

Firemen Quickly Save Halls Plant

QUICK ACTION by Halls Fire Department averted major damage shortly after noon last Wednesday when a fire ravaged an old building at the south end of Anderson-Hickey Co. on the old air base in Halls. The blaze is believed to have started from a fire being used by the crew razing the building. Damage to the plant was limited to panels on the south end of the recently erected new building. Dick Strouse, plant manager, said the plant was shut down for about two hours due to the fire. Strouse said a quick answer to the alarm saved the plant, which manufactures metal desks and filing cabinets.

Readers Speak:

The following is a portion of an article which appeared in a devotional writing:

A young man's picture appeared on the sports page of the home town paper. He had been the hero of the basketball game the previous Friday night, helping his team win the divisional basketball tournament. Now the team would go to the regional contest.

"No one plays harder for the school than the 17-year-old boy, but he is human, and praise sometimes goes to his head. The next day in the locker room, he bragged how his shot won the game by giving his team a 1-point edge over a hard-fighting opponent. Overhearing his remark, the coach said to him, 'Who passed you the ball?'"

In our victories, do we forget to give credit to others who helped us along the way? A student goes to college, wins many honors, graduates to a fine job. Who gave the scholarship that made it possible?

A teacher struggles with an unruly pupil but believes in that one and spends extra time, tutoring. Who helped that student graduate?

Again I was reminded of the encouragement given me by people of my home town in my early years of work.

Among them were Mr. D. C. Warren, Cashier of the Bank of Halls. He was a capable business man, civic leader, and churchman, a man with a soft and well-modulated voice who trusted me to construct his house. The home is located on Main Street and is now occupied by the David Nunns. It is still among the better dwellings in Halls.

Clarence and Neil Dyer, of Dyer Bros. Lumber Co., would deliver any amount of building materials to me without my signing a delivery ticket.

Judge W. C. Patton, County Judge, was well-versed in law, civic-minded, and served as both mayor and attorney of Halls. He was a person who supported and counseled me. A loyal churchman who had unusual enthusiasm and energy with a walk and carriage which were inimitable.

Mr. W. R. Jefferys was a progressive farmer, business man, cattleman and loyal churchman. He owned his own water supply system. He employed me to remodel his house and to repair the highly elevated wood-staved water tank. He said the price was too high—so was the tank! I was furnished the best view I ever had of the town.

R. L. Avery, business man, mill owner, manufacturer, choir leader, was probably the community's most versatile person. I recall working with a grain-threshing crew on the Rooks farm in Gum Flat when the steam engine's timing failed, stopping the entire crew.

The owner sent for Tom Avery, who came immediately and adjusted the valves. The owner thanked him and asked "How much do I owe you, Tom?" "Fifty cents" was Mr. Avery's reply and "She'll go now," so they both went. I shall always remember him as a capable and effective counselor to me.

The Hurt brothers were first cousins to me. They were as follows:

Floyd, who was tall and handsome, with sparkling eyes and black hair with a part one inch deep. He was honest and energetic and was probably the most capable building contractor Halls ever had. He gave me employment, was patient and understanding; he corrected me in no "uncertain terms" at times by precept and example.

Fred, banker, civic leader, one time building contractor and church leader, who gave me employment, encouragement and good counsel when all were much needed.

Wymond was a banker, one time merchant and insurance man, devoted churchman, and one time roommate at the Massengill Hotel. He is yet a public servant, my true friend and counselor. Halls never produced a finer and more useful citizen than Wymond Hurt. "He that is greatest among you must be servant to all"—Matthew.

R. H. Jordan, a distant cousin, was a lumberman, timber buyer, and merchant. He was mayor several times, chairman of the School Board, and an athletic enthusiast.

Dr. A. P. Massengill, M.D., hotel owner and manager. He furnished me board, room, good publicity, and office space at a price too low for the present generation to believe. He may have done Halls a favor by insisting that I answer a blind ad in the Commercial Appeal that lured me from Halls in May of 1927.

Neil Ferguson, a grocer, was popular and efficient and handsome, who could work circles around average persons. He was my roommate at the Massengill Hotel and saved my life by staying up three consecutive nights to apply hot poultices of flaxseed meal, according to doctor's orders, to stem blood-poisoning.

Dr. William Hall, M.D., was dedicated to the practice of medicine and service to mankind far exceeding all requirements of the Hippocratic

Promotion For Dale McCaslin

Delta Air Lines has promoted Dale McCaslin, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. McCaslin, of Halls, from supervisor of station operations, since 1979, to assistant station manager at Memphis International Airport.

With Delta since 1959, McCaslin began his airline career as a ramp service agent in Memphis.

He was graduated from Halls High School before attending the University of Tennessee.

Mrs. McCaslin is the former Carolyn Smith, of Halls. There are three sons, David, Danny, and Matthew.

McCaslin is active with youth groups, including coaching Little League sports.

P-TO MEETING

Halls Parent-Teacher Organization will meet at 7 p.m. Monday at Halls Elementary School.

The first grade will present a patriotic program.

Oath. He was a counselor and friend to all.

The Rev. E. B. Wiley: Now I must proceed with caution and within the bounds of propriety—you see, he was my respected and beloved father-in-law. He was the father of Mrs. Sumrow Steelman, who taught for years in Halls High School and who now lives in the Bethesda community.

Brother Wiley was a minister, teacher, farmer and public servant with genuine interest in all mankind, especially young people. He was "wise as a serpent and as harmless as a dove." He could convict wayward boys when he passed, a half mile away—how do I know? Well you guessed.

Although I have failed to make many goals along life's journey, I shall always remember and appreciate the ones mentioned here, as well as many others who passed the ball to me.

Sincerely
ED JORDAN

(Editor's Note: While few Halls residents may remember Mr. Jordan, now residing in Jackson, Miss., there remain several monuments to him in Halls. Before leaving Halls in 1927, he had built the present First Christian Church building, the D. C. Warren home, now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. David Nunns, and the old high school building on West Tiggert, which burned a few years ago.)

The first printed book known is a copy of the Diamond Sutra, a Buddhist scripture from the 16th century.

CHARLES R. VIAR, guidance counselor at Halls High School and adjunct instructor in psychology in Dyersburg State College, has been named to the Tennessee American College Testing Policy Council, headed by Dr. John W. Prados, vice-president for academic affairs of the University of Tennessee in Knoxville. The council elects Tennessee's representative to the ACT Corporation, which sets national policy, and observes ACT performance in the state.

Name Hudson All-American

Michael Hudson, all-state running back at Halls High School, has been named to the Centenary Prep All-American squad for 1981.

The squad is selected from nominations received from more than 500 high school coaches, college assistant coaches, and members of the sports news media.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hudson, of Halls, Hudson was state scoring champion in 1980, with 210 points.

Centenary All-America is a non profit organization based in Valley Forge, Pa.

Wiggins Becomes Student Teacher

Jerry Wiggins, Halls senior in the University of Tennessee in Martin, is student teaching in Dyer County High School in Newbern during the winter quarter.

A 1978 graduate of Halls High School, he is the son of Mrs. Adron R. Wiggins, of Route 2, Halls.

He is working with David Agee's American history, world history, and geography classes.

Sheriff Candidates

MILFORD 'POP' DURHAM today announces his candidacy for sheriff. A native of this county, he and his wife, the former Rachel Walton, a licensed practical nurse employed by Butler-Tucker Clinic in Ripley, have three children, Jeff, employed by Ripley Gas and Water Dept., Lisa Helwig, a home-maker, and Gena Durham, student in the University of Tennessee in Martin. They have one grandchild, Leslie Helwig.

Pop attended county public schools and was graduated from Ripley High School in 1957. He is a graduate of the Tennessee Law Enforcement Academy at Donaldson. He is a Ripley policeman, with six years experience in law enforcement. He also owns and operates Eastside Grocery, with his son-in-law, Kevin. He is a member of Mary's Chapel Baptist Church.

"In the past few years," he says, "I have been encouraged by several people to seek the office of sheriff. I deeply appreciate this encouragement and the interest shown on my behalf."

"I know that because of the rising crime rate, there is a growing concern among our people for the safety and welfare of all our citizens. I, too, am concerned."

"This trend toward burglary, larceny, and robbery must be stopped. The JOHNNIE D. FORD, 33, son of the Royce Fords, of Curve, a former Ripley policeman now merchant and farmer at Curve, solicits your support and vote in the Aug. 5th election for sheriff.

"I feel my 8½ years as Ripley policeman, plus Military Police experience, enables me to be an effective law enforcement officer for the county," he says.

"I intend to visit each citizen between now and election."

He and his wife, the former Regina Dale Daniels, have two sons and a daughter. They are members of Curve United Methodist Church.

"I feel new leadership is needed which I can provide," Ford says. "I will deeply appreciate your help."

increased usage and sale of drugs, particularly among our young people, must also be stopped.

"I believe that with the help of our citizens and a better working relationship between the law enforcement agencies in the county, these challenges could be met successfully."

"In the next few months, I will try to see each of you personally. As we talk, I will welcome your questions, advice, or comments concerning the issues in this election, and will certainly appreciate your vote and support."

"The silliest of all people are those who do foolish things to show off." Vauvenargues

Hallie Pennington Mourned: Gates And County Official

REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

Without a doubt, the most significant event of the first week of the new Session of Congress was President Reagan's first State of the Union message. While acknowledging the problems now facing the nation, the President very skillfully set an agenda for goals he wanted to accomplish during the coming year. Unlike many recent State of the Union messages, the President put into about 40 minutes of speaking the nuts and bolts of his philosophy of what government ought to be. In doing so, he was very specific in what he thought needs to be done to implement that philosophy. He laid out the broad guidelines of a program that will be extremely important in the weeks ahead. There has already been some public discussion by various governors around the country expressing their desire to embark on a similar plan. The dialogue between state, local and federal officials is going to be extremely important in the weeks ahead. There has already been some public discussion by various governors around the country expressing their desire to embark on a similar plan. The dialogue between state, local and federal officials is going to be extremely important in the weeks ahead.

major question that will be vital to actually getting such a program underway is going to be the ability of state and local governments to undertake the obligations that will come with the so-called new federalism. With many states already facing severe fiscal problems, it appears that state and local officials are going to have to examine very carefully their options. If all the states accept the President's plan and retain the programs now in existence, they will have to make a conscious decision on where the funding to support those programs is going to come from. At the other end of the spectrum is the decision to refuse to keep any of the programs now under federal jurisdiction. In between those extremes, there are any number of combinations of options that the individual states can choose to select. Assuming that the President's recommendation is approved by the Congress, it must be emphasized that work must begin by the state and local governments now in order for them to be prepared for a timely transition. The reason I say that is that the President's recommendation calls for the transition to begin in October 1983. That means that when he submits his budget for FY84 just one year from now, this program will be an integral part of it. Of course, no evaluation of the President's proposal can be made until he makes his detailed recommendations known to Congress and the states. Though he mentioned the transfer of several programs in his speech, there are

Clara Cannon Cantrell Plans Wedding In April

Clara Cannon Cantrell, daughter of the Henry Warren Cantrells, of Benton, La., will marry Patrick James Tomoula, son of Dr. Joseph P. Tomoula, of Baton Rouge, La., and the late Mrs. Tomoula, April 3rd in First Baptist Church in Bossier City, La.
Mr. Tomoula is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tomoula of Homestead, Pa., and the late Mr. and Mrs. James Bryan McCloskey, of Pittsburgh, Pa.
Miss Cantrell is a 1975 graduate with honors from Southwood High School in Shreveport, La. She took a bachelor of science degree in 1979 from Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, where she was president of Alpha Omicron Pi her senior year. She was also Little Sister of Acacia Fraternity.
Mr. Tomoula is a 1975 graduate of Catholic High School in Baton Rouge. He took a bachelor of science degree in biochemistry in 1979 from LSU, where he was treasurer of Acacia Fraternity his junior year. A member of Alpha Chi Sigma, chemistry honorary fraternity, Chancellor's Homecoming Committee Chairman, and assistant chairman of the LSU Union Jam-Jam Committee, he was named to the LSU Greek Who's Who.
The wedding will be held at 1:30 p.m. Feb. 8th in the Farm Bureau Building in Ripley, to see patterns made up in new spring fabrics.

Bean Variety Choices Shift

Wayne Hinchum, University of Tennessee soybean specialist, last week reported revisions in recommendations on soybean varieties. New on the list is Mitchell, a Group 4 variety, in the very early maturity group, with Essex and Nathan.
Farmers in this area have grown Mitchell from time to time, and it may fit well into no-till situations here, especially using the wheat drill as a means of seeding.
Recommended varieties in the medium group are A5474, Bay, Bedford, Dars, Forrest, McNair 500, and York.
Centennial, Coker 136, Lee 74, Pickett 71, and RA 604 are in the late maturity group.
Bragg, a Group 7 variety, is not being recommended in this county.
The Bay variety seems better than Essex on dry soil. It is seven to eight days later than Essex.
On soils on which Essex normally grows, it would be at least two bushels per acre better than Bay.
A new comer on the list, A5474, by the Agrow Seed Company, has the Tracy variety in its background.
It has resistance to stem canker and is a better bean than Bedford.
It produces well on alligator and shanty clay.
Producers are encouraged to try four or five bags.
It is also resistant to Races 3 and 4 of the soybean cyst nematode.
It matures later than Nathan but before Bedford.
RA604 is the late maturing variety, resistant only to Race 3.
The University of Tennessee plans not recommending Lee 74, Coker 136, and Pickett 71 for 1983, because of lower performance.
Nematode samples from the county have recently shown low populations.
The feeling of the research people in Jackson is that dry weather in 1980 cut nematodes.

Green Varieties

Producers who are counting on their alfalfa stands to produce heavily should soil test and fertilize accordingly.
Curb Alfalfa Weeds
Billy Joe Childress has controlled weeds and grasses in alfalfa with chemicals.
For late summer seeded or established alfalfa, actively growing, or dormant, apply three quarts of Furlor CIPC per acre in 20 to 40 gallons of water, to control chick-weed.
For established stands of alfalfa alone, Sinbar 80W has given good control of most broad-leaf weeds and grasses. Use one to 1 1/2 pounds of the 80% wettable powder per acre, and apply through February. It takes about three weeks to kill the weeds. Do not apply after new growth starts in the spring.
For established stands of alfalfa or alfalfa and grass mixtures, apply Laxone or Sencore at the rate of 1 to 1 1/2 pints of 4L or 1 to 1 1/2 pounds of 50W per acre to control chick-weed, hen-bit and other broad-leaf weeds. Apply before new growth starts.
Producers who are counting on their alfalfa stands to produce heavily should soil test and fertilize accordingly.

Halls High School's basketball teams, which hosted Crockett Mills Tuesday, will play at Lake County Friday and at Maury City Saturday.
The Halls Tigers moved above the .500 mark last week for a 10-9 record, with wins at Old Hickory Academy at Jackson and from Brighton in Halls. Both teams had won from the Tigers earlier in the season.
James Johnson canned 24 point to lead the Tigers to a 55-45 win at Old Hickory. Mark McKinney had 18 and Johnson 16 in a 51-48 win over Brighton.
Halls' girls, 12-7 after last week, lost to Old Hickory 51-36. Ena Qualls had 18 for the Tigers.
Friday, Brighton's girls took a 46-42 win in overtime. Score at the end of regulation play was 40-40. Roselyn Brown led Halls with 21.

Reelfoot's Eagles

The swallows come back to Capistrano and the buzzards to Hinckley, Ohio, but to beat the annual return of the eagles to Tennessee's Reelfoot Lake.

For generations American bald eagles, with wingspans of six to eight feet and weighing as much as 16 pounds, have followed the mile-high wind currents south from their summer homes around the Great Lakes and the wilderness areas of Canada to the warmer, ice-free waters of northwestern Tennessee.

The eagles, along with thousands of other migrating birds - ducks, Canada geese, coots and an occasional loon - begin arriving at Reelfoot in late September, October and November.

For the eagles the attraction is fish. The shallow lake, formed by the most devastating earthquakes in American history during the winter of 1811 - 1812, is one of the world's largest natural fish hatcheries and home to some 58 species of fish.

The return of the eagles has become a major event in northwestern Tennessee and the headquarters for eagle watchers is Reelfoot Lake State Resort Park. Requests for tours from schools and other groups over the past few years have led the state to establish extensive guide and information programs for winter visitors to the park.

"The interest in the eagles gets bigger every year," explains park superintendent Ralph Burrus. "Last year more than 11,000 people took part in our eagle tours and programs."

The park-sponsored eagle tours are the most popular of Reelfoot's several eagle programs. They are conducted seven days per week from December 1 through March 15 when the eagles usually begin to leave and back to their homes in the north.

There is no charge for the tours, but large groups are advised to make reservations at the park lodge which cover in advance and school groups are encouraged to make week-day reservations.

"Our park naturalists try to keep track of the eagles whereabouts any given day," Burrus said. "Some days we can take a bus load of people out and find the birds just five or ten minutes away from the park headquarters. But other times we may have to check several of their favorite perching areas before we find them."

Despite the number of eagles at Reelfoot - 200 or more most winters - the average visitor who goes out looking for them on his own has little chance of finding them. Much of the land around Reelfoot Lake is privately owned and most of the northern half of the lake is a wildlife refuge where trespassing is forbidden.

The eagle spotter who strikes out on his own is also likely to scare the birds away by his ignorance of their roosting and hunting habits.

"As big as he is, the eagle is a very shy bird," Burrus explains. "The temptation for most people is to get as close as possible for that really great photograph. The eagle gets spooked and flies off and the photographer is then risking a federal charge of harassment. Eagles are a very protected species, you know."

One of the better areas for eagle watching is right around the lake and itself, and a good photograph, is to join one of our eagle tours.

For more information on Reelfoot and the winter eagle tours contact Reelfoot Lake State Park, 901/253-7756 or the Tennessee Department of Tourism Development, Room T, P. O. Box 23170, Nashville, Tennessee 37202.

necessary to move dense, impacted waste material through the colon irritate the appendix, increase pressure inside it and set the stage for infection.

How does this square with appendicitis as a disease of youth? All other bowel disorders these associations. Burkitt says the same explanation is that the facts about appendicitis. He explains that blockage of the appendix causes increased pressure inside the tube, irritating its lining. Viruses that are present can set up infection so that the appendix becomes swollen and painful.

Halls History

By Mrs. Charles Alsobrook

When I started writing this column five weeks ago, I asked readers to let me know of their families, houses, or interesting happenings that they knew or had been told about.

I never dreamed the response would be so good and want all who have written, brought me material, called, or came by to talk to know how much I appreciate it.

"I am surprised to see that there was another postmaster before my grandmother's husband, Robert Eberlym Stanfield. I was under the impression that he had the first post office, dry goods, and grocery store in Halls."

Goodspeed's 1887 Tennessee history says that E. Stanfield, general merchant, was first to engage in business at Halls in 1882, and next merchant was J. Wiggins, in 1883.

"My grandmother, Amelia Ford Martha continues," was the daughter of David Ford and Sally Pitta Ford. Sally died when Amelia was five weeks old.

"Her dad, David, remarried and the stepmother and two daughters were so mean to Amelia that she had to live with the slaves."

"She learned to carry water on her head, just as the slaves did, and when she would reach the door with the water, the step-mother would dash the water into her face."

"Amelia and Eberlym Stanfield has several children, Elena (Big Sister), Bessie Oia, Robert Edwin, and Maud Ella."

"Uncle Edd had the restaurant on the north east corner of Main and Front street for years. Aunt Bess Chisholm was Raynor Chisholm's mother."

nheld had of collecting accounts. He didn't refuse credit to anyone the first time and expected to be paid when the accounts were due. If they got behind, he had a bulletin board listing the name of the person and the amount they owed. With this publicity, most everyone kept their names off Edd's delinquent list.

"Mom and Dad had Alan and Alene, who are twins, Launa (deceased), Bernard (deceased), and me."

"Mr. Stanfield owned a farm between Brown's Crossing and Rooks Crossing."

"The Kirby's bought it from him, and I believe they still own part of it."

"Grandmother Amelia became addicted to opium when her first child was born. Mom and Aunt Bess would live in the fields for less than 25¢ a day in order to supply her with the drugs."

"I am sure that this Robert Eberlym Stanfield was the son of Ephraim (spelling in Haywood County deed book) A. Stanfield, who married Henry Buck, my great-grandfather, and think Martha and I are about fourth cousins, or third cousins once removed."

He also tells of a unique way Martha's Uncle Edd Stasoda was married to Algie Summers. They had two children, Collins (deceased) and Gale, who lives with his family in Newbern now."

(My husband, Charles Alsobrook, says the kids used to play baseball and fly kites in the cow pasture behind their house, and when no one else could get a kite up, Gale Summers would always be able to.)

Moody, of Halls, were named as managers last month. Leggett has been with the firm for 19 years while Mrs. Moody joined the plant 9 years ago. The plant which manufactures ladies' and men's sport coats, is located on the old air base at Halls. Present employment is about 175 with additional employees to be hired this spring.

ARDELL SIMMONS, center, of Gates, is presented a $500 gift certificate redeemable at a Dyersburg furniture and appliance store from Halltex Clothing Company by plant manager Alvis Leggett, right, as assistant manager Debra Moody looks on. A drawing is held monthly with each attendance the previous month eligible. Leggett, of Curve, and Mrs.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Reece Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Hallie Hughes, and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Dew and children, all of Brownsville, Mr. and Mrs. John Reece and daughter, Tonia, and Mr. and Mrs. George Jones, all of Halls. Mr. and Mrs. Reece observed their 63rd wedding anniversary Monday.

Hope and Robert Harris, children of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Harris, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harris while their parents attended a farm implement dealer meeting in Chicago.

Mrs. Harold Ellington, of Jackson, spent Friday night with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Reese. Another daughter of the Reeses, Mrs. Richard Alley, and Mr. Alley, of Chicago, left Sunday for two weeks in Hawaii celebrating their 40th wedding anniversary.

Guests of Mrs. D. F. Grady Sunday were Egbert Grady, of Memphis, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lee Grady and Carla, of Yorkville, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Graves, of Dyersburg. Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Baker, of Germantown, and Donald Baker, of Little Rock, Ark., spent Sunday with Mrs. Robert Baker.

Mrs. Talmadge Spry, of Poplar Grove, and daughter, Mrs. Steve McAdoe, of Union City, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Baxter attended funeral services for L. D. Stacey, at Paducah, Ky., Saturday. Mr. Stacey was the brother of Mrs. Spry and Mrs. Baxter.

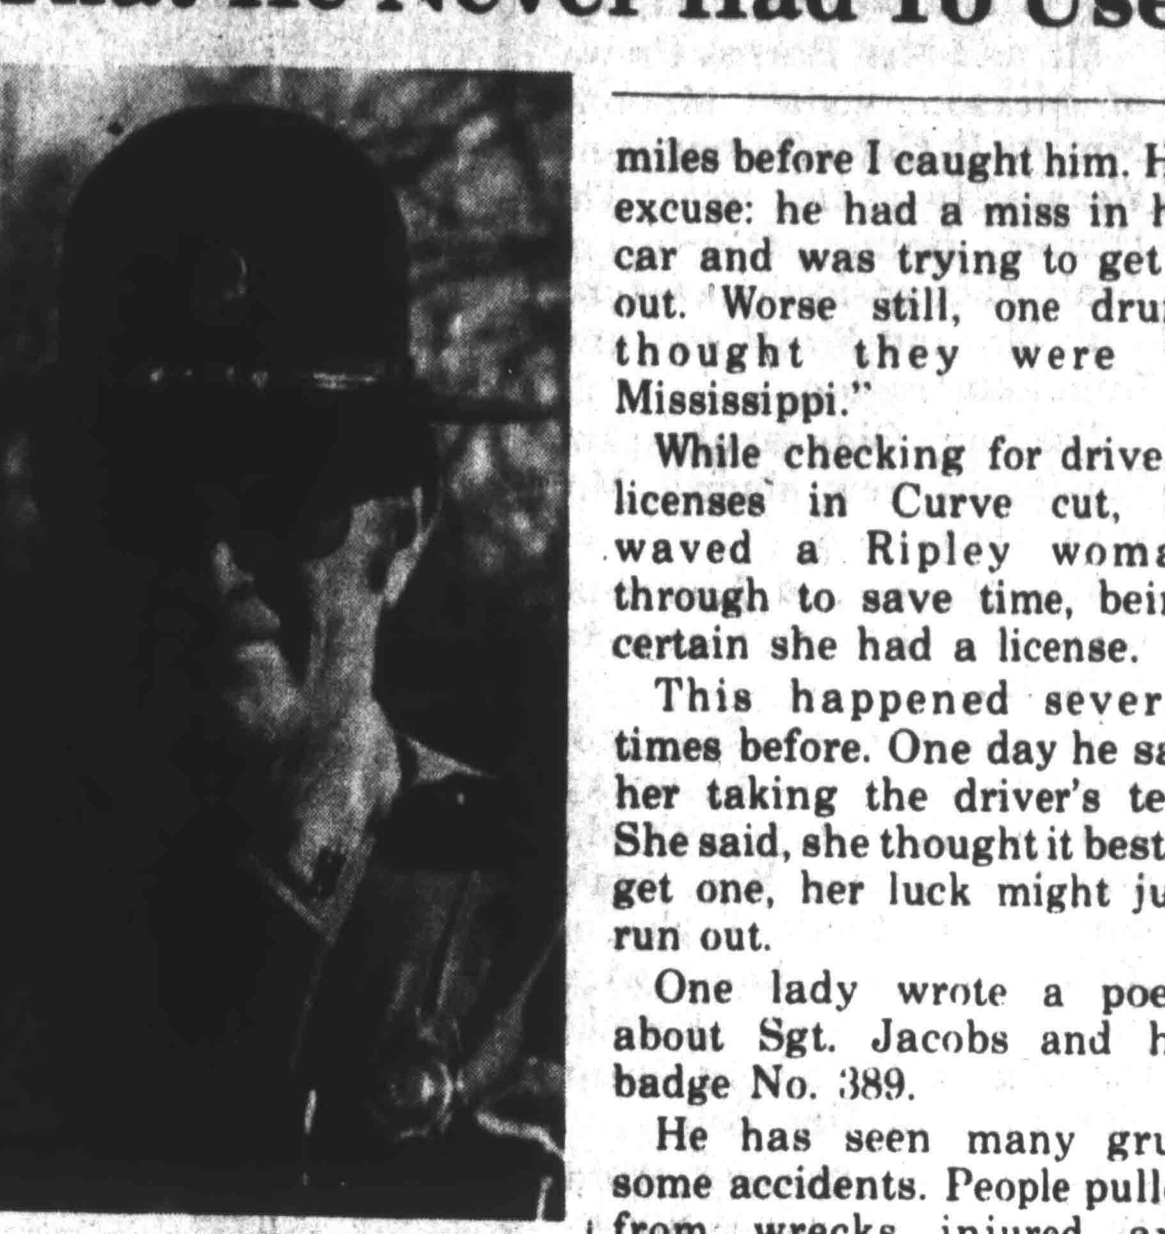

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gooch and daughters, of Memphis, spent Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Gooch.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Harris spent last weekend in Chicago as guests of International Harvester at the Hyatt Regency O'Hare.

Mrs. Billy Spence, Mrs. Jimmy Hansford, Mrs. J. W. Warren, Jr., Mrs. Robert Craddock, Mrs. Harry Adcock and Mrs. Jerry Crichfield attended the afternoon performance of "One Mo Time" at the Orpheum Theatre in Memphis Saturday after having lunch at the Peabody Hotel.

Winners at the Gates Super Market Grand Opening last Saturday were Mrs. Frances Hardy, $100; Raymond Claybrook, $50; and Lisa Milam, $25.

Smoky Joe Turns In Pistol That He Never Had To Use

BILLY JOE JACOBS

Smoky Joe has retired—that is, Sgt. Billy Joe Jacobs, who at 49 turned in his equipment Jan. 29th after a 23 year, 9 month career with the Tennessee Highway Patrol—most of it served in this county. His retirement is official April 1st.

"When I began working in 1958, 1956 and 1957, Ford cars were being used, no air conditioning, two doors, no screens, with two men assigned to a car," he recalls.

"Today's fleet has the luxuries of air conditioning and screens, but it has been years since two men have shared a car. Today's trooper usually travels alone."

Joining the Patrol in Frank Clement's administration, he shared the county with another trooper now, Lt. William Massongill. Today, with Massongill, troopers Billy Wayne Williams, Ron Rickard, Raymond Smith and Scott White, Jr., patrol Lauderdale County.

Most of the functions of the trooper deals with traffic, auto accidents, speedsters, and the like.

One speeder was Danny Thomas, the actor and entertainer.

"I was out checking Old 51 at Cedar Grove Road, in the mid-1960s, and Mr. Thomas was on his way back to St. Jude when I pulled him over for speeding," Jacobs says.

"On his driver's license was the name Ronald Jacobs—his true name—Danny Thomas is his stage name. A short chat later, I received a picture and autograph."

But some driver's don't admit to speeding, and some excuses are strange.

"One fellow I clocked speeding, from Louisiana, ran ten miles before I caught him. His excuse: he had a miss in his car and was trying to get it out. Worse still, one drunk thought they were in Mississippi."

While checking for driver's licenses in Curve cut, he waved a Ripley woman through to save time, being certain she had a license.

This happened several times before. One day he saw her taking the driver's test. She said, she thought it best to get one, her luck might just run out.

One lady wrote a poem about Sgt. Jacobs and his badge No. 389.

He has seen many gruesome accidents. People pulled from wrecks injured and dead—the worst when a woman and two children were killed when their car was hit by a train at Gates in the early 1960s. In those days the patrol worked both county and city wrecks.

The job was fraught with danger when he was assigned in Memphis, for seven days and nights in 1969 after Martin Luther King's assassination and in 1958 when his was the second car to respond to a riot at Fort Pillow State Prison Farm, when Joe Barfield was warden, and guards were tied up by prisoners.

But luck has been with Jacobs. He never had to use the all-to-apparent weapon at his side, a .357 magnum, and it glided he never had to.

SHERIFF FACES SUIT

Claud Simonton, of Covington, alleging "harassment" by Sheriff Joe B. O'Steen and five deputies forced him from ownership of Toby's Pub in Henning, Wednesday of last week, asked Federal Court in Memphis to award him $250,000 in damages.

Simonton was convicted last Feb. 12th of possession of a controlled substance (drug) and sentenced to 11 months, 29 days, plus a $1,000 fine.

Atty. Gen. Michael W. Whitaker, of Somerville, who obtained the conviction, soon obtained a reversal from Judge Herman L. Revere—and dropped charges against three others—saying he doubted the testimony he had presented in court was true.

When the principal source of that testimony, O'Steen's "undercover" agent, Dianne Best, was indicted for perjury, Whitaker failed to convict Judge Revere declined to let the case go to the jury.

Simonton is quoted as saying he was convicted of driving while intoxicated but freed on two counts of contributing to the delinquency of a minor and one count of sale after hours, in addition to drug charges.

He is represented by Russell X. Thompson.

CONFIDENTIAL CORNER

By Henry Murchison

Let's Do It

For the past six weeks, Mary Alsobrook has been writing a column on the early days of Halls. In her first article, she told of the first charter issued in 1882 for what is now the Town of Halls, with the suggestion that a centennial celebration of some type be held.

Let's do it! There could be a tie-up with the annual Fourth of July Celebration, or there could be some other type of joint endeavor.

While 1982 is only a little more than a month old, an effort should be started now if such a centennial is to be held.

May we suggest to Mayor James Cheslier and the board of aldermen that a committee be named now to plan such a celebration. Halls needs to show more and more pride in itself, and this certainly is fitting way to enlist the people of Halls in a worthwhile project.

Not That Easy

Perhaps we should be flattered because several of our readers have complained because we have not been writing this column on a regular basis during recent weeks.

Well, it isn't that easy. Sometimes we have nothing of any real interest to say, and at other times there just seems to be no time to write it.

However, the major reason is probably because your editor is getting older and more cantankerous, so that we are more inclined to gripe and complain than to see the good side of anything.

Since we want this to be a constructive, not destructive column, we oftentimes do not write it, because we have nothing constructive to say.

Initials Were Wrong

Through some mixup in Ed Jordan's letter published last week, the late T. G. Avery was listed as R. L. Avery. Mr. Jordan had it right; we made the mistake. Since Mr. Avery was Nell's father, we knew better. Several persons have inquired about the error.

Not Too Happy

We just wrote that we don't like to gripe, but nevertheless we are beginning to sympathize with the man who a few years ago slugged a Memphis TV station weather man because his predictions were spoiling his plan.

Incidentally, we are considering switching stations, because one weatherman is predicting 10 to 15 degrees warmer weather this week. At least we like the sound of it better.

BAND SEEKS FUNDS

Halls Band Boosters met Feb. 1 to discuss plans for selling, during Band Weekend April, advance tickets for the chicken dinners donated by Mr. Tommy Allen, of Q-Mart Stores.

Home deliveries will be made by band students. The Spring Concert, free to the public, is set April 13th.

Liquid hand cleanser will be on sale from door to door by band students within the next three weeks, advertising the Band and the 1982 World's Fair.

Regular Band Booster memberships have been issued to Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meeks.

The next meeting will be Feb. 15.

Mrs. Oscar Keen

Mrs. Lillie Keen, 97, of Halls, widow of Oscar Keen, died Thursday of last week in Methodist Hospital North in Memphis.

Services were at 2 p.m. Friday in Halls Funeral Home, with burial in Halls Cemetery.

She leaves four sons, Freeman, Harry, and Wesley, of Halls, and Jack, of Memphis; three daughters, Mrs. Louise Minner, of Ashport, Mrs. Peggy Parker, of Memphis, and Mrs. Mary Davis, of Judsonia, Ark.; and a sister, Mrs. Ruby Razor, of Tucson, Ariz.

She also leaves 18 grandchildren; 34 great-grandchildren; and five great-great-grandchildren.

Halls History

By Mrs. Charles Alsbrook

This week I want to share excerpts from a letter I received from Norma (Mrs. Earl) Hendrix and tell of her family, which lived in Halls. I had recently mentioned James Massengill's visit to Halls and how we had attended the shows that the neighboring kids had put on in her parents' back yard during the late twenties and early thirties.

Norma, or Noog as we knew her then, writes: "When you mentioned James Massengill and back yard shows, the wheels began to turn. 'I lived at the Massengill Hotel when our house was being built—I was less than two years old; we ate there Sundays at noon, even when we didn't live there; and I moved back there in order to go to school while Patsy had scarlet fever."

"Living there was an education. I shall never forget and Massengill family. When anyone played the piano in the parlor, everybody gathered 'round and sang. Somehow, everybody knew the words to every song that was played. 'You mentioned the back yard shows—there were many of them, and I am sure they were inspired by Bisbee's comedians. 'Fried Mullins (his father, C. R. Mullins, was principal of Halls High School at the time) wrote the plays—I only produced them. 'I recall turning Patsy's tricycle upside down to make a spinning wheel for her to sing 'There's an old spinning wheel in the parlor.' Those were the days. 'Bisbee pitched his tent across the street from our house. I loaned them a doll (for a baby), a laundry basket for its bed, and numerous other props, and in return I received a free pass to all the shows."

"The Medicine Shows always held an attraction for me, too. They sometimes had a real live bear, and I can remember crying to go. 'No other member of my family was attracted to these cultural events. 'I wish that I had a bottle of the medicine that they sold. As I recall it cured backache, arthritis, and almost everything that I had ever heard of people being sick with. 'Many tramps stopped at our back door during the depression. Mother always fed them. They usually offered to mend broken umbrellas, sharpen knives, or do other jobs of a similar nature. 'I distinctly remember two tramps. One was almost blind and carried printed poems in a white flour sack. He sold the poems for a dime each. 'Mother bought one, fed the tramp, and then he said that he needed to go to town and would leave his white bag hanging on a shrub in the front yard to mark our house. 'He went, and when he came back, Mother had made a bag for him out of pillow ticking (blue and white striped). He thanked her heartily, however, I am sure that Mother reaped the reward—she always said that it was in giving that we received. 'Another tramp came by and after he ate, Mother asked him if he would like to see our new baby (Patsy). She was so beautiful that I was afraid he would steal her. I was so relieved when he left. 'I often think about Pedro's (Marcus Terry's) restaurant. I still wish I knew how he prepared the beef for those hot beef sandwiches. 'Some kids saved their money for candy and the show—not Noog. I saved mine to get a sandwich at Pedro's. 'One day a year or two ago, I told my boss how good Pedro's sandwiches were, and he said, 'You never did eat a beef sandwich at Walker's Pool Room, did you? (This has changed to 'Highpockets' in recent years, and they too have these same good hot beef sandwiches.) 'I am so sorry that I did not make an effort to see Alec 'Mudcat' Thomas before he died. He played at the picture show during the silent movie, and at that time, I thought he was no doubt the greatest musician that had ever been born. His cousin, Mose, worked for us and he sang, 'Ah, sweet Misery of life. 'Mr. Layne brought watermelons to town every morning in season. He sold them for 5¢ each. The ice house man cooled them free, and the neighborhood had a feast. 'Fink Chaney and I spent Sunday afternoons reading tombstones in the Halls Cemetery. I still enjoy reading cemeteries. 'Mr. Levy always made a short talk on Brotherhood when he was a guest at the annual oyster supper at the Halls Methodist Church (Men's Bible Class). It was there because I was pianist for the class and was invited as a guest. I shall never forget him. 'I think of the World War I veterans that still live in Halls—Mr. C. C. Sumrow, Eddie Stelman, and Mr. Dave Walker. 'Are there any others here? Was Morris Stallings one? 'This epistle Norma apologizes, 'is as long as one Paul wrote to the Corinthians, but I got carried away."

Alma's parents were Jennie (Jackett) Hurt and Thomas Spencer (Dad) Hurt, who lived in Harrisburg, Ark., where Mr. Hurt was a barber and mayor of the town for many years. 'Jennie was born in England and came to the United States when she was six years old. She had attended two years of kindergarten before leaving England, where she had learned to do beautiful embroidery and other needle work at this early age. 'Dad," as he was affectionately known, was an outdoors man. Some of the men who lived in Halls today remember him taking them hunting and fishing when they were boys, as well as cutting their hair. Jennie and Dad had one other daughter, Mary (Mrs. Lanny) Green, who also lived in Halls after she married Mr. Green. The Green family was an old prominent family in Halls. (I hope to write about the Greens who lived here at a later date.)

After Mr. Green's death, his wife, Mary, lived in Halls and worked at the Halls post office until her death. 'Sewell Daws' parents were Margaret Elmore Daws and W. J. Daws. He was in the blacksmith business in Halls before opening a grocery store on Front Street. He and Jennie had three sons, Sewell, Homer, and Guy. Guy was married to Clarke Witt, and they had two children, Vernon Bulas and Willogene. 'After the death of Margaret Elmore, Mr. Daws married Miss Cora Bannor, who lived in Halls with her uncle, Bill Lacey. Her daughter was Irene (Mrs. Frank Stallings). Her husband is dead, but she lives on her farm near Brownsville now. Their children are Frank, Jr. (deceased), and Jean (Mrs. Tommy) Littlejohn, who lives with her husband near Brownsville. They have one son, David. Joyce (Mrs. Reed) Graves lives with her husband at Medina. They have one son, Russell. 'Winston Daws, a son, lives in Halls with his wife, Katie Summerlin Daws. They have two children, Gerald, who lives with his wife, Edna, in Memphis. They have two children, Bonnie and Russell. 'Jerald is a vice-president of First Tennessee Bank in Memphis. 'A daughter, Kathy (Mrs. Harvey) Gardner, lives with her husband, Dr. Gardner.

National Field Trial Championship - Ames Plantation

To an outdoorsman there are few sights more beautiful than that of a good dog systematically combing a field in search of game birds. No other activity so graphically illustrates the unique partnership between man and dog, and few other activities have sparked as much debate. The virtues of one breed over another and the relative merits of one dog over another have been endlessly argued by generations of hunters.

Each year bird dog enthusiasts from all over the United States converge on the Ames Plantation at Grand Junction, Tennessee, some 50 miles east of Memphis to settle the issue at the National Field Trial Championship, an eight to ten day event beginning on the third Monday of each February.

Ames Plantation has been synonymous with the quest for the National Champion Bird Dog since the turn of the century when Hobart C. Ames brought the competition to Grand Junction and established the guidelines used in selecting the winner.

"It is an honor just to be allowed to compete in the National Championship," Ames Plantation Superintendent Jim Anderson asserts. "There are strict qualifications each dog must meet, so by the time the competition actually gets underway eliminations have reduced the field to only 30 or 40 dogs."

For those top dogs, the Championship represents one of the most grueling tests of endurance in the sports world. "February can bring almost any kind of weather to Grand Junction," Anderson explains. "It can be mild and beautiful, but we are just as likely to have rain, snow or sleet. A dog must compete properly for three hours in whatever weather conditions exist. He must hunt through thickets, sand, ditches, creeks and all types of terrain. During that three hour hunt the dog will cover a linear distance of 11 to 12 miles and he will run much farther than that, which means that a dog must be in absolutely perfect physical condition."

The dogs work under the critical eye of judges following the course of the hunt or horseback and under the appreciative eye of a large gallery of mounted spectators, some of them assessing the competition for their own dogs, others simply enjoying the spectacle of a bird dog doing what he does best. For the dogs, it is a test of style as well as talent and stamina and the American Standards are high.

"The dog must have great bird sense," Hobart Ames declared. "He must show perfect work on both coverts and wings. He must use his brain, eyes and nose to the fullest advantage and hunt the likely places on the course. He must possess speed, range, style, character, courage, stamina and good manners always. He must hunt the birds, and not the handler hunt the dog. He must be bold, snappy and spirited. He must be regularly and habitually pleasing, governable and at all times keep upmost in his mind the finding and pointing of birds for his handler."

The dogs are primarily after quail, although there are usually some woodcock on the plantation grounds during February, according to Anderson. To the owner of the winning dog go three handsome trophies, to his handler, a cash prize of $5,000.

While the dogs are definitely the main attraction at the National Championship, the Ames Plantation itself is one of Tennessee's most interesting places. Built in 1847 and purchased by Hobart Ames in 1901, the plantation developed an outstanding reputation for its agricultural and livestock programs. Angus cattle bred at the plantation since 1913 have won scores of blue ribbons all across the United States. Today, the 18,600 acres of Ames Plantation are part of the University of Tennessee system.

"We are one of eleven branch experiment stations in the UT system," Anderson says. "And we are unique in that we are the only branch in any system I know of that is privately owned and operated. Through a cooperative program between the trustees of the Hobart Ames Foundation and the university, we do research in forestry, economic aspects of agricultural production, weed control and livestock production, particularly the problems of swine production in south-west Tennessee. We contribute to the educational activities of the university by providing resident training for both forestry and veterinary students. The terms under which the plantation operates are specifically stated in the will of Mrs. Julia Colony Ames, which also explicitly states her desire for the plantation to continue providing the grounds and birds for the National Field Trial Championship."

While Ames Plantation has its annual week in the limelight during the National Competition in February, the huge old plantation house is opened to the public on the fourth Thursday each March through October and by appointment for larger tour groups. At any time of the year the plantation represents one of Tennessee's outstanding agricultural exhibits.

REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

In his recent State of the Union message, President Reagan refused the recommendations of several of his close economic advisors by stating that he would not propose any tax increases this year. The suggestions that a tax increase was necessary have been widely discussed in unofficial circles for several weeks. It was prompted primarily by reports leaked in December by the Office of Management and Budget projecting federal deficits in excess of $100 billion for each of the next three fiscal years.

That early report was extremely alarming and still is. Chairmen of the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee have expressed their concerns. Members of the House and Senate at large have also continued to voice their concerns over the impact that deficits of that size will have on interest rates. As a result of those considerations, there were recommendations made to the President that he submit legislation to Congress to raise certain excise taxes on items like gasoline, tobacco items, and alcoholic beverages.

It was those tax increases that he refused to endorse when he made his State of the Union remarks. However, in that same speech, he indicated his endorsement of efforts to close unwarranted tax loopholes, and improve tax collections. To do that, he will submit legislation that will generate about $86 billion in new tax revenues over the next five fiscal years.

For example, he is going to recommend that 5,000 new enforcement officers be hired by the Internal Revenue Service. His recommendations will also include the prohibition of the so-called completed contract method of accounting.

The method allows businesses with multi-year contracts to delay payment of taxes until the project is completed. President Reagan also wants to restrict the use of industrial revenue bonds, and repeal the energy tax credit now available to businesses. In addition, the President is calling for a speed-up in the payment of corporate income tax and repeal of a tax provision that allows corporations to immediately write off interest and tax costs incurred during construction.

Finally, he is also recommending the withholding of income taxes on interest and dividend payments. That proposal would require banks, financial institutions and businesses to withhold 5 percent of interest and dividends that they pay to savers and investors. The Administration's final proposal is to strengthen the current minimum tax on corporations. The details of that proposal have not been worked out yet but should be in the near future.

The consideration of these suggested changes will be undertaken in what promises to be a highly charged atmosphere. Obviously, a deficit in excess of $100 billion demands action. Senate Budget Committee Chairman, Pete Domenici, has already voiced his interest in seeking ways to reduce that deficit by eliminating some tax loopholes. I understand he is closely examining the whole issue of tax expenditures. At this point, there is a lot of attention focusing on ways to make changes in them to reduce its impact on the federal budget.

Since the Congress must take up the budget resolution for the next fiscal year in the next several months, it appears that many of these issues pertaining to tax expenditures may be discussed at length very soon. It promises to be a very complex and technical debate accompanying the discussion of the budget which is complicated enough by itself.

Democratic Legislative Reports

NASHVILLE—An extended period of harmonious relations between Governor Lamar Alexander and the General Assembly was threatened this week by reactions to the governor's 1982 budget message.

Choosing once again to describe his budget with a slogan, Alexander called his $4.2 billion proposal a "Steady Course" budget designed to increase this year's spending by $185 million.

The governor's frequent use of slogans—or perhaps because of them—numerous legislative leaders reacted with skepticism to the budget address. House Speaker Ned McWherter (D-Dresden) observed that, "The economy in Tennessee is hemorrhaging."

Referring to the governor's speech, McWherter told the press he kept a checklist of the catch phrases and slogans. "As I sat there and listened to Lamar, I heard slogans like basic skills, bare bones, no frills, steady course, environmental SWAT teams and New Federalism."

But he failed to talk about our high unemployment and the fact that Tennessee is losing its standing in average per capita income," McWherter said. "The real problems we need to address can't be solved with slogans."

More specific criticism of the proposed budget came from legislators who believe the governor may be unrealistic in his revenue expectations for the next year. Alexander told the legislature that he expects the state sales tax to grow by over $100 million, an increase of nearly 10 percent.

Rep. John Bragg (D-Murfreesboro) expressed concern that the governor may have "underestimated expenditures and overestimated revenues."

Bragg, who serves as chairman of the House Committee on Finance, Ways and Means, pointed out that Alexander had prepared his budget with the idea that Tennessee's unemployment rate would be about 8 percent, a target far below the present rate of 10.4 percent.

Bragg also said that the governor's projected revenue increases for next year do not take into account that sales tax revenues for the current year are running below the amount expected. Indeed, word spread through the legislature Thursday that because of unexpectedly low revenue collections in January, the governor is ready to begin the drastic step of impounding funds.

Apart from the debate over revenue projections, the accuracy of the governor's budget could be seriously questioned by the Reagan administration's latest budget proposals in Congress.

The president's desire to cut additional federal funds, particularly in the area of health care, could have a significant effect on efforts to prepare a balanced budget in Tennessee.

The following is a brief summary of Governor Alexander's budget proposals:

EDUCATION—In response to criticism that his administration has neglected the state's education system, the governor devoted a sizeable portion of his budget remarks to education. Although he stressed more than once that education spending has increased, he omitted mention of last year's unprecedented cuts in vocational education and programs for handicapped children.

The governor has asked the legislature to cut another $6.5 million from vocational funds. In turn, Alexander has recommended a $1.25 increase in the state textbook appropriation, the first such increase during his administration.

House Education Committee Chairman Frank Lashlee (D-Camden) challenged the governor's statement that Tennessee teachers would receive an average salary increase of $1,120. Lashlee said the governor's remarks "will make it easy for teachers to think the money is readily available for an $1,120 raise."

"What teachers must understand," Lashlee added, "is that local school systems must match the state raise offered by the state."

before they will get $1,120. Only a handful of Tennessee's 147 school systems have provided such raises over the last five years.

In the area of higher education, the state's 24 colleges and universities will receive a proposed $561 million. During the last three years Tennessee has dropped to last among the southern states in spending for higher education.

The governor's budget calls for tuition increases ranging from 10 to 20 percent, a total that would require college students to pay for roughly one-third of their expenses. In addition, school administrators have been told to reduce payroll costs by 2 percent in order to generate enough money for a 7 percent faculty pay raise.

HIGHWAYS AND BRIDGES—most important item contained in the governor's message affecting the state's highway system is a proposal to begin a $100 million program to repair approximately 800 rural bridges. Designed as a two-year project, the bridge program is a response to one of Tennessee's most serious transportation problems.

The method by which the bridge repair will be funded has raised questions from officers of the House Transportation Committee. Rep. Ralph Yelton (D-Kingsport) voiced concern that the governor's proposal "does not take into account the financial sacrifices made recently by many counties, which have maintained their bridges in good condition."

In addition, Rep. Frank Buck (D-Dowelltown) said that a process must be created to ensure that some counties, "do not allow their bridges to deteriorate as they have in the past."

HEALTH CARE—Among the new programs proposed for next year's budget is a $2.5 million appropriation for prenatal care. The program for pregnant women is an attempt to lessen the likelihood of long term health problems resulting from a lack of prenatal care in 87 of the state's 95 counties.

The most significant health-related item will be the proposed $643 million for Tennessee's Medicaid program. The program, which has mushroomed by 61 percent. The relentless growth in Medicaid expenditures prompted the legislature last year to begin a special study of ways to reduce Medicaid spending.

Rep. Paul Starnes, chairman of both the House General Welfare Committee and the Medicaid Study Committee, expressed his fear that "major changes" in eligibility guidelines the governor's 7 percent increase for Medicaid funds will be inadequate.

Starnes pointed out that last year the legislature was forced to trim about $60 million worth of services to accommodate an 8 percent growth in Medicaid spending. More importantly, the Chattanooga Democrat warned that President Reagan's proposal to slash another $2 billion in Medicaid funds "could wreak havoc" with the governor's budget estimates.

PRISONS—The most serious drain on the state's financial resources over the past four years has been the enormous cost of operating an expanding criminal justice system. The governor has asked the legislature to appropriate $135 million to run the prison system next year.

The total represents a growth of $15 million over last year, and a four-year increase of over 69 percent.

Some legislators commented on the proposal to hire 455 more prison guards for the state's prisons. Discussion focused on the fact that Tennessee has one of the lowest ratios of guards to inmates in the nation. One legislator observed that in Tennessee the ratio of guards to inmates is less than 1 to 4, while in other states the ratio is as high as 1 to 10.

Also included in the budget was a sum of $400,000 earmarked for the design of a new state prison. As planned, the new facility will not be a regional prison, but a larger central prison such as those in Nashville and Brushy Mountain.

STATE EMPLOYEES—The most controversial passage of the governor's budget message was the implication that the budget contains enough money to give a 7 percent raise to the state's 38,000 state employees. Upon closer inspection, lawmakers discovered that the salary proposal is not as simple as the governor implied.

The governor's budget proposes that employees receive a 4.5 percent across the board raise, combined with an additional 4 percent bonus to employees who do not work over two sick days annually.

The remaining 2 percent of the salary increase comes from forced reductions in all agencies except the Department of Correction. Despite these reductions, the governor did not earmark the money for raises, choosing instead to let the legislature decide between using the money for salary increases, health insurance or the recently passed dental insurance plan.

House Finance Chairman John Bragg interpreted the governor's remarks as an effort to distort the situation by giving state employees the impression that a 7 percent raise will be forthcoming. Bragg suggested that the legislature pass a resolution directing the governor to return for another speech on "The State of the Seven Percent Raise."

TAXES—In contrast to last year's long list of tax and fee proposals, Governor Alexander told the General Assembly that his new budget "contains no new taxes." Despite this claim, legislators pointed to at least two significant tax increases supported by the Alexander administration.

Foremost among the tax increases is a proposal to raise an employer's contribution to the state fund for workers unemployment compensation. As presently written, the bill before the legislature would generate $36 million from the state's small businesses.

In addition, the administration has urged that the General Assembly redesign the state's excise tax formula. Without a change in the formula, the state will lose an estimated $20 million in the next fiscal year. Although the budget address dominated the legislature's attention, significant action was taken on two major items.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION—A tense vote before the Committee on Government Operations, Rep. Rob Robinson (D-Nashville) failed to receive a majority for his proposal to choose members of the Public Service Commission by legislative vote instead of by statewide election.

Robinson told the committee that a large portion of the public is unfamiliar with the PSC, meaning that candidates must finance expensive campaigns by soliciting contributions from industries regulated by the PSC.

The vote on Robinson's bill was 7-7, one vote short of the number needed for passage.

NASHVILLE CONVENTION CENTER—A two-year effort to build a new hotel and convention complex in Nashville suffered another setback Wednesday when Rep. James McKinney (D-Nashville) failed to receive sufficient support for a bill that would have added one cent to the city's hotel and motel tax.

McKinney told the House of Representatives that the one-cent tax would enable the construction of the convention complex, thereby drawing additional tourist revenues to Tennessee. Although the House voted 47-35 in favor of McKinney's proposal, the bill fell three votes short of the number needed for passage.

BERT SMITH, of Dyersburg, Internal Revenue Service agent 19 years, has left the IRS, which is closing its Dyersburg office, rather than move from this area. He has joined Frank Sanders, of Halls, as general partner in an accounting firm which opened a branch office in Dyersburg Feb. 8th. He has a degree in accounting from Michigan State University and has attended law schools in Memphis, Nashville, Atlanta, and Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. He teaches income tax preparation in Dyersburg State College. With Sanders, he will offer estate planning, tax seminars, and audit services.

Anderson-Hickey Praising Firemen

David F. Johnson, of Henderson, Tex., president of Anderson-Hickey, has written Halls officials to "extend my sincere gratitude for the superb job of controlling and terminating the fire which occurred on Jan. 27, 1982. "Within approximately three minutes from reporting the fire, your fire department was at the location. "Their ability to respond with immediate promptness was instrumental in controlling and minimizing the damage we sustained. "We are fortunate and proud to be located in an area with such a professional and competent fire department."

Halls 3rd Seeded In Cage Tourney

Halls High School's Tigers, seeded third with a 12-6 district record, play Friendship at 5 p.m. Thursday in the District 16 tournament at Alamo. The Lady Tigers, who ended the season with a 15-11 season and an 11-7 district record and a three-way tie with Lake County and Gadsden for third place, drew fifth seed to play Gadsden at 7 p.m. Tuesday, winning 47-37. They meet Brighton at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. Brighton, with an 18-0 record, is top seed in the girls' tournament. Alamo, gained top seed in boys' play.

Halls' boys dropped two games but closed the season with a win last week. Tuesday in Gadsden, they lost 74-64, with James Johnson getting 21 points, Terry Reed adding 16, and Mark McKinney adding 13. In Alamo Thursday, they were on the short end of a 60-47 score. Kurt Brown, Reed and Johnson each got 10 for the Tigers.

Friday, at home, the Tigers had few problems with Tennessee Academy, winning 52-34. Reed had 14 to lead Tiger scorers. The Lady Tigers also won one and lost two. CARD OF THANKS

It is indeed with grateful hearts that we extend our thanks to the members of our family, The Rev. Paul Jones, and the wonderful friends who were so kind and thoughtful while I was in the hospital and since he has been home. The many prayers, flowers, candy, foods, visits, and telephone calls, each of which were appreciated so much, will long be remembered. May God richly bless each one of you in our prayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hurt and Family

Spinach is a member of the goosefoot plant family. Surprisingly, it is first cousin to the beet. Eating spinach is a good way to build up iron in the blood.

She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Carl B. Hoggard, of Halls, and the late Mr. Hoggard and of Mrs. W. L. Burks, of Gates, and the late Mr. Burks. A 1980 graduate of Halls High School, she is employed in the office of Halls Community Development.

Mr. Edwards is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lee Brandon, of Halls, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Edwards, of Hickory Flat, Miss. A 1978 graduate of Ripley High School, he attended William R. Moore School of Technology in Memphis and is employed as a technician with Avionics Specialists, Inc., in Memphis.

Brevities

In Jackson Feb. 6th to attend the All-West Tennessee High School Band Concert at Union University were Mrs. Milton Medlock, Mrs. Ora Agee, David Medlock, Hope Harris, Diane Campbell and Katherine Bowie. Gina Medlock, daughter of Mrs. Medlock, was a member of the band.

Donald Hogue and Joe McCarthy are attending a banishing school in Nashville. Jerald Daws and Mrs. Bob Salmon, of Memphis, spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Winston Daws.

Mrs. Buddy Murchison, of Lafayette, Ga., returned home Monday after several days with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Murchison.

Mrs. Ralph Hendrix, of Jackson, spent Thursday of last week with her sister, Mrs. Sidney Gooch, and Mr. Gooch. The Tommy Simmons family was in Nashville Sunday. Mr. Simmons attended the Western Apparel Show in Opryland Hotel. Mrs. Simmons visited her aunt, Mrs. W. H. Eagle.

Mrs. Judson Vaden spent the weekend with the John Vaden family in Memphis. Mr. and Mrs. George Hargett, Jr., of Memphis, visited Mrs. A. G. Hargett and Mrs. Roy Patton Sunday. Mrs. Patton took the Hargetts and Mrs. Kenneth Patton, of Pasadena, Calif., and her son, Tom Patton, to dinner at the Country Club in Dyersburg. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rooks came by for a visit during the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Vian and Mr. and Mrs. Harrell Austin attended the opening of the races in Hot Springs, Ark., where they have horses running.

Jack Spence returned to his home in Camerillo, Calif., last week after having visited his brother, Lawson Spence, in Dyersburg, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alsbrook the past two weeks.

Mrs. Louis Levy joined friends in Memphis Monday. Rebekah Avery, (deceased), and they had one son, Tommy, who is the manager-owner of McDearman Ford Motor Co. He is married to Jean Conner, and they live with their four children, Lynn, Scott, Jennifer and Robert, on Halls Street. Jean is a teacher in Halls Elementary School.

Aeolian (Mrs. Paul) Griffin, who lives in Memphis, wrote that she was named for "Miss" Aeolian Hall and has always liked her name. When she was born, her family lived near the Hall family, and they thought so much of "Miss" Aeolian that they named their daughter for her.

Miriam Hall married William Edward Hurt. They had two children, Virginia, who married Edd Rawles (deceased). They had one daughter, June, who married Milton Medlock (deceased). They had three children, Eddie Medlock, who is married to Vera Anne and lives in Satillo, Miss. They have two children, Scott and Melanie Anne. Milton David and Virginia (Gina) Breaux are June's other children and live with her in Halls. David is a student in Memphis State University, Gina is a senior in Halls High School. Virginia is now married to Mr. Ed E. Walker, and they live in Tupelo, Miss.

Miriam and Ed Hurt also had a son, Edward Hurt, Jr., who married Stella Brown. He was a physician, practicing in Memphis until his death. Dr. and Mrs. Hurt had five children, Edward, David Rawles, Miriam, Linda Lou and Stella.

Ed Hurt had the Halls Supply Store for many years on the corner of Church and Main Street, where it was said that you could buy anything from crackers to millinery.

Hansford R. and Ortha Lucinda also had three children, Arletia, Jewel and Edna, who died in childhood. Another son was Tolbert, and their youngest child Hyram Rhoe Hall, who married Elsie Nunn.

The William Halls, Mosco McDearman, and Rhoe Halls lived several years in San Pedro, Calif. Charles Rooks, Douglas Murchison, David Nunn, and Raymond Hurt bought an old Model Ford in the summer of 1929 and went to California to visit them. They left Halls about June 9th or 10th, arriving there on July 4th.

David Nunn Hall took them to Long Beach that night to see the fireworks. After watching the display, they started home but couldn't find where they had parked their car and spent most of the night looking for it.

On the way to California, they pitched a tent at night along the side of the road to sleep. They cooked their breakfast and supper, only buying their lunch. Going over the mountains, they would have to replace the low gear band two or three times a day.

Their trip sounds almost as eventful as the ones made in covered wagons. They spent the entire summer. William Hall had a basement under his entire house. The boys all slept there on cots.

Also spending the summer there were Will Sugg, Marvin Nunn, and Parks Tigrett, Jr. Elizabeth Nunn (Mrs. E. T.) Palmer was also out there that summer, visiting her sister, Mrs. Rhoe Hall, and Mr. Hall.

Halls History

By Mrs. Charles Alsbrook

In last week's article, Frank Moore should have been listed with E. M. Stoelmas, Sr., D. E. Walker, and C. C. Sumrow, World War I veterans living in or near Halls. William Perry, whose father was such a veteran, called this to my attention.

To get back to the Hall family, for whom the town was named and which played a prominent part in its early history—Hansford R. Hall's parents were Talbert Franklin Hall and Mary Betty Brandon Hall, who came here from Gibson County, Hansford R. Hall's wife was Ortha Lucinda Conley Hall, and they had nine children. They were listed as having six children in the 1887 Goodspeed History of Tennessee, but three children were born after the book was published.

Their children were William H. Hall, who married Ethel Nunn, both deceased; they had one son, David Nunn Hall, who now lives with his wife, Kathleen Gelf Hall, in Ft. Myers, Fla. They have a son, David, deceased, and one daughter, Kathy (Mrs. Hugh) Welch, who lives with her husband, a teacher in the University of Tennessee in Knoxville. Their son, Mark, lives in Knoxville with them. Their daughter, Vickie, is a student in the University in Copenhagen, Denmark. They were all together in Copenhagen for the Christmas holidays.

Conley Leroy Hall married Axie Smith, they were the parents of four children. Aeolian married Mosco McDearman. They had four children. Theuna died when he was 15, William died in infancy, Hall and Mosco Edward, Jr., all now deceased.

Josiah Edward married Rebekah Avery, (deceased), and they had one son, Tommy, who is the manager-owner of McDearman Ford Motor Co. He is married to Jean Conner, and they live with their four children, Lynn, Scott, Jennifer and Robert, on Halls Street. Jean is a teacher in Halls Elementary School.

David Nunn Hall, Will Sugg, and Parks Tigrett, Jr., all got jobs loading ships, but the others were too young to get jobs.

The started home at the end of the summer. About 100 miles from Phoenix, Ariz., their car broke down and they had to sell it.

The man paid them so much down and told them he would mail the rest to them. However, all they ever received was what he paid them down. Charles Rooks and Douglas Murchison caught the bus home. Raymond Hurt and David Nunn hitch-hiked, arriving only a day or so later.

Raymond Hurt, Douglas Murchison, and Will Sugg are all deceased.

Marvin Nunn lives with his wife, Allen, in Laconia.

Parks Tigrett, Jr., lives in Newbern with his wife, Mary. Charles Rooks lives about a mile west of Halls with his wife, Rose Marie. They have one son, Dr. Mickey Rooks, who lives in Houston, Tex. with his wife, Danna.

David Nunn lives in Halls with his wife, Mildred. He still works at the Bank, where he is the Chairman of the Board.

Their son, Warren, is president of the Bank and lives west of Halls with his wife, Elinor and two sons, Nick and Chris.

Elizabeth and E. T. (Rocky) Palmer lives about four miles from Dyersburg on the road to Reeffoot Lake. They have one son, Dr. Ed Palmer, who lives in Halls with his wife, Gerrie, and children, Trey and Kate.

Speaking Of Sports

Reflections of a fired coach

By MIKE WALDNER
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — Foster Andersen has a rather dubious distinction. Andersen was the first Rams assistant coach hired by Ray Malavasi. Andersen also was the first Rams assistant coach fired by R. Malavasi.

"I guess I really screwed things up there," said Andersen at the mention of this historic footnote. "Yes, he was laughing as he spoke. Primarily, he was laughing at his own little humor. But he also had to be laughing at least a little, at the plight of the Rams, the 6-10 National Football League team that is looking for five assistant coaches."

In the wake of the losing season, Andersen's old buddy Malavasi demonstrated why he is known in these parts as the beleaguered head coach of the Rams. He huffed and he puffed and he blew away offensive coordinator Lionel Taylor, defensive coordinator Bud Carson, running backs coach Hewitt Dixon, defensive line coach Frank Lautner and offensive line coach Dan Radakovich.

ected on the situation," he admitted. "And, yes, there was a certain bitterness. "You learn early in this business that if you win you have done a good job. Well, we were 12-4 and I was fired," said to myself, "wait a minute."

No doubt he said a lot more. To himself, of course.

It must be noted that the Rams have not equaled that 12-4 record since the departure of Andersen, deans Coley and Waller.

Another thing Andersen now will admit — perhaps this should be now will allow himself to admit — is that the scars do run deep for the coach who is fired.

"If you want to do a psychological profile, you have to say being fired is egotistically a very damaging thing," he said. "It takes strength to handle."

"Look, we had that 12-4 season. Minnesota, with Fran Tarkenton running all over the place, had been tough on the Rams. (The Vikings knocked the Rams out of the playoffs in 1974-75.) We beat them during the season. We beat them again in the playoffs. "Everyone was excited with our success — the players, the owner, the coaches, the fans. Everyone. Then we lost to Dallas."

He paused for a moment. The Rams lost to Dallas, and Andersen became a former assistant coach of the team.

"Like Pepper Rogers said, there are two kinds of coaches," he said. "There are those who are fired and those who are about to be fired."

"As time wore on, I re-

George Allen was fired. The Rams went on to win 12 in one of their most successful years. Andersen is correct in that Malavasi did fire Max Coley and Charlie Waller following the season. But the first of that three part boom series was Andersen.

Andersen refused to take a shot at Malavasi, who had talked him into leaving the UCLA staff to join the Rams.

Everyone focuses on the highs enjoyed by coaches who are in the Rose Bowl or the Super Bowl. Andersen characterized his experience as the flip side of the record.

Although he never sulked in public, there had to be some bitterness over the firing.

"I think I did real well back then," he said when asked to examine his inner thoughts.

What Andersen did back then was listen to his own fight talk. The coach tells the athlete to get tough when the going gets tough. In this manner, Andersen refused to hang by his head just because he was rejected by Malavasi.

Eventually, however, reality set in.

"As time wore on, I re-

Mrs. Donnie K. Franklin, of Memphis, spent Friday night with her sister, Mrs. Lillian Jamerson, and Mrs. Sally Cullipher in Gates, while she visited two other sisters, Miss Addie Kelly and Miss Jennie Kelly.

Bill Kelly and Mrs. Franklin met Dr. Ruth Slenczynska, of St. Louis, Mo., concert pianist with whom Bill has studied, at the Memphis International Airport last Friday afternoon and took her to Dyersburg's Holiday Inn. They were taken to the 20th century and the greatest keyboard genius since Mozart."

Dr. Slenczynska has given piano concerts all over the world. She gave her first recital at the age of four, played at Carnegie Hall at age five, made her debut in Berlin at age five, and her Paris, France, debut at age seven. At eight, she made her first concert tour in the United States, following a Town Hall performance described by the New York Times as "an electrifying experience." The Times also praised her as "the greatest child prodigy of the 20th century and the greatest keyboard genius since Mozart."

In addition to her international concert career, she is in private life Mrs. James E. Kerr and artist-in-residence at Southern Illinois University.

She gave a concert Saturday night at Dyersburg State College. Attending a reception which followed were the Bill Kellys and son, Warren, and Mrs. Franklin. After the reception, Bill Kelly took the pianist and Mrs. Franklin to Memphis, where she spent the

Tennessee's Outdoor Dramas

As dusk falls on the mountains and rolling hills of Tennessee, drama unfolds in a variety of outdoor presentations produced each summer for the enjoyment of thousands.

The beauty of East Tennessee's mountains provides a perfect backdrop for three summertime outdoor productions. Two of the plays take place in the shadow of the Great Smoky Mountains at Townsend, Tennessee.

"The Smoky Mountain Passion Play" vividly portrays the life of Jesus Christ and has received national recognition for its reality. Last year Mark Pedro, a researcher for a religious periodical in St. Paul, Minnesota, praised the production for its authenticity. Pedro wrote that he had toured the United States reviewing passion plays and found "The Smoky Mountain Passion Play" an unforgettable experience. "None of the productions I have studied either on the stage or upon the screen so realistically show the suffering Jesus went through for mankind as did this drama," Pedro wrote in a letter to the Knoxville News-Sentinel.

Sharing the stage in Townsend with the "Passion Play" is "Damascus Road," the story of Saul of Tarsus (St. Paul). This year "Damascus Road" has been revised and three new major characters have been introduced. The two plays are independent productions, but the scripts flow together for an entertaining presentation.

"The Passion Play" is performed on Monday, Wednesday and Friday through August 21 and on Sunday, August 23. "Damascus Road" may be seen on Thursday, Thursday and Saturday nights through August 22. Tickets may be purchased at the door or by making reservations at (615) 448-2244.

Another fascinating biblical story is dramatized at Kingsport, Tennessee during the month of August. "Whither Thou Goest - The Story of Ruth" is performed on Saturday and Sunday evenings the entire month of August on the grounds of the Allendale Estate located on Highway 11-W five miles from downtown Kingsport.

The volunteer cast of "Whither Thou Goest" perpetuates a musical account of Ruth and Naomi and their journey to Bethlehem. Costumes are hand-woven and the stage is hand-built with backdrops made of macramé and off-loom materials which required several hundred hours of volunteer labor by Kingsport citizens.

One of the unique features of this outdoor play is its interpretation for the deaf. The interpretation is provided on alternating weekends, and a pamphlet explaining the action for the deaf is available at the box office. Performances begin at dusk and reservations may be made by calling (615) 246-8165.

A premier presentation of "The Gentleman From the Case," the story of Davy Crockett, will take place July 11 at the new outdoor amphitheater at David Crockett State Park in Lawrenceburg. The play had many successful summer seasons in years past and has been revived for a run from July 11 through July 20. Performances begin at 8:30 p.m. and reservations may be made by calling (615) 762-9408.

Dinner-theater performances are also being conducted at the David Crockett State Park Restaurant during the summer. Coming up in July and August are two Neil Simon comedies: "Prisoner of Second Avenue" Tuesday and Thursday evenings from July 14 until August 6 and "God's Favorite" Tuesday and Thursday evenings from August 11 until September 3. For reservations for these performances call (615) 762-9408.

"Cry of the Owl" is the dramatic story of the conflicts faced by the Cherokee Nation during the final years of their existence in the East before being removed to the West along the infamous "Trail of Tears." The drama will be featured at Red Clay Historical Area near Cleveland, Tennessee on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings July 9 through 25. The stage is set at the outdoor amphitheater at Red Clay and the drama begins at 8:30. Reservations may be made by calling (615) 476-6542 or write Red Clay Theatre, Inc., P. O. Box 64, Cleveland, Tennessee 37311.

For more information on outdoor dramas, contact the Tennessee Department of Tourist Development, Room T, P. O. Box 23170, Nashville, Tennessee 37202.

CONFIDENTIAL CORNER

By Henry Murchison

We Learn

This column should have been written last week, but your editor had to have a few days rest before he could write it.

You see Jean, Buddy's wife, drove up from Lafayette, Ga., Feb. 10th, and spent several days with Neil and your editor.

Jean and Neil had each day planned, which would have been okay except that the weather was uncertain, so they included this writer in their plans.

Thursday, we were in Jackson; Friday, despite the snow, we were in Dyersburg, and Saturday in Memphis, including a trip to a flea market; and then Sunday, we can see your editor was quite busy.

However, we learned one thing. When Jean comes again, we plan to fill the car with gasoline, step aside, and tell them to have a good time. There is no way we are going to chase them shopping or at a flea market again.

Actually, we thoroughly enjoyed Jean's visit, but don't tell her, even we did a lot of complaining.

Here And There

We are proud of Halls for their response to calls for assistance from Halls Public Library and the Halls High School Band.

More than $1,500 of the $2,600 needed for purchase of new shelving for the library when it moved to its new location has already been donated, and donations are continuing. It seems probable now that most of the needed funds will be donated and will not come out of the library budget.

Halls Band Boosters continue to receive money to help defray expenses for the band for its trip to the World's Fair in Knoxville next May. This is going to be a great trip for the youngsters, but it is expensive, so any donations will be more than welcome. The youngsters will spend four days in Knoxville and will march in the parade May 28th. Exact hour and route of the march will be announced later. You may be sure that we will be proud of Band Director Bobby Webb and the Band.

Once again Halls Police Chief Buddy Moore is reminding owners of 3-wheelers that they must be licensed. He warns that tickets will be issued to anyone not abiding by this law.

Reginald Scott

Reginald Scott, 73, a native of Halls, died Jan. 24th, of cancer, in his home in San Jose, Calif.

Private services and cremation were Jan. 26th in San Jose.

He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Scott and the brother of the late John Scott, of Halls.

He attended Halls High School and played with some of Halls' early football teams before he joined the Navy.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Ramona Scott, and a son, Don, of San Jose.

R. T. McGarrity

Robert Thomas McGarrity, 99, of Halls, retired farmer, died Friday in Lauderdale Hospital in Ripley.

Services were at 3 p.m. Sunday in Halls Funeral Home, with burial in Lauderdale County Memorial Gardens in Ripley.

He leaves a son, Bill, of Halls; a daughter, Mrs. Gaudita Jimeron, of Jackson; and two sisters, Mrs. Rita Johnson, of Henning, and Mrs. Dassie Parker, of Union City.

STARNES DISBARRED

The state Supreme Court Feb. 11th disbarred from the practice of law Floyd Derwood Starnes, of Ripley, indicted for misappropriating funds and convicted, in this county's Circuit Court, of attempting to commit a felony, while serving as Clerk and Master of the county's Chancery Court.

Open House Honors Couple

KATIE BELTON, center, and her groom-to-be, Will Spence, were honored Feb. 13th with open house in the home of Mrs. M. R. McNeil, second from right, and Mr. McNeil, at 601 Tigrett, Halls. Co-hosting were, from left, Mrs. Marvin Hansford, Mrs. Paul Henderson, Jr., and Mrs. Robert Craddock, with their husbands, plus the E. M. Steelmans, Jr. A Valentine theme centered the table with red carnations in a silver vase, flanked by glowing red tapers, in silver candelabra, softly lighting the embroidered linen cloth from Spain. Sparkling red punch was poured from an antique silver bowl to accompany ham, turkey, breads, wedding-bell shaped cheese balls, rum balls, Valentine cookies, and pecan torte. Out-of-town guests were Miss Sylvia Barton, the Thomas Beltons, Miss Jan Craddock, the Berl Gareys, the Steve Hales, Miss Cindy McDonald, Miss Janice Roberson, the George Sydners, and the Richard Tomlinsons, of Memphis; the Dale Overtons and children, Tommy and Tracy, of Martin; the Don Crains, of Jackson; Mrs. Don Spencer, of Brownsville; and Talmage Carihfield, of Ripley.
