WHEN GOD SAYS "GO!"

Lesson for October 5, 1975

Background Scripture: Genesis 11:2-9 through 12:20
Devotional Reading: Hebrews 11:8-16

If God were to come to you today and in a dream or vision say to you: "I want you to sell your house and go to an island in the South Pacific where I will make you prosperous and prominent," how would you likely respond?

Well, I don't have to be all that psychic to suppose how most of us would respond. It would go something like this:

Rev. Althouse: First, we would probably dismiss God's call as an overactive imagination, since people don't believe much in dreams and visions anymore.

Some other time, Lord: Secondly, if we did take the call seriously, we would say, "But God, surely you don't mean for me to leave my family circle." Family ties are too strong for many of us to sever, even if it is God who is calling us.

Thirdly, we might also say, "But I can't leave the USA and live in a country I hardly even know." After all, we are accustomed to a certain way of life, certain living standards, conveniences and services that would hardly be available anywhere else.

Fourthly, we might say to God, "But, Lord, I'm too old for this sort of thing; that's the kind of thing you ought to ask of a young man." No doubt about it, we reach an age where it seems there is less and less adaptability left in us and we look to the familiar for our security.

Of course, these are all responses which Abraham could have made when he received his call from God. His family was well-established in Haran. His whole clan lived there and in those days the clan was much more important than family ties are now.

Abraham also could have protested that he did not want to leave his adopted homeland for a strange place about which he knew little. He too could have questioned whether the vision was authentic.

Some other place

If anyone ever had reason to refuse on the grounds of advanced age, Abraham could have. The writer of Genesis tells us that "Abraham was seventy-five years old when he departed from Haran" (12:4). Seventy-five years old! That must be a mistake. That is well past the age when most people think they still have a contribution to make. Surely God was mixed-up, had the wrong man!

And, when at last Abraham and his party reached Canaan, they might have been justified in protesting that they had been sent to the wrong place. As the writer of Genesis tells us: "At that time the Canaanites were in the land" (12:6). That would have been the point at which many of us would have thrown in the sponge.

So Abraham was confronted with a challenge: to turn around and go back home or to put up his tent in this strange new land.

Abraham did not waver. Although he did not understand what was before him, "...he built there an altar to the Lord...and pitched his tent" (12:7,8).

Later generations would admire his faith: "By faith Abraham obeyed when he was called to go out to a place which he was to receive as an inheritance; and he went out, not knowing where he was to go" (Hebrews 11:8).

When God says "Go!", what do you do?

Confidential

Growing Old Fast

Coach Richard Tomlinson should have grown years older and shown much gray hair after the cliff-hanger at South Fulton Friday evening with the Tigers winning 13-6, scoring twice in the fourth quarter with the final points coming with only seconds on the clock.

The Tigers are playing interesting and exciting football and you're missing something if you're not seeing the games.

Two other coaches growing old prematurely should be Bill Battle, of Tennessee, and Clarence Williamson, of Memphis State.

After trailing Auburn on two occasions the Tennessee Vols staged one of their patented finishes as they scored late in the game to win 21-17. How many times has it happened in the past years?

On the other hand Williamson's Memphis State Tigers are spluttering with a 1-3 record with the only win a convincing defeat of Auburn, Tennessee's opponent last Saturday.

Can't Win

There seems to be no way that President Gerald Ford can please the liberal press of this nation, not that he apparently cares one way or the other.

The press has been highly critical of Mr. Ford's travels over the nation to the liberals say, politics for the Republicans, and exposing himself to possible assassination. It seems to us that they were just as highly critical of former President Richard Nixon because he didn't get out and campaign for the Republican ticket in 1972 and 1974.

Despite the fact that it seems rather bad, the fact is that the president's office is a political office and is likely to remain that way unless we wish to change from a democratic form of government and we don't mean the Democratic party.

Rather Amusing

We have been both amazed and concerned at the twists and turn of the Blanton administration in the case of the firing of the head of Western State Hospital.

While we feel any governor should have the right to hire his own people, we think that medical facilities probably should be off limits for political patronage.

Certainly, we think that Mr. Blanton has been poorly advised in his handling of the case with the result that he has been made to look bad, regardless of the eventual outcome.

PUNT, PASS, KICK

The annual Punt, Pass, Kick contest, annually sponsored by Ford Motor Co. and locally by McDearman Motors, will be held Saturday morning at the Halls High football field.

GRANT AIDS RECORDS

The Tennessee Law Enforcement Planning Commission has awarded $1,291.50 each to Gates, Halls, and Lauderdale County to pay 90% of the cost of installing the State Standardized Record-Keeping System.

Farmers Look Toward 1976

By Charles T. Peal
Harvest time is an ideal time to evaluate crop-land, field by field, and row crop farmer in this county have begun making their plans for 1976.

"Every farmer needs field maps which include data on weeds, herbicide application, use and needed, drainage problems, special tillage needs, planting dates, seeding rates, varieties, fertilization, insect and disease problems, and yields," says Jack Crutcher who is aiming toward complete farm planning to use his resources to the fullest extent.

"I realize yearly adjustment will be made, but I want a long-range plan which will allow for rotation and crop adaptation to individual fields," he says.

Carey Gaines notes that the reasons for poor plant growth and low yields are not always obvious.

To pin-point the problem may require soil sampling, to determine lime and fertilizer needs, or digging into the soil to see if fragipans exist.

Once the problems are pinpointed, farmers have all winter to make plans and start working to solve the problems of individual fields.

Appropriate fall and winter work includes:

- Sub-soil at least 14-20 inches deep to shatter plow pans, improve internal drainage, and prevent erosion during the winter. Sub-soiling should be the last trip over the field in fall.

- Clean outlets and ditches leading to main tributaries, so surface water will move off the land at a reasonable rate.

It is time that farmers know more about soil capabilities, erosion control methods, and other factors that will help them make better use of the greatest of all resources—soil.

Control Cattle Grubs

It's cattle grub control season for beef cows.

These insect worms migrate through the cow's body during the summer and fall, ending as a lump on the back in winter, lowering the value of the hide and damaging the loin cuts.

A new treatment method called "Spoton" was demonstrated last week on the herd of Vernon McBride, Jr. The applicator was a handgun attached to a plastic reservoir which shot a measured amount of material on the back of each animal. This material, fenthion, is a systemic which enters the animal's body and actually kills the grubs while they are in the bloodstream. A by-product of this is the control of lice.

The cost per mature animal is 45¢ to 50¢. Compared with present pour-on applications, the cost would be about the same, considering waste.

Farmers interested in this new method can purchase the insecticide locally and rent a gun.

Cattle should be treated before Nov. 1st.

Disease-Free Elm Returns

Stately elm trees which once adorned America's streets, parks, and lawns may be on their way to making a comeback.

A hybrid, named "urban elm," will be available in limited supply in about three years.

This hybrid, a cross between an elm from the Netherlands and a Siberian elm, is moderate in size and fast-growing, with dark green leaves. It is tolerant to drought, soil compaction, and restricted root space.

Upright branching produces a compact crown with dense foliage.

Prevent Corn Insect Damage

Before putting corn into the bin, clean it thoroughly. Spray all inside surfaces with Malathion two weeks before storing grain. Mix one-third pint 5% premium grade Malathion concentrate per gallon of water.

Dry, insect-free corn can be protected from most insect damage by using Malathion as a grain protectant. Use only premium grade Malathion, brand name Cythion. Apply the insecticide to the grain before or as it goes into the bin. Mix one pint of 5% premium grade Malathion with two to five gallons of water and apply this mixture to each 1,000 bushels of grain.

After binning is completed, leel off the grain, and "cap out" by treating all the grain surface with the protectant.

U. S. Rule Maze Upping Prices Says Brock

Testimony given by an independent panel of experts before the Senate Finance Committee last Wednesday and Thursday indicated that Senator Bill Brock's Job Incentive proposals could create over 1,900,000 new jobs for America's unemployed.

Brock has two measures currently under consideration by the Finance Committee. One, called a Job Incentive Program, would give small firms tax advantages if they hired up to seven new workers. Experts estimate this proposal would result in the creation of 1,200,000 new jobs.

The other Brock measure is to give a permanent tax reduction to small business. By increasing to surtax exemption to $100,000, this bill would create 720,000 new jobs which would increase real wages and salaries by $10 billion.

"We have got to use the strength of this country, Brock said, "to provide meaningful job opportunities. My two suggestions could lower unemployment by 20%. And, these proposals do not require the hiring of one additional bureaucrat."

Brock contrasted his approach of encouraging small businesses to hire additional workers with the theory of creating a Federal mowwork program.

"I want to get this country working again," the Tennessee Senator said. "Not spending billions for make-work projects that don't need to be done, but producing real jobs that will help us get back on the road to economic recovery."

Brock's legislation will increase output, employment, and income, and would result in additional federal revenues which would more than offset the initial revenue loss; by 1977 a net revenue gain of $3 billion would be realized.

"Every Tennesseean suffers the effects of high unemployment," Brock explained. "With more people out of work, the cost of government goes up. Also, with fewer people working there are fewer goods and services available. Thus, everyone wins when everyone works."

Brock is a member of both the Senate Finance Committee and the Senate Select Committee on Small Business. The Finance Committee will hold additional hearings on the Brock suggestions.

Tigers Win At South Fulton On Final Play

The Halls Tigers, back on the winning road, were in Brownsville this Thursday evening to play Tennessee Academy. The game was played on Thursday evening because of the meeting of the West Tennessee Education Association Friday in Memphis.

Not highly rated prior to the season's opening, Tennessee Academy playing their first year in the Reelfoot Conference, has proven to be a tough eleven and could provide a major roadblock to the Tigers.

Last Friday evening the Tigers yielded a second quarter touchdown at South Fulton to trail 6-0 and then came roaring back to win 13-6, scoring the winning touchdown with nine seconds left on the clock.

South Fulton maintained possession of the ball for some six minutes to score their touchdown with four minutes left in the half.

The Tigers, frustrated in several drives, finally hit paydirt near the middle of the fourth quarter with Ralph Taylor scoring from the four. Ladd Roberts' extra point attempt was wide.

Forcing South Fulton to give up the ball with a punt after the kickoff the Tigers moved to the South Fulton 40-yard line where Quarterback Don McBroon hit Eddie Bishop with a pass for the winning six pointer. Roberts kicked the extra point.

Ralph Taylor moved his point scoring to 56 for the season and has gained 435 yards in four games.

The remaining schedule is: Oct. 2, Tennessee Academy (Brownsville), away.

Oct. 10, Gleason (Homecoming), home.

Oct. 17, Fulton County, Ky., away.

Oct. 24, Houston County (Er-in), home.

Oct. 31, Middleton, home.

Nov. 7, Greenfield, home.

PEOPLE PROTECTORS

Did you ever think of ads as guardians of your individuality? They are, you know. In a time when the edges are being eaten off our personalities and we're all being reduced to card-index numbers, we need to hang on to some things. Like our freedom of choice. And that choice is yours only as long as competition and free enterprise and advertising are working for you. Guard them. For they stand between you and a dull and standardized life.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. AGAR
THE TEST
Lesson for October 18, 1975
Background Scriptures: Genesis 22:1-19; Deuterium Reading: Luke 20:45 through 21:4

If you go to Jerusalem today and visit the beautiful Dome of the Rock, you will see a huge rock surrounded by a railing and will tell you that the rock is Mt. Moriah, the spot upon which Abraham stood ready to sacrifice his only son, Isaac. Whether or not that great event, one cannot help but be moved as he contemplates the significant drama that was probably played out at that location.

It was one of the great high moments of man's religious history. Religion "turns" an important "corner," as we say. Where is the lamb? Scholars and others will argue whether God actually asked Abraham to sacrifice his son. Some maintain that Abraham only thought God wanted him to do this because he saw his Canaanite neighbors doing it. Either way the point of the story is pretty much the same. Whether Abraham only was willing to sacrifice for his God the one possession which was above all others: his only son.

Once before God had tested this man, calling him to leave his home country for a strange land he had never seen. Abraham had responded to this challenge with an obedient faith. But this test was even greater. Abraham and Sarah had been childless until Abraham reached his ninety-ninth year. Then, at last, they had a child, a male heir, the heir through which God would fulfill his promise to make Abraham and Sarah the father and mother of a whole multitude of peoples.

So, Isaac was not only Abraham's son, but he was the gift from God in his old age. Abraham must certainly have wondered how he could possibly make this supreme sacrifice to God. It was his greatest test of faith.

There is some rich symbolic meaning in this story. For example, Abraham lays the firewood for the sacrifice on Isaac's back and one is reminded of Jesus carrying his own cross to Calvary. There is Isaac asking in wonder, "Behold the fire and the wood; but where is the lamb for a burnt offering?" (Genesis 22:7). One is reminded of Jesus, sacrificed as "the Lamb of God who takes away the sins of the world."

Enthusiasm Growing
We were somewhat amazed and greatly pleased with the enthusiasm shown by the Halls High School student body in preparation for the homecoming game with Gleason last Friday evening and at the game itself.

The pre-game parade earlier in the day was well planned and seemingly was generating enthusiasm among students and the general public. Pre-game activities were nicely presented and added color to the occasion.

Prices Please Calf Growers

By Charles T. Peel
Carlton Gay, Russell Evans, and Pat Parker, Jr., were happy cattle producers Monday of last week as their feeder calves sold for prices far exceeding their expectations in the fall Brownsville Feeder Calf Association sale.

"Prime and choice steers ranged from 33¢ to 42¢ per pound, Haywood County Agent Douglas Pettigrew reported. Only one pen sold under 36¢. Out-of-state buyers astounded local producers with spirited bids on Hereford-Angus crosses. None of these sold for less than 35.25¢ per pound. Very little difference was recorded for Herefords of comparable quality.

The most noticeable difference was the depressed price of Charolais crosses compared to Hereford or Hereford-Angus. On the average, all grades and weights of these cattle averaged at least 5¢ less per pound.

Mid-west feeders said it takes 20 days longer to finish a Charolais cross than the Hereford, Angus or these crosses. Since their feed-lot operations are geared to sell one lot of finished cattle at a time, this cross does not fit their program.

The sale included 1,132 calves, all from grass, with an average weight 500 to 525 pounds. The Oct. 15th feeder sale provided local producers an opportunity to purchase replacements for herd improvement. Garden Soil Tested Free

Troy Long, of Ripley, has been employed by the Agricultural Extension Service for several months to visit gardeners throughout the county to test the pH, phosphorus, and potash levels of the soil.

On the other hand, a sample will be taken. The second visit will discuss fertilization and liming needs.

He is systematically covering the county, but gardeners may request his services by calling 635-8551.

U.S. SENATOR BILL BROCK WASHINGTON OUTLOOK

By Mrs. Frank Butts

Earlier this summer, the Federal Paperwork Commission, of which I am a member, met for the first time. The Commission was established to investigate the massive amount of government and to suggest ways and means of lessening the burden, not only on the government, but on individual Americans. The briefing book provided as background with instructions for each member was itself three inches thick, containing hundreds of acres.

Recently, Congress passed legislation permitting married couples to deduct the cost of child care from their taxes for families whose both parents work. However, the Internal Revenue Service then felt obligated to issue a regulation governing the amount of house cleaning the taxpayer may perform that is deductible.

Yet the list of such regulations is endless. Everytime Congress has a better idea about these lines in their own handwriting, government officials today make a decision of our lives.

When the people of Tennessee and America get fed up with threats on their freedom, they act. Their voices are being heard in Washington and there after all these years of letting the bureaucracy run the government I do not give them their sincerity, but I do hope they will do more than

BY LAWRENCE W. WALSHOUSE

THE BIRTHRIGHT

Lesson for October 25, 1975

Background Scripture: Genesis 25:13-34; 27:29

Devotional Reading: Philippians 2:1-11

The man who served as my guide in the Holy Land, a Palestinian Arab from Bethlehem, told me that shortly after the Dead Sea scrolls were accidentally found in a cave by an Arab shepherd boy, the most important of these scrolls, the Book of Isaiah, was given to him for a brief period of time. This priceless scroll was unexpectedly carried around in the back of a sheep's head for several weeks before disposing of it as valueless.

Today, he realizes what a valuable treasure he permitted to slip through his fingers. He simply did not appreciate the value of what he held in his hands.

For a mess of pottage

That true story could well serve as a parable for our times. How often people let valuable possessions slip through their fingers simply because they have no idea at all of the value of these things.

This is one of the themes of the story of Jacob and Esau.

It is not one of those "good guys and bad guys" stories. Neither of them were really admirable as the writer of Genesis portrays them. There is Jacob, crafty, scheming, covetous, an opportunist who gains personal advantage at the expense of someone else's loss.

Yet, neither is Esau very compelling. It was evil of Jacob to seek to trade food for Esau's birthright, but it was even more monstrously sinful for Esau to sell it. Not only did Esau sell his precious birthright, but he did it without any sense of loss. "I am about to die," he croaks, "of what use is a birthright to me?" (Genesis 25:32). So, the saying goes: "Esau sold his birthright for a mess of pottage."

Even though he was famished, even though he may have been on the brink of starvation, Esau sold out too cheaply and too easily. What a fatal flaw in his character, he was headless of his God-given gift. It is no wonder that his wife Rachel, Genesis concluded that "Thus Esau despised his birthright" (Genesis 25:34).

What have you done to me?

There are lots of people in this world who "despise their birthright." They have no sense at all of the great potentialities that God has placed within them. Like Esau they have a habit of saying: "Of what use is it to me?"

There is a strange kind of retribution that dominates the next episode of the story. Jacob flees from his brother's wrath and settles with his uncle Laban in a far land. He works to win the hand of his beloved Rachel, the daughter of Uncle Laban.

The big day arrives and the wedding feast begins. The bride is heavily veiled because of tradition. So, it is not until they retire for the evening that he realizes his uncle has put one over on him: the trickster has been tricked!

It might just as well have been Esau who said, "What is this you have done to me?" but it wasn't Esau. Instead, now it was Jacob who was on the bad end of the deal. He was saddled with a woman he didn't want. Even worse, he didn't have the woman he did want. When Laban gives his slimy excuse, Jacob must have shuddered to think that he had once been like that.

Whatever it is that God puts within the lives of each one of us, we must learn to value our God-given birthrights, to hold on to them and develop them and use them in His service. For that is why we give them to us.

Looking Around

The London Home Office employs a Max cat to keep its ancient building clear of mice. Her name is Peta and she receives a crown a week.

Her professor, Peter, had a Rhode Island mouse that received only half a crown a week, 35 cents.

Freda Kilkenny, vacationing in Las Vegas, won in a raffle an expensive trip to Las Vegas. And in Ontario the wife of an electric refrigerator dealer won a year's supply of ice.

By an Alabama court decision a man is entitled to all sums of money which his wife earns by her skill and labor. And a Rhode Island court says a man who takes all his pay home is foolish.

A nation-wide study shows that a high school graduate in 1960 earned $600 more per year than one who didn't finish. And the student who started but didn't finish earned $400 a year more than the one who didn't go to high school at all.

The late Robert Frost said to the pilot of an airplane he was riding in, "I don't want to fly so fast that I miss anything" — slow down if you see any flowers."

A woman in Seward, Alaska, won $2,000 for catching a 17-pound silver salmon in a fishing derby. The state fish and game department found out the woman didn't have a license to fish, took away her prize winning salmon and fined her $50.

Confessions

work Ethic

During recent weeks we have read considerable material written by various liberals attacking the so-called work ethic and the feeling that most Americans have that they should work for what they get.

During recent years it has seemed to us that more and more Americans are assuming the position that the world owes them living although they are unwilling to make any effort in their own behalf.

Certainly we favor caring for the sick, the old, the disabled, the young children who otherwise would suffer, but we wonder just where the idea began to prevail that the American taxpayer should care for such men and women who refuse to work but constantly keep their hands out for help.

A case in point is the present financial plight of New York City. The city officials have in the past gone overboard in their efforts to care for the so-called needy and underprivileged. As a result have bankrupted themselves.

We cannot decide just what should be done about helping New York City, although our first inclination is no. Nevertheless it may be necessary but the city's troubles should be an object lesson to Congress and the federal government.

Stolen Van Is Found Burned

Newbern police chief R. E. Brown, coon-hunting at 3 a.m. Saturday on the Anderson-Tully Wildlife Refuge near the Forked Deer River, discovered a 1975 Chevrolet van and called Sheriff Louis Craig, who learned the $9,000 vehicle, registered to Mike Keilams, of Clarksville, Ind., had been stolen Thursday morning of last week in Clarksville.

The sheriff said the van was stripped of motor transmission, citizen's band radio, captain's chair, and other parts before it was set afire.

Reviere Hears Salary Claims

A suit filed last Friday by four county officials to force payment by the county of an 11% salary increase already being collected by other officials of the county came before Circuit Judge Herman L. Reviere Thursday with a ruling that the county must pay considered probable.

Legal sources said there appeared to be little basis on which to deny the payments, approved by the state legislature without county approval.

Sherriff Louis Craig, Tax Assessor Bernice Crain, General Sessions Judge Willard Norvell, and Chancery Clerk and Master Floyd D. Starnes filed the suit to force payment by County Judge Jerry Owen whose salary is also involved.

Other county officials have been paying the 11% increase from funds collected in their offices.

Dry Skies Aid Bean Harvest

By Charles T. Peal

Soy bean harvesting gathered momentum last week as combines gathered under clear skies and on dry soil.

It was the first time since 1972 when farmers were able to drive grain trucks to the combine, rather than using bargies and other methods of getting the crop to hard-surface roads.

Dry soil not only allows more beans to be saved but also saves time and expense of moving those bargees.

As expected, soy beans dropped in price this week. Some producers are predicting $4 per bushel beans.

Farmers with storage facilities can utilize it. It is capitalize on the grain deal pending with Russia. Also, beans usually increase in price, once the harvest is over.

Most early varieties yielded 30 or more bushels per acre. Much of this has been replanted to wheat.

Several hundred acres of wheat were seeded by airplane just before the soy beans dropped their leaves.

More will be planted as other beans are harvested, which means the county may increase its wheat acreage — weather permitting.

Cotton production is a pleasant surprise to most producers. Farmers who sprayed on schedule may make at least a bale per acre.

Most will be hard pressed to recover expenses, as weevils and worms damaged many bolls which only partially opened and will be missed by the picker.

Cotton is about two weeks late, but with normal weather it can be harvested without damage.

Cotton in the northern part of the county was harvested first. Some graded well, bringing a price higher than the average.

The cotton sold last week in the area of 50.6¢ per pound, which was lower than the previous week.

Buff Check-Off Passes House

By a vote of 229-99, the House of Representatives has passed a bill to establish cattle producers to enable and finance research, information, and promotion programs on cattle, beef, and beef products. The bill now goes to the Senate.

If passed, it would allow beef cattlemen to operate a check-off system similar to the 1¢ per bale cotton.

All of Tennessee's representatives voted for the bill, with the exception of Democrat Evans, whose vote was not indicated.

This program could be important to the beef industry. Research could make money for beef producers by streamlining marketing and developing programs to help produce more beef at lower cost.

Roach Control Is Timely

Many home owners have roaches around the home. Two teaspoons of 5% emulsified concentrate Malathion per gallon of water, sprayed three times at weekly intervals into cracks, in cabinets, and under sinks, and even under the house, will control these pests.

Another material, Diazinon, used at the same rate will do the job equally well and does not have the odor Malathion has.

Water Protection For Yards

Mrs. Leonard Alston, of Route 1, Halls, has a new yard, developed too late to sell her multiple tract. She is interested in holding the soil during the winter.

Real success has been obtained in recent years by sowing wheat at the rate of three bushels per acre. This is much easier than spreading cotton hulls or other organic materials to protect slopes.

Next spring, the ground need not even be broken. Clumps of Bermuda can be set three feet apart, and after the wheat has died, the Bermuda will spread over the surface and cover the yard completely, provided it is fertilized regularly.

Mrs. Celerityne Younger had a yard in Ripley in which we used this method quite successfully this summer.

Frost Damages Forage Crops

Prussic acid is a problem only with grain sorghum, sorghum Sudan grass hybrids, and Johnson grass.

In order to graze these forage crops after a killing frost, wait 7-10 days. If a light frost occurs, as it did last Saturday and Sunday night, wait until the heavy frost kills the plant, and allow 7-10 days before grazing. In the sorghum Sudan grass hybrids, this is indicated by a brown, leathery look to the leaf surface.

Scoring Leader—Ralph Taylor, Halls Tiger backfield ace, was ranked fourth in the state in scoring prior to last week's game with a total of 92 points. He expected to rank even higher this week as he registered three touchdowns to reach 110 points. Taylor, a six foot, 175 pound senior, has picked up 1114 yards rushing in seven games.

Beauty Spot

Bronze and yellow chrysantheums on the lawn of Mrs. Marie Larson on West 10th were selected for the Halls Garden Club beauty spot sign this week.

Washington Outlook

Nationwide opinion polls still indicate that the economy, in particular inflation and unemployment, remain the primary concern of Americans. In the past, we have attempted to deal with this combination of problems with various weapons. Generally, the immediate call is for public service jobs. That is usually followed by a massive spending program by the Federal government for temporary employment. The talk this year ranges toward the $8 billion figure.

There is a better way to approach unemployment and inflation. Why not work through the strengths of our system? Why do we have to take the quick, seemingly easy way out, which generally wins up soaking the taxpayer and consequently more competition? Chances will increase for prices to go down for the consumer because competition and productivity would have increased.

There are many benefits to be derived from this measure. I am excited about its chances of passage. It is important for people—all people. And it does deal with two problems which are of the greatest concern to Americans—unemployment and inflation. Moreover, we can rely on some of the strengths that have made our country great rather than perpetuating the same problems over and over with ever higher taxes and ever increasing prices.

After that, just sit back and be lazy. Each payday part of your pay will be automatically set aside for U.S. Savings Bonds.

And that can mean big money for you in the years to come. For a new home, for education, or for retirement.

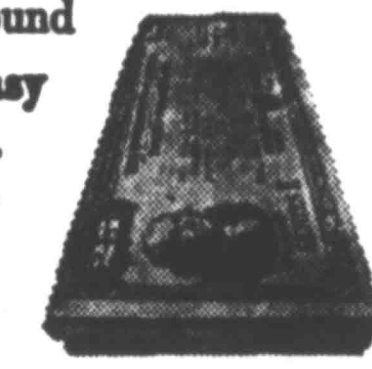

It means big money for your country, too. The kind that takes to put men on the moon, build highways, and keep the nation strong.

And the government believes in safeguarding your investment in it. Bonds are guaranteed. And the U.S.

Treasury will replace them —free—if they are lost, stolen, or destroyed.

There's a bonus, too. Each Bond you buy entitles you to buy a Freedom Share of the same denomination. Freedom Shares pay a higher rate of interest than Bonds, and mature in just four and one-half years.

Now doesn't that sound like easy hand-work?

If they're lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them.

LOW YIELD PAYMENTS
Low Yield Payments

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service says a farmer may be considered for low yield payment when even the production of cotton is determined to be abnormally low because of a disaster.

Any producer who feels his cotton is not worth harvesting can request an appraisal and abandon his crop without harvest.

If you harvest your cotton, you should report your production within 15 days after harvest.

Whether you harvest or abandon cotton, you should not destroy your crop residue until you are notified by an ASCS representative or by the ASCS office.

Each individual farm's eligibility requirements will be different. If there are any questions pertaining to the program requirements, farmers should call 685-9091.

All cotton producers who have a cotton allotment are eligible for CCC price support loans. Loans mature ten months after the month the loan is made. The loan is based on white-strict-low-middleline 1-1/16, with micronaire reading of 3.5-4.9 at county rate of 36.50 per 100.

Bales must weigh not less than 225 pounds net weight. If the bale weighs more than 600 pounds, the loan will be based on 600 pounds.

Accrued storage in excess of 60 days will be deducted from the loan. Cotton class cards must be dated not more than 15 days before the warehouse receipts. Otherwise, a review classification will be necessary.

The service charge to compensate CCC for costs incurred in making loans will be $1.50 per loan, plus 25¢ per bale. The interest rate is 7 1/4% from Oct. 1st to April 1st and from April 1st to Oct. 1st, subject to change depending on the known as "these trying times."

Watch Out For Kids

With summer vacation over, many youngsters will be streaming back to school. Safety officials again are warning drivers to be extra alert, particularly near school zones and stopped school buses. They stress keeping windshields clean. This means replacing streaking windshield wipers, blades and checking washer reservoirs to see they are full of solvent and operating properly. Kids are careless; you shouldn't be.

I am an American. Do not fold, spindle, or mutilate.

Millions of them show their pride by buying U.S. Savings Bonds. Through regular purchases whose they work or bank, they've helped preserve our freedoms by investing in their country.

At the same time, they've been saving up quite a nest egg for themselves.

U.S. Savings Bonds pay a guaranteed return. And your investment is backed by the full faith and credit of the United States of America.

Also, the interest on Series E Savings Bonds isn't subject to state or local income taxes.

You can defer federal taxes on E Bonds interest until you redeem the Bond.

If your Bonds are lost, or stolen, or destroyed, we simply replace them without cost.

They're safe.

They're easy.

They're automatic.

And they're a reminder. A reminder that we all have to work hard to keep what we have.

Investing in your country will do just that.

Think about U.S. Savings Bonds. It's a way to keep our country from getting folded, spindled or mutilated.

Being an American is comfortable. After all, we do have more than any other country in the world.

But sometimes we get too comfortable. We take our leisure and our property and our freedoms for granted. Sometimes we have to be reminded that it wasn't easy for us to get where we are. That the freedoms we enjoy weren't handed to us on a platter.

Of course, the great majority of Americans have great pride in their country.

If they're lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them.

Take stock in America Buy U.S. Savings Bonds

Give your country a hand. But don't lift a finger.

Except to fill out this Payroll Savings Card where you work.

After that, just sit back and be lazy. Each payday part of your pay will be automatically set aside for U.S. Savings Bonds.

And that can mean big money for you in the years to come. For a new home, for education, or for retirement.

It means big money for your country, too. The kind it takes to put men on the moon, build highways, and keep the nation strong.

And the government believes in safeguarding your investment in it. Bonds are guaranteed. And the U.S.

Treasury will replace them—free—if they are lost, stolen, or destroyed.

There's a bonus, too. Each Bond you buy entitles you to buy a Freedom Share of the same denomination. Freedom Shares pay a higher rate of interest than Bonds, and mature in just four and one-half years.

Now doesn't that sound like easy handiwork?

If they're lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them.

The Loyal Omission

By Dr. Robert Drake

Once again—during the past summer—I've been fortunate enough to visit England and spend some time on the Continent. And once again I've returned from there poorer in purse but richer in spirit. When my English friends ask me why I keep returning over, summer after summer, I reply that I earn my living by teaching their literature and so naturally have a vested interest in their country. I don't know whether this answer satisfies them or not; they complain about the weather, about their taxes, and now, especially about their high unemployment and the fierce rate of inflation. And it's all true, except that this past summer it was very hot there (ironically, I never wore my English "summer" suit—all wool—and wore my sweater only in Italy, where it was unseasonably cool; but the inflation was intimidating). (The major ticks, unfortunately, are still going high. But still I'm not daunted; and I mean to keep on going back, as long as my means and my health permit.

Why? Well, ever since I was a little boy growing up in deepest West Tennessee, England—and Europe—have been part of my great dream. I've never particularly wanted to travel elsewhere; not even to Mexico and South America, and not really east of Suez. Oh, if someone walked in and gave me a ticket to Japan, I suppose I would go; but I don't think I would ever go to go there. Why, I've never even been to California; and I suppose I'm one of the few people of my age and predilections, still alive in captivity, who have never been to San Francisco. But going to England especially has been my lifelong ambition, my oldest dream.

You see, I have always really believed in Robin Hood and Queen Elizabeth I (never Mary Queen of Scots) and Sir Francis Drake and Lord Nelson, to say nothing of such latter-day heroic figures as Sir Winston Churchill, whom I actually did see one time alighting from his car to go into Number 10 Downing Street (Macmillan was Prime Minister then) to attend a dinner party in honor of General Eisenhower. He was so old and infirm that he had to be helped out of the car, but let me tell you, when I saw him, I felt as if I were seeing the man who had won the Nobel Peace Prize for his role in ending World War II. I'm not exaggerating to say that tears came into my eyes when I saw him. I felt as if I had seen the man who had won the Nobel Peace Prize for his role in ending World War II. I'm not exaggerating to say that tears came into my eyes when I saw him. I felt as if I had seen the man who had won the Nobel Peace Prize for his role in ending World War II.

What manner of people may they be? Paradoxical in the extreme, I've always thought. At once both provincial and cosmopolitan, they have at one time or another extended their dominion over a great part of the world; and yet they have remained, in some ways, tight little islanders, quite literally insular as well. "Home" for them is still that little island out in the North Sea; yet as someone once observed, wherever they travel, they manage to make everybody else feel like foreigners. Public people and yet intensely private too: how else could they stand life among 50,000,000 others on that one island? They have no written constitution, and their national church has been accused of being all things to all men. They, you see, they don't really like ideas, and they're always reluctant to define things—something the Stuarts never understood but the best of the Tories comprehended all too well. They hem and haw (remember what the word meant) and they honor their commitment to Belgium—just as they honored their pledge to Poland in 1939.

Nothing could be more true, more informal than the House of Commons, with members talking about with their hands behind their backs, their feet on the desks, and their chairs swiveling around. You could imagine a business deal being made on the floor of the House of Commons. The Throne, the

AN OPEN LETTER To Lauderdale Countians

"Righteousness exalteth a nation: but sin is a reproach to any people." —Proverbs 14:34

As we approach this Bicentennial year, I am very much concerned about existing conditions in our country. As a father, citizen, and Minister of the Word of God, it is imperative that I bring to your attention the following:

For several years, I have been very much concerned about the moral breakdown in our country. This fact has been driven home to my heart as almost every week I have parents coming to me and pouring out their hearts, that their children are involved with dope, alcohol, rebellion, or have become involved in sexual immorality (four families in the last three weeks).

This condition stems from a permissive society. Note what the Bible says in Ecclesiastes 8:11: "Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil." We, in our permissive society, in Lauderdale County, allow our law to continue pushing dope on the streets and in our schools, selling bootleg whiskey to our kids and selling them pornographic literature in the department stores, super markets, and drug stores.

This is destroying our country and our children. Nikita Khrushchev boasted that Russia would take America without firing a shot. America is falling gradually to a permissive, humanist society.

I love my country, and I want to see it flourish.

REBECCA INEZ KENNEDY, daughter of Rhea Kennedy, of Lafayette, Ind., and of Mrs. Ruth Kennedy, of Gates, will marry Jimmy Leon Hutcherson, son of Mrs. June Hutcherson, of Route 1, Gates, and the late John Hutcherson, at 7 p.m. Nov. 21st in Gates Baptist Church, without formal invitations.

The granddaughter of the Willie Kennedys of Gates, and of Mr. and Mrs. Norman A. Shands, of Route 2, Ripley, she was graduated from Halls High School in 1972 and attended Dyersburg State College. She is employed by Pearson Mfg. Co.

Mr. Hutcherson, grandson of the John A. Hutchersons, of Route 2, Halls, and of Mrs. Rosie Johnson, of Route 1, Gates, and the late Lish Johnson, was a 1967 HHS graduate. He is employed by Western Auto Associate Store in Halls, where the couple will reside.

still magic words to them; and the Union Jack still bites the dust when the Sovereign passes by. The idea of a republican form of government has no appeal for them at all. (We Americans, for all our egalitarian talk, love nothing better than a crowned head, and if we can't have the real thing, we create our own, whether in the persons of Miss America or the celebrities and "personalities" of the media.) A visiting English author, loyal and yet somewhat carping about his homeland, once observed of me, when I remarked that the British Royal Family were all very popular here, that Queen Elizabeth II was probably not a very bright woman. To which I replied that she wasn't being paid to be bright but for something else entirely different. And he agreed. What that something is may be very difficult for the outsider to comprehend, but to understand it is to understand a great deal of what it means to be English, believe it or not.

It is to be committed to precedent and tradition and to respect the past and those who made it what it was, both good and bad; yet always to be alive and alert; in the present and hopeful toward the future. It is to be marvelously imaginative (look at their literature) yet dreadfully realistic; it is to be both Mary and Martha. It is at least to have both the comic and the tragic senses highly developed (can one really have one without the other?). No people can be more exasperating in their jealousy of and zeal for individual rights and privileges; yet no people can be more formidable, more overwhelming when finally acting in concert. They've bumbled along for many generations; they've muddled through for a good many years now. But they're still in business, and they're still muddling. And where are the Hapsburgs where are the Hohenzollerns, the Bourbons now? We ourselves are only turning two hundred.

Admittedly, I'm a prejudiced witness; that's more than obvious by now. But don't listen overmuch to the prophets of doom and gloom who would write them off now; don't ever sell them short. London is still the greatest city in the world—something the Stuarts never understood but the best of the Tories comprehended all too well. They hem and haw (remember what the word meant) and they honor their commitment to Belgium—just as they honored their pledge to Poland in 1939.

Nothing could be more true, more informal than the House of Commons, with members talking about with their hands behind their backs, their feet on the desks, and their chairs swiveling around. You could imagine a business deal being made on the floor of the House of Commons. The Throne, the

Band Shines In Mayfield

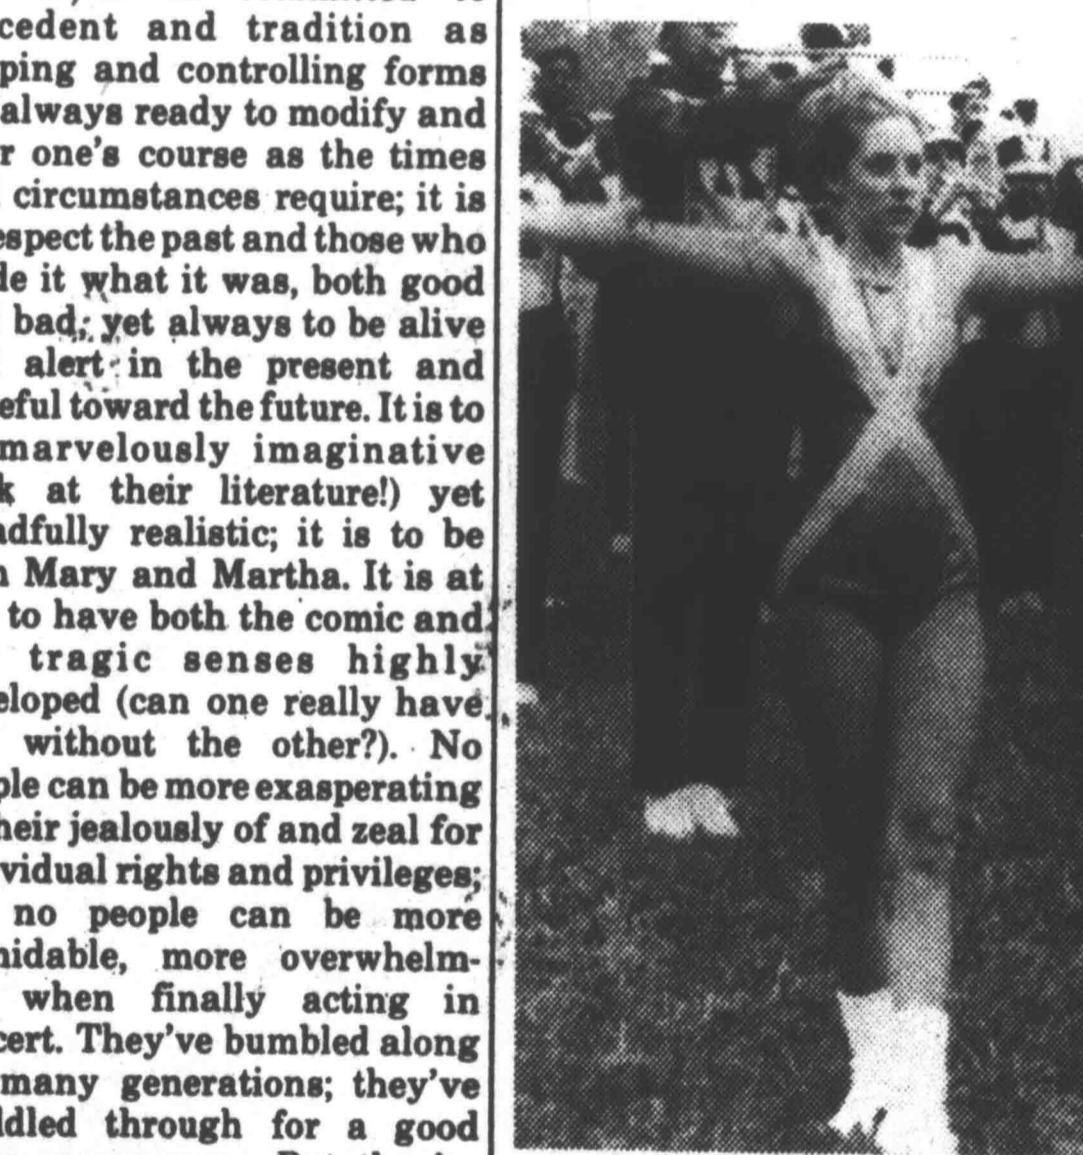

Ripley High School's Marching Band, in Class A competition in the 15th annual Kiwanis Band Festival in Mayfield, Ky., Saturday, failed to place but drew applause as it executed intricate maneuvers flawlessly in field competition.

Nineteen bands marched in an afternoon parade. Twenty appeared in field competition from 6 until 10 p.m.

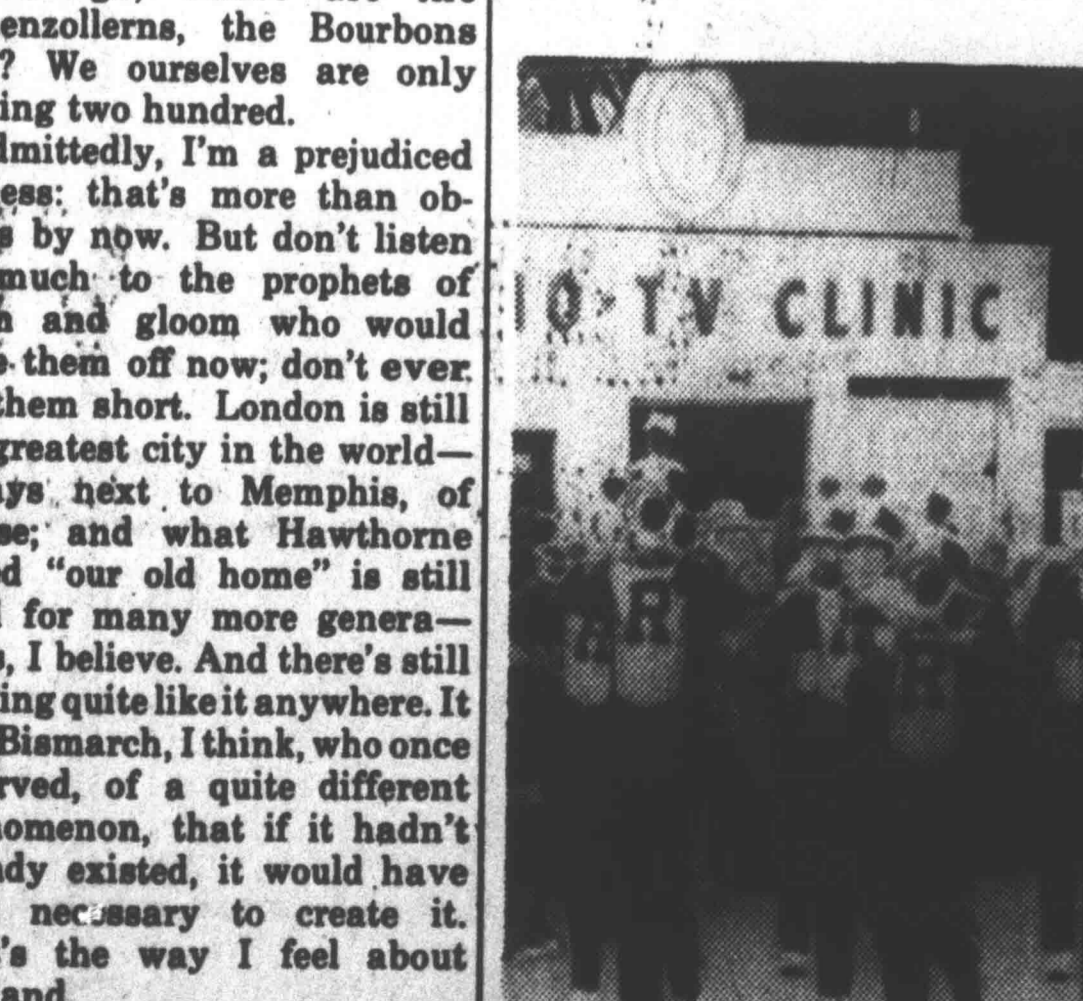

Only at the very end of the Ripley's field maneuvers did a noticeable error occur, when part of a line formation stopped inches short of destination. The flag unit was not used, after one member failed to catch
