Corn Debris Being Baled For Feeding

By Charles T. Peal

Harry Wright, Jr., is seeking some relief from the "cost price squeeze" that the cow-calf industry is experiencing by using corn crop residue—stalks, leaves, and husks—as winter feed for dry beef cows.

Although grazing is the simplest and cheapest method of harvesting this material, Harry felt that he could avoid much waste from trampling and weather damage by baling it with a round baler.

Only about 30% utilization of the residue is obtained where cattle are allowed to graze at will on the field. Harvesting the residue with balers can increase the utilization to 65 to 85%.

The chief weakness of corn crop residue is that it is low in protein, minerals, and vitamin A.

A dry beef cow needs about one pound of crude protein per day. Corn crop residue contains 3 to 5% crude protein. Cows need to consume 18 to 20 lbs. residue to realize about 60-90% of protein requirements.

Another economical source of protein is high quality legume hay as a supplement to corn residue.

Other sources would include protein blocks, cotton seed, and soy bean meal or liquid protein supplement.

Mineral supplement may be provided as a mixture of two parts dicalcium phosphate to one part trace mineralized salt, provided free choice.

Harry's neighbor, Ed Sumrow, Jr., provides his cattle with soy bean stubble during the winter. About the same supplement is required.

Prussic Acid Problem

Billy Thomas last week inquired about the prussic acid problem common with forage crops which, after a killing frost, may still have enough material left for cattle to graze.

One should wait seven to ten days after a killing frost before allowing cows to eat the plants. One method of knowing when the plants are ready is by color.

Sudan grass sorghum cross plants will turn a grayish, leathery color and will be dry in nature when the prussic acid danger is past.

Beaver Control Studied

James L. Byford, University of Tennessee Extension wild life specialist, says farmers having problems with beavers can rid themselves of them by trapping with the conibear-330 trap, placed in water near the dam.

He says that many farmers have been able to trap the whole colony and then destroy the dam, which, eliminated the flooding problem.

Farmers in Lauderdale County having beaver problems can request the assistance of this man, through the Extension Office, to demonstrate how these traps can be used.

Pesticide Applicator Licensed

The County Agent is now an officially certified pesticide applicator, having passed the second EPA examination administered through the Tenn. Dept. of Agriculture.

Some pesticide dealers in the county are in the process of receiving this same certification. It will be necessary for them to have it in order to sell restricted-use pesticides to farmers and home-owners.

Other dealers in the county will be required to obtain this certification by Oct. 1, 1977.

Farmers will be required to have training on pesticides by this same date.

Starting Oct. 1, 1977, according to current information, a farmer will be required to show a pesticide certification card to a dealer in order to purchase these products.

Pesticides include all the herbicides, insecticides, and fungicides used in agricultural production.

This means that every farmer should take the training.

Handicrafts Fair Exhibits Sought

The county's annual Senior Citizen, Indian, and Handicapped Handicrafts Fair is set for Nov. 19th and 20th, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Persons interested in entering arts, crafts, and miscellaneous items should call 635-1933 in Ripley, 234-7817 in Halls, or 738-4411 in Henning.

ON THE NOSE—Bobby Joe Hutcherson, 29, of Route 4, Ripley, entered Baptist Hospital in Memphis with multiple injuries after his 1976 Ford pickup truck, westbound, left Highway 19 west of Ripley, near Johnson's Lake, and hit a tree about 8:30 p.m. last Friday. (Additional Photo, Page 10).

Carter, Sasser, Bishop Sweep County Voting

Jimmy Carter, apparently elected president by two electoral votes, won more than 69% of Lauderdale County's votes Tuesday, with 4,747 to 2,105 for incumbent President and Republican nominee Gerald R. Ford.

The Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate, Jim Sasser, won more than 67% of this county's vote—4,524 to 2,235—on his way to an 83,455 majority in the state over incumbent Republican Bill Brock. Brock ran poorly in traditionally Republican East Tennessee to net only 663,219 votes in complete statewide returns—unofficial until Monday's canvasses.

Tiptonville attorney Franklin D. Cochran picked up 80% of the county's vote—3,820—to 962 for token opposition by Republican Bob Pitts. Cochran won state-wide with 537,278 votes to 316,704 for Pitts.

Incumbent State Senator Jim Bishop, of Brownsville, took 74% of the votes in each of the counties he represents—Lauderdale and Haywood—for a second term, crushing the bid of Joe Green, of Ripley, running as an independent. This county's vote was 4,417 to 1,550.

Judge C. S. Carney, of Ripley, was unopposed for constitutional convention delegate from these counties, and R. F. Cates was unopposed for magistrate from the 16th and 17th Civil Districts.

Judge Carney will resign his seat on the state Court of Appeals, of which he has been presiding judge since 1970, to serve in the constitutional convention. He will re-open his practice of law in Ripley.

The convention meets in Nashville next August to consider changes in the constitution, which must then be submitted to popular vote.

The presidential race drew 15 votes for Thomas J. Anderson, four for Eugene J. McCarthy, three for Lester Maddux, two for Lyndon LaRouche, and one for Benjamine Bubar, in this county.

The U.S. Senator race drew 24 votes for Willie C. Jacox, 13 for Mark-Clark Bates, and four for Arnold Joseph Zandi.

U.S. Rep. Ed Jones was unopposed for re-election.

HOMEMADE BREAD MADE EASY

Everybody loves homemade bread, the rich, nutritious taste, the lovely aroma...the wonderful feeling of having baked it yourself "from scratch."

Until recently, bread baking, and home baking in general, seemed to be a lost art. Why go through the tedious process of kneading and kneading, when plucking a package loaf from a supermarket shelf is so easy. Today, baking homemade bread need not be

QUICK BROWN BREAD 3 1/2 cups whole wheat flour 1 teaspoon baking powder 1 teaspoon salt 1/4 teaspoon baking soda 1 1/2 cups milk

Preheat oven to 425°F. In large mixer bowl, combine dry ingredients. Combine vinegar and milk; let stand 5 minutes. Add to flour mixture. Blend at Speed 2 until moistened. Increase to Speed 5 and beat for 3 minutes. Grease and flour a 9" round pan (oven proof) or cookie sheet.

Spoon dough onto baking container. Flour hands and a sharp knife dipped in flour, cut a deep cross from side to side in the top of dough.

Bake for 40-45 minutes, or until bread sounds hollow when tapped. Cool before slicing. Yield: 1 7/8" round loaf.

CAREFREE WHITE BREAD (especially suited for the busy homemaker) 5-6 1/2 cups all-purpose flour 2 pkgs. active dry yeast

No doubt you have many bread recipes you're anxious to try, but here are two

Memphis Home Is Wedding Setting

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Sammy M. Dye, of Memphis, was the setting at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 29th for the marriage of Mrs. Sherri Smith Harris to Phillip Samuel Deveraux, Jr.

The double ring wedding vows were read by The Rev. H. A. Goforth, of Jackson. Millard Charles Smith II, brother of the bride, closed the ceremony with prayer.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith and Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Deveraux, all of Memphis. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elford Baker, of Halls, and Mr. and Mrs. Homer B. Smith, of Memphis.

Prior to the ceremony the bride's mother presented nuptial music.

The bride entered on the arm of her father. The wedding was performed before an open fire.

Jimmy Estes served the bridegroom as best man.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Smith chose a green floor length gown of silk while Mrs. Deveraux wore a beige and brown gown. Each had matching accessories. Mrs. Baker wore a black silk floor length gown with fall colors at the bodice and long sleeves. Mrs. Homer Smith wore a printed silk autumn dress.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the Dye home. The serving table was overlaid in satin with a white tulle and lace cloth with white flowers covered in pearls, bangle beads, and sequins.

The bride's cake was yellow, green, and white, centered with a bride and groom. The groom's cake was chocolate and decorated in fall colors. Ham, turkey, cheese, and salads with lime punch were served to the wedding guests.

Presiding at the table were Mrs. Bill Phillips and Mrs. Jimmy O'Linger. Mr. Dye performed at the organ during the reception.

ED JONES 7th DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

During the past twelve months, I have made a point of discussing at length a bill that would curb the regulatory powers of the executive agencies of government. That bill was known as the Administrative Rulemaking Review Act and was introduced by Rep. Elliot Levitt of Georgia, and myself along with numerous members of the House of Representatives.

TO BE GOD'S COUNSELOR Lesson for November 7, 1976

Background Scripture: Romans 12:1-11 Devotional Reading: Isaiah 42:5-9

Paul's rhetorical question sounds absurd: "For who has known the mind of the Lord, or who has been his counselor?" (Romans 11:34) But it isn't!

The fact is that lots of people pose as and attempt to be God's "counselors." Not quite satisfied with God's rule of the universe, they are constantly at work helping God with his implied "communications gap."

Of course, these people would hardly think of themselves in that role, in fact they would be horrified and scandalized if someone were to suggest that they were giving the impression of acting as God's "counselors!" But being ignorant of the significance of their actions and attitudes does not make them one bit less significant. Aware or unaware, it is blasphemous to try to improve upon one's Creator!

It is not that we do not have sufficient warning. All through the Bible (as well as in other sacred writings) we have one warning after another of the danger of trying to usurp God's role. In Romans, for example, Paul cries: "O the depth of the riches and wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are his judgments, and ways are after that far beyond our feeble comprehension. What calls for from man is a deep sense of humility. The more we grow our understanding of God, the more firm is our relationship with Him, the more humble we should be in the face of these awesome realities, the less ready we should be to substitute the ways and judgements of the creatures for those of the Creator."

"Everyone"? Yet, despite all these affirmations and warnings, "religious" people have often attempted to "ascend into heaven" and even "descend into the abyss" to find the revelation that will bring them closer to God and make them more privy to his secrets. And with these "secrets" clutched tightly in their hands, they have assumed a stance, not of humility and awe, but of arrogance. By virtue of what they now "possess," they see themselves standing higher than other men. Even if they grudgingly acknowledge that there may be something to your path, they will gather their skirts closely to themselves and shrink from all others lest the purity of their revelation be adulterated by contact with yours.

How distressing then when Paul asserts that in the grace of God "there is no distinction between Jew or Greek" (or between Protestant and Catholic, etc.) Even worse is Paul's declaration that "the same Lord is Lord of all and bestows his riches upon all who call upon him" (10:12). Everyone, Paul? Yes, says Paul, "everyone" (10:13).

Thank God we are not His counselors!

the effect of law. All too often these regulations are not in keeping with the intent of Congress when it passed a law. Unfortunately, what has happened is that many federal agencies have become unelected arms of government. The mass of rules and regulations that they propose and implement every year has grown steadily until it has now reached the point where Congress is having to go back and pass new legislation to either nullify or modify the regulations issued by these agencies. In many cases, the regulations are unduly hindrances on the proper implementation of the spirit of the law as it was written. As a result, compliance with the law is taken to the extent that the law becomes unreasonable. The Administrative Rulemaking Review Act would make it mandatory that all proposed regulations be brought back to the Congress prior to implementation. The Congress would then review them and have 60 days to disapprove them. Disapproval would be in the form of a concurrent resolution passed by both the Senate and the House, or would be in the passage of such a resolution by either the House or the Senate with the other body not acting contrary to the resolution. In other words, if the House passed a resolution disapproving a set of regulations and the Senate did not act on the resolution at all, the rules would be disapproved.

It was a deep disappointment to me to see the Review Act fall when it was brought before the House for a vote. It was brought up under suspension of the rules which requires a two-thirds majority and thereby failed. It is encouraging to note that a majority of House members voted in favor of the bill. It is an indication that similar legislation in the 95th Congress which convenes in January will stand a very good chance of passing. I intend, once again, to exert my efforts toward gaining final passage of this legislation. It is going to be one of my priority items for next year.

ALL-WEATHER COAT IS PRACTICAL ITEM IN WARDROBE The all-weather coat is one of the most practical items in a woman's wardrobe. "It can serve as a lightweight topcoat as well as a raincoat," says Helen Rader, University of Tennessee Extension clothing specialist. "If a zip-out lining is present, the coat, it can give warmth without the weight of a regular winter coat."

Many of the all-weather coats can be washed and dried at home in the washer and dryer," she explains. "If this is the method of cleaning you prefer, be sure the label in the garment says the garment can be cared for in this manner. Sometimes the garment fabric itself is washable, but the linings, interfacings, and trim may not be."

laundered at home, be sure a thorough rinsing job is done, or the finish will not be retained. Finishes can be removed by the dry cleaner or at home by spraying with a water-repellent finish which can be purchased at department and drug stores. Be sure to follow directions carefully.

The fabrics made of 100 percent polyester have a waxy look and are used for the dressier-type garments. These fabrics have good wrinkle resistance, but they tend to snag or pull easily. Other quality points to check are generous seams which won't ravel, well-made buttonholes, linings of quality fabric that fit without pulling, quality buttons sewed on with shanks, and interfacings which give support where it's needed. Outside stitching should be

Blanton Slating $2,300,000 To Push Park Development

Countians conferring Thursday of last week with Gov. Ray Blanton in his office in the Capitol in Nashville won the governor's backing for $2,300,000 in state appropriations to speed development of the new Fort Pillow State Park.

The governor said he would request the funds in the next state budget. The Department of Conservation had proposed less than half of this amount for the park's second phase work.

The funds should provide a Historical Center, with exhibits and a filmed re-enactment of the Battle of Fort Pillow; a Mississippi River Museum; boating access facilities; and ranger residences for the park.

Most of the first phase funding went into planning expenses and into basic needs, such as roads and utilities, with nothing left to begin showing visitors the area's historic points.

Gov. Blanton also indicated support for a separate request for about $80,000 to finance further archaeological exploration of the park area next summer, before areas where valuable relics might be found are covered by reconstruction work as the park is developed.

IN GOV. RAY BLANTON'S OFFICE in the Capitol Thursday of last week to discuss Fort Pillow State Park plans were (from left) William Tucker IV, Mrs. Bernice Crain, and County Judge Jerry Corlew, along with Terry Ford, of the Enterprise staff.

County Farm Size Up 20% In 5 Years

The average Lauderdale County farm increased to 219 acres in 1974, as compared to 183 acres in 1969—a 20%—according to the preliminary report of the 1974 Census of Agriculture.

Land was 43% harvested cropland, 30% non-farm land, 12% other cropland, and 7% woodland. Approximate total is 305,408 acres.

Value of agricultural products increased 91%, from $10,697,000 in 1969, to 20,446,000 in 1974. Acres harvested increased 31%, showing that farmers turned pastures into soybean production, which was more profitable than livestock as the result of prices received for the 1973 crop.

This increased production required more investment in equipment. Data show a machinery investment of $18,279,000 in 1974 as compared to $13,080,000 in 1969.

Because farmers worked large acreages and required units with more horsepower, the number of tractors on farms in 1974 was 1,243 as compared to 1,944 in 1969.

The average investment in machinery and equipment on the average-size farm was $121,868. Farm trucks decreased from 1,390 to 1,200. Locally, non-farm pickups may have increased the total.

The average value of land and buildings increased from $59,937 in 1969 to $100,000 in 1974.

For those with sales of $2,500 or more, the value of land and buildings per farm was $142,000 in 1974, as compared to $93,000 in 1969.

Data show 665 persons listed their principal occupation as farming for 1974, while 310 showed it as being other than farming. The average age of farm operators was 54 for 1974, 53.1 in 1969.

Living at home may be on the upswing for most, as gardens have doubled. There were 14,000 hens and pullets of laying age on the farms in 1974, compared to 11,500 in 1969.

Hornet's Nest—Anyone? People often want hornets' nests to decorate dens, shops, etc.

Demetral Beard has had her eye on one all summer. Now that a freeze has killed the hornets, the nest can be removed with ease. The queen who over-winters in the duff (leaves, grass, etc.) below the nest and starts a new colony next spring should be destroyed to make the nest safe for decorative purposes.

Markets Hard Pressed Seasonal tendencies for cattle and hog futures generally point to lower prices into the second week of November.

The trend from Thanksgiving week through the first week in December is normally up.

This year, however, may be somewhat different. The U. S. Cold Storage Report, released Oct. 19th, showed large supplies of boneless beef (378 million pounds vs. 246 a year ago) and total poultry (688 million pounds vs. 542 a year ago) at storages.

The holiday season is nearing, and meat consumption has generally switched from fish and red meat to turkey and ham. This year should be no different in that respect, with reasonably cheap prices for turkey and other related poultry.

The general attitude is that any of these markets will be very hard pressed to sustain a rally until after the holiday season.

OLE MISS CENTER RANDY WHITE, son of Ripley Police Chief and Mrs. Bob White, will co-captain the University of Mississippi eleven in Saturday's game with the University of Tennessee.

Court Scores School Plans

Board of Education plans for a 27-room elementary school for 669 pupils in Halls were criticized in County Court Monday Nov. 20th in an Arts and Crafts Fair from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. in Halls High School.

That view came from Magistrate Roy Cook, who said two rooms had been cut from the plans, if the court wished to spend the additional money.

He said bids would be sought about Dec. 1st and cost estimates presented to the court's January term.

Other magistrates chastised Taylor for meeting the architects, Hart, Freedland, and Roberts, in Nashville, saying they were being paid to come here for conferences.

After complaint from Bill Sanford that he was not being served with county water, the court instructed the water district engineer Mel Tidwell to serve all residents where feasible and within funding provided.

After county attorney Thomas Caldwell raised legal questions about the court's action in changing the homes of Harvey Webb, Joe Johnston, and others northwest of Ripley into the Second Civil District was rescinded.

L. D. Currie was elected a notary public.

Surgery Successfully Transplants Kidney

Surgery Thursday of last week in William F. Bowld Hospital in Memphis, in which Mrs. Robert Hill, of Forked Deer, donated a kidney to her ten-year-old son, Russell, was termed successful.

Bobby Vaughn, cashier of Gates Banking & Trust Co., which has served as treasurer for fund raising efforts to assist the Hills, says Mrs. Hill expects to be dismissed from the hospital in a few days.

Vaughn says $5,300 has been raised thus far. Checks should be made to the Russell Hill Kidney Fund, c/o Gates Banking & Trust Co. A duplicate receipt for each gift is sent to the family, Vaughn says.

Reports that a tobacco company would contribute to the fund on the basis of wrappers collected from its products are in error, Vaughn says. Reynolds Tobacco Co. aided the Kidney Fund in this way several years ago but has never so aided an individual, representative Charles Farmer reported.

MODERN DRUGS CONTEMPORARY USE ILLEGAL ABUSE By SAMMY ARNOLD, Registered Ph.

Louis Pasteur was born in 1822 in a small town in France and was, by far, one of the earliest pioneers in the ever-existing battle against bacteria and the cause and effect and cure of and with micro-organisms.

His studies, often scoffed at by his associates, on fermentation, have been the basis of much of the progress being made today in the field of anti-biotics. Among his many credits is "pasteurization" and he also introduced the series of injections given to persons bitten by rabid animals, which now prevents the excruciating pain and eventual death of such people.

AMERICA'S HERITAGE

The presidents of America—and not just the Presidents of the United States—are getting increased recognition. One such president is Elias Boudinot, a founder and first president of the United Presbyterian Foundation.

Elias Boudinot was one of this country's great founding fathers. In 1782, Mr. Boudinot was elected president of the Continental Congress and signed the Treaty of Peace with England following the Revolutionary War. He served in Congress from 1789 to 1795 and later was Director of the Mint. A philanthropist, he was a founder of the American Bible Society and served as its first president.

Like many prominent statesmen of the 18th century, Boudinot was a lawyer. But his long career of public service began with the threat of war with England. An ardent patriot, he helped form the First Continental Congress. In 1775 he secretly rounded up desperately needed gunpowder for General Washington. Later at Washington's request he became Commissioner for Prisoners of War and risked nearly $40,000 of his own cash and credit to help feed and clothe the American prisoners in British hands.

Boudinot also contrib-

BUILDING A BETTER WORLD AMERICAN LANDMARK IS HONORED

A view of the New Croton Dam in New York's Westchester County, taken around 1910. This water system has supplied New York City with fresh water for 140 years and, when it was built, was the largest dam of its kind.

Although most people would think that drinking water was a lot purer 140 years ago than it is today, in some places it was actually so dirty there was a severe danger of plague.

In the 1830s New York City was one such place, until one of this country's greatest engineering feats, and also one of the least known, was achieved.

An engineer named John B. Jervis, who had previously worked on the Erie Canal, was asked to create a reservoir of pure, clean water to meet the city's needs.

Now, the result of his efforts has been designated a National Historic Civil Engineering Landmark by the American Society of Civil Engineers.

That professional organization conducts a program of seeking out and identifying historic civil engineering landmarks, such as bridges, canals, railroads and other significant achievements.

This dam is considered an engineering achievement for several reasons. In his construction of the system, Jervis adopted the so-called gravity flow principle, taking water from the Croton River in Westchester Coun-

There's No Mystery In Your Electric Meter

It measures electricity. Nothing more. Nothing less. Electricity passes through the meter on its way to work in your home or business. Its passage makes the disk in the meter rotate. Each revolution measures a precise amount of electricity.

The more power being used, the faster the disk spins. The disk turns a series of small gears and the gears turn the hands on the dials, which show how much you've used.

That's all there is to it. Simple, accurate, honest—that's your electric meter. See us for a copy of the free folder Your Electric Meter and How To Read It.

Random Thoughts
Delays in decision making on the proposed new elementary school building in Halls are costing money, a lot of money.

should do nothing but help the project.

Everyone in this area is happy over the apparent success of the kidney transplant for Russell Hill and also happy over the success of the fund raising drive in behalf of the Hill youngster.

There has been one sad development in connection with the fund raising efforts. Somewhere, the idea arose that saving the foil from cigarette packages could be used for raising funds.

We're sorry to report that there is no market for this foil. In other cases we have heard of the same idea, and each time it has been false. Everyone involved appreciates the efforts to save the foil, but it is worthless.

Well, the Tigers had a successful season and then capped it off with a bowl championship as they edged Houston County, 14-12, Saturday evening in the Gordon Browning Bowl in Huntington. Congratulations should also go to Dwayne McKinney as the top scorer in the state. This year's edition of the Tigers, along with those in 1974 and 1975, have helped return Halls football to its proper niche.

Don't forget the arts and crafts show sponsored by the Halls Parent-Teacher Organization Saturday at the elementary school. There will be a wide choice of items as well as many new ideas for those doing handicrafts.

Sick And Ailing

Retired Tennessee Chief Justice Ross W. Dyer entered the intensive care unit of Baptist Hospital in Memphis Wednesday of last week after a suspected heart attack.

Halls Assistant Postmaster Axford Pickens had vein-by-pass heart surgery Tuesday in Baptist Hospital in Memphis.

Mrs. Sue England had surgery Tuesday in St. Joseph Hospital in Memphis.

Montell Haynes was dismissed Friday of last week from Baptist Hospital in Memphis.

Mrs. W. C. Viar, Jr., entered Parkview Hospital in Dyersburg Tuesday for treatment.

Mrs. Gladys Poindexter, who has been ill with viral pneumonia, has returned home after spending several days with her sister.

Mrs. Amy Spry is in Methodist Hospital in Memphis for open heart surgery later this week.

MODERN DRUGS

CONTEMPORARY USE
ILLEGAL ABUSE By SAMMY ARNOLD, Registered Ph.

Robert Koch, a Prussian born in 1843, has been credited with developing the first really successful methods of segregating germs. He developed techniques for isolating microbes into specific groups and is given much credit for the isolation of the dreaded tubercle bacillus. During his lifetime, at least one death in seven was from tuberculosis.

It's apparent that great men attract others, since the anti-toxin serum to combat diphtheria has been credited to the combined efforts of one of Koch's assistants and one of Pasteur's aides.

Wrap Expression For Personality
One of the nicest ways to express your personality is through gift wrapping, reports Phyllis Jean Inman, University of Tennessee Extension interior design and crafts specialist.

"A gift doesn't need to be expensive or glamorous to express your feelings," she says. "Even the most practical, useful gift takes on excitement and interest when it's attractively wrapped."

Attractively wrapped packages are inexpensive, fun, and easy to do. Gift papers can be purchased for as little as 30 cents. Start by selecting a paper design to suit each family member and/or friend.

Even the most beautiful bow can't rescue a carelessly wrapped box. Assemble the wrapping papers, ribbons, scissors, and a roll of tape on a solid flat surface. Be sure to cut the paper large enough for the package, allowing enough to go around the box and overlap about two inches. It should extend beyond the ends of the box no more than three-quarters of the depth.

Tape the lid to the box to prevent bulges and add firmness. Lay the box upside down on the paper, making sure to center the pattern so it shows to the best advantage. Fold the paper neatly around the box and seal with tape. Miter the end corners and seal.

People who have hobbies seldom go crazy, but those who have to live with them do.

Doing Your Homework Aids Success In Deer Hunting

By Tony Mack

Many deer hunters pursue the sport for years before they are fortunate enough to get even a glance at a trophy buck, so when the opportunity finally arises, it's very important to make every shot count. And knowledge of a deer's anatomy can be more conducive to a quick and sure kill than any other single factor. Let's consider the white-tail, which due to its widespread prevalence, commands more pursuers than all its close relations.

White-tail bucks can grow to as much as 300 pounds, stand as high as 3 1/2 feet at the shoulders, and reach a length of six feet. But such a deer would be a trophy indeed, and the average size is much smaller than this.

For most areas, a field dressed buck that weighs 120 pounds is a pretty good kill. The white-tail does average about a third less in both weight and stature.

Hair Color Varies

Both white-tail sexes have a reddish-brown color during the summer, but when winter sets in, there is a discernible difference. Does take on a smooth gray sheen with a slight blue tint. Buck retain more of their reddish summer coloring, and older bucks develop a darker hue down their back (thus, the reason for the term "moss-back", which some ardent hunters use to describe their quarry).

Both sexes are white on the stomach, inside the legs, on the under side of the tail, and on the throat, just under the jaws.

Neck Can Be Key

Most anyone can spot a good set of antlers in an open field, but trying to identify the sex of a deer well hidden in evergreens or thick brush can come close to causing a coronary thrombosis. I'll help to squat, kneel, or sit, to get a lower level of vision.

Even then, other factors may prevent you from identifying sex on the basis of color.

So what else can you look for? A buck's neck is shorter than that of a doe, but it is much larger in circumference, especially just before and during the rutting season.

The neck of a doe is comparatively long, and the overthe spine will be hit; if it's low, the heart can be struck; if it's too far to the rear, the lungs will take the impact; and forward error can hit the windpipe.

Some hunters object to a shoulder shot, because some meat is destroyed, but I'd much prefer to lose this part of the venison than the entire deer.

A high percentage are standing at an angle from the hunter at the time of shot impact, so shoulder shots will usually damage only one shoulder.

A lung shot is equally fatal, and it destroys no meat. But it doesn't always drop a deer in his tracks.

The same thing is true for heart shots. If the heart is hit without severe leg damage, you may have a tracking job on your hands.

Unless it is the only exposed area, and you convince yourself that you may not get a better view, leave neck shots to the experts.

Not that a correct shot placement is less than deadly (correct neck placement is in the vertebrate near the center of the neck), but it's just too darn easy to miss.

Invariably, this will happen, unless you know precisely where your rifle or shotgun shoots at various distances, and most are zero'd for bullseye shots at one particular yardage only. There is almost no leeway for error with neck shots.

I share the same sentiment about head shots. The brain is the smallest target you can go for, and it's very difficult to hit, even under ideal conditions.

Too, there's a good possibility of hitting the deer in the jaw, and if this happens, he's sure to trot off somewhere out of reach and eventually die. And the thought of an animal left in the woods to die from an ill-placed shot isn't very pleasant.

Always Check Results Many hunters become discouraged too easily when they see a deer take off, apparently not hit, or if they see little or no

ty are very courteous about extending permission to hunt, so it is very important to respect the privilege. All counties in West Tennessee are open to deer hunting except Lake, the portion of Obion west of Hwy. 45, and Dyer, east of Hwy. 51. The state had 14,890 deer legally harvested last year, and biologists are predicting a 10% larger harvest this season. If you plan to hunt away from Lauderdale County, the top ten deer producing counties in Tennessee last year are listed below. Some landowners in these areas offer day hunts for a fee. You can get information about these by writing to the Chamber of Commerce in the county seats: Cheatam.....296... Ashland City Lewis.....291... Eshenwald south of Hwy. 70, East and Hwy. 54, West. Hardin.....270... Savannah Giles.....251... Pulaski *Denotes shotguns only. Westvaco Corporation's Big Sandy Forest Management Area in Benton County has always been very popular with deer hunters. It offers 18,000 acres of excellent habitat and is open to the public. A free map, "Big Sandy Hunting Guide", which details hunting and parking areas and access routes is available by writing Westvaco Central Woodlands, Dept. J, Box 458, Wickliffe, Ky. 42087. Special, quota antlerless deer hunts (antlerless deer are does or bucks having antlers less than three inches in length) are scheduled for all or portions of five West Tennessee counties on Jan. 8th, 9th and 10th, 1977, as follows: Weakley.....437... Rogersville Hardeman.....306... Selmer McNairy.....301... Selmer Haywood County, 300 permits, south of Hwy. 70, East and Hwy. 54, West. Henry County, 300 permits, west of Hwy. 641 and north of Hwy. 54. Weakley County, 1,000 permits. Hunters may apply in only one county, and they must appear in person at the respective county courthouse to complete an application on Friday, Nov. 26th or Saturday, Nov. 27th, from noon to 5 p.m. A computer drawing will be held and all applicants will be notified by mail on Dec. 28th. The limit will be one antlerless deer, and it will not be included in the statewide bag limit. All deer hunters should remember that the law requires they wear at least 500 square inches of daylight fluorescent orange on the upper portion of the body (vest and head (cap), visible front and rear.

Next, slit the brisket along the breast-bone and cut the cartilage that attaches to the breast-bone up to the neck. The chest cavity can then be partially opened, so that the vein can be cut and removed along with the heart and lungs. Cut close to the ribs and remove the muscular tissue that separates the stomach cavity from the chest cavity. Also, cut all tissues that hold the organs to the chest walls.

Now all the insides are free, and they can be pulled down and out of the cavity in one mass. Always carry a clean cloth in your hunting coat. Use it to wipe the cavity clean as possible. Then turn the carcass on its stomach with the legs spread-eagled for thorough drainage. Be sure it is kept cool.

Never allow the stomach skin along the field dress incision to come together, sealing off circulation from the inside. Several sticks of proper length, placed so as to hold the cavity walls apart, will do the trick. Deer Hunting Briefs

The West Tennessee gun-archery deer seasons are split: Nov. 20th thru Dec. 8th, and Dec. 18th thru Jan. 1st. Bag limit for this area is two bucks with antlers of 3-inch minimum length.

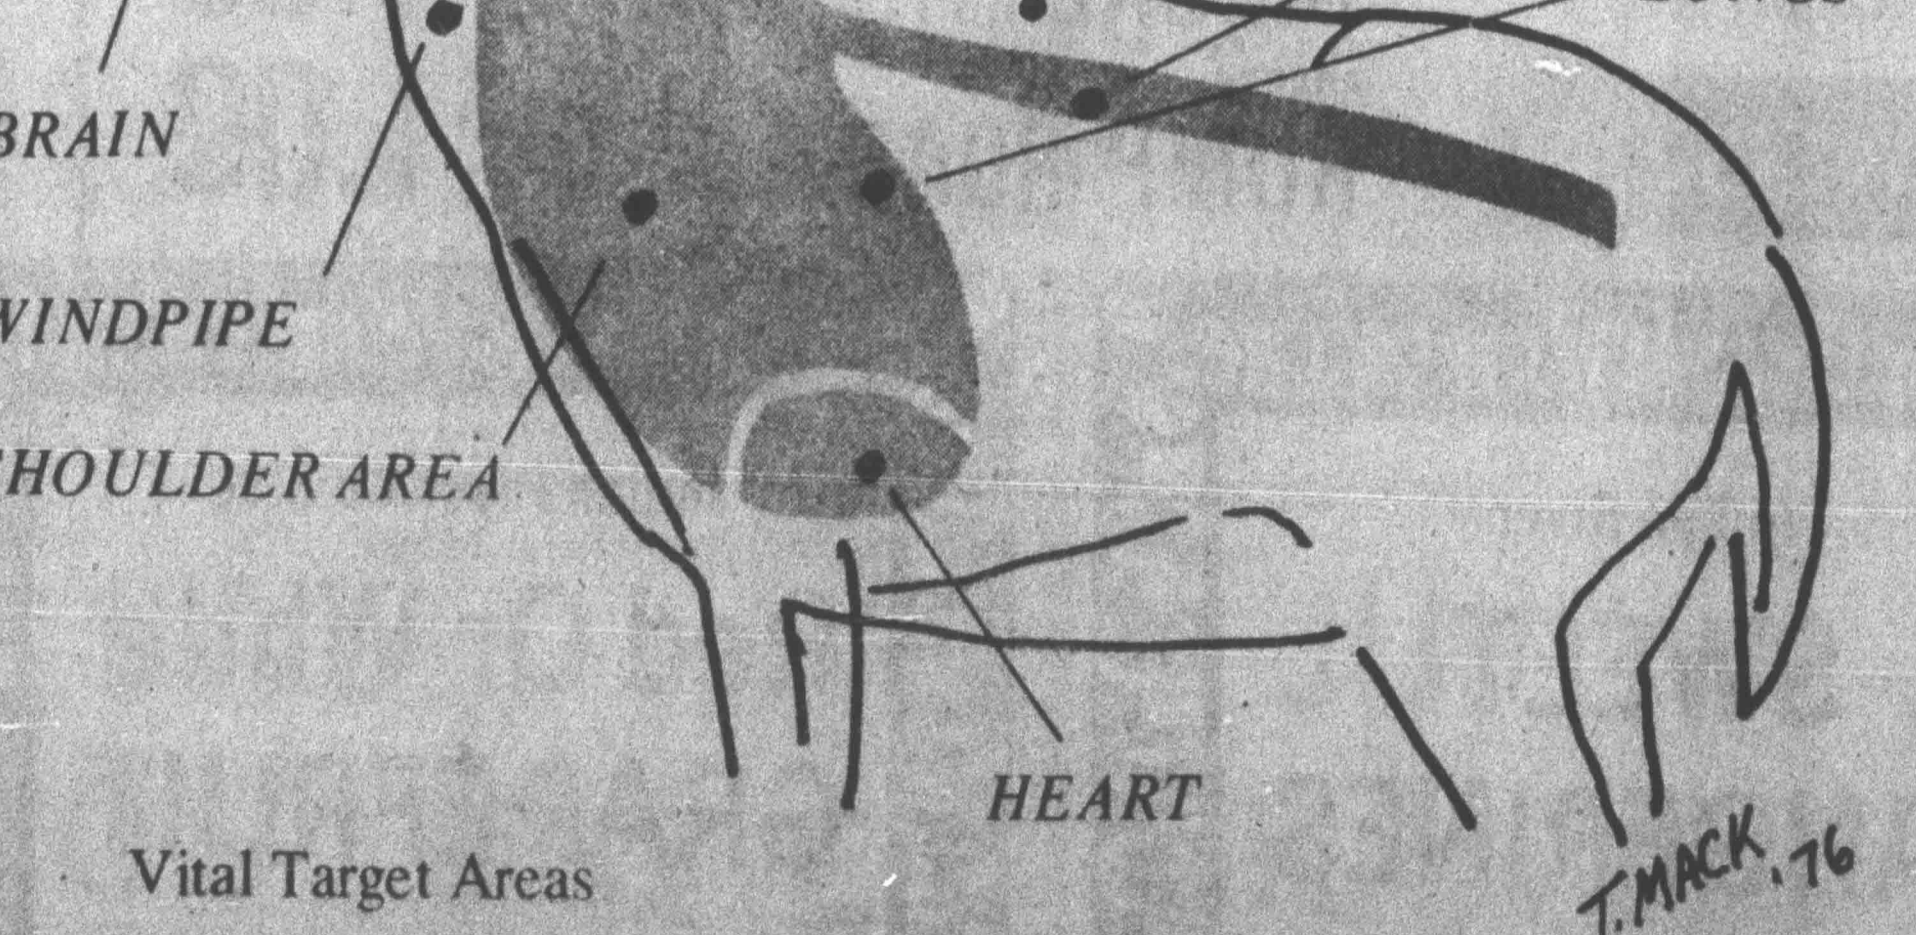

Best bets in Lauderdale County are the Anderson-Tully Wildlife Management Area, Fort Pillow State Farm, and nearby Hatchie and Mississippi river bottom woodlands.

A $3.80 WMA big game permit is required for Anderson-Tully hunting, in addition to the $7.80 state hunting license and the $7.80 state big game permit.

If you take a deer on Anderson-Tully during the first season period, you must purchase another WMA permit in order to hunt there during the second season.

A free, written permit, available from the warden, is required for Fort Pillow, and hunters are reminded that they must have permission to hunt on all private land whether or not it is posted.

WANTED-

After following his tracks for a hundred yards, I was about to give up. Then I saw a speck of blood. A few feet further, I saw more red stains.

In thick brush to one side of a clearing, was the dead ten-point buck!

I shudder to think that I almost failed to look for him, because I saw absolutely no signs of blood where I had made the fatal shot.

Field Dress With Care The once-a-year hunter, usually has a meat processor take care of his kill. Proper field dressing will insure that the butcher gets more edible meat from it, and will prevent spoilage on the way to him. Improper field dressing results in a strong, wild odor and taste.

A deer is best handled by placing it on its back on an incline so that drainage will be from the chest cavity down toward the hindquarters.

I carry along a stout, 20-foot length of nylon rope, and provided the deer isn't too large for me to handle-loop it around the neck and pull the animal up over a tree limb, just far enough to clear the ground.

Start the cut at the lower part of the stomach and make an incision up toward the breast. Avoid cutting into the intestines or bladder. Split the pelvis bone and remove the large intestines by cutting them free from their extremity (splitting the pelvis bone takes some effort, but it makes for a more effective job).

ED JONES

7th DISTRICT of TENNESSEE

REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

As the 94th Congress completed its work in October, one measure very important to the local government of the United States gained final approval and was signed into law by the President. I am talking, of course, about the extension of the federal revenue sharing program.

Originally passed into law in 1972, this program provides for the return of federal tax revenues to state and local governments for use as they deem necessary. The program was due to expire Dec. 31st of this year, but Congress acted decisively to extend it for a total of three and three-quarter years, through fiscal year 1980. When it was originally passed four years ago, it was felt that the program should provide these funds with very few restrictions so that local governments would have the maximum amount of flexibility to use them in areas where they saw the need.

This philosophy, on which the program is based, is one that I totally support. Certainly, no federal official knows better than local officials what the needs of local government really are.

County Courts and City Boards of Aldermen know better than anyone the local problems facing their local jurisdictions and should be able to use federal revenue sharing funds to cope with these problems.

There were no substantial changes in how the funds would be allocated included in the Revenue Sharing Extension Bill. Likewise, there are no substantial changes in the restrictions placed on their use. The basic intent of the bill, which has been signed into law, was to simply extend the program.

During the three and three-quarter years of the extension, funds that are received by Tennessee is estimated to receive about $37 million for local governments. The amounts per jurisdiction, of course, will vary depending on such factors as population, local tax effort, and per capita income.

In addition to the funds allocated to local governments in the Seventh District, the State of Tennessee will receive an estimated $13 million as a result of the population gain of West Tennessee. For next year, the federal government will allocate about the same amount of funds that it provided to local governments during the past fiscal year.

In the remaining fiscal years,

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE ACCOUNTING

Lesson for November 21, 1976

Background Scripture: Romans 14 through 15:6

Devotional Reading: 1 Corinthians 8

There is a story about a man who went to the country selling tickets for reserved seats in the courtroom of the Last Judgment.

The tickets were eagerly purchased by people who had a keen desire to be present when the "just deserts" would be meted out.

As they stood in line waiting to be admitted to the courtroom, however, they began to compare their tickets. The Christian who had purchased a ticket marked "Good for one admission to the Judgment of the Jews." The Fundamentalist who was there to witness the judgment of the Liberal was no less shocked to find that the Liberal held a ticket of admission to the judgment of the Fundamentalists.

Unwelcome disputes

It wasn't long before all the people waiting in line discovered that each person holding a ticket would be both part of the audience and part of the company of the condemned! Everyone was to be called to account in this Last Judgment. Too late they remembered the words of Jesus: "Judge not, that you be not judged. For the judgment you pronounce you will be judged" (Matthew 7:1-2).

The Apostle Paul had many occasions to reiterate this teaching of our Lord. In writing to the church at Rome, he asks: "Why do you pass judgment on your brother? For we shall all stand before the judgment seat of God" (14:10). No one shall be spared an accounting.

To the modern reader Romans 14 may seem quite irrelevant for it seems to focus on two problems that are of no consequence to the Christian today: what is valid to eat and when is the right time to worship God? These are seldom, if ever, cause for disputes in Christianity today. To us it may seem quite inconsequential if someone wants to be a vegetarian.

There was also another "food" problem: meat offered in pagan temples as sacrifices was usually resold in the market place for home consumption and some Christians refused to buy or eat such meat. From our present perspective, Romans 14 seems "much ado about nothing."

For the sake of food

Yet, though we might not dispute with each other over the use of meat or of the proper day upon which to worship in our church, there are many other issues over which we do dispute with each other. To us today they seem much more important, but from Paul's — and perhaps even the church at Rome to whom he wrote — these issues would probably bring the same response: "Do not, for the sake of food, destroy the work of God" (14:20) and in place of "food" we might as easily write style of church government, ritual and liturgy, "debtors" instead of "trespassers," mode of Holy Communion, and many others.

Those of us who become so adamant about this form of worship or that, this creedal statement or another, need to hear Paul saying to us as he did the church at Rome: "For the kingdom of God does not mean food and drink (or... you fill in the blank), but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit" (14:17). There is lots of room for differences of practice and opinion in the Church of Jesus Christ, but not for him "who disputes over opinions" (14:11).

So "let us no more pass judgment on one another," for on the day of the Accounting, God alone will sit in judgment.

AN ALBINO RACCOON caught by Bobby Reece, of Highway 88 West, Halls, last Friday night on the Elbert Viar farm, east of Halls, looks more like a huge pussy cat than a normal 'coon. A true albino, the raccoon is completely white, with the pink eyes characteristic of albinos. Reece plans to have the animal stuffed and mounted. No local hunter with whom the editor has talked has ever seen an albino 'coon.

Buffaloe, Davis, Martin Homes Welcome Tour Visitors Sunday

Sunday's annual homes tour, sponsored by Lauderdale County Home Demonstration Clubs, will welcome visitors to three homes from 2 to 5 p.m.

The Frewl Buffaloe home in Gates was built by the postmaster's grandfather, J. B. Williams, in 1923.

Bob and Billie Joe have cared lovingly for this heritage from the past and have added many interesting features.

The Charles Martin home on Nankipoo-Curve Road is marked by a circular drive and fountain and has an inner courtyard and fountain overlooked by living room and den.

This close-to-nature theme, against a backdrop of wooded hillside, in continuation in the rock fireplace in the den and in the earth colors used throughout the residence.

Crewel pictures which decorate the home were hand-made by Mrs. Martin.

Tour tickets, $2, will be available at all three homes and at the Farm Bureau Building in Ripley, where a Country Store will operate from 1:30 to 5 p.m.

State Bureau Prexy Heard

James Putnam, state Farm Bureau president, addressed Ripley Rotarians Tuesday of last week to note Farm-City Week, Nov. 19-25th.

Club guests included county Bureau president Clifford R. Sweet, directors Richard Lane, Vernon McBride, Jr., Eddie Owen, and W. M. Paris, Bureau secretary Betty Brogdon, and Tenn. Farmers Mutual Insurance secretary Elizabeth Morris.

14 County Nurses At Heart Seminar

Fourteen nurses from Lauderdale County were among 341 from West Tennessee attending a Cardiology Seminar sponsored by the West Tennessee Heart Association at Jackson State College Nov. 10th and 11th.

The annual seminar seeks to keep nurses abreast of latest technology in heart treatment.

Attending from Lauderdale County were Glenda Doty and Martha J. Shephard, registered nurses; and Patsy Lee Armour, Nannie Sue England, Carrie Dell Harrison, Maryann Hodges, Nell Hubbard, Mary Ann Jarrett, Florence Elaine Kirkness, Birdie E. Pierce, Ruby Ray, Corinne and Kenneth Board, and Melba Watkins, licensed practical nurses.

Reginald Walker Taking Master's

Reginald E. Walker, son of Mrs. Lurine W. Hayes, of Ripley, and the late Azzen Walker, will be awarded a master of arts degree in English from Ohio State University Dec. 9th.

His thesis was "A Study Of Selected Non-Fiction in Richard Wright."

ELON SINGING SET

Gospel singing at 6 p.m. Sunday in Elon Baptist Church at Double Bridges will feature the Jones Family, of Alamo. The public is invited.

Rotary Observing 50th Anniversary

Ripley Rotary Club, formed Nov. 2, 1926, celebrated its golden anniversary Tuesday evening at dinner for members and their wives in Rolling Hills Country Club.

Speaker was James L. Bomar, Jr., of Shelbyville, one of the past governors of Rotary District 676 who attended.

Current district governor Jess Pinckley, of Huntingdon, made a special presentation.

Judge C. S. Garney reviewed the history of the club, which is based on the unique principle of having a single member to represent each vocation in the community, with exceptions for ministers and newsmen, to avoid favoritism.

The club's 19 charter members were W. Dan Majors, president, T. O. Griffe, vice-president, Bruce Klatts, secretary-treasurer, Solon Neighbors, sergeant-at-arms, Roy Burgess, B. C. Durham, Jr., and William Decker III, other directors, J. I. Barbour, Sanford B. Drake, J. C. Jenkins, R. H. Kirkpatrick, L. O. Leavelle, R. S. Machin, E. M. Priemer, E. M. Rice, Roy L. Rice, Joe M. Tucker, L. C. White, and E. B. Wright.

William Tucker is the only charter member still active in the club. Sanford Drake, of Lauderdale County Nursing Home, is the only other survivor of the founders.

The original goal was 30 members. Today under president Louis Wheatley, there are 57.

The club meets for luncheon Tuesdays in the Golden Hawaii Restaurant.

Its first meeting was in First Methodist Church, when a banquet was held to launch it. Present were representatives of the sponsoring Dyerburg club and the district governor, Larry Akers, of Memphis.

The second meeting was in the Dan Davis home.

The charter was presented on Jan. 18, 1927, in a banquet in the Jefferson Davis Hotel, built by W. G. L. Rice at a cost of about $50,000.

Other meeting places have included the Fortner Hotel, now demolished, the second floor of the Wiley Daniels Building at Monroe and Highway 51 South; and the Farm Bureau building.

Early members included William Tucker, Jr., owner of Tucker Motor Co.; Charles Campbell, Enterprise co-owner, who for many years wrote a weekly column on the club's doings and was dubbed its "poet laureate"; J. M. Taylor, Illinois Central Railroad agent; Roy L. McCulloch; Joe DeVinney; Dr. John E. Canning; and Owen D. Davis, Jeff Davis proprietor.

On Aug. 1927, Mrs. W. H. Steen was pianist for Mrs. Sam Haborn, vocalist, before the club. Mrs. Steen became Rotary pianist and served faithfully for many years as the only woman in regular attendance at Rotary.

On Aug. 12, 1927, Ray Freeman, a crippled lad who had had several leg operations, was adopted by Rotary to assist his education.

That was the first of many Rotary community services, mostly unsung, through the years.

With almost all the club's members already deeply immersed in community services of every description, the club has never emphasized "projects" but has concentrated on fellowship and ethics, but it has been a quiet force behind almost every major community improvement in half a century of—in its motto—"Service Above Self."

Pushing For Purple—Drummer Leonard Cannon, Ripley High School Sophomore, models the purple and white uniform for which the RHS Band and Band Parents Club will seek donations Saturday.

The band needs about $10,000 for the new uniforms for 100 musicians, plus about $2,000 for accessories expenses, such as re-working of drums.

The new uniforms have purple trousers, a gold sash, and white blouses and hats with gold trim.

Band director Bill Campbell says the band, which had 93 members, including some eighth graders, will have 90 to 100 members next year, entirely from the high school.

Select well-drained soil. If the soil is spongy, mix in liberal quantities of peat moss or other decayed material, such as cotton bolls. It is poorly drained, put plenty of brick or rock in the bottom of the holes, or plant shrubs in raised beds.

The most important thing in planting shrubs is digging a large hole.

Allow at least six inches of space between the soil ball or ends of the roots.

A fertile soil mixture may be needed to place around the roots.

This could be made up of 60% loamy soil, 30% peat moss, and 10% dried or well-rotted manure.

If manure is not available, use equal parts of fertile top-soil and peat moss.

Cut broken or damaged roots back to healthy tissue, but don't shorten or remove any sound, vigorous roots.

These are needed to insure rapid recovery from the shock of being transplanted.

Be sure no roots circle the base of the stem.

Also, be sure to get all the roots out of the circle, in case of a canned plant.

If you do not, the roots will rot to grow in the circle.

Set the shrub firmly at the same depth at which it grew in the nursery, and extend the roots to their full length.

Fill the hole about one-third full of the soil mixture.

Tamp lightly with the handle of the shovel to work the soil in around the roots.

Add more soil until the hole is about two-thirds full, and again tamp the soil.

Pour in several gallons of water, and after this has been absorbed, finish filling the hole.

The upper roots of your shrubs should have been covered about two inches deep.

Don't add chemical fertilizer to the soil when planting shrubs, because it may burn the roots.

In the spring, sprinkle about half a cup of 6-12-12 fertilizer on the surface around the shrub.

Add a pinch each of any dust, wood chips, hay, or whatever you have. Extend at least two feet from the stem.

Leave a depression around the shrubs, over the root system, to hold water, which should be applied each week until the plants become established.

Ball and burlap or container-grown shrubs and trees require very little pruning at planting time.

Remove any broken or undesired branches by cutting back to a main stem, a strong lateral, or a bud.

Deciduous plants which are planted this way, and all branches should be cut back for more than one third their length.

This reduces the need for moisture while the root system is becoming re-established.

Mrs. Lents Disabled Worker Of The Year

Mrs. Joan Lents, of Gates, has been named Lauderdale County Handicapped Employee of the Year.

Despite a left arm undeveloped since birth, she supervises more than two dozen employees for the Lauderdale Garment plant in Ripley.

Herman Cunningham, plant manager, says Mrs. Lents is a capable and valued employee.

Her selection was announced by Blake Williams, of Marenmont Corp., county chairman of the Governor's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped.

Mrs. Lents will be formally presented with her award in Tuesday's meeting of Ripley Rotary Club.

IN 2ND CRASH IN TWO DAYS

was James W. Holcomb, of Route 2, Ripley, when he met this car, driven by Calvin Moore, of Curve, at the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad Bridge east of Flippin on the Roy Crain Road at dusk Wednesday of last week. Moore's sister, Patricia, 13, went to Lauderdale County Hospital with minor injuries. Patrolman Joe Jacobs charged Moore with failure to yield. Holcomb, unhurt, was in his sedan driven by Vicki Rose, 19, of Central, on Edith-Central Road early Monday afternoon of last week, in which he also was not charged. Last week's Enterprise carried a photo of that crash.

Cotton, Tax Parleys Set

By Charles T. Peal
Lauderdale County cotton growers are urged to attend a meeting at 10 a.m. Wednesday in which the National Cotton Council will present its case for an increase in the present $1-per-bale basis for cotton research and promotion.

A referendum on the matter is anticipated late this year.

The meeting will be held in the auditorium of the Dyer County complex on the Dyerburg-Roelien Road.

Tax Up-Date Offered
Anyone interested may attend two meetings in which Internal Revenue Service personnel will explain some of the extensive changes in income tax law made by the Tax Reform Act of 1976, including tax guidance on tax credits and net operating losses.

The emphasis will be on farm tax problems.

The meetings, scheduled by the Extension Service and the Tennessee Farm Bureau, are set at the Bureau office in Jackson Dec. 9th and at the University of Tennessee in Martin Dec. 10th.

Cattle Brands Registered

Jim Voss, who has acquired a small herd of beef cows, has applied for brand registration.

A law passed by the legislature in 1959 prohibits use of an unregistered brand.

The brand may be of any design which does not duplicate one already registered.

The initial registration fee is $10. Re-registration, every five years, costs $2.

Drawings of brands already registered, and forms for new registrations, are available at the county Extension office.

Shrub Planting Timely
The cool days of autumn are ideal for planting shrubs.

The best time is when plants become dormant, about a month after the average date of the first frost.

IN 2ND CRASH IN TWO DAYS

was James W. Holcomb, of Route 2, Ripley, when he met this car, driven by Calvin Moore, of Curve, at the Illinois Central Gulf Railroad Bridge east of Flippin on the Roy Crain Road at dusk Wednesday of last week. Moore's sister, Patricia, 13, went to Lauderdale County Hospital with minor injuries. Patrolman Joe Jacobs charged Moore with failure to yield. Holcomb, unhurt, was in his sedan driven by Vicki Rose, 19, of Central, on Edith-Central Road early Monday afternoon of last week, in which he also was not charged. Last week's Enterprise carried a photo of that crash.

Eagles Draw Much Attention At Reelfoot

Winter time at Reelfoot Lake is an especially interesting time for bird watchers. Since the lake's formation by a series of earthquakes in 1811 and 1812, many majestic bald eagles spend the winter at Reelfoot.

By the end of this month the big birds will begin to arrive at the lake for the winter. Until only a few years ago, 1962, the birds nested in the area, but too many people came to the lake and drove the eagles away from their Tennessee nesting sites into the Great Lakes area and Canada.

However, they still return in large numbers to winter where the food is free and easy to get, and the water is ice free. The eagles can be found from late November to mid-March along the Mississippi river waiting for their northern homes to thaw out. The big birds feed off of trash fish thrown out by commercial fishermen. The eagles don't have to work for their food, picking off the crippled ducks, birds, or geese left wounded by hunters.

Depending on the weather, as many as one hundred or more eagles can be spotted in January and February. If the Tennessee weather is warm the big birds spread out all along the river banks. But if the winter is cold, they gather in the lake area. The birds seen at Reelfoot represent the population of several states. No bald eagles are found in Tennessee during the summer months.

According to experts, two kinds of eagles can be seen at the lake. The beautiful mature bald eagle with the white head and neck is about three years old before it acquires this coloring. The younger birds are completely brown and several are killed by hunters each year because they are mistaken for hawks. Because the eagle as well as the hawk and owl are endangered species, it is illegal to kill any of these in Tennessee. Federal law makes it illegal to possess a bald eagle dead or alive, and it is unlawful to raise the live birds.

The birds begin their journey back north about mid-March. Until then the State Department of Conservation is conducting automobile or bus tours through the park. Visitors can view the eagles perched high atop lofty cypress trees or hunting food along the lake. Guides are available for the tour every weekend and some weekdays during January and February. Visitors are encouraged to join the tours. Many visitors who strike out on their own through the state park often scare the birds away because they are not aware of their habits and roosting places.

By Harry A. Merlo, Chairman and President, Louisiana-Pacific Corp. America abounds with forests that can be cut and regrown, generation after generation, forever. There need be no shortage of standing timber now, or ever. But if this is true, why do we face the prospect of higher prices for wood products?

In spite of our forest resources, America is threatened by a serious wood shortage in the midst of abundance, because our national forests are tragically under-managed, under-financed and over-regulated. Present government policies actually impede the cutting of timber in a time of growing demand. There are plenty of trees for harvest but they're being wasted. And that creates the artificial shortage that drives prices up.

The federal government with control of more than half the nation's standing timber, has failed to give us a comprehensive, long-range policy for use of the national forests. You suffered through the oil shortage and paid the price for America's lack of vision. Yet we still have no coherent, long-range energy policy.

Now the same thing may happen to our wood supplies, and Congress and the Administration hesitate to propose bills to prevent it. If they stall much longer, you'll start to feel the pinch in scarce wood and paper supplies and spiraling prices. In the end, a timber shortage could cause consumers to turn to non-renewable substitutes such as steel, aluminum and plastic. Repercussions of this sort would hit all segments of our national economy—housing, jobs, manufacturing and plying 27 percent of the national trade. Shortages of softwood timber would not only rekindle the fire of inflation, but also threaten the country's total inventory of timber.

Many laws that regulate softwood sawtimber in commercial timber harvest contrast, the forest industry actually prevent the percent of all sawlogs. These circumstances lead to one conclusion: As a soundly double the tree American, you aren't getting harvest from the 92 million your money's worth from our national forests are old-growth softwood inventory. Obviously, we're not planning the future of our timber supply. That's half the amount the next century and beyond. We need a national timber and too many trees are being removed from the forest. Needed funds for the timber supply by closing off set Service won't burden the national forest lands or federal budget or come out of your tax dollars. The forest industries who harvest the trees pay the bill when they buy wood from the government. If you want to continue to conserve, but recently get wood and paper products the pendulum has swung too far in one direction and land preserve the forest recreation is being set aside to let fallow areas you enjoy, then contact your Congressmen. Tell them to intensify management on the remaining lands so that this national problem before can produce more timber per acre to make up for the loss. Prices start to soar.

Little Sports

Even if your son or daughter follows in your footsteps, they'll want to do it in their own kind of shoes. For the sporting life of today's school set, there is the tennis, track and basketball look in children's shoes, that look just like big brother's or big sister's sport shoe.

Two of these, the Trackster (left) and the Sureshot (center) are made of nylon with a foam and triot lining, padded heel collar, shockproof arch cushion and cushioned insole. The third, called the Courtstar, (right) is made of army duck with a vinyl-covered padded heel collar, shockproof arch cushion and terrycloth-covered cushion insole. These may well be winning looks with any budding track, basketball or tennis star.

Created by the master craftsmen at Keds, they can all keep kids' feet in fashion and in good form.

NEWS OF SAFETY

HIBERNATION FOR LAWN MOWERS

When storing your lawn mower, it's important you do it safely. Here are some tips from experts at the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute for the owners of the 40 million lawn mowers in America that will be bedded down for the cold weather.

1. Drain all gasoline out of the mower before putting it away. Store the gas in a strong, metal, clearly marked, safety-type can with a self-closing cap and keep it away from children and combustible materials.

2. Never reach into the blade to clean it unless you're sure the mower is off and the power is off. Stop the engine and disconnect or remove the spark plug before making any repairs.

3. Make sure that you store the mower in a safe place where children and pets can't "play" with it.

4. Discuss proper servicing and maintenance needs with your dealer. Schedule a service appointment well before the spring rush.

5. Before you take the machine out again for spring mowing, make sure to read the safe operating instructions included with the mower. Make sure you re-learn the controls well enough to be able to act instantly and correctly.

Follow these rules and your lawn mower should be in great shape after its winter hibernation.

FACTS & FIGURES

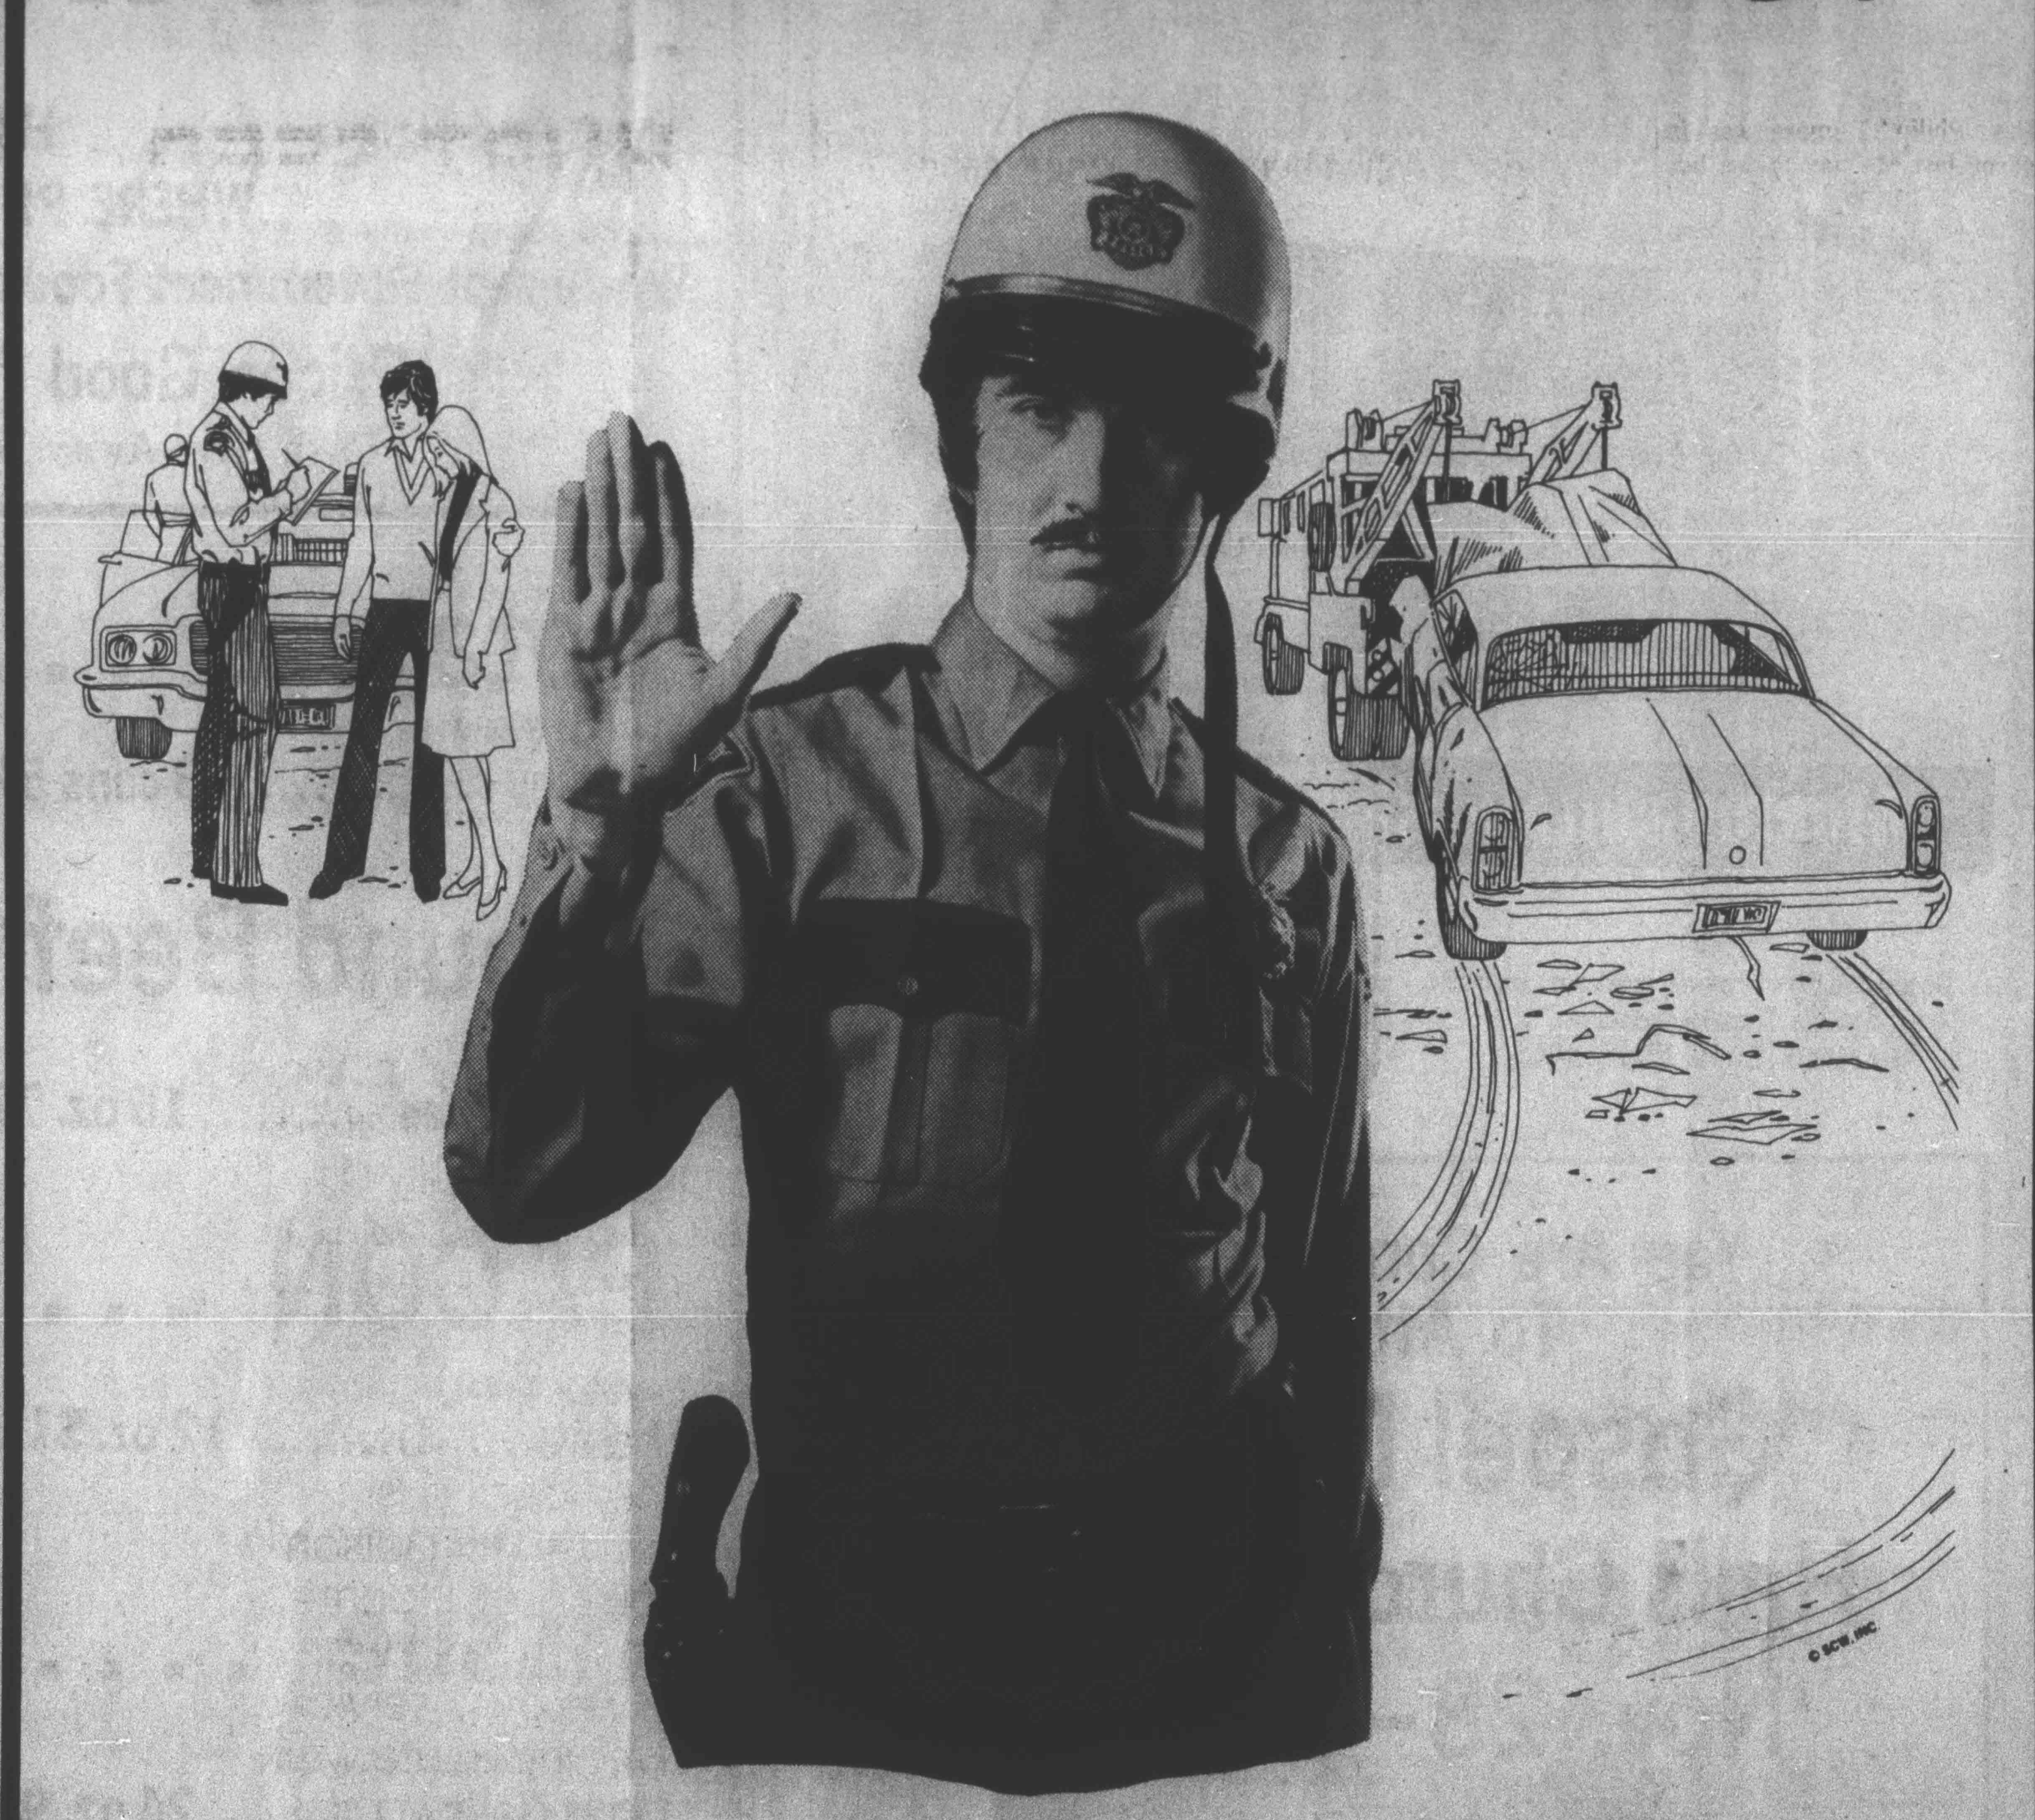

A new, recyclable, lightweight soft drink container provides approximately 80 per cent energy saving when recycled as compared to the energy required to manufacture the original bottle. The original 32-ounce bottle uses 8800 BTUs (British Thermal Units). Recycling a 32-ounce bottle uses only 1800 BTUs.

A minimum of $250 a ton is being offered by Monsanto Company for used containers of this kind, which are trademarked Cycle-Safe—about 1.8 cents per bottle!

The more often this new container is recycled, the greater the relative energy savings become. At five recycles, glass is 2.5 times greater in energy use, steel is 2.2 times greater and aluminum is 1.7 times greater.

ED JONES

7th DISTRICT of TENNESSEE

REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

During the month of September, the Congress once again demonstrated the emphasis that it has placed on maintaining a strong defense for the nation. In passing the Defense Appropriations Act and the Military Construction Authorization Bill, both the House and the Senate clearly showed that they were determined to provide funds that will keep America's defense establishment strong. Both bills have since been signed into law by the President.

The first bill, passed by Congress on Sept. 13th, provides a total of $104.3 billion for the operations of the Defense Department for fiscal year 1977. It includes funds for personnel salaries, retired military personnel, operations, and maintenance, weapons procurement, research and development. A major portion of those funds, $30 billion, was for the procurement of major weapons.

In most cases, the Congressional appropriation was in line with amounts that the Pentagon had requested for new weapons. It provides for the procurement of Trident Missiles, M-60 tanks, fighter and bomber aircraft, and 18 naval ships of various sizes. Included in those ships to be purchased during 1977 are submarines, destroyers, cruisers, one aircraft carrier, and various support ships.

The funding bill also provides for continued research and development of cruise missiles, the F-18 fighter plane, and a new army tank. This final version of the bill actually provided an endorsement of the basic policy of maintaining and modernizing the concept of three independent nuclear strike forces comprised of land based missiles, submarine launched missiles, and bombers. While I am speaking of bombers, the bill also provided an appropriation for the procurement of three B-1 bombers at a cost of $948 million.

The other bill passed and signed into law authorizes $3.3 billion in fiscal year 1977 for military construction programs. Earlier, the President had vetoed a similar bill which would have required the Pentagon to give a full year's notice of its intention to close or curtail operations at military bases. That provision of the new bill was reduced to require Defense Department officials to provide 60 days notice of such proposed actions.

This law will authorize the construction of nearly 400 projects on military installations during the next fiscal year. Included was a project to construct a testing facility for jet engines in Tullahoma at a cost of $437 million. Also authorized were projects costing $92 million for construction of projects that will support the Trident missile launching submarines.

Both of these pieces of legislation, both law now, are greatly important to our defense efforts. They will provide proper facilities for military research and development. Also, the appropriations measure will provide funds to make sure our armed forces are properly equipped to provide a strong defense for the nation. The actions of Congress in this regard should not be overlooked. Congress has put itself on record as favoring a strong defensive posture for the nation and will continue to do so in the future.

GENTILES '76!

Lesson for November 28, 1976

Background Scripture:
Romans 1:16, 15:7-33
Devotional Reading:
Colossians 1:21-29.

To the Christian today the term "Gentile" has an archaic ring. It speaks to him of a distant era when the issue of "Gentile Christianity" was crucial for the Church of Jesus Christ. But the issue was resolved in the earliest days of Christianity when, largely through the work of Paul, it was determined that Jews and Gentiles (non-Jews) alike could share the "good news of Jesus Christ."

Rev. Althouse

So, today, for all practical purposes, the term "Gentile" seems quite irrelevant and whatever the New Testament has to say about them seems equally obsolete.

The hope of the Gentiles

Yet, perhaps we need to see this term from a new and different perspective. In Paul's day, the Gentile was a person quite outside the Jewish religious heritage. The Apostle was convinced, however, that the salvation of God through Jesus Christ was intended every bit as much for the Gentile as for the Jew. Citing various Old Testament passages, Paul reminded the church at Rome of God's purpose:

"Therefore I will praise thee among the Gentiles..." (4:9)
"Rejoice, O Gentiles, with his people" (4:10)
"Praise the Lord, all Gentiles, and let all the peoples praise him" (4:11)

Furthermore, Paul believed that God had singled him out to pursue a special ministry of reconciliation to these people who many regarded as being beyond the grace of God. Instead of writing-off these pagans, Paul called for Christians to join him in extending the Gospel to them also, "so that the offering of the Gentiles may be acceptable, sanctified by the Holy Spirit" (4:16).

So, Paul spent the better part of his ministry, traveling from Jerusalem to Rome itself, winning the Gentiles to the Gospel of Jesus Christ and, in time, Christianity became a Gentile faith.

And also to the Greek

Thus endeth the Gentile concern.

Or does it? When we understand who were the Gentiles in Paul's day, can we not look about us and see that there are Gentiles of another kind today? Are there not people today who are quite outside the Christian religious heritage? Are there not Gentiles in our jails today, in our hospitals, in our mental institutions, in our ghettos, in our factories, in our governmental and educational institutions, in our neighborhoods? Are there not multitudes of people who are alienated from God and each other? Is there not still just as much a need for a ministry of reconciliation today as in the time of the Apostles?

Take a look at your own community. Where are the Gentiles of today and who are they? What are you and your church doing to bring reconciliation to them? In your community does Christianity stand for reconciliation, or is it just another factor that contributes to the alienation?

The problem today is often as it was in Paul's time: we tend to write-off the Gentiles. Oh, we may let them in if they come to our churches "hat in hand," but we would hardly set forth any great effort to go out and minister to them, to bring them the gospel of reconciliation.

But until or unless we do, neither will we be reconciled either.
