YOUR VERSION

Lesson for May 4, 1969

Background Scripture: Exodus 34:27; 1 Corinthians 29:29-30; 2 Kings 22:19; Jeremiah 36:7-12; John 21:24, 25; 2 Peter 3:15b-18; Revelation 1:11, 19.

In the year 1536 William Tyndale was chained to the stake, strangled, and then burned at the orders of England's King Henry VIII.

His crime? He was hunted down in Antwerp, Belgium, and discovered in the process of translating the Old Testament into the English language!

Of course, this was not a complete surprise to Tyndale. He knew that his life was endangered by his work. He had already translated into the English tongue the New Testament, which was smuggled into England in great numbers. Copies were hunted down, confiscated and burned at the direction of the Bishop of London.

Dangerous reading

Tyndale was regarded as a subversive by both church and state. In those days, only the highly educated could read the Latin Bible, and there were no English versions allowed. Public notices in England warned: "No woman, not artificer, nor apprentice, journeyman serving men, yeomen, husbandmen, or laborers shall read the Bible in English to himself or another, privately or openly on pain of a month's imprisonment."

His work of translation was an act of disobedience to the law of England. Yet, Tyndale's purpose was not to subvert his nation, but to convert it. He was consumed by one single-minded desire: to put the Bible into the language of the people. "If God spare my life," said Tyndale, "I will cause a boy that driveth a plow shall know more of the Scripture than thou (a learned man) dost."

His last words were, "Lord, open the king of England's eyes."

His prayer was answered, for one year later, this same King Henry VIII commanded the Bible to be published in England and appointed to be read by all of the people. The English Bible came into being at a fearful price.

A risky translation

In our nation today, bringing the Bible to people is not so dangerous as it was in Tyndale's. It can be bought in any department store, found in any hotel or home, purchased at newstands in paperback. Every public library carries a variety of translations and editions. Brides carry white Bibles as they walk down the nuptial aisle. There is little danger today in producing, selling, or owning this book.

Yet, perhaps this atmosphere of polite acceptance is deceptive. Perhaps there is as much resistance as ever to a Bible message. There is at least one convincing translation that may experience some resistance.

Four clergymen were discussing the merits of various Bible translations. One preferred the King James Version because of its majestic Elizabethan English. Another chose the Revised Version of 1881 because of its literal and accurate translations of the original languages. James Moffatt's version was chosen by a third because of its up-to-date vocabulary. The fourth, however, said: "I like my mother's translation best." "Your mother?" someone exclaimed. "I didn't know your mother made a translation." "Oh yes," was the reply. "She translated it into life, and it was the most convincing translation I ever saw."

The gospel according to you

It is also the most dangerous translation. Many people will not pick up and read the Bible or take advantage of the reasonable prices and attractive editions. The only Bible translation they may ever read is "the Gospel according to you," the Bible translated into your life. And that can be dangerous, or at least risky. Just as the king rejected Jeremiah's prophecies, so people will reject the "treasure in your earthen vessel." And just as Baruch had to record that scripture again, so you may have to continue to make the Bible come alive for those around you.

Tax Reform Insufficient

It seems to us that much of the tax reform as announced by President Nixon is designed to help the extremely poor, to close some loopholes in the tax laws and, perhaps, tighten the oil depletion allowances, but there is very little designed to lighten the tax load for most of those who really carry the burden of taxes.

Continually spiraling living costs have made tax exemption allowances of $600 per person a joke. No one person can begin to live on that amount, nor can two live on $1,200, and so on.

Some move toward a realistic exemption allowance must be made before most middle class taxpayers can be helped.

Of course, an increase in the amount allowed would mean a decrease in revenue, and tax percentages would have to be adjusted.

If realistic allowances were placed into force, there would be no need for special categories for the very poor, since they would not have sufficient income to owe taxes, and taxpayers like most of us would have some relief.

We sometimes wonder if the old theory of 25% across the board, after exemptions, wouldn't be the best way after all. At least everyone would be paying a similar share of their income in taxes.

Campus Unrest Continues

Students on college and university campuses throughout the nation have continued to demonstrate, block the operation of the schools, and, in at least two cases, have openly used armed force to take over.

This is the time to end such activities as can be classed as open insurrection!

Certainly students, along with newspaper editors, TV commentators, private citizens, etc., are entitled to dissent and should be given an opportunity to present their problems.

On the other hand, there is no right to interfere with others who want to attend classes, and the very idea of armed force should be repugnant to all people.

Cuba is now a Castro-ridden Communist country, with no rights for its citizens, through a student-inspired revolt.

We are not suggesting that there is such a danger in the United States at present, but the seeds are there. Actually, the students have nothing constructive to offer but are simply resisting the present way of doing things.

The majority is not always right, and the minority should have a voice; but the student situation seems to be a case of the tail wagging the dog, to the detriment of everyone.

Jas. E. McGarrity Takes Top Honor At State FFA Meet

21 Years' Accomplishments At Ripley High Earn Him Highest Possible Award

James E. McGarrity, Ripley High School vocational agriculture instructor for 21 years, received the highest award of the Tennessee Association of Future Farmers of America in Chattanooga last Friday.

A former Future Farmer in Halls High School, he was saluted for outstanding accomplishments of the Ripley High FFA chapter under his advisorship and of his past and present students in vocational agriculture.

The Ripley chapter has been rated superior in 19 of the last 20 years and has rated a silver emblem for the last three years.

It has placed in the finals of the West Tennessee parliamentary law contest for twelve years. Last year, it took the second highest award in safety in the nation, and for the past two years placed second in the state.

In two of the past three years, the chapter led the instructional division of 79 high schools in West Tennessee teaching vocational agriculture; last year, because of the largest enrollment for any one-teacher department in Tennessee, it placed fourth.

In the 21 years, the chapter has had 42 boys receive the state farmers degree—three this year. Eight boys were finalists in West Tennessee or state public speaking competition. For 15 years, the chapter has been in the finals of the FFA Creed Contest.

McGarrity has been a director of the Tennessee Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association, chartered ten years ago, for seven years.

State Ranked 48th In '68 In Average Farmer's Income

Only West Virginia, Alaska Below Tennessee's $1,968; National Average $4,863

By F. H. Paschal

A study of Tennessee farm income by economists of the University of Tennessee shows that the average Tennessee farm operator now has 118 acres, from which he got a net income in 1968 of $1,968—the lowest for all states in the U. S., except West Virginia and Alaska.

The average U. S. farmer made a net income last year of $4,863. The average for the south-central region was $3,642.

Kentucky was the closest to the Tennessee level of the nearby states, with an average farm net income of $2,644. Louisiana farmers averaged $5,467.

Even at these income figures, livestock and crop receipts to Tennessee farmers increase by 18 million dollars last year over the 1967 figures.

The average farmer in Lauderdale County in 1968 had a gross income of about $8,600. From this, he made a net farm income of about $2,800.

Calibration Gauge Used

Leroy Hopper, Leonard Meeks, Don Ray, and Richard Lazure are making full use of the new calibration gauge recently made available by the University of Tennessee.

The beginning point in using the gauge is to put water in the sprayer, equip the tractor as it will be run, drive it at operating speed for 300 feet, and time it in seconds. Then stop the tractor and reoperate it and the sprayer at the same tractor throttle setting, and catch water in a container from one nozzle for the same number of seconds it took to drive 300 feet.

Measure the water caught in ounces. With this information, it can easily be determined from the guide how much water the sprayer is putting out on a surface acre or on an acre of ground where row application is made.

This method of determining exactly how much water or spray solution is being applied per surface acre is most important when the chemical can cost anywhere from $3 to $20 per acre and when the crop can be helped or destroyed according to the amount that is applied.

The Hoe Must Go

James Currie, of Three Points, has decided that he cannot afford to hoe cotton and other crops; so he is using chemicals for weed control on corn, cotton, and soybeans in a careful manner, with the best instructions he can get, to control weeds in the best possible manner at the lowest cost.

Many other farmers are urging the same feeling of urgency on this matter. Many who have been using pre-emergence chemicals which are applied before or at planting time are now buying post-emergence application sprayers. They plan to use these when crops are small and weeds are tiny, when they can be controlled for $1 per acre per application.

SEEING DRUG FILM

Man Killed When Struck By Train

Linnie Avery, of Route 3, Ripley, was killed about 12:30 a.m. Monday when struck by Illinois Central Railroad freight train 193, about a mile and a half north of the Wright St. crossing near the Bill Smith home in Ripley. He was 46.

The train stopped, and the engineer, A. B. Stoker, of Walls, Miss., reported having seen the Negro man lying with his head near the track. He said he applied emergency brakes but did not think the train struck the man. The crew found Avery with his scalp deeply sliced by a sharp edge but could find no signs on the train that it had hit Avery.

Sheriff Lewis Gitchell, Ripley Police Chief Bob White, and Coroner Bill Klutts found minute traces of blood and bone on a projection at the rear of the locomotive.

They believe that Avery, who had a bottle of white liquor on his person, was asleep with his head on the ballast of the roadbed, between two crossties, and that when the noise of the locomotive's passage aroused him, he lifted his head and was struck.

Change Requires Another Hearing

Project Is Postponed Again After Landowner Protests Kill Most Access Curbs

The state highway department, which vigorously defended access controls for new stretches of Highway 51 during a public hearing in Ripley March 25th, now considers such controls unnecessary and will re-design the Highway 51 leg from Ripley to the foot of Crutcher Hill, near the Tipton County line, to eliminate access controls except for short distances each side of intersections.

Meanwhile, construction has been postponed again.

L. W. Keeler, development engineer, told The Enterprise Wednesday that the state will have to re-work plans for the project and that the design changes will require another public hearing in Ripley and another review of the plans in Washington before the highway construction can proceed.

He said no date can be set yet for the new hearing.

Landowners along the route objected vigorously to the proposal to limit access to the highway. State experts said they were insisting on such controls on new construction to prevent movement of businesses to the new road, resulting within a few years in congestion, low speed limits, and the need for still another by-pass route.

Asked why the state had done a complete about-face on this issue, Keeler said that state highway engineers did not always see things alike and that both he and Commissioner of Highways Charles W. Speight had become convinced Highway 51 traffic would not be heavy enough to require access controls.

Barr Locals

By Mrs. Joe R. Arthur

All roads to Barr are clear of water and passable. Most residents are back home and farming is well under way, with most of the cotton planted and preparation being made for soy beans.

The Rev. and Mrs. Huston Chiam, of Ridgely, were dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Kissel.

Bitay Smith, of Memphis, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Smith, over the weekend.

Mrs. Joe R. Arthur and daughter, Sarah Gay Arthur, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Arthur and son, Ronny, of Ripley, visited Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Arthur in Frayser Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Arthur are parents of a 7 lb. 8 oz. son, Ryan Earl Arthur, born April 30th.

Mrs. Jess Holmes fell Sunday and broke her arm. Mrs. Edna Hardy is convalescing at home after having had major surgery in Parkview Hospital in Dyersburg.

THANK YOU

Although I was not elected I feel that I must express my deep gratitude to everyone for the trust they showed in me with their vote and support in last Thursday's election. My best wishes to the new Mayor and Board of Aldermen.

Assembly Cool On Law, Order Issue

(Continued From Page 1) Council. This proposal became a major bill when it took on a highly partisan nature and Democrats were able to pass it only after four House Republicans defected in a vote swap on another bill. Republicans had sought to require that two of the new judges to be appointed by Gov. Buford Ellington—be Republicans.

Strip constables of their police powers in the four metropolitan counties and 39 other counties. The bill was drawn to apply to all 95 counties but several, including Lauderdale, were exempted. Sponsors said the constables abused their powers, in many cases running shakedown and fee-grabbing operations. The only thing keeping the legislature from abolishing the office of constable altogether is the Constitution, which prohibits it.

Raise the special tax on cigarettes from 8 to 13 cents, with the estimated $18 million annual revenue going to education. Tobacco interests argued the tax hike would encourage bootlegging from neighboring states. House Proponents said no tax will stop a smoker from smoking.

Restrict the political activities of state employees. This bill was fostered several years ago by anti-administration Democrats but was pushed this year by Republicans, although most Democrats went along. It prohibits state officials from forcing state employees to contribute to a political campaign, and prohibits employers from engaging in politics during working hours.

There are numerous other bills which many consider major. But few other bills are having a lasting effect on the state as a whole. Of course the most time was devoted to Ellington's education and appropriations bills which spend $1.2 billion for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Ellington asked for no tax increases, offering instead a budget on which he said the state would live. The Ellington budget raised expenditures in most departments by depending on a booming economy to bring in more revenue under the present tax structure.

The legislature accordingly did not become carried away with the "law-and-order" demands of some citizens who are weary of crime, demonstrations and riots. This fact can be attributed mainly to the judiciary committee of the House which was conservative and vative, refused to recommend any bill which the majority considered an infringement upon constitutional rights.

The legislature hiked the penalty for pimping, but refused to do it for prostitution. It also regulate camera activities which lawyers said violated the right to assembly. It failed to repeal the dogged instance of its sponsor. But a bill making it a felony to incite a campus riot and a misdemeanor to disrupt a campus passed.

Defeated were bills prohibiting motorists from possessing and using detection devices; making it illegal to monitor police calls, and allowing city and county police officers to stop any motorist for a drivers' license check. A bill requiring motorists to submit to tests to determine the amount of alcohol in their blood was approved.

The rural bill showed once again that it still controls the legislature. It bottled up in committee bills to write new urban-oriented formulas for distributing state education funds and taxes on gasoline and whiskey. And rural lawmakers defeated an attempt to repeal the state's approval of a national constitutional convention to overturn constitutional decisions on legislative responsiveness.

There was a political tone to the legislative session, and it could be traced directly to the fact that Democrats and Republicans elected 49 members to the House. Democrats controlled the Senate 21-12 but J. P. Kimbrell, of Westport, an independent, voted with the GOP consistently in the House.

though it may also kill yellow, magpie, sparrow, and other plants. The bagworm lives in a mobile home made of silk threads and is a pest of cotton, soybeans and other crops.

The bags are small in May and the worms can be easily killed with thorough spraying. Two tablepoons of liquid Malathion or two level tablepoons of 50% Sevyn per gallon of water. Spray the plants from top to bottom from all sides.

Anthony Fisher, of Durbanville, is applying a new weed chemical, called Ronol, broadcast on 1/2 acres, to see how well it controls johnson grass without injuring corn.

Most farmers try to put soy beans on the worst johnson grass land, with cotton as the second best crop. This new chemical may make it possible to grow corn on some of this land, although it may be necessary to use 2,4-D as part of emergency chemical control broadleaf weeds.

Swarming honey bees were reported recently from several places over the county, hovering around homes in great numbers, swarming on trees limbs near driveways, and in two instances getting into basement areas.

Sprays of 5% DDT or 1% Malathion or 10% dust of either of these chemicals applied quickly, early in the morning, to neglected areas can help toward eliminating these bees. Quick exits by spray or dust operators are recommended.

Well, What Do You Know?

fun, games and knowledge

by MARTHA GLAUBER SHAPP, Editor, The New Book of Knowledge

Make a Terrarium; Bring Spring Inside

Wouldn't you like to experience the loveliness of spring and bring it indoors? You can by making a terrarium.

A terrarium is many things. It is a garden under glass. It is a landscape in miniature. It is a place where plants can grow all year round. It is a collection of plants that belong to the same plant community and need the same conditions and therefore grow well together.

The Container

Before making a terrarium you should choose a container, because your container will determine the number and kinds of plants you may have. It may be a small jar or a large fish tank. It may have straight or round sides. You may even make a container by taping panes of glass together.

Before preparing your container for planting, you must know what type of terrarium you are going to make, because each group of plants has its own requirements. Glass containers have no holes in the bottom, so you must have a drainage layer for excess water. The drainage layer is made of gravel and mixed with bits of broken flower pot. Pieces of charcoal pressed into this layer will help keep the terrarium fresh. On top of the drainage layer there must be a layer of some type of soil.

Before getting the plants, clean the container and prepare it for planting. Make the drainage layer 1 to 2 inches thick. Add a second layer of 1 to 2 inches of slightly moistened earth and humus.

Woodland Terrarium

It is fun to get into the forest to collect the plants yourself. For a long time.

Place the terrarium in a cool place with good light, but not in direct sunlight. A well-established terrarium will take care of itself and give you pleasure for a long time.

Nothing peeps up any office machine's performance—and actually prolongs its life—like a first quality NYLON ribbon . . . the only ribbon we handle because it's the only one we can sell with pride. . . Yet some folks persist in using cheaper quality ribbons which date from the pre-nylon era—and actually pay more for them than our $1.25 price for nylon. By handling one grade in volume, we're holding the price line on the best ribbon you can buy. At that price, you can't afford any other ribbon for your machine.

If America hired people for the job, it would take the largest sort of army to keep our country free of litter. But there's no need to hire anyone. It's a job we can do for ourselves. All of us. The uncommon carrier takes a load off your mind with the "ACI" eye

ACI
IC takes a load off shippers' minds by keeping a magic eye on their freight cars. The blurred lines to the right of the "big I" are color-coding on an IC freight car. To the magic eye, the blur reveals the "name, rank and serial number" of every passing car. And our microwave-computer system makes the information immediately available to the shipper.

The system's name: ACI for automatic car identification. The magic eye sees through rain, snow and mud splatter even at high speeds. Right now, ACI is only in use at a few points. Before year's end every freight car is scheduled for color coded labeling. Which will take a lot of loads off the minds of our customers.
