ON BEING "CHOSEN"

Lesson for February 9, 1975

Background Scriptures: 2 Corinthians 3: 14-16; Ephesians 4: 13-16; Titus 2: 11-14; James 2: 14-17; 1 Peter 2: 9; Revelation 7: 14-17.

"Congratulations, you have been chosen..."

Those are exciting words, for everyone wants to be chosen, to win recognition, to be singled out for some honor or privilege. We like the honor and we also covet the privileges that come to those who are "chosen."

These are exciting words, for everyone wants to be chosen, to win recognition, to be singled out for some honor or privilege. We like the honor and we also covet the privileges that come to those who are "chosen."

"A Chosen Race"

To a degree, they were correct: God had chosen them and set them apart as something "special."

To be sure, being "chosen" by God was still an honor. But much more than the honor was the responsibility it carried with it.

This is what the writer of I Peter is saying to the New Testament churches: "...you are a chosen race, that you may declare the wonderful deeds of him who called you out of darkness to his marvelous light."

U.S. SENATOR BILL BROCK WASHINGTON OUTLOOK

One of the best programs created by Congress in this decade has been the Revenue Sharing Program, originally introduced by Tennessee Senator Howard Baker. The legislation has won wide support. Through it, state and local governments have received funds without federal controls or strings. These funds have been used to solve those problems which were of the greatest concern and importance to our communities. Since we started Revenue Sharing in 1972, Tennessee's state and local governments have received $388 million. That is a whopping amount of support, and has made it possible for us to deal with our problems without taxing people into poverty.

It is too important a program to die. I have introduced in this new session of Congress legislation to make Revenue Sharing permanent. Additionally, my bill would make the program "inflation-proof" to help these governments maintain a constant tax base, rather than having to increase revenues to meet the costs of growing inflation. The extension of Revenue Sharing is one of the top priority items which will come before this Congress. Late last year, after hearings before the Government Operations Committee of which I am a member, I introduced a measure to extend Revenue Sharing for seven more years. The testimony presented by officials from Tennessee and other states provided ample information to prove that Revenue Sharing works, and is a beneficial program. However, the 93rd Congress adjourned before final action could be taken on my measure. This new Revenue Sharing bill moves from the first in that it calls for a permanent program, language to make the program "inflation-proof," and the elimination of federal controls on local spending. Those who testified regarding Revenue Sharing indicated a serious problem developing in local governments due to inflation. They warned that without the funds provided through the program, many governments would be forced to either curtail essential services, or increase taxes so high they would become self-defeating. Neither proposition is appealing. Revenue Sharing has worked. Local governments do know their own unique problems better than the Federal government and are better equipped to deal with them. These funds are tax dollars collected from people of Tennessee. There is no better way to restore to the taxpayer a voice in how his tax dollar is being spent. It is important that the Congress act quickly on my measure. Fiscal planners are having to begin preparations of budgets and without assurances that Revenue Sharing funds will be available, they will be faced with an impossible situation. I will push for quick passage.

Confidential Corner

By Henry Murchison

Think About It

Sen. Barry Goldwater, Republican presidential nominee in 1964, has called the present Congress "probably the most dangerous" the country has ever had.

Always remembering that Sen. Goldwater is a professional and adroit politician it still behooves us to give careful thought to the charges.

Goldwater says both houses are dominated by selfish interest groups, five out of six new members of the House oppose military spending as the nation becomes weaker in the international field.

He charged that the members of Congress have no concept of what makes the economy run and how money is used to make money that they have the attitude that you can spend and spend and elect even though the nation is near bankruptcy. He charged that Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield is delegating too much power to Sen. Robert Byrd, of West Virginia, and as a result has little control over Senate actions.

We think that perhaps Sen. Goldwater is painting the picture somewhat bleaker than it actually is but nevertheless his charges deserve considerable thought.

In Tennessee Sen. Bill Jim Davis, of Covington, has prepared a measure to present to the State Senate through which Tennessee voters could vote "no" to reject all candidates for posts in a general election.

We would suspect that Sen. Davis has little idea that such a measure would be passed by the legislature but certainly state officials would have to watch their record much more carefully.

We don't believe any such measure could pass but we would sort of like to see just what would happen if such an election law was passed.

A United States Court of Appeals has ruled that regulations passed by the Environmental Protection Agency requiring the elimination of lead in gasoline are "arbitrary and capricious." The Court said that the EPA had shown no conclusive scientific proof that lead emitted from gasoline is posing health hazards to a substantial portion of the general population.

We are in no position to say whether EPA or the Court is correct in their stand but it does affirm our belief that federal bureaucracy should not be permitted to pass such regulations at their own discretion.

Good News

Just as we announced that Halls High Football Coach Richard Tomlinson had resigned to enter private business in Memphis we were informed that he has changed his mind and will remain in Halls.

This is good news for football fans of Halls. We have been highly impressed by Mr. Tomlinson during his two years here.

Certainly he is not the sole reason for the improvement of the football program in Halls High school but he has been a major factor.

Thurmond, of Dyersburg; and three daughters, Miss Emily Thurmond, of Halls, Mrs. Rebecca Hoffman and Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Daltroff, both of Memphis.

Halls aldermen Monday approved efforts to secure a federal grant for the building of a park and other outdoor recreational facilities.

Larry Gavin, of Whitesett, Gavin, & Homcom, municipal engineers, and Nashville, explained steps required to secure the grants.

The board will seek $100,000 from revenue sharing funds and $50,000 from other sources.

The Nashville firm was authorized to act for the town in making the requests.

The board also: Approved payment of interest and renewal of a $7,500 note at Bank of Halls for indebtedness incurred when a health clinic was established here in 1973.

Approved payment of annual dues to the Police Chiefs Association for Halls Chief Buddy Moore.

Approved a final payment of $2,000 to R. L. Moore Co. for a rail road spur track on the air base.

Voted to ask Ripley Power & Light Co. to turn on street lights turned off in 1974 to conserve energy.

Voted to build a wooden bridge on Reelfoot to replace a damaged bridge.

Instructed city attorney Thomas Caldwell to complete a deed giving Western Baptist Church title to church off Sumrow St. at the south boundary of the church property. The town had used church property on the north side in building an access road and is replacing the property by closing the old road and dedicating it to the church.

Confidential Corner

By Henry Marchion

Very Contagious

It seems that virtually every politician in Washington is entering next year's presidential race. Many well known politicians such as Sen. Henry Jackson, Sen. Howard Baker, Sen. Ben Bentsen, of Texas, as well as many not so well known will seek the nomination of either the Democratic and Republican parties along with speculation about a conservative third party.

IN THIS HOPE

After he had enjoyed several months of apparent good health, a report appeared in the newspapers casting doubt on the validity of the drug. Within a few weeks, some of his old symptoms reappeared and it wasn't long before he was back in the hospital and his case looked hopeless once again. Back in the hospital, however, the physicians persuaded him to disregard the reports and try the drug again. This he did and soon he was out of the hospital again, apparently recovered.

When he had resumed his normal life again and enjoyed several months of good health, the U.S. government released and published a report that indicated that the drug had been proven worthless in the cure of cancer. Soon after reading this report, the man returned to the hospital and died.

So long as he clung to it, he was saved by his hope. Whether or not the drug was actually effective in dealing with cancer, his hope mobilized the cancer-fighting resources of his own body and, for a time, prevailed. Only when he lost his hope did his situation become truly hopeless.

Someone has said that there are no hopeless situations, only people who have grown hopeless about them. What this means is that our hope is not to be dependent upon external conditions, but inner realities. What is really important is, not what happens to us, but how we respond to what happens to us. The source of our hope is always something inside us, not outside us.

Gas Cuts Coming

Utility Supt. Joe C. Escue has told us that more cuts are coming in the natural gas allotment for Halls with a cut effective almost immediately and another scheduled later.

Escue says the mild winter has aided greatly in maintaining the quota in Halls but urges users to continue to cut gas consumption as much as possible.

The amount of the cuts and their effect on the local consumption has not been completely determined.

Time Changing

Don't forget to move your clock or watch one hour Saturday night before you go to bed. The nation reverts to daylight saving time at 2 a.m. Sunday.

Democratic and Republican parties

Democratic and Republican parties along with speculation about a conservative third party.

New York Times columnist James Reston has written that in his opinion many of the announcements are premature since the general public is not at the present concerned with who will be the next president.

It seems to your writer that Mr. Reston needs to get away from New York City and travel through some areas that he normally ignores.

We hear quite heated discussions about possible candidates with a great deal of interest being manifested in just who will be nominated by each party.

Sadly though most people are very dubious about all of the present candidates and are reluctant to even suggest a possible candidate.

We hear very little about Gov. George Wallace, of Alabama, Gov. Ronald Reagan, of California, or any other of the better known conservative candidates.

Most of those with whom we discuss possible candidates are so thoroughly disillusioned that they are unwilling to support any of the present candidates or others whose names have been tossed around as potential candidates.

It is a sad commentary on the politics of our nation that confidence in our leaders is at such a low ebb that no strong candidate seems to be coming.

From Washington

The new Federal budget calls for a 23 percent increase in funding for energy research and development programs in Tennessee during Fiscal Year 1976, and a 13 percent increase for non-power projects of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Tennessee remains the nation's leader in energy under the budget proposal of the Energy Research and Development Administration request for projects in our State totaling $613 million; this is $183.3 million more than proposed spending in New Mexico, the State with the second highest amount of ERDA programs.

The new budget would increase energy research and development expenditures in the Volunteer State by $119.6 million above the $512 million authorized for the current fiscal year. The largest proportion of the funds will be used for atomic energy projects at Oak Ridge, but programs in fossil fuel, geothermal, and solar technologies in other parts of the State are also included.

Non-power projects of TVA would receive $67.8 million under the new budget. This represents an increase of $10.3 million over the current fiscal year. In addition, $32 million will be carried over from fiscal '75.

TVA's power projects are not financed through appropriations, but through sales of electricity and bonds. Some $1.65 billion is expected to become available through power revenues and borrowing in FY '76.

Major power construction projects in the Tennessee Valley and estimated expenditures include: Watts Bar Nuclear Plant, $178 million; Bellefonte Nuclear Plant, $170 million; Hartsville Nuclear Plant, $33 million; Sequoyah Nuclear Plant, $88 million; Brown's Ferry Nuclear

A REVIEW OF TODAY'S ENGLISH BIBLE
Sir Walter Scott, on his deathbed, is said to have made the request: Bring me the book. When asked which book, he said, "There is but one book," referring to the Bible. Today, if such a request were made there would be a tremendous problem for many people as to which book might be meant because there are so many "Bibles." Actually, many of the new versions are not translations at all—they are paraphrases, which are springboards for the various theological views of their authors. This lesson and the one of follow will present a review of Today's English Bible, Good News For Modern Man, which was written by Dr. Robert Bratcher and published by the American Bible Society in the following editions of 1966, 1967, and 1971. This version is considered by many to be "the young people's Bible."
The American Bible Society tried to get the Gideons Organization to place Today's English Bible. The Gideons Organization is not a church, and has no peculiar doctrine to promote. They place the King James Version in hotels, motels, and among school children. The Gideons rejected the overture of the American Bible Society and refused to place Today's English Bible on the grounds that it is not a translation of the Greek, but rather the theology of the translator and that it casts reflection on the blood of Christ, the vicarious atonement, and the plan of redemption.
In twenty places where the reference to "blood" is general, the "KJV" uses the following ideas: "blood," "death," "put to death," "murder"; "all races"; "human beings"; "any person"; and even, "I can not responsible." (cf. Matt. 16:17; 23:35; Acts 18:6 in the T. E. V.) The point to remember is that there is only one Greek word for blood (HAIMA) and it occurs about 100 times in the New Testament. This word has no synonym, and there is no adequate substitute for it.
In sixteen passages that mention the "blood of Christ," the T. E. V. omits blood, and substitutes the word "death" in most of these verses. (cf. Matt. 27:4, 24, 25; Acts 20:28; Eph. 1:7; Col. 1:14 in the T. E. V.) The word "death" is not adequate. The thieves suffered a death on the cross; men and martyrs have suffered death for a cause—but the cross of Christ is more than death, sinful men are reconciled to God "through the blood of his cross," and to eliminate the staining, purifying, redeeming word "blood" with all its doctrinal import from the Bible is a serious matter. Dr. Charles J. Woodbridge, Westminster Theological Seminary, Philadelphia, has written two reviews of Today's English Version. Commenting on the "blood" and "redemption" passages, Dr. Woodbridge writes: "For to explain away the 'blood' of Christ and to tone down the 'redemptive' aspect of His divine sacrifice borders on blasphemy."
You are cordially invited to a gospel meeting at the Halls Church of Christ, March 27, 10:00 and 11:00 a. m. on Sunday and 7:30 p. m. each evening. Robert Taylor, of Ripley, is the guest speaker.

Planning For Tomorrow's Power
Conservation of electric energy by every consumer will help avoid waste of this valuable resource. However, future electricity needs of this region are still expected to increase, according to Oneal Weaver, manager of Ripley Power & Light Company.
"Conservation is needed to make wise use of the available electric supply," he said, "but population growth, new homes, and more jobs will naturally cause the need for increased generating capacity." Mr. Weaver commented that the new power capacity now under construction by TVA will help meet short-range needs.
Beyond that, extensive research into new methods of generating electricity is essential to meet long-range needs. During this calendar year, TVA, Ripley Power & Light Company, and the other 159 distributors of TVA are contributing $5.3 million to the national Electric Power Research Institute. Between now and 1981, together they are contributing about $2.2 million annually in support of the first-scale breeder reactor demonstration plant near Oak Ridge, Tennessee. In addition, Ripley Power & Light Company participating in TVA's independent power research activities.
"Through this kind of commitment to research, and with nuclear-generated electric power beginning to come on line in this region, we hope to assure that your future supply of electricity is adequate," said Weaver. "In the meantime, everyone can help by using electricity efficiently, because it really is too valuable to waste."

Third In A Bicentennial Series Lauderdale County The General Assembly passed an act, on November 24, 1855, authorizing the erection of a new county between Hatfield and Forked Deer Rivers, and west of Haywood County, and in May, 1856, the county was established, the territory being taken from counties of Haywood, Tipton, and Dyer. The act provided for the appointment of Blackmore Coleman, David Hay, Nicholas Perkins, Samuel Owen, and Howell Taylor, all of Haywood, as commissioners to select a location for a county seat, which was to be named Ripley, in honor of Gen. E. W. Ripley, of the war of 1812, and designated the house of Samuel Lusk, who lived five miles north of the present county seat, as the place of holding the interim and expedient, and lay off the county court, upon its organization, was directed to appoint five commissioners to off the county seat into town lots, sell the same, and erect the necessary public buildings for John R. Howard, of Henry County, was selected to survey the boundary lines of the county. Another act was passed by the general assembly, in 1870, taking from Haywood County a tract containing about fifteen square miles, and adding the same to Lauderdale, and in 1873, by another act, Island No. 34, known as Miller Island, in the Mississippi, was added to the county. The boundary to the county is as follows: North, Forked Deer River, east, Haywood and Crockett Counties, south, Hatchie River, west, Mississippi River, and has an area of about 512 square miles. A log jail was also erected by the commissioners in 1837, which stood on the west side of Main Street at its northern terminus. It served until its destruction by fire, in 1842. The following year, a one-story brick jail was erected, and in 1873 the present substantial brick jail was erected, costing about $12,000. The poor commissioners obtained a grant for 77 acres of land in the Sixth District in 1847, and upon it erected a log asylum for the poor of the county. In 1849 the land was sold and 105 acres purchased in the Second District, and the asylum removed, and at in 1887 the present asylum consisted of several houses, and was situated on a tract of 100 acres, six and one-half miles west from Ripley, in the Eleventh District. The Ashport Turnpike Company, of Lauderdale County, was incorporated by the General Assembly, in 1855. Wm. Armour, John W. Campbell, Wm. Conner, James Hubbard, Harrod J. Anderson, Ebenezer Young, and Robert C. Campbell, were appointed commissioners to open books and receive subscriptions for stock. The capital stock was fixed at $20,000 in shares of $100 each, and upon half of that amount being subscribed, the company was authorized to begin work. Considerable work in the nature of causeways and levees was accomplished by the Company, about $4,000 of State money was expended, when the organization and work was abandoned. The company was rechartered again in 1856, but not organized. The only railroad which passed through the county at the time was the Chesapeake & Ohio, or Newport News & Mississippi Valley, which was completed in July, 1881. In 1870 the county voted $150,000 for a road, then only proposed. For payment of this sum, a tax of 1.25 on the $100 worth of property was assessed in 1874; in 1874, in 1882, $1.25; in 1883, $1.25; in 1884, $1.50; in 1885, $1.50; and in 1886, 80 cents. In 1840 the population of the county was 3,435; in 1850, 5,160; in 1860, 7,539; in 1870, 10,830; in 1880, 14,918, and in 1888, 19,280. The voting population in 1871, was $2,859,158; in 1885 the number of acres assessed was 282,400, valued at $1,406,464, and the total value of taxable property was $1,733,805. In 1870 the cereal products of the county were wheat, 18,662 bushels; rye, 100 bushels; corn, 443,909 bushels; oats, 5,465 bushels; cotton, 6,337 bales. In 1895 they were wheat, 24,823 bushels; rye, 55 bushels; corn, 390,797 bushels; oats, 17,286 bushels; cotton, about 15,000 bales. In 1870, the livestock of the county was as follows: Horses and mules, 3,115 head; cattle, 3,494 head; sheep, 3,116 head; hogs, 22,096 head. In 1895 the livestock amounted to 4,079 head of horses and mules; cattle, 12,321 head; sheep, 2,692 effect, in 1877, the act providing the change did not reduce Lauderdale below its constitutional number of square miles. A survey of the county was made, by order of the chancery court of Lauderdale, in which court a suit of injunction had been instituted, and the survey demonstrating to the court that the county would be reduced below 500 square miles, a decree of perpetual injunction was issued. In June, 1836, the county court appointed Griffith Rutherford, Hiram Keller, Henry Crawford, Robert Campbell and Resin Byron commissioners, to lay off the county seat, sell the town lots and erect temporary courthouse and jail. The town was promptly laid off, and the lots sold at public sale in the following July. The commissioners at once contracted for the erection of a log courthouse, the plans and specifications of which called for a "building of good, hewed, yellow poplar logs, 22x26 feet in length, 17 feet high, with two doors and windows." The house was completed the following October and stood in the extreme northwest corner of the town, on the then Ashport and Ripley road. In 1844 a second courthouse was erected on the public square. It was of frame, one and a half stories high, and cost about $4,000. This house stood until its destruction by fire in 1869, the fire being caused by a defective flue. In 1870 another courthouse was built at cost of about $20,000. The building was of brick, two-story, with three entrances. The first floor was divided into three halls, opening into six offices, while on the second floor was the courtroom. The building stood in the center of an extensive square or yard.

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE ULTIMATE WORD

Lesson for March 2, 1975

Background Scriptures: Hebrews 1:1-4, 10-13. Devotional Reading: John 1:1-4, 10-13.

There is a story about a father who took his children to the circus. There, for the first time they saw an elephant. When they got home their mother questioned them about what they had seen. All the children wanted to tell her about the strange beast they had seen: the elephant.

"What did he look like?" the mother wanted to know. Little Johnny, who had looked at the Rev. Althouse elephant from one side of the cage and seen only the face of the elephant in terms of the long, grey trunk that lifted food to his small mouth. Lucy, who had viewed the elephant from the rear, described the huge mammal in terms of his enormous body. Bobby, however, who had seen the elephant only from the rear, was fascinated by the huge, thin, flapping ears.

"Why," said mother mischievously, "I have a hard time picturing him from your different descriptions." At that, Ellen, who had not yet been heard from, handed her mother a polaroid photograph she had taken of the elephant. "Maybe this will help you, Mother."

"Many And Various Ways?"

The story is a parable of man's attempts to define and describe their experience with the Divine dimension of life: the reality we call God. It is not that some views of the Divine are wrong, but that they are incomplete, only part of the picture. Each approach reflects God's attempt to reveal himself to men.

He has always used a variety of words and means. The writer of Hebrews acknowledges this when he says: "In many and various ways God spoke of old to our fathers by the prophets..." (Hebrews 1:1). There has never been just one way by which God reveals himself to man. These ways are often so diverse so as to seem contradictory and incompatible. But they are not: it is man's limited, partial vision that creates the conflicts. Man has a finite mind and whenever he attempts to comprehend the infinite he is forced to admit defeat.

"In many and various ways," God has spoken to us over the centuries. He has spoken to us through all kinds of religions and religious leaders. He has spoken to us through men who did not even know that God was using them. Each of these pictures has helped us to better understand the nature of God, yet the composite picture is always incomplete at best.

God's Reflection

This is what we find to be the uniqueness of Jesus Christ: what we find partially in others, we find completely in him. The writer of Hebrews says it this way: "but in these last days he has spoken to us by a Son..." (Hebrews 1:2). The Christ spoken of is what Ellen's polaroid photo did for her mother in the story. The writer of Hebrews says: "He reflects the glory of God and bears the very stamp of his nature..." (1:3). In Christ we see the clearest of all reflections of God. It is the best likeness of God available to man. To view Christ may not dispel all the Divine mysteries, but in him we find a sufficient likeness so that the major questions of life may be answered.

God has spoken many times to man and in many different ways and we must respect what others have heard him say. Those who follow Christ will humbly believe that in him God has spoken his ultimate word.

God is glorified by the devotion of Christian believers, motivated by Community Praise Services.

Here We Go Again

The State Legislature opened its 1975 session Tuesday and apparently the situation is normal—albeit loaded up.

Gov. Ray Blanton introduced a number of proposals including the return of the old theory of party registration to qualify to vote in the primaries.

It seems to us that despite the old party in the state, the Democratic Party is the primary lever by which a voter could vote for an entire slate of candidates.

He also leaves his wife, Mrs. Evelyn Boling Conley, two sons, C. H. Conley, Jr. and Claude May Conley, both of Alamo, and two daughters, Mrs. Joe Black, of Bolivar, and Mrs. Alesy Mann, Jr., of Brownsville.

A REVIEW OF TODAY'S ENGLISH BIBLE (No. 2)
Dr. Charles J. Woodbridge of Westminster Theological Seminary, Philadelphia has written two reviews of TODAY'S ENGLISH BIBLE. In the second review, he said, "I find that the volume is far worse than I had originally thought. Far from being able to recommend the book, I must in good conscience wholeheartedly reject it. Later, Dr. Woodbridge wrote, 'Thus, his volume is not technically a translation at all. It is an interpretation, or a commentary in which the interpreter to the conscience of the individual is not the blessed Holy Spirit, but the mind of Dr. Bratcher.'"

Flag History Is Program Theme
Mrs. Leonard Andrews presented a patriotic program Feb. 6th of Halls Garden Club in First Baptist Church.
Using illustrations of different American flags drawn by Mrs. Bobby Stuelman, Mrs. Andrews presented a program on the American flag.
In keeping with the patriotic theme, Mrs. Neil Dyer sang "My Own America," accompanied by Bill Kelly at the piano. The group sang "God Bless America" and repeated the Pledge of Allegiance at the close of the program.
Mrs. Frank Young presented a Calentine meditation highlighted by the poem, "Someone Like You."
