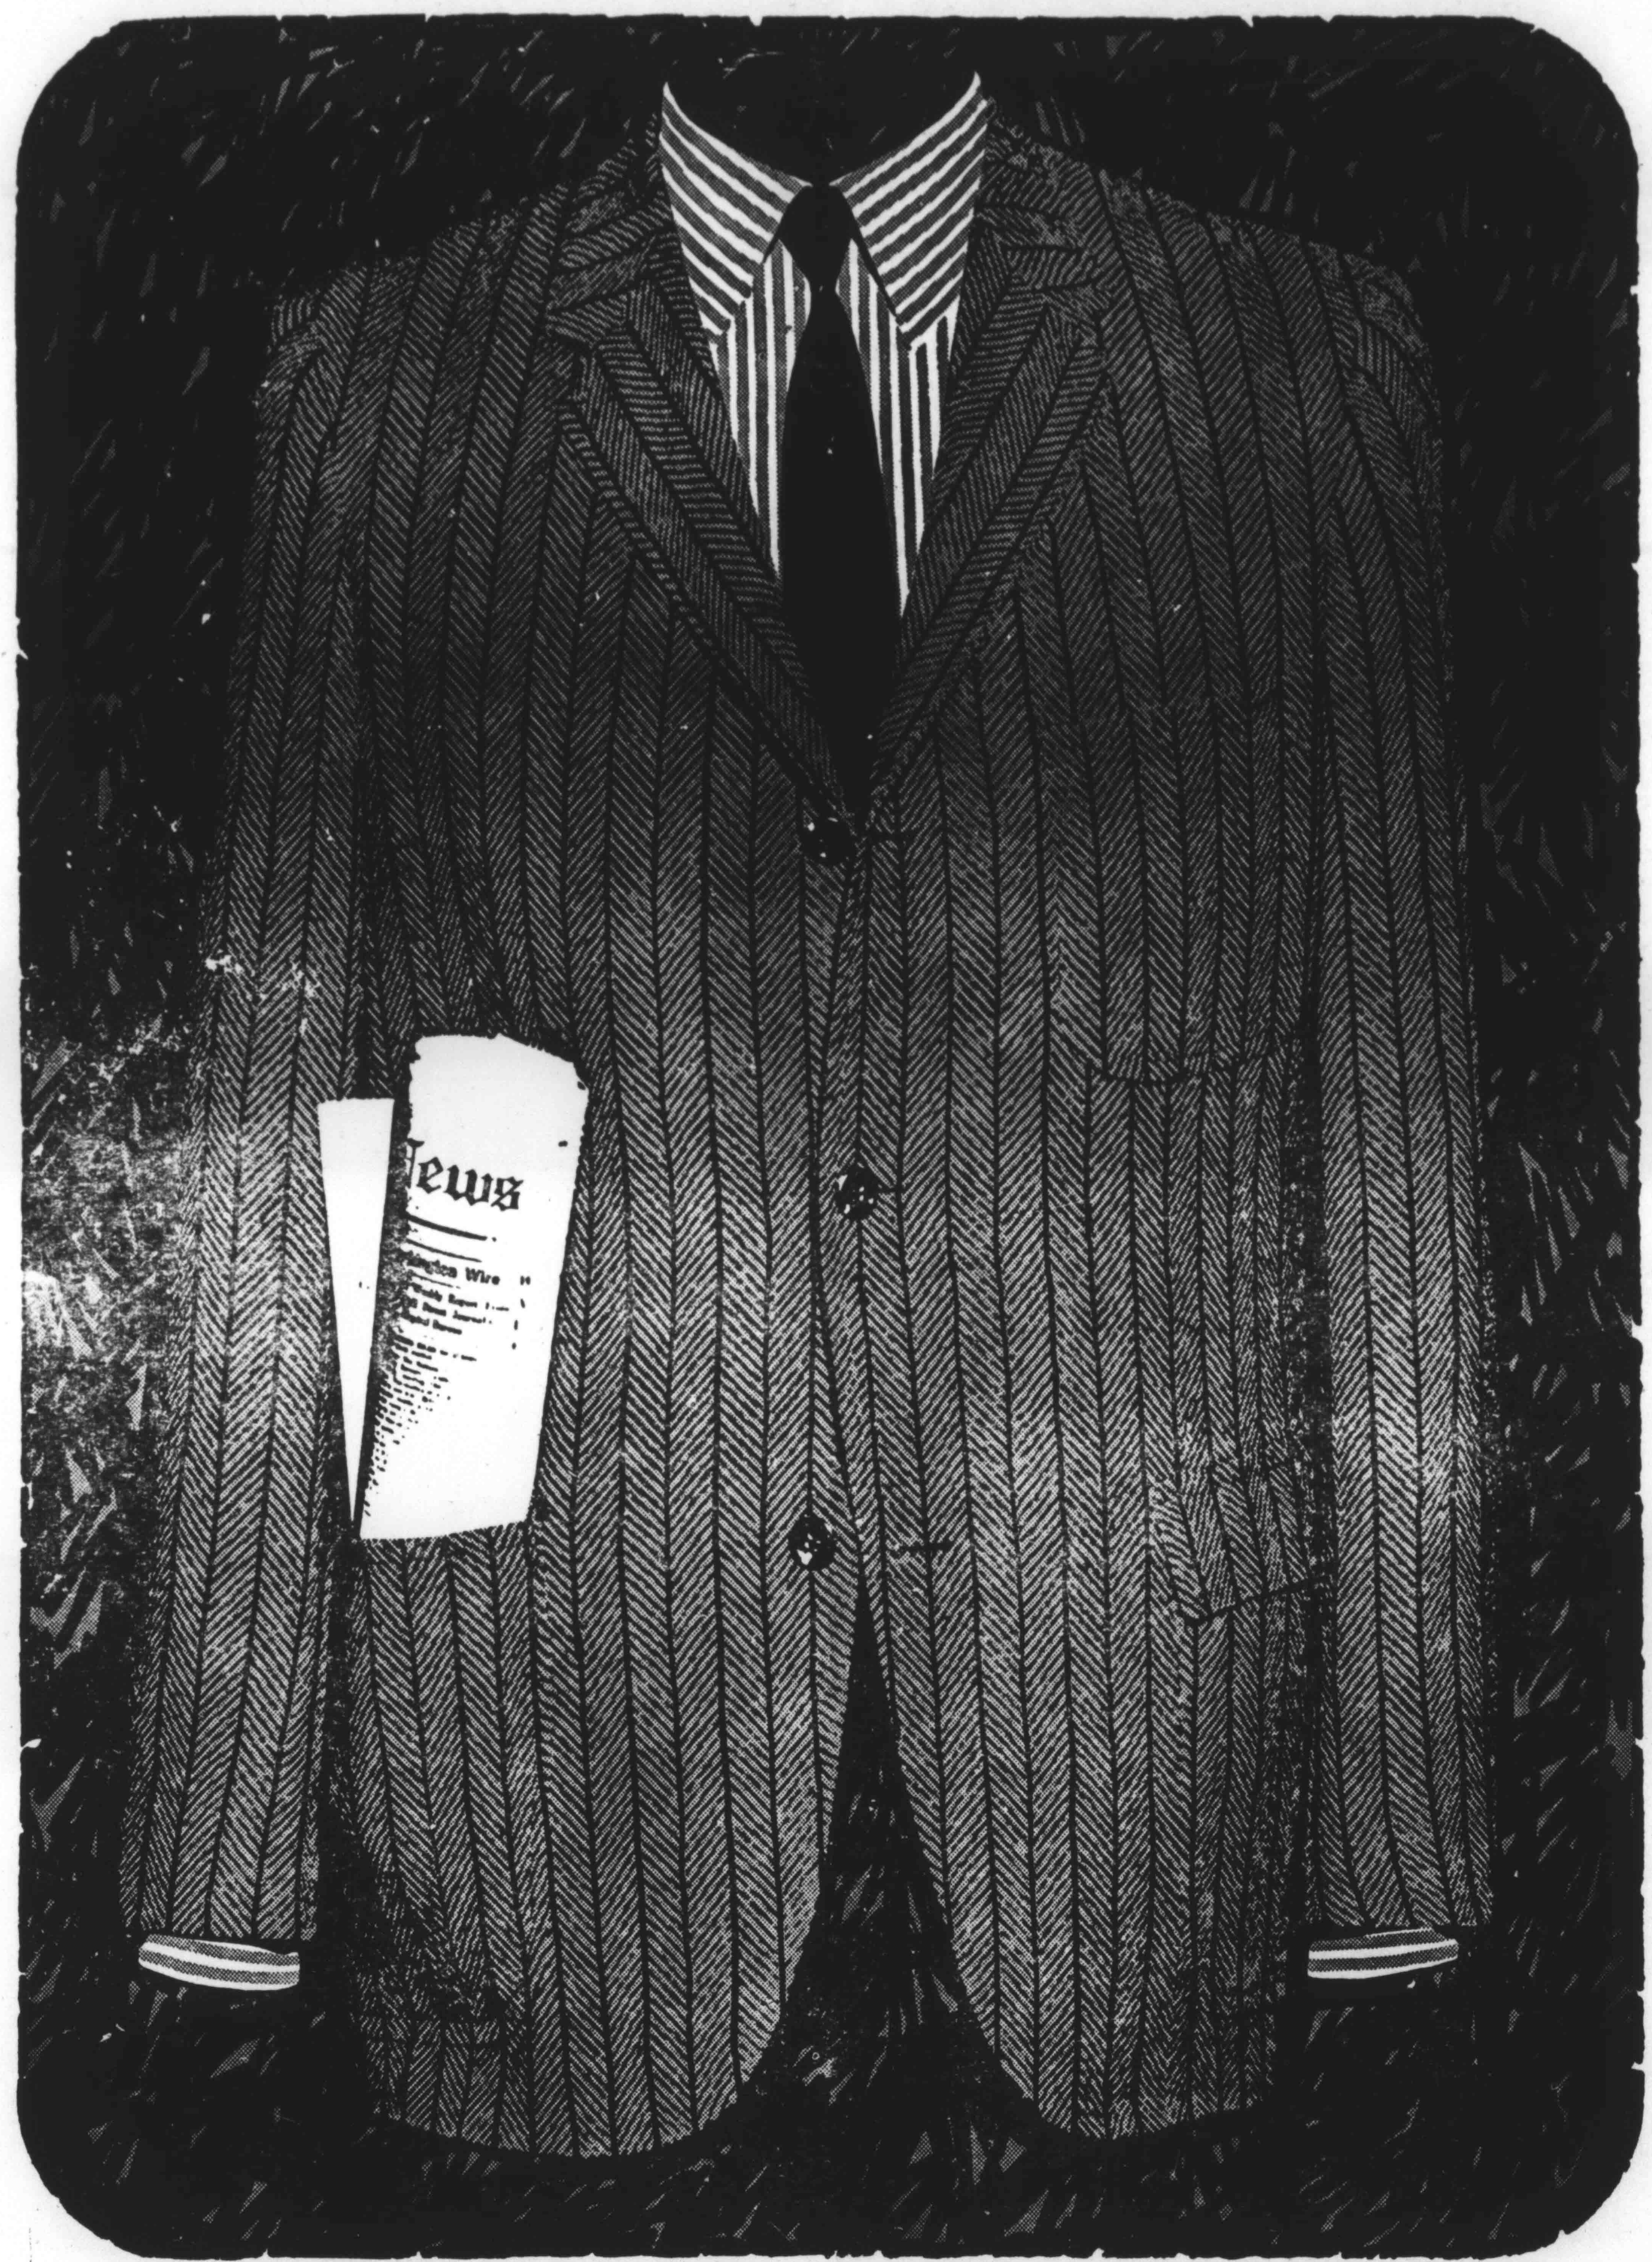

Experiment station crops were just beautiful, especially to Lauderdale County farmers who had not received as much rain. Farmers were intensely interested in all the crops on the experiment station, but the plots demonstrating weed control practices were visited by the largest number.

One of the most dramatic exhibits was the tractor which went round and round for the two days in the same tracks, following a metal cable buried in the ground. This system of operating a tractor without a driver is being seriously tried on some plots at the Milan Station this year.

Prospective college students and their parents were present in good numbers and received constant attention.

Livestock Producers Meet

Russell Evans, Jr., president of the Lauderdale County Livestock Association, took a delegation of Sure you do. Because, like most people, you're careful about what happens to your hard-earned money. So you look at products that appear in newspapers, magazines and brochures. Where the facts are captured for you, often in full color. Where you can study them for as long as you want. And even come back for more. If you have something to sell, shouldn't you consider giving the power of print?

Don't you read before you buy?

When people see your print advertisement, you can be pretty sure they're not painting a room at the same time, or running in the kitchen for a snack, or carrying on a conversation. What you get when your printed message meets the eye is the kind of attention that makes cash registers ring. Print makes sense, because print makes sales.

Letter From Viet Cheers Birthday

Mrs. J. R. Wright, of Route 2, Halls, celebrated her 82nd birthday Wednesday before last.

Her most prized gift was the following letter from her great-grandson, Ronald McGregory, written from Viet Nam: Saigon, June 19, 1969

Dear Granny,

With your birthday coming up in a few days I walked down to the post exchange to buy you a birthday card. But as things would have it, they didn't have any. So I am taking this opportunity to write you a birthday letter.

I would give a month's pay if I could be sitting out on the lawn and God Bless.

Always,
Ronald McGregory

Nothing peps up any office machine's performance—and actually prolongs its life—like a first quality NYLON ribbon . . . the only ribbon we handle because it's the only one we can sell with pride. . .
Yet some folks persist in using cheaper quality ribbons which date from the pre-nylon era—and actually pay more for them than our $1.25 price for nylon. By handling one grade in volume, we're holding the price line on the best ribbon you can buy. At that price, you can't afford any other ribbon for your machine.
