For Second Time In 25 Years—

Farm Cost Index Tops Index Of Crop Income

By Charles T. Peal

For the first time since 1971, and only the second time since 1950, the index of prices for farm production costs has risen above the index of prices received for farm products, bringing farmers the most severe cost-prize squeeze for years.

Faced with smaller margins of return, farmers have been forced to expand gross sales or use fewer in-puts to production. Using fewer in-puts is at best a short-run solution and usually not economically desirable.

Every farmer who hopes to stay in business for the long run must expand gross sales—by making more efficient use of resources available, or acquiring control of additional resources.

Tennessee's Rapid Adjustment Program shows that most farmers can produce more product from the resources they are managing.

New co-operators in the program usually exhibit rapid gains from more efficient land utilization and increased efficiency, coupled with intensification, of their livestock programs.

This means producing more bushels of corn where previously less corn, or maybe only pasture, has been produced.

It means farrowing more litters per sow and weaning more pigs per litter.

The reason, of course, is that most of the costs—such as machinery, labor, taxes, insurance—are the same for 100 bushels of corn per acre as they are for 50 bushels, or the same for weaning eight pigs per litter as for weaning five per litter.

Machinery is becoming extremely expensive. Its fixed costs—depreciation, housing, and insurance—are the same, regardless of the number of acres on which the machine is used.

If the number of acres covered by the machine are doubled, fixed costs per acre are cut in half.

But there is an economic limit to the level of increased efficiency. When the productive capability of the soil is reached, or litter capacity of the sow is being utilized, it would be uneconomical to strive for further increases.

That is the point at which acquiring additional resources is the best method of expansion.

Cotton Marketing Aided

Lauderdale County farmers are now eligible for cotton classification, micronaire reading, and market news service under the Smith-Doxey Act of 1937 for the 1976 season.

County farmers had 14,402 samples classed under this program last year.

An application to continue the services for this county was approved last week.

Charles A. Anthony, Jr., will serve as president of the Lauderdale County Cotton Improvement Group, with Charles T. Peal as group representative and T. L. Cribfield as alternate.

Fall Gardening Begins

Fall gardens can add importantly to home food supplies. Seeds of cool season crops, such as cauliflower, broccoli, and cabbage can be seeded directly or transplanted into gardens from containers now.

If you haven't removed Irish potatoes, peas, or other crops from your early garden, now is the time to do so, if you have sufficient storage for them.

About a week before planting dates, begin preparing the soil by applying a soil insecticide, adding fertilizer, and tilling.

Add a soil insecticide to reduce the problems encountered when insects attack the underground plant parts.

Don't omit fertilizer because it was applied to the spring crop. Vegetables need large amounts of fertilizer, and they may have already used all the fertilizer applied in the spring.

Tilling removes many weeds and prepares a good seed-bed for germination and root penetration.

About two days before seeding, water soil thoroughly so adequate water will be available for germination. If watering is done after seeding, a crust of the soil reduces emergence of seedlings.

Early August is a good time to plant bush snap-beans for a late crop. Snap-beans need only 55 to 60 days from seeding to mature.

However, root rot and rust diseases are more likely to occur on fall-seeded beans than spring-seeded beans.

Other crops which can be planted in August include beets, carrots, Irish potatoes, kale, radishes, lettuce, mustard, and turnips. Many of these crops will mature with long-growing warm season crops, like tomatoes, okra, pepper, sweet corn, and sweet potatoes.

Fall vegetables will be growing during the drier, hotter part of the year. It's important they

Completely Ignored

Weekend before last Neil and your editor drove to Marietta, Ga. to attend a Depression Glass Show, traveling three Interstate highways, I-40, I-24, and I-75.

En route home despite the fact that we were driving at the maximum speed limit of 55 miles per hour, we became aware that vehicle after vehicle was passing us some driving at speeds of up to 75 and 80 miles per hour. Most of these were on the Tennessee portions of these highways.

Out of pure curiosity and to confirm what we believed we tried an experiment.

We had stopped at the rest stop just west of the Tennessee River on I-40, some 50 miles from Jackson.

When we left the rest area we set our speed at 60 miles per hour never exceeding that speed and trying to maintain that pace as closely as possible.

During the next 30 miles 74 vehicles passed us while we passed 7, some of these were trucks which had already passed us but had lost speed because of long hills.

We were traveling 5 miles over the legal speed limit but car after car, etc. passed us.

Included in those passing us were 11 trucks, 2 motorcycles, 1 self-contained camper, two cars pulling boats along with many other types of vehicles.

We saw numerous highway patrolmen during the three-day trip, some of them with violators pulling over to the side of the highway.

It seems to us that despite federal and state laws setting a maximum of 55 miles per hour along with statistics showing lives and gasoline being saved the general public is ignoring the law and enforcement is lax.

We are not at this time prepared to fault the highway patrol since we don't know just how much cooperation they are receiving in enforcing the speed laws nor do we know what their orders are from high officials concerning arrests for speeding.

We have never been thoroughly convinced that strictly enforced reckless driving laws are not better than low speed limits but the fact is that 55 miles per hour is the law and the general public should begin adhering to it.

Must Be Stopped

We don't know whose toes we are stepping on but Saturday and Sunday a small airplane apparently crop dusting was flying much too close to the residential areas in northeast Halls.

One slight mistake would have landed the plane in the housing project, the school buildings or some other building or residence.

We agree to the need for crop dusting but some other means should be worked out rather than the low flying over densely populated areas.

A little tarragon vinegar stirred into butter makes a good sauce for mushrooms and artichokes.

be given adequate water for good production.

An inch of water applied weekly is sufficient for most vegetables. Water requirements are most critical during germination and flowering.

Widow, 77, Cheers Ill Children With Her Gifts Of Stuffed Toys

"You don't have to be rich to help someone, and the reward you get from helping someone—that good feeling—is worth a million dollars."

That's the philosophy behind Maggie Escue, a 77-year-old widow who spends a lot of her time and part of her meager income making toys for children in Lauderdale County Hospital, The National Enquirer told readers in its July 27th issue.

"I don't know of anyone more deserving of being called a Good Samaritan than this good woman," said Barbara Johnson, the nurse's aide who nominated Mrs. Escue for the paper's Good Samaritan certificate and a $50 prize.

"She uses her own money to buy materials so she can make toys for sick children.

She's given away hundreds."

Mrs. Duane Phares, director of nursing, agreed. "It means a great deal to the children to have someone who looks like everybody's image of grandmother bring them a toy and make them laugh," she says.

Mrs. Escue also makes toys for youngsters in St. Jude's Hospital in Memphis.

"It's not uncommon to see a little child walking down a corridor clutching one of Mrs. Escue's stuffed animals," Jerry Chipman, St. Jude spokesman, told the paper.

"We certainly appreciate what this woman is doing."

"Mrs. Escue, whose husband died 17 years ago, began making toys for sick youngsters about 12 years ago.

"I was at the hospital visiting a sick friend and saw the children and how sad they looked," she says. "I thought, 'What can I do to help them?'"

"I told myself toys would be nice, but on my Social Security check—about $150 per month—buying toys was out of the question.

"That's when I hit on the idea of making the toys myself. I've been making them ever since.

"It costs me up to $40 a month for the materials and gas for the car to deliver them."

Of all the toy animals she has given away, one stands out in her memory.

"Just recently," she says, "I stuck my head in a patient's room, and a woman said to me, 'You don't remember me, but I remember you. Ten years ago, my little boy was here, and you gave him a stuffed cat. He's a strapping, 6-foot, 17-year-old now, but he still has that cat on his bedroom dresser."

U.S. SENATOR BILL BROCK WASHINGTON OUTLOOK

Whatever happened to good old common horse sense? It certainly can't be found within the isolation chamber known as the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

The latest OSHA action is almost laughable. At a cost to the taxpayer of $500,000, OSHA has published 1.5 million copies of 23 pamphlets which are supposed to help farmers understand the safety regulations of the agency.

There is now a measure in the Senate, which I have sponsored, to reform the regulatory agencies, such as OSHA. This effort can accomplish several helpful points, not the least of which would be to eliminate some of the arrogance of these agencies and restructure them to a point where they will have to work with people, not against I'm proud to say that the majority of the new drugs were researched and developed right here in the United States.

More than half of all the new prescription drugs developed since the early 1940s are credited to the United States. Switzerland, England, and Germany account for approximately 25% of the major sources and the balance is credited to a number of other nations in combined efforts.

Ponds Lack Glamor But Hold Fish

By Tony Mack

At a birthday gathering for one of the oldest of old-time farmers in West Tennessee—an avid and still active outdoorsman who had tallied 102 years and was in remarkably good health, I had to ask him how he had managed this.

"By never gettin' married," he said, "drinkin' nothin' but moonshine whiskey, not smoking, and fishin' one of them thar ponds you see out yonder at least three times a week!"

The same formula, in its entirety, may not increase everyone's life span. The bits about not getting hitched, drinking white lightning, and puffing stogies you'll have to ponder by yourself. But I can attest that a little mixture of pond fishing can do aangler's life-style a heap of good.

Fishing in a cow pond? Unglamorous, child's play, you say? Well, hold on a minute and listen up.

Last year, I made a trip to Mill Pond Lake, near Texarkana, Ark. The magazine which sent me wanted me to catch and photograph a really big bass. The desire was mutual.

I fished with Ricky Green, one of the top-rated fishermen on the BASS (Bass Anglers Sportsmen's Society) tournament circuit.

We fished two days on this grand waterway, which has the distinction of being one of the best bass lakes in North America.

And we caught little more than a cold.

No reflection on Ricky, mind you. I've known this chemist turned pro fisherman for years, and he knows where it's at when it comes to bass fishing. Fisherman's luck.

The next day, I returned to Memphis and teamed up with my good friend Bill Dance.

Dance is considered by experts to be the world's best bass angler, and he appears weekly on the nationally syndicated NBC television series, "Bill Dance Outdoors."

We were to outfit the wily big bass at Tunica Cut-Off, an oxbow lake off the Mississippi River near Tunica, Miss., which is famous for the big bass it yields.

William and I chunked every conceivable lure for two days in blistering heat and caught not a fish.

I wound up with only a severe case of caster's elbow for my efforts.

We be unto me, should I criticize Mr. Dance, because he, too, knows a thing or two about hooking bass fish. Fisherman's luck.

A full week and more than 1,000 miles behind me, I came home completely frustrated.

Next morning, I drove five miles from my home to the northwest part of Lauderdale County and set down on the bank of a one-acre farm pond to pout.

As if to spite myself, I sailed the most awful colored spinner bait I could find to the part of the pond that was least likely to hold a fish.

Before the lure was well soaked, something charged it like a Juarez bull and darn near took red, red, angler, and all in the drink with it.

Ten minutes and a heck of a fight later, I stringered a 9 lb., 2 oz. bass!

Fisherman's luck? Coincidence? Partly.

But a point more important is that this bit of "luck" reminded me of something I've known for years.

And that is that the water is

OUT OF A SMALL FARM POND near Ripley, Elton Jones, accounts analyst for Bank of Ripley, caught this impressive stringer of bass in just an hour as the fish found a spinner bait called "The Thing" and Strike-King spinners to their liking. A week earlier, Elton got a 6 lb., 4 oz. bucket-mouth bass from this same pond.

Births

To Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Shivers, of Columbia, Miss., formerly of Ripley, a 6 lb., 4 oz. daughter, Mary Coralee, July 19th.

If two drinking glasses are stuck, one inside the other, fill the inner glass with cold water and the outer with hot. They will come apart easily and unbroken.

The lures and tactics used for lake fishing work equally well in ponds, and some ponds are even big enough to accommodate a small boat and motor.

Take the family along. Try farm ponds for a rewarding fishing experience.

J. I. Case Big Four Wheel Drive 2670 Case Tractor

What can you accomplish with 4-wheel drive, 256 gross engine h.p.?

Ask any farmer who's had a 4-wheeler for a season or two. He'll tell you what 4-wheel-drive will do. And ask him what he wants most? Still more power!

So now we're offering more horsepower. The big 2670 with 256 turbo gross engine hp, or 221 pto hp. Here's acre-eating power and weather-beating traction-floatation. This 4-wheeler will work in the fields when 2-wheelers are still waiting in the shed. 4-wheel-drive power to get your work done on time for maximum yields and profits.

The 2670 was developed from the ground up strictly for farm use that calls for pulling big drawbar loads consistently. No combination of off-the-shelf components or "on-the-road" assemblies. We didn't take the easy way of adapting our articulated industrial 4-wheel-drive loaders.

Make Jones Big "J" Equipment Co. your Farm Implement headquarters.

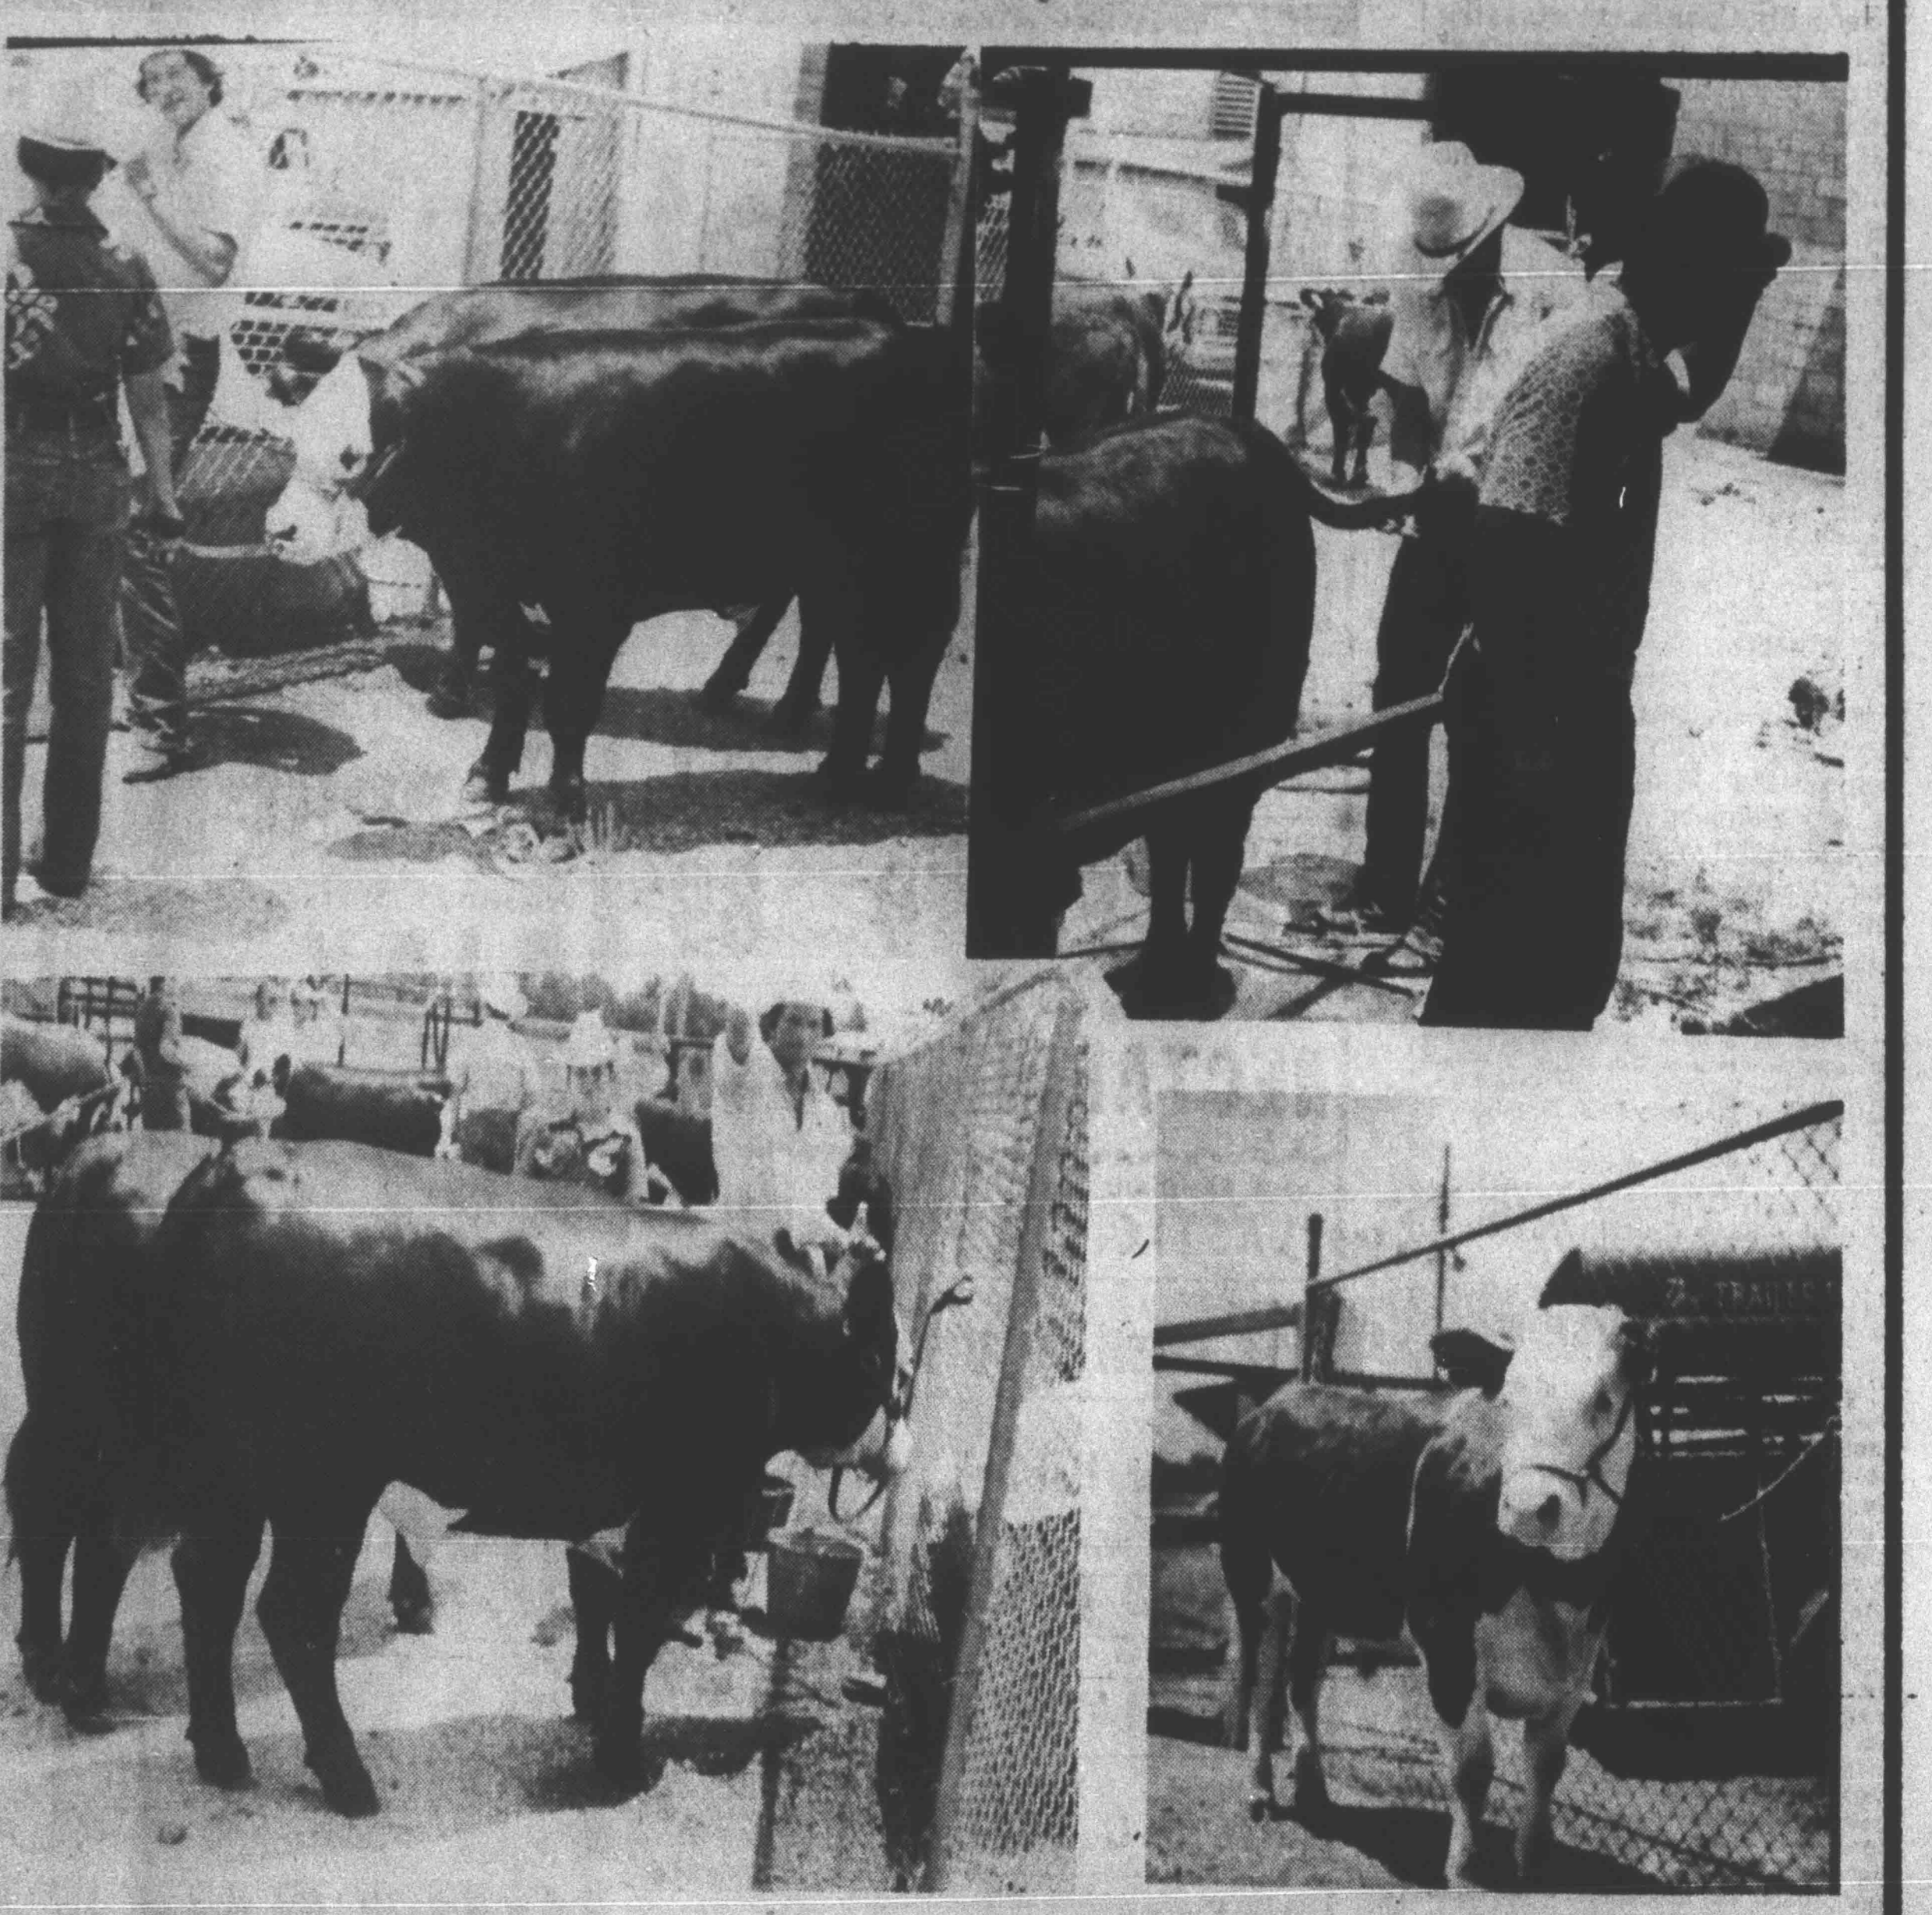

See them now on display at Jones'. It's the Tractor King.

HALLS FFA SHOW-CATTLE PURCHASED AT STATE SHOW BY HALLS AND RIPLEY BUSINESSMEN

On Monday, July 12th, Jimmy Meeks, Will Spence, Conley Wright, and Whitney Wright showed fat steers in the West Tennessee Steer and Heifer Show. Monday evening, after the Jackson show, the boys traveled to Nashville to once again prepare their cattle for the show Wednesday and the sale Wednesday night.

Attending the Nashville show with the boys were Future Farmers Of America advisor Dwight McDaniel and his wife, Anita, FFA advisor Ray Griffith, Mr. and Mrs. Danny Meeks and David, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Spence, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wright, Jr.

The boys and their FFA advisor spent many hours preparing the steers for the show. The hard work began when the calves were selected, about February, from herds of steers which were already being grain fed. After the boys obtained their calves, the calves were put on a high protein ration to obtain maximum growth and carcass quality. Careful records were kept on each calf. The boys measured feed efficiency and rate of gain of their calves. Many hours were spent breaking the calves to lead, trimming feet, washing, clipping hair, and training the animals to stand properly.

The hard work paid off as some of their better placings were first, second, sixth, and eighth, which is very good out of class of 20 to 25 of the best animals from all over Tennessee. The big reward for all the hard work came on Wednesday night, July 14th, when the cattle were sold. All six of the boys' steers were purchased by Halls and Ripley businessmen. These businessmen expressed their interest and appreciation for the boys and the hard work they did by placing a bid well above market value for the steers. The boys and their advisors wish to express a special thanks to the following businessmen who each bought one of the FFA show steers:

- Stallings Implement Co., Halls
  - Cook Implement Co., Halls
  - Jones Big J Implement Co., Halls
  - Bank Of Halls
  - C&A Supply Co., Halls
  - Farmers Feed, Seed, and Supply, Ripley
- With such fine young men who are interested in agriculture and the fine businessmen who are interested in both our young men and agriculture—Lauderdale County will continue to be an outstanding leader in agriculture.

Hunters Facing Extinction

GUN CONTROL EFFORTS ARE GAINING GROUND toward regulation, confiscation, locking away of firearms.

By Tony Mack

Tennessee's 1976 hunting season is set to open last night Aug. 28th, and the bustle of activity around local sporting goods departments indicates that Lauderdale County hunters are out in numbers preparing for the big day. Hunting clothes, ammunition, new rifles and shotguns are selling like hot cakes. Small talk about what the squirrels are cutting and where the doves are flying can be heard around every sales counter. Though the weather is still hotter than the iron in granny's griddle, there is an unmistakable feel of fall in the air and a look of anxious anticipation on the face of every sportsman.

And just watching all this warms the heart of a country boy who has always shared a romance with the sport of hunting. It spurs pangs of nostalgia, too: fond memories of the many hunts shared with a wonderful, white-haired, wrinkled-faced old man, and of the legacy he left behind; thoughts of a faithful liver pointer named Sally who could be found waiting by the old pick-up every morning for the affirmative whistle that would signal another trip afield; visions of a sunset forest of hardwoods and the abundance of bushy trails and years of pleasure it afforded before it was cleared and transposed into a new housing project; and remembrance of that first gun—the single shot that inevitably came to every boy willing to earn it.

But pleasing as they are, these scenes of past and future hunting seasons are also a cause for concern.

In talking to many local sportsmen, it is immediately obvious that far too many hunters are not taking seriously a movement in this country which hopes to rob them of their sport.

They are taking for granted that the adversaries of hunting simply cannot win out against it.

Some do not realize that the anti-hunting movement is law firearms, hunting, even trapping.

Only last week, a conservationist group filed suit against the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in an effort to outlaw pre-dawn duck hunting. This same group filed a suit last year seeking to outlaw duck hunting, period.

A closer look at this situation reveals some interesting points important to every sportsman.

For example, it should be noted that hunters are complaining to each other about the anti-hunting and gun control issues. Naturally, they agree with each other.

But the opposition complains about the hunter to total strangers! And because they execute their opposition so well, people are listening. As a result, there are more adversaries with whom the hunter has to contend.

It is easy to say, "Oh, we really don't have anything to worry about from this handful of opponents. They'll never be able to ban hunting."

But to me, one of the most frightening things about all this is that hunters are not frightened. If you are one of these, consider this:

According to correspondence I have from Gary Sitton, public relations director of the National Shooting Sports Foundation, letters from anti-hunting supporters come in to their legislators, on an average, at a minimum rate of ten to one over those of the hunters.

And the anti-hunting clan's organizational financial support far exceeds contributions

You Were On vacation. Your Home Wasn't

While you were sunning on a beach, your refrigerator and freezer were using electricity to keep foods cold. (Remember, you were going to set up their thermostats before you left.) You probably kept a light burning for security. And if you forgot to turn off the electricity to your water heater before you left, it kept water hot for no purpose.

Another major factor is the date of the meter reading. Half of your vacation time may appear on one bill and the other half on another.

These are some of the reasons a power bill is often higher than expected when you return from a vacation.

Now that the tumult and shouting is over it would seem that last Thursday's Democratic primary settled at least one thing...

While we are happy to see him depart from the political scene, we are in some ways sorry that he did not win the nomination...

Now the race for the real prize will begin with conservative Republican Sen. Brock faced by the young liberal, Jim Sasser...

Both are now giving advice which seems to us to be poor at best. While neither has completely backed away from Reagan each is now seeking some means of eliminating Schweiker or dulling the effect of the selection of a liberal.

One suggestion has been that Gov. Reagan sidetrack Sen. Schweiker after the nomination. It seems to us that this would do even more harm to Gov. Reagan's credibility.

Many Agree Many of our readers have commented on our remarks last week concerning speeding on Tennessee highway and also on the low flying airplane. We find that we are not the only grouch around.

Fort Pillow's Future Takes Shape As Past Is Excavated

GROUP CAMPING CENTER, with kitchen and rest room facilities, nearing completion at Fort Pillow State Park, is inspected by Robert L. Henry, who has been named park superintendent. He has heretofore held the title of park ranger.

PARK VISITORS' CENTER will include offices (left) and museum space (right)—not the major museum facilities foreseen in the future but a modest beginning within the funds currently allotted the park project, after years of official indifference.

Cotton Bug Count Lags

By Charles T. Peal Cotton insect pressure went well into August much lighter than last year's. The July boll-worm generation did not develop as expected. Farmers found a scattering of boll and bud-worm eggs, but no more than 2% (through Aug. 6th) in scouted fields.

Bull weevil populations, although high enough to spray in some fields, are generally behind last year's in activity.

Many farmers on the borderline of 10% infestation have been spraying because they have been seeing a slow but sure build-up of weevil damage.

By knowing the development stage, especially for bollworms, farmers are able to obtain adequate control with modern insecticides.

The scattering of worm eggs noted the first week in August could change drastically.

Cotton producers will need to apply an ovicide when ten or more eggs are present on 100 terminals.

An ovicide destroys the eggs before they can hatch. If worm pressure is heavy, with high numbers of eggs present, it may be necessary to go on a 4-day schedule, using the ovicide plus a larvicide, until control is obtained.

Usually, two sprayings will control a cycle of egg-laying. Many reasons have been advanced for the delayed boll-weevil activity.

One is the hot dry weather during July. That may well be, but for sure, something happened because there was a population of over-wintered weevils twice as high as in 1975.

Could it be that by hatching early, with the delayed maturity of cotton, the timing was off, and many weevils died for lack of food?

Or were many destroyed during the two or three weeks of "blackberry winter," because they didn't have enough body fat in reserve to nourish them through this period?

Foliage Feeders Appear Rain caused worms to appear almost overnight in alfalfa, lawns, sorghum-Sudan grass, soy beans, and pastures, but most farmers and home owners combated them before much damage was done.

Most farmers used Sevin 80% wettable powder at two pounds per acre. Most home-owners used two tablespoons of the 10% material.

The Crystal Ball As this is being written Monday morning, the Republicans have gathered in Kansas City for the apparent purpose of selecting their candidate for the Presidency.

In our opinion they are going much beyond. They are determining the future of the Republican Party and our nation.

We believe and hope that the party will select General Ford as its candidate since it seems apparent that the selection of Gov. Reagan can only mean that the Republican party is no longer in tune with the nation as a whole.

It seems apparent to us that there is no way that an ultra conservative as Gov. Reagan claims to be can gain the support of the nation as a whole.

We perhaps are as conservative or maybe even more conservative than Mr. Reagan but we can also see that the majority of the nation's voters are not.

Mr. Ford has proven with his veto power that he is trying to slow the spend-spend-spend policies of some of the Congressional leaders while at the same time facing up to the fact that the majority of this nation want many of the programs which we deplore.

We predict that Mr. Ford will be chosen on the first ballot, will make no guess as to the vice-presidential selection although we will say that we hope that he neither selects John Connally nor any liberal.

As you read this you will already know what the party has done at Kansas City, so check us out as a reader of crystal balls.

Hitting The High Spots Some one has suggested to us that downtown merchants are careless about taking in their flags at night and on weekends. We are happy that Halls business people are displaying the flags but think the comments of our reader is correct. The flags should be taken in at night and during bad weather.

Through the cooperation of Mayor Sammie Arnold we will, beginning next week, give the citizens of Halls some idea of just how city funds are raised each how they are spent by publishing facts from the 1976-77 budget and expected revenues.

REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

During recent weeks, President Ford signed into law the which ran into the billions of dollars, $3.2 million does not seem significant. But when compared to the appropriations for the Obion-Forked Deer in recent years, it becomes much more significant. That appropriation is the single largest amount ever allocated for the West Tennessee tributaries project for use during a 12 month fiscal year.

Secondly, the President, in his earlier budget request had asked for $2,710,000 for the West Tennessee tributaries project. The Corps of Engineers, however, made it known that they had the capacity of doing $3,210,000 worth of work on the project during the 1977 fiscal year if the money could be made available to them.

This project is a very important one for West Tennessee. An estimated 200,000 people live in the Obion-Forked Deer basin and one-half of the Obion-Forked Deer basin and one-half of the Obion-Forked Deer flood control project.

Sick And Ailing

Mrs. Charles Moore had surgery Monday in Parkview Hospital in Dyersburg.

David Medlock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Medlock, fell from his bicycle Monday, breaking one arm just above the wrist and fracturing the other arm.

Mrs. M. L. Criffield is recuperating in her home after major surgery last week in Parkview Hospital in Dyersburg.

Miss Lyde Rawles has been dismissed from Parkview Hospital in Dyersburg.

Not only does it cause damage, it increases the burden on local government who must repair the roads and bridges; it increases the tax load on local citizens who must foot the bill for those repairs through taxes; it reduces farm income; and it damages the environmental aspects of the area. Such damages cannot be allowed to continue if proper development and progress is to be made in West Tennessee. We must continue to secure such appropriations as are necessary to insure that the flooding problems in the Obion-Forked Deer basin are curtailed.

I might add that the increased appropriations we were able to obtain would not have been possible without the help of the Dean of the Tennessee Congress-

THE PAINLESS WAY TO USE LESS POWER

Painless because insulation lets you stay comfortable while using less electricity. And it will pay for itself over the years in savings on your heating and cooling bills. In summer it keeps the heat out. In winter it keeps the heat in.

At least R-19 insulation over your ceiling and R-11 or more under the floor — and in walls if you remodel — add up to year-round power savings and dollar savings.

NUNN RE-UNION—376

By Mrs. Oliver Nunn

On Sunday, Aug. 8th, several hundred descendants of David S. Nunn were registered by Misses Jane and Jeanette Revelle, of Bell, as they gathered at the Nunn Cemetery near Maury City in Crockett County.

The large and happy group was celebrating the 150th anniversary of Mr. Nunn's coming to West Tennessee from Lenoir County, N.C.

The day was ideal with a cool breeze blowing and enough ice water and delicious food to make a family reunion a pleasant affair.

Melvin T. Revelle, chairman, and Mrs. Elsie Jo Campbell, secretary and treasurer, both of Maury City, had planned the arrangements for the event well.

Miss Maxine Mayo, of Dyersburg, served as family historian, she had published a booklet listing all the descendants of David S. Nunn and his wife, Alice Koonce Nunn.

Also in the booklet was an account of the 100th anniversary held July 20th, 1926, near the same spot where David Nunn gathered his first crop of corn.

Miss Mayo had planned a program patterned after the centennial celebration when Mr. and Mrs. Nunn and their four children, Alpha H. Nunn (Powell), Dr. Isaac Augustus Nunn, Col. David A. Nunn, and Lucy Ann Nunn Revelle Mayo were engaged.

Descendants of the 1926 speakers participating in the 150th reunion were Harry Revelle, Jr., of Oklahoma City, Okla., Ralph Poston of Covington, Mrs. Mary Conyers Cooper, of Birmingham, Ala., Johnnie Bond, of Brownsville, and Mrs. Lillian Burnett Worrell, of Atlanta.

Dr. Stewart Lewis Nunn, of Memphis, closed the program with prayer.

Immediately after the lunch hour Pat Norris, his two lovely daughters, Pam and Debby, and his son, Keith, all of Memphis, led the gathering in a "Sing-Along" accompanied by Malcolm Forrest, of Yorkville, at the organ.

The chairman expressed his appreciation to all those who had worked so hard to make the reunion a success after the manner of the Cemetery Trust Fund, Jimmy Revelle, of Bell, and J. D. Powell and Bobby Wages, both of Maury City.

We all appreciated the tents from the funeral home at Friendship, Atlanta, and Halls, where many of the pictures, deeds, books, wills, and other memorabilia were on display.

At the beginning of the program Mr. Revelle named those attending and recognized Mrs. Mary E. Poston, of Memphis, as secretary-treasurer of the 1926 reunion along with the late Homer Revelle as chairman. Mrs. James C. Nunn, of Brownsville, presented Mrs. Poston with a corsage and told of the group's deep appreciation for the good records she kept enabling us to formulate the family history and the program. Mrs. Poston was wearing the same dress she wore in 1926 when she was designated as "Queen Of Pond Creek."

MRS. DALE HAWLEY and Mr. Hawley were married Aug. 14th at the Helen Street Church of Christ, of Fayetteville, N. C. The bride, Vicki, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Osborne, of Fayetteville, formerly of Halls. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Hawley, of Milwaukee, Wisc. The couple will be seniors this fall at Abilene Christian University, of Abilene, Tex.

Unlikely Choice

Well, we did a pretty good job of predicting President Ford's victory at the Republican convention but it is just as well that we didn't make an attempt to pick his running mate since we had not considered Sen. Robert Dole, of Kansas, a likely candidate.

It is somewhat of a puzzle to us that he picked Sen. Dole since we can find very little that he can add to the ticket so far as national appeal is concerned.

Actually from the little we have read and heard Sen. Dole would seem to be a sound, conservative nominee, but it seems to us that his appeal will be

Sick And Ailing

Douglas Hurt was dismissed from Parkview Hospital in Dyersburg Wednesday. He had been hospitalized for the past 10 days with pneumonia.

MISS DARLENE ARNOLD, daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Sammie Arnold, of Halls, received her master's degree in communicative disorders Sunday from The University of Mississippi at Oxford. Miss Arnold was also one of three nominees of the department faculty most outstanding graduating clinician. Miss Arnold is presently residing in Jackson where she is employed by the West Tennessee Speech and Hearing Center as a speech pathologist. She is also a member of Lambuth College faculty.

Crime Spree Laid To Trio

Charles Riley Coffey, 19-year-old parolee from Fort Pillow State Prison Farm, and two 17-year-old boys—one from Ripley and one from the Halls area—have been charged with—

• Armed robbery of Jay's Pak-A-Sak on new Highway 51 north of Ripley about 8:10 p.m. Monday.

• Attempted armed robbery of Nichols Grocery at Nankipoo.

• Burglary and safe-cracking at Continental Grain Co. on the Mississippi River, west of Halls.

• Burglary of Crichtfield Grocery on Highway 88, west of Nankipoo.

• Burglary of the T. J. Falkner home at Central.

• Theft of a 1970 truck from Carlton Chevrolet in Ripley.

• Arson of a 1976 Gannino truck owned by Terry Steelman.

Cindy Hendren was alone in the Pak-A-Sak store owned by her parents, the J. C. Hendrens, when a youth entered the store and put a pistol to her head.

"He cocked it and said he'd kill me if I didn't give him the money," she said.

He took $169 in cash, plus wheat pennies and coins with silver content.

After bloodhounds from Fort Pillow State Prison Farm struck a trail from the rear of the store, across a field, to Cedar Grove Road, Sheriff Louis Craig gave chase to a Ford truck stopped on a back road from Carmack's Trailer Court and arrested Coffey, who had been serving a three-year sentence for burglary from Knox County.

Since his parole, he had been employed in a Ripley industry Durham said.

"I do know that truck can go 110 miles an hour," the sheriff said after the chase.

Juvenile Court Judge Jerry Corlew scheduled a hearing Aug. 31st to transfer the two 17-year-olds to Circuit Court for trial as adults.

liberal side although it is still impossible to decide just exactly what Gov. Carter is advocating.

It seems to us that the independent voters of the nation have yet to make up their minds and there is no doubt but that the independent vote can swing the election to either side just as it has in the past three presidential elections.

Before November the issues will probably boil down to whether this nation wants fiscal responsibility and less deficit spending or does it want to continue to spend for social welfare, etc., programs without any knowledge about where the money is coming from.

Not All Is Lost

Despite the dire predictions of many nationally syndicated newspaper columnists and the news commentators on national TV, there is still a strong possibility that Pres. Ford can be elected Nov. 2nd.

The Democratic nominee, Jimmy Carter, and his running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale, are leaning more and more to the Still another good reason for the longer life expectancy of children today is the progress we've made in the treatment and care of the "dreaded duo," influenza and pneumonia.

We are not a mathematician but we feel that the progress made in these areas can best be demonstrated by this simple statistic: The death rate caused by the "duo" has been reduced by some 70% since the early 1930s, which is another indication of the progress being made by modern medicine.

FREEDOM'S GUARANTEE

One of the basic principles on which this nation was founded was the right of the press to print the news freely. That right is our best guarantee that this republic will endure, for it is only when ideas and information are allowed to circulate that freedom can flourish. ## REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

As I write this newsletter, the Republican convention is drawing to a close in Kansas City. Last month, of course, the Democrats held their convention in New York. At both we have heard much high flown oratory and loud music, and seen a thousand silly hats. Even from watching on television, we can almost smell popcorn and hotdogs, and feel the heat from the crowd and the flood lights. While the atmosphere at these gatherings resemble that of a circus or a major football game, the business at hand is much more important than its entertainment value. We are witnessing more than a fling at show business.

Often I have heard it said that the process of selecting our Presidential candidates is a farce. Those who make this claim say that in winning a nomination, a candidate proves only his ability to get votes and not his ability to make the kind of decisions required of a President. If there were no relationship between these two qualities, I would agree with this view. However, I feel that the ability to get votes and the ability to make Presidential decisions are very closely related.

In our system of government, it is most important that our President be able to gather a consensus for his policies. If he cannot, he loses his ability to govern. A President who has the support of the electorate can get his programs enacted by the Congress. President Lyndon Johnson, after his overwhelming victory at the polls in 1964, managed to get a surprising amount of legislation approved by Congress. But after the Vietnam War caused him to lose his mandate, his effectiveness with the Congress was drastically reduced. The Nixon administration is another graphic example.

It appears to me that those qualities required to get delegate votes at a party convention are very nearly the same as those required of a President. Persuasiveness is required in both cases. The ability to negotiate, the ability to reason and the ability to appeal to the emotions are required in both instances. So are the abilities to plan, organize, and to administer.

Until recently, Jimmy Carter had proved only that he could be Governor of Georgia, but now he has proven himself capable of planning, organizing, and carrying out a nationwide campaign sufficient to win overwhelmingly the Presidential nomination of his party — no small accomplishment.

Until even more recently, Gerald Ford had proved that he could be elected only to the Congressional seat of Michigan's Fifth District. He had never even entered a national political race until this year. Now he has demonstrated the ability to get a majority of his party's delegate votes against an extremely tough opponent — no small accomplishment.

Next January, one of these two men will have passed the acid test — the November election. On of them will have demonstrated his ability to garner the support of a majority of our voters, and for a while will have the power to govern this nation effectively.

At convention time, maybe we do overdo the hoopla and the frills, the color and the dramatics. But I feel that with all of its shortcomings, our system of primaries, conventions, and general elections is as solid a system as we could have for selecting our Chief Executive. I certainly know of no nation which has one I could consider better.
