Halls Centennial Salute Promoted

By Mrs. Mary Alsbrook

Goodpeed's Tennessee history says Halls was founded in 1882. Lauderdale County from Earliest Times says Halls was incorporated in 1884 and re-chartered in 1901. Before this time, it was known as Hansford's Station, according to Joe Hurt, who has made a study of early Halls history.

Norma Daws (Mrs. Earl) Hendrix, of Ripley, is interested in a centennial celebration for Halls, to be sponsored by the County Historical Society.

My plan is to write about families, houses, and other interesting happenings in and around Halls, much in the manner that the late Mae (Mrs. W. P.) Alexander did about Dyersburg some years ago.

If any of my readers have instances of interest, please let me know, and I will include them in my column.

History is also being made in Halls now, and the Halls Medical Clinic is of interest to all of us.

Before the late Dr. J. G. Olds was killed in an automobile accident and Dr. Robert O. Henderson left Halls to work for the State of Tennessee I do not remember Halls being without a doctor or dentist for any length of time.

Although most people who live in cities have much further to drive to their doctor or dentist than Dyersburg or Ripley, the people in Halls wanted a doctor and dentist in the town and did something about it.

Mrs. Travis Davis, City Recorder, told me that when Tupperware located in Halls and learned of this need, it gave in excess of $40,000 to get something started.

A board or committee was formed, with Sammie Arnold, Oliver Nunn, and others working to get a clinic here.

In 1978, $138,000 in revenue bonds were issued to construct the building. A Kellogg grant was used to furnish the equipment to be used by doctors, but Dr. Robert Stolarick purchased his own equipment for his dental office located in the clinic. Mrs. Harold Burroughs and Mrs. Mike Currie are his dental assistants.

A number of doctors have practiced in the clinic with Dr. Robert Shull, Dr. Charles Quilty, and Dr. Ed Palmer staying the longest.

Dr. Palmer went to work teaching at the University of Tennessee Family Practice Clinic in Jackson, Jan. 1, 1982. The clinic is a division of the U.T. Center for Health Care in Memphis, according

Self-Betterment Course Being Offered In Halls

Beginning Jan. 13th, the Patricia Stevens Modeling School, of Memphis, will offer a 30-hour self-improvement course in the Halls Community Center, 4 to 7 p.m., sponsored by the Halls Community Club and the Halls High School vocational education department.

Mrs. Elsie Boaz, owner of Patricia Stevens Modeling and Secretarial School in Memphis and course instructor, is a native of Halls and a graduate of Halls High School.

In addition to her many civic activities, she is the official chaperone for Miss Tennessee to the Miss America Pageant. Mrs. Boaz and her husband, T. Bennett Boaz, also judge many beauty pageant throughout the nation.

Mrs. Boaz is the Memphis 1978-79 Businesswoman of the Year and the 1978-80 Boss of the Year. In addition to her work with beauty pageants, she is active in Mid-South Fair activities, being the first woman member of the Mid-South Fair Executive Council and the only woman member of the Executive Committee of Libertyland.

Her course will cover such areas as visual poise, make-up, wardrobe, voice, diction, and social graces.

Area residents of at least high school age may get information from Pat Higdon at Halls High.

to Dr. C. R. Webb, of Ripley. Dr. Webb, Dr. Palmer, Dr. B. G. Robbins, and Dr. L. M. Farris have been operating the Halls Clinic since June 1, 1981. Dr. Webb said that he, along with Dr. Robbins and Dr. Farris, would continue to provide medical care for the people of Halls and surrounding area, Monday through Friday, with emergency care available through the emergency room at Lauderdale Hospital, Inc., in Ripley.

Dr. and Mrs. Palmer and their children, Trey and Kate, will continue to live in Halls for the present; he will drive to his work in Jackson. Many of his patients have expressed regret that he is no longer associated with the Halls Medical Clinic.

Mrs. John Morgan, who has worked at the clinic since it opened, said she was the book-keeper, among other duties. Others working at the clinic are Mrs. Dotson Broglin, L.P.N., Mrs. Sonny Thurmond, L.P.N., Mrs. Glen McLemore, secretary, and Mrs. Larry Reynolds, receptionist.

Next week I hope to write about Elizabeth "Sweetie" Thurmond Pitts, who will be 96 years old Feb. 22nd, accord-

Farmers Hope Forecast Errs Again

By DON KENDALL

WASHINGTON (AP)—A year ago, the Agriculture Department predicted farmers' income would rebound in 1981 and retail food prices would jump sharply. They were wrong.

Farmers' net income for 1981 will wind up close to the depressed level of 1980, and food prices will end the year up about two-thirds as much as forecast.

For 1982, department economists are much more pessimistic in some respects than they were a year ago: The department says farm income, hit by rising expenses and sagging commodity prices, may fall $1 billion to $3 billion from 1981.

Exacerbating the situation for many farmers are decisions by the Reagan administration and Congress to trim federal spending, including programs that provide extensive federal aid for rural areas.

There will be tighter credit policies at the Farmers Home Administration and farm legislation that many farmers say falls short of providing adequate price supports for major commodities.

The huge crops of 1981, including record harvests of corn, wheat and rice, are a blessing and a pain for thousands of farmers.

For dairy and poultry producers, cheaper feed is a help. It also can be good news for cattle and hog producers. But for cash grain operators — although high yields are better than low yields or none at all — depressed prices hurt. Wheat, helped by prospects for exports, may not be in so much trouble as corn, but it is far from a mortgage lifter.

Although not records, the 1981 soybean and cotton harvests were large, recovering — as did most commodities — after the drought-shrived 1980 harvests. When the domestic and world economies weaken, those commodities suffer with the rest.

Thus, the huge supply of grain and other crops hangs over the markets as farmers look ahead to 1982. Next year's harvests, as the events of the past two years show, will be determined more by weather than any man-made policy or event.

Meanwhile, the Agriculture Department predicts retail food prices, on the average, will rise about 7 percent in 1982, the smallest annual increase since 1977's 6.3 percent. Retail food prices increased 8.6 percent in 1980 and an estimated 8.2 percent in 1981.

The relatively moderate food price increases forecast for 1982, along with those of the previous two years, are caused in part by farmers taking it on the chin financially.

Only about 40 cents of each dollar spent in grocery stores gets to farmers, with rest going for transportation, processing and merchandizing. But when farm commodity prices are weak, it is reflected in retail food prices.

William Lesher, assistant secretary of agriculture for economics, said "a small increase in the farm value of foods will limit the 1982 food price rise," as in 1981. He adds, "Higher food marketing costs will be the main cause of retail food price increases."

Lesher says marketing costs will be held down "as the general inflation rate slows" in 1982, a Reagan administration priority.

Government income figures do not tell much about the financial condition of individual farmers, or much about the various sectors of agriculture. They do provide a basis for comparing one year to another.

In 1979, net farm income, after adjusting for the value of farm inventories, rose to $32.7 billion. Farm income dropped in 1980 to $19.9 billion, after adjustment. This year, the Agriculture Department says net farm income might be in the $20 billion to $24 billion range.

A major reason for the drop is that farmers' expenses have risen faster than returns from the sale of crops and livestock. By December, the Agriculture Department's monthly farm price reports say, the index of prices that farmers received for products was averaging 10 percent below year-earlier levels. Farmers' expenses, meanwhile, were up 5 percent.

One bright spot is farm exports, which department officials expect to set a record. Agriculture Secretary John R. Block wants to boost exports as a way for farmers to make ends meet without government intervention.

In the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1982, farm exports are projected at $45.5 billion, up from $43.8 billion in 1980-81. But some observers say the figures can be misleading, and changes are needed if farmers are to grow enough crops for export in the 1980s.

PUFF-TOP TUNA BISQUE

1 (10-oz.) pkg. frozen creamed spinach, thawed
1 cup chicken or vegetable broth
2 cups milk
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 tbsp. chopped chives
1 tsp. dried leaf basil
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
1 (6 1/2- or 7-oz.) can tuna
6 frozen potato shells (10-oz. pkg.), defrosted
1 egg

In container of electric blender, combine spinach and chicken broth; process until smooth. Add milk, cheese, chives, basil, salt and pepper. Divide tuna equally among 6 oversize, 1 1/2-cup soup bowls. Pour soup mixture into bowls.

Using a rolling pin, roll each potato shell into a 6-inch circle. Gently lay pastry over top of soup bowls, leaving about a 1-inch overhang. Seal by pressing firmly to sides of bowl (do not crimp to rim; pastry must be allowed to rise freely).

Position oven rack in lower third of oven. Lightly beat egg; brush all pastry tops. Bake in 400-degree oven, 10 to 15 minutes, or until pastry is puffed and golden brown. Serve immediately.

To eat, break up pastry dome with spoon and stir into soup. (It will become thickened and creamy).

Halls History

By Mrs. Charles Alsbrook Goodspeed's Tennessee history says the first mill in Lauderdale County was a tub-water-mill, on Mill Creek near Double Bridges, built in 1826 by Benj. Porter, and owned by Griffith L. Rutherford.

The Town of Halls became a neighbor to Double Bridges some years later, with many of the inhabitants having their roots at Double Bridges, a community four or five miles northwest of Halls.

Such was the case when Elizabeth (Sweetie) Thurmond Pitts was born between 1885 and 1890 on the Sid Pugh farm at Double Bridges. Her mother was Jane McDearman Thurmond and her father Guy Thurmond.

Aunt Jane, as she was affectionately known, had 16 children, with Sweetie the seventh. She lived to be 116 years old, dying in 1964.

The family lived on the Duncan farm for a short time after leaving the Pugh farm and Henning farm then moved to Dr. William Tucker's farm, where Goose Hill is located.

The children were taught that there were rattlesnakes and quick-and holes there, and it was a dangerous place to play.

Goose Hill was a popular place for children to go for picnics when my children were young, and I will remember them coming in one day to get me to go to the Oliver Nunn home to see a bob-cat (a wilder, more fierce one I had certainly never met) that Josh and Jimmy, with the others' help, had captured there and had in their back yard in a sort of a cage.

The Jim Ewells own Goose Hill now, and if you have children or just want to see the phenomenal, get permission from the Ewells and go.

Next to the Grand Canyon, it is one of the most awe-inspiring places I have ever visited.

Sweetie, along with her sisters and brothers, were educated in Porter's Gap School and Mount Zion Baptist Church School in Double Bridges.

She married Willie Pitts and moved to Halls in 1918. She has cooked for many families in Halls—the longest for "Miss Mary" (Mrs. Everette) Sumrow, "Miss Nell" (Mrs. Eugene) Pugh, "Miss Jettie" (Mrs. Fred) Hurt, and "Miss Pat" (Mrs. Wymond) Hurt.

While she was cooking for "Miss Nell," she recalled one day there was a knock on the back door, and this man with his hat pulled down over his face came in when she opened the door. She did not know him and neither did her younger sister, Lucille, whom she had mopping the breakfast room floor.

Sweetie recognized the person to be "Miss Virginia" (Mrs. Joe) Sumrow, the next door neighbor who was fooling them, and got her to go on up

Halls Seeks Sewer Fees

Halls' Board of Aldermen, meeting Tuesday of last week, instructed city attorney Tom Caldwell to begin legal proceedings to collect delinquent sewer connection fees from residents of the Beech Bluff Sub-Division.

Deadline for the legal proceedings has been set for Feb. 1st.

Residents have been aware of the obligation since October, 1980.

Delinquent fees are approximately $5,000.

In other business, the Board:

Turned down a request from a Memphis firm to place benches with advertising on them.

Rejected a request by First Assembly of God Church to purchase five acres of land on the air base on which to erect a church building and parsonage. The board had reserved the land for industrial purposes and agreed to make no changes.

Instructed Mayor James Cheaher to contact Judge Herman Revere, of Ripley, concerning the status of the proposed cable TV system in Halls.

Took under advisement a report from Brewer Railroad Service that repairs will be needed within the next six months on the spur track leading to the Tupperware Co. plant.

Informed Hunter County, who inquired about a dog leash law, that the Town of Halls has no leash law but that a state law does exist to cover dogs running free.

Approved the purchase of a refrigerator for the city water plant. City Supt. Alkin Barnes told the board that the present refrigerator is not operating but is needed to refrigerate chemicals used for daily testing.

Sweetie's youngest brother and lives on Mill St. His wife, Willie Mae Greer Thurmond, has been ill two or three years. Since that time, he has worked for his son, R. C. Thurmond, at Thurmond Lumber Co., in Halls and later for him and his son, Mike, at Thurmond Lumber Co., in Dyersburg.

He told me that he started to work for Mr. A. P. Thurmond when he was a little bit of a boy. Since that time, he has worked for his son, R. C. Thurmond, at Thurmond Lumber Co., in Halls and later for him and his son, Mike, at Thurmond Lumber Co., in Dyersburg.

They were all good to him and helped him every way they could.

They tried to get him to save his money, too, but he never did do it, he told me.

Funds Asked For Shelving

Mrs. Virginia Norman, librarian, told the Halls Library Board's meeting Tuesday of last week, with all members present, that the numbers of borrowers more than doubled in the past year.

Mrs. Gerry Palmer gave a budget report on the total cost of remodeling the new building, which has been completed except for a few small details.

Chairman Donnie Levy discussed with board members some long range plans for the library.

New shelving will be installed within the next two to three weeks, and books will be moved as soon as possible into the new facility. Moving will be done by the Halls High School Library Club, Distributive Education Club, Drafting Vocational and Industrial Club, and office education students, thanks to Mrs. Jean Myracle, Mrs. Betty Warren, Mrs. Pat Higdon, and Cary Coriand.

Board members voted to begin a fund drive to finance the new shelving required. Donations may be made at Bank of Halls. Checks should be payable to Halls Public Library and are tax deductible.

A donation of $10 will buy a single shelf; $55 will purchase a complete shelf unit. Forty units are needed to hold the approximately 5,000 volumes that will be in the new building. A plaque will be placed in the library permanently, with the names of the donors.

The library opened in September, 1980, in the old Halls Clinic building, behind Arnold's Drug Store. The new facility is the former Halls Ambulance Station on Church Street, across from Halls Funeral Home.

Library hours are 1-5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 9 a.m. to noon Saturdays.

Continental Properties, Inc., managing firm of Cherrydale Apartments in Halls, has been notified by the Farmers Home Administration that effective Dec. 21, 1981, the adjusted income for the complex is $20,000.

The adjusted income allowable is determined by 5% deduction of gross income and $300 for each child in the apartments.

Mrs. Jill Kee is local manager of the apartments.

only been here for the past 13 or 14 years. Her husband, Premon Reynolds, has been dead two years. She has three living children, Premon, Jr., who lives in Halls, and the others in Chicago and St. Louis.

Church Vows Pledged

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT TRACY DAVIS exchanged candle-light double ring vows Dec. 11th in Maranatha Baptist Church in Toulon Community. The Rev. Steve Butler officiated before an archway of white tapers, flanked by spiral and tree candelabra holding glowing white tapers. Beside a double kneeling bench entwined with greenery was a unity candle which the couple's fathers, Rufus Thurmond, Jr., of Ripley, and Aaron Davis, of Halls, lit before the bride's entry.

With Bill Kelley at the organ, Miss Alison Langley, of Ripley, sang Endless Love and Keith Mercer, of Ripley, sang The Wedding Song and The Lord's Prayer.

Miss Langley wore a corsage of holly and Mr. Mercer a boutonniere of a silk rose.

Janet was given by her father, in a formal-length gown of white Qiana with Victorian neck-line and chapel train. The bodice and chapel skirt were inset with Venice lace. The full bishop sleeves were adorned with lace insets and pointed lace cuffs. The bride carried a cascading arrangement of white silk tube roses, orchids, gardenias, and ivy, with seed pearls and long white streamers.

Janet's sister, Beth Sumner, of Ripley, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Jan Forsythe and Rosa Lewis, of Ripley, and Rene Brasher, of Germantown.

The bride's mother wore a dusty rose formal-length spaghetti-strap dresses of burgundy Qiana, with matching capes of sheer chiffon. They carried burning votive cups encircled with pink roses, baby's breath, ivy, and satin streamers. They wore baby's breath in their hair.

The groom's brother, Jonathan, was best man. Groomsmen were Stan Bowie, Kevin Hardy, and Brian Nolen, of Halls. Ushers were the groom's brother, Scott, and Bob Fowler, of Halls.

Groomsmen wore gray tuxedos with white ruffled shirts trimmed in burgundy and bow ties of burgundy. Their boutonnières were red silk roses.

Qiana dress with matching capelet. The groom's mother chose a frosted colored formal-length Qiana. Each wore a cymbidium orchid corsage.

Grandmothers of the couple, Mrs. Inez Hunt and Mrs. Vester Voss, of Ripley, and Mrs. R. J. Davis and Mrs. Lula Belton, of Halls, wore gardenia corsages.

Miss Pam Scallions, of Ripley, registered guests at a table set with a burning votive cup encircled by pink roses, baby's breath, and ivy.

For the reception in the church fellowship hall, which was decorated with wedding bells and burgundy ribbon, the bride's table and punch table were draped with long white lace cloths. The tiered white cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom, was surrounded by holly and baby's breath. Serving the cake were Miss Karen Hutchison and Miss LuAnne Webb, of Ripley.

A candelabrum with white tapers, surrounded by pink gardenias and baby's breath, centered the punch table. The groom's chocolate sheet cake was surmounted with a bride chasing a football player.

Pink punch, toasted pecans and pink rosebud mints were served by Miss Donna Langley, Miss Susan Revere, Miss Brenda Sutton, and Miss Pam Scallions, of Ripley. They wore corsages of holly.

Wicker baskets held ribbons of white net tied with pink and burgundy satin ribbon and satin rose bud stems. Assisting were Mrs. Angie Flynn, Mrs. Sarah Jackson, and Mrs. Dot Ables.

For the rehearsal dinner in the fellowship hall of Halls Westside Baptist Church Dec. 10th, U-shaped tables held glowing pink tapers surrounded by holly and pine. The menu included turkey, ham, potato salad, green beans, fruit salad, rolls, cake, tea, and coffee.

REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

As the new year gets underway, preparations are being made for the convening of the Second Session of the 97th Congress on January 25th. Right after the Congress reconvenes, President Reagan will address a joint session for the annual State of the Union message.

In attempting to forecast the legislative priorities for 1982, it appears that the economy will again be the major focal point. President Reagan will submit his budget recommendations to Congress soon after the Second Session convenes, so at this point there has been no formal proposal submitted.

Among them are rumors that the President will seek another $30 billion in budget cuts. There is also speculation that he will recommend a 15 percent increase in defense spending which will be a real increase of 7 percent after factoring in inflation. Secretary of the Treasury, Don Regan, indicated in a recent interview that there is still some discussion of tax increases for 1983 and 1984 in an effort to lower budget deficit projections. Those tax increases would not alter the 25% across the board tax reductions enacted in 1981 according to recent reports. Instead, they would be limited to closing some tax loopholes and possibly increasing federal estate taxes on alcohol, beer, and gasoline.

Secretary Regan pointed out that similar actions were proposed in 1981 that also included either raising or imposing user fees on certain federal government services. Apparently, the proposal on where such tax increases might occur is still being discussed and debated among the President's economic advisors. It would seem likely that any such proposal will be included in the budget proposal when it is formally submitted to Congress.

In addition to economic issues, attention is sure to be given to the international situation in Poland and other parts of the world. Included in that arena will be the preliminary talks with the Soviet Union on strategic arms that are scheduled to begin early this year. I noted a few days ago that Secretary of State, Alexander Haig, suggested that these talks should go on even though serious tensions still exist in Poland.

Obviously, economically oriented legislation is not going to be all that is considered in this Session of Congress. Revisions to the Clean Air Act and the Federal Criminal Code are currently pending in their respective Committees and are expected to get action this year.

4-Plane Crash Claims Riplian

CAPT. WILLIAM 'WILLIE' TUCKER MAYS, 32, kneeling right, with the Air Force Thunderbird pilots he narrated last year—son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mays, standing right, of Ripley, and nephew of retired Air Force Lt. Col. William 'Bill Pete' Tucker IV, and Mrs. Tucker, standing left—died Monday, about noon (local time) as all four Thunderbird T-38 Talons, practicing a "line-abreast loop"—diving thousands of feet at more than 400 miles per hour to level off at about 100 feet—crashed into the desert near the Indian Springs Auxiliary Station, about 40 miles north of Las Vegas, Nev. Mays had long covered a Thunderbird seat—the elite of the Air Force. Lost with him—bringing to 18 Thunderbird fatalities since the group was formed in 1963—were the unit commander, Maj. Norman L. Lowry III, 37, of Radford, Va.; Capt. Joseph 'Pete' Peterson, 32, of Tuskegee, Ala.; and Capt. Mark E. Melancon, 31, of Dallas, Tex. It was the worst accident in Thunderbird history. Mays, in the Air Force 12 years, leaves his wife, Sara; a son, Todd; five brothers, Bruce, of Ripley, and Lee, of San Antonio, Tex.; recently of the Air Force, Tom, with the Army in Germany, Dick, of Greenville, S.C., and Kirk, of Atlanta, Ga.; a sister, Robin Ann Larrabee, of Miami, Fla.; Eastern Air Lines stewardess and wife of an Air Force pilot. Services were set in Las Vegas Thursday, with services here to follow.

CONFIDENTIAL CORNER

Bits and Pieces

President Reagan created quite a furor when he allowed the Internal Revenue Service to announce that the IRS would no longer refuse tax exemption to private schools which practice segregation. We have never been able to decide just how we feel about such exemptions, since we feel that private schools should stand on their own feet, but we heartily agree that the IRS should not be making the rules and regulations about such exemptions. We feel that laws should be passed and not regulations passed by the bureaucracy. Perhaps Mr. Reagan and Congress can pass laws with proper enforcement procedures to determine what schools should or should not be exempted.

Since we haven't written this column for several weeks, we have been negligent in acknowledging our annual coconut cake at Christmas time from Mrs. Donnie Noblin. While Mr. and Mrs. Noblin were our neighbors, she learned how much your editor enjoyed coconut cake, so she has made us a cake for a number of years. Just to say "thank you, and we enjoyed." By the way, Nell froze part of the cake, but it's about gone now.

We received a note and subscription renewal check this week from the Phil Balcoms. Mr. Balcom, you will remember, was manager of Tupperware here when it first opened. He never forgave you editor for telling him that we didn't get much snow, and then he was stranded here, on his first trip to Halls, in a 14-inch snow. The Balcoms now live in Hemingway, S.C., where he manages the Tupperware plant.

While a bit late, we want to commend the Lauderdale County Sheriff's Department, the various utilities, and similar groups for their fast and alert activities when the wind-storm hit Lauderdale County Jan. 3rd. We had our scanner on, tracking county activities, and the response was outstanding.

Halls Cable Is Delayed

Brad Grimm, manager of Ripley Cable TV, has informed Halls Mayor James Chesler that bad weather and a delay in shipment of cable wire is delaying installation of the cable system in Halls.

Grimm said the firm expects to begin signing customers in about 60 days.

The 1981 Super Boosters are listed on the new band calendar. New regular Booster memberships have been issued recently to the C. E. Halesy, the David Hellings, and the Buddy Thurmonds.

Halls History

By Mrs. Charles Alsbrook
When E. J. (Jack) Shannon was postmaster of Halls, he wrote to the National Archives in Washington, asking for a list of all the Halls Postmasters.

In answer to his letter, he received a letter from Meyer H. Fishbein, Archivist in Charge, Business Economics Branch, dated July 1, 1961, giving him this list, and other information, as follows:

Halls, Lauderdale County, Tennessee
Established as Hansford on July 10, 1882

Name changed to Halls Station on Jan. 18, 1893

Name changed to Halls on Oct. 18, 1894

Postmaster, Date of appointment:
Mrs. Mary F. English, July 10, 1882.

Robert E. Stanfield, April 9, 1883.

James F. Dunnivant, May 7, 1885.

William A. Blair, Oct. 12, 1887.

John H. Farmer, Oct. 17, 1889.

William Grant, Oct. 18, 1894.

Moses D. Seches, Apr. 21, 1897.

David A. Nunn, Jr., Oct. 4, 1899.

H. B. Nunn, Apr. 4, 1910.

B. H. Moore, Apr. 6, 1914.

Inac A. Smith, Mar. 3, 1923.

William E. Richardson, June 3, 1927 (still serving in 1929)

E. J. Shannon, Jan. 25, 1935.

Marshall G. Pierce, Jr., Aug. 25, 1937 (acting Oct. 24, 1934)

Timothy J. Howell, Dec. 15, 1979.

Not only of interest is that the town was established as Hansford and remained that way from July 10, 1882, until Jan. 18, 1893, when the name was changed to Halls Station; long before ERA, the first postmaster of Hansford was a woman, Mrs. Mary F. English.

Joe Hurt tells me that when he was a small boy, he would sit and listen to his papa (Floyd Hurt) Tollie Stephens, and his aunt, Rena Wright (Mrs. Ed) Jordan, tell tales about Halls when they were young.

My cousin, May Young (Mrs. Marvin) Cherry, who lived into her nineties—living in this vicinity all her life with the exception of a year or two when she lived with her husband and children, Maireba and Will, in Crockett County, between Chestnut Bluff and Friendship—was also a great source of information.

Hansford R. Hall had given the land for the railroad to go through, and they wanted him to give the land for the station, too. He was willing for them to have it but wanted them to pay him for it. It was for this reason that people would have to go to what we call Brown's Crossing, about half a mile north of the crossing between here and Gates, or to Gates, three miles away, to catch a train. This lasted until Mr. Hall and the railroad company came to an agreement, and the station was built.

For many years people would meet the trains at the station just to see who got on and got off and follow the mail back to the post office and get their mail.

This was a great pastime for the young people, as there was a passenger train after school was out in the afternoon, and many of them had sweethearts in other towns or serving in the armed forces from whom they received letters.

Ruth Nunn (Mrs. Alvin) Hallman tells me of porters from the Massengill and Hanna Hotels also meeting the trains. They would compete with each other by calling out the menu of the supper the hotel was serving that night. "Fried chicken potatoes, peas, apple pie with cheese on top" or maybe "pork roast, turnips, sweet potatoes with fried peach pie," each one hoping that the travelers would come to the hotel where they worked, and they would get a nice tip for carrying their luggage.

Airplanes, buses, cars, and trucks have taken a lot of the railroad's business today. However, those who have not experienced eating and sleeping in the Pullman car of long ago have missed a most elegant mode of travel.

We complain about spending 20¢ to mail a letter (it is higher in most countries) and the mail being slow, getting lost, or not arriving in good condition. What we don't realize is that not only is the mail delivered in the towns but to people in the country in isolated places. And other means of delivery having a different set of regulations.

The rural postman (when I lived in the country anyway) not only brought your mail, he was your friend and main source to the outside world.

When we lived on my daddy's farm in Frog Jump in Crockett County, our mail came from Halls, with R. C. Jordan delivering it. I don't believe there has ever been another rural postman that could equal him, but I am told that most of them were, and still are, accommodating and helpful.

He brought The Saturday Evening Post to my brother, Jack, every week (buying it at the drug store) and picking up his nicker out of the box. He would take a sample of material and get a matching spool of thread. I have seen him all out order blanks from a mail order catalog for those who had trouble doing it.

He was rewarded with fresh meat during hog killings, birds, squirrels and fish in season, as well as vegetables and fruit, but the best reward was he had the love and respect of the people on his route, in return for a service well done.

A little brown wren, who built her nest in our mail box, chirped a thank you to him for not disturbing her nest, filled with tiny eggs, and later, her babies, while she was using the box for more important things than just holding the mail.

Next week I plan to write of the Hansford Hall family, to whom we owe all three names of the town.

Lookout Mountain's Incline Railway

The signs around Chattanooga, Tennessee call it, "America's Most Amazing Mile" and "The World's Steepest and Safest Incline Railway." In a city whose association with railroads is celebrated in story and song as well as fact, Lookout Mountain's famous Incline Railway seems particularly appropriate.

The Incline is unique for several reasons. First because it operates as a part of Chattanooga's public transportation system and second, because it has been an institution in Chattanooga for nearly a century, making it one of Tennessee's oldest and most popular attractions.

The long history of the Incline goes back to the 1880's when a group of Chattanooga businessmen built an elaborate four-story hotel just below the point of Lookout Mountain and constructed a narrow-gauge incline railway up the side of the mountain to reach it. The inaugural run of the new incline took place on March 21, 1886. The open air cars added a special thrill to the climb up the steep mountainside to the beautiful new hotel nestled against the sheer bluffs overlooking the valley 2,000 feet below. By 19th century standards, the Incline was a fast, safe and modern form of transportation. By any standard it was an exciting ride.

Even before the Incline was completed, a second group of investors was busy building a new hotel on Lookout Mountain and constructing a second railway up the mountain to reach it. The Broad Gauge Railroad, named to distinguish the mountain to fuel the furnaces. These days, the incline is electric, but the operation

FARM SIZE WILL SHIFT BY YEAR 2000

Recent estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture indicate some significant changes in the relationship of farm size and number of farms, reports Herbert N. Walch, University of Tennessee Extension economist.

At the present time, small farms, those with annual sales of $20,000 or less, make up about 60 percent of total farms, but produce less than 10 percent of total farm production. By the year 2000 the number of small farms will decrease to about 52 percent of total farms and will produce less than one percent of total farm production.

During the same time period, farms with annual sales of $100,000 or more, classified as large farms, will increase from about 10 percent to over 33 percent of total farms, while percentage of total production from large farms will increase from around 60 percent to almost 96 percent.

Medium sized farms, those with annual sales of $20,000-$99,000, will decrease quite markedly by the year 2000. Such farms will no longer serve as a means of transition from a part-time to a large full-time farm.

They seem to be unable to

CONTROL THISTLES IN YOUR PASTURES WITH 2,4-D

Those troublesome thistles in your pastures can be controlled by an application of 2,4-D this fall, says Elmer Ashburn, University of Tennessee Extension weed specialist.

Many of the thistle seeds that shattered to the soil surface this summer will germinate within the next few weeks. When these seedlings reach the rosette stage they should be controlled with an application of 2,4-D.

The herbicide should be applied anytime after October 15 but before the flower stalk reaches a height of six to eight inches. Applications made on warm days when soil moisture is adequate for good plant growth usually result in best control.

One to one and one-half pounds of 2,4-D acid equivalent (two to three pints of four pound active ingredient per gallon formulation) in 30 to 40 gallons of water per acre should control most of the thistles. Established ladino clover may be slightly injured by the chemical but it normally recovers in about two weeks. Do not spray newly-seeded clover as it will be killed.

The low-volatile ester formulation of 2,4-D should be used. This formulation will provide a higher degree of control than does the amine formulation.

The 2,4-D treatment is not injurious to livestock. However, milking dairy animals should be removed from the pasture for seven days after spraying to prevent contamination of the milk.

Timely mowing and a good fertilization and liming program will help to discourage reestablishment of thistles.

REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

Several years ago, the Congress enacted legislation to establish within several Departments the Office of Inspector General on a trial basis. The purpose of these offices was to investigate reported incidences of waste, fraud, abuse, and agency mismanagement. The reports of those incidences come from private citizens, individual agency employees, and Members of Congress.

The early success of this trial program led to an expansion of Inspectors General office to other agencies and departments. To date, those Inspectors General have been very successful in their investigations in correcting mismanagement and convicting those who abuse programs. To put even more emphasis on the work that the Inspectors General do, the President's Council on Integrity and Efficiency which monitors and coordinates the investigations.

Just recently, that Council completed its report on the period of April through September of 1981. During that period, the offices of Inspector General received a total of 5,288 calls and letters reporting various forms of abuse, fraud and waste. Some sort of specific action was taken on over 2,500 of them. Those actions led to about 1140 federal indictments and 627 convictions of persons accused of fraud, abuse and mismanagement of tax funds. Those cases represented a net savings to the federal government of over $2 billion. This figure includes funds recovered and expenditures avoided.

In addition to Congressional and administrative support for this important initiative, the involvement of individual citizens is absolutely essential to insure that it is effective. A large majority of the calls on which action was taken in the period covered by the OMB report were made by individual citizens. They were made through letters and by calling the respective Inspector General's office on their toll free hotlines.

Each department has an Inspector General though not all of them have toll free numbers. The most often used is the toll free number of the General Accounting Office. Its number is 800-424-5454. The GAO can take calls for all departments. Upon receiving such a call, they either assign it to the Inspector General of the department involved or investigate the matter themselves. If anyone should want the entire list of numbers for all of the various Inspectors General, I would be happy to provide them. Just contact my office. I am also publishing the list in the newspaper throughout the District.

This is a very worthwhile and important part of gaining better control over the federal bureaucracy and programs operated by the federal government, but it requires that individual citizens report incidences that they may see or have firsthand knowledge of. In most cases, reports of incidences of fraud, abuse, waste or mismanagement can be made anonymously. Based on the reports received, the

SALMONELLOSIS IS WIDESPREAD ANIMAL DISEASE

Salmonellosis causes disease in domestic animals such as cattle, hogs, horses, and sheep as well as wild animals and humans, says Ralph F. Hall, University of Tennessee Extension veterinarian.

Some of the many types of the salmonella organism which are known to cause disease are S. typhimurium, S. dublin, S. choleraesuis, S. newport, and S. anatis.

Animals can become infected and shed the salmonella organism for long periods of time. The bacterium which causes the disease becomes established in the intestinal tract and lymph nodes where it multiplies and is eventually shed in the bowel contents of infected animals.

While not new to this region, S. dublin has recently been incriminated as a cause of a disease outbreak in cattle in Western Kentucky. S. dublin seems to have the ability to stay in the body for long periods, perhaps more so than some of the other salmonella strains.

Because of the carrier state and the serious diseases which salmonellas cause, any outbreak needs to be handled intensively and with respect. An animal affected with salmonellosis usually has a high fever, shows lethargy, followed by diarrhea and death. If it survives the initial stages, the temperature drops and the animal may have continuing episodes of diarrhea in which large numbers of salmonella organisms are shed.

The disease is spread both by infected fecal droppings and animal by-products such as fish meal and meat meal which have been contaminated in processing. Control of the disease depends upon preventing the infection to other animals in the herd. Separation of sick animals is good practice, whatever the infectious disease and is especially important where salmonella has been diagnosed. If feeds containing meat by-products can be incriminated as a cause of disease, their removal from the ration will help to check the outbreak.

Medication with antibiotics is necessary to help limit the infection where salmonellosis has been identified.

Backyard Gardener

Five winners for '82

By PATRICK DENTON
Copley News Service

This year, All-America Selections celebrates its 50th anniversary with five winning varieties for the home garden—three flowers and two vegetables.

In trial gardens throughout North America new flower and vegetable introductions are judged each year against the most appropriately close variety currently available. Eminent horticulturists from the garden seed trade, universities and public gardens conduct these trials to evaluate new entries on the basis of home garden potential.

For this reason the judges generally are looking for such qualities as earliness of fruit or bloom; compact, space-saving plant habits; ease of culture and reliable performance in less-than-perfect growing conditions.

Both award-winning vegetables for 1982 are new varieties of squash—bush scallop "Peter Pan" hybrid and bush "Jersey Golden Acorn."

For northern and cool-season gardeners I can heartily recommend Peter Pan, for despite miserably wet and cool early summer growing conditions at my own test plot, Peter Pan came through with an abundance of most attractive fruits, heavily scalloped and tinted light green.

Though Peter Pan, like other scallop or Patty Pan squash, can be steamed or fried, we like them best picked very small, or at under 3 inches in diameter, and eaten raw. The flesh is meaty and delicious—great for those vegetable dip platters. My Peter Pan plants were handily compact and space-saving.

The Jersey Golden Acorn plants were somewhat larger, each plant taking about 4 square feet and growing to a height of between 2 and 3 feet. Jersey Golden Acorn is a dual-purpose squash whose young fruits, which appear about 50 days from sowing the seeds, can be picked at golf ball size or smaller and steamed or eaten raw. Between two and four fruits can be left on the plant to mature into winter storage acorn squash for baking or pies—this takes about 90 days.

The fruits are bright yellow, much like Gold Rush zucchini, and are very attractive as well as being highly nutritious, meaty, sweet, more tender and with less fiber than green acorn squash.

A bit more demanding than Peter Pan, Jersey Golden Acorn needs warmth to thrive—mine remained rather yellowish and retarded till some belated warm weather arrived. Planting a week later than other squash is therefore recommended.

The three winning flowers for 1982 are tall double "Scarlet Liminette" hybrid carnation, a compact "Fantastic Light Pink" hybrid zinnia and dwarf

"Small World Cherry" hybrid zinnia.

Scarlet Liminette was chosen for its carmine, brilliant color and durability under adverse weather conditions. Mine grew to about 23 inches with double, fringed blossoms whose spicy carnation fragrance was rather faint. Though I gave mine no special babying, they proved quite reliable and easy bloomers.

Small World Cherry is a dwarf, compact zinnia with small, trim deep cherry blossoms on 12- to 14-inch plants whose foliage in my garden remained fresh and clean right to the bitter end of the season despite fall rains and stormy weather.

I was fortunate to view Fantastic Light Pink growing last summer in other trial gardens apart from

Halls History

By Mrs. Charles Alshook

It is interesting to note that the town was named Hansford from 1832—a name changed to Halls Station on Jan. 18, 1893—name changed to Halls on Oct. 18, 1894, according to letter from Meyer H. Fishbein, Archivist in Charge in Washington D.C., July 1, 1961.

However, the Tennessee History published in 1887 by the Goodspeed Publishing Co., in Nashville, never calls the town anything but Halls or Hall's Station.

Verbatim from Goodspeed's Tennessee History: "Tolbert F. Hall, a manufacturer, and member of the firm of Hall & Brandon, manufacturers of pipe-staves, located at Hall's Station, on the New-Port News & Mississippi Valley Railroad, was born in Gibson County, January 29, 1847, and was the second of four living children born to Hansford R. and Orpha Lucinda (Conley) Hall, and is of English-Welsh descent.

"The father was born in Rutherford County, May 20, 1815, and gave his time to farming, and now owns about 550 acres of good land.

"Soon after his marriage, which occurred June 13, 1844, in Rutherford County, he moved to Gibson County and settled there.

"He aided in the organization of Crockett County, and by the change, became a citizen of the new county.

"In 1871, he moved to Lauderdale County, where he has since resided, and was one of the founders of Hall's Station, one of the flourishing business towns of the northern part of the county.

"The place had to contend with strong competition with Gates, another small town of the county, but by the untiring energy of Mr. Hall, the difficulties have been overcome, and the town is now in a flourishing condition.

"He is a Democrat and Mason, and he and family, with one exception, are members of the Christian Church.

"Our subject's mother was born in Rutherford County, Tenn., in the twenties. Mr. Hall was raised and educated on a farm, remaining until twenty-two years old.

"He was married in Rutherford County, March 23, 1870, to Miss Mary B. Brandon, daughter of W. G. Brandon, a contractor of public work.

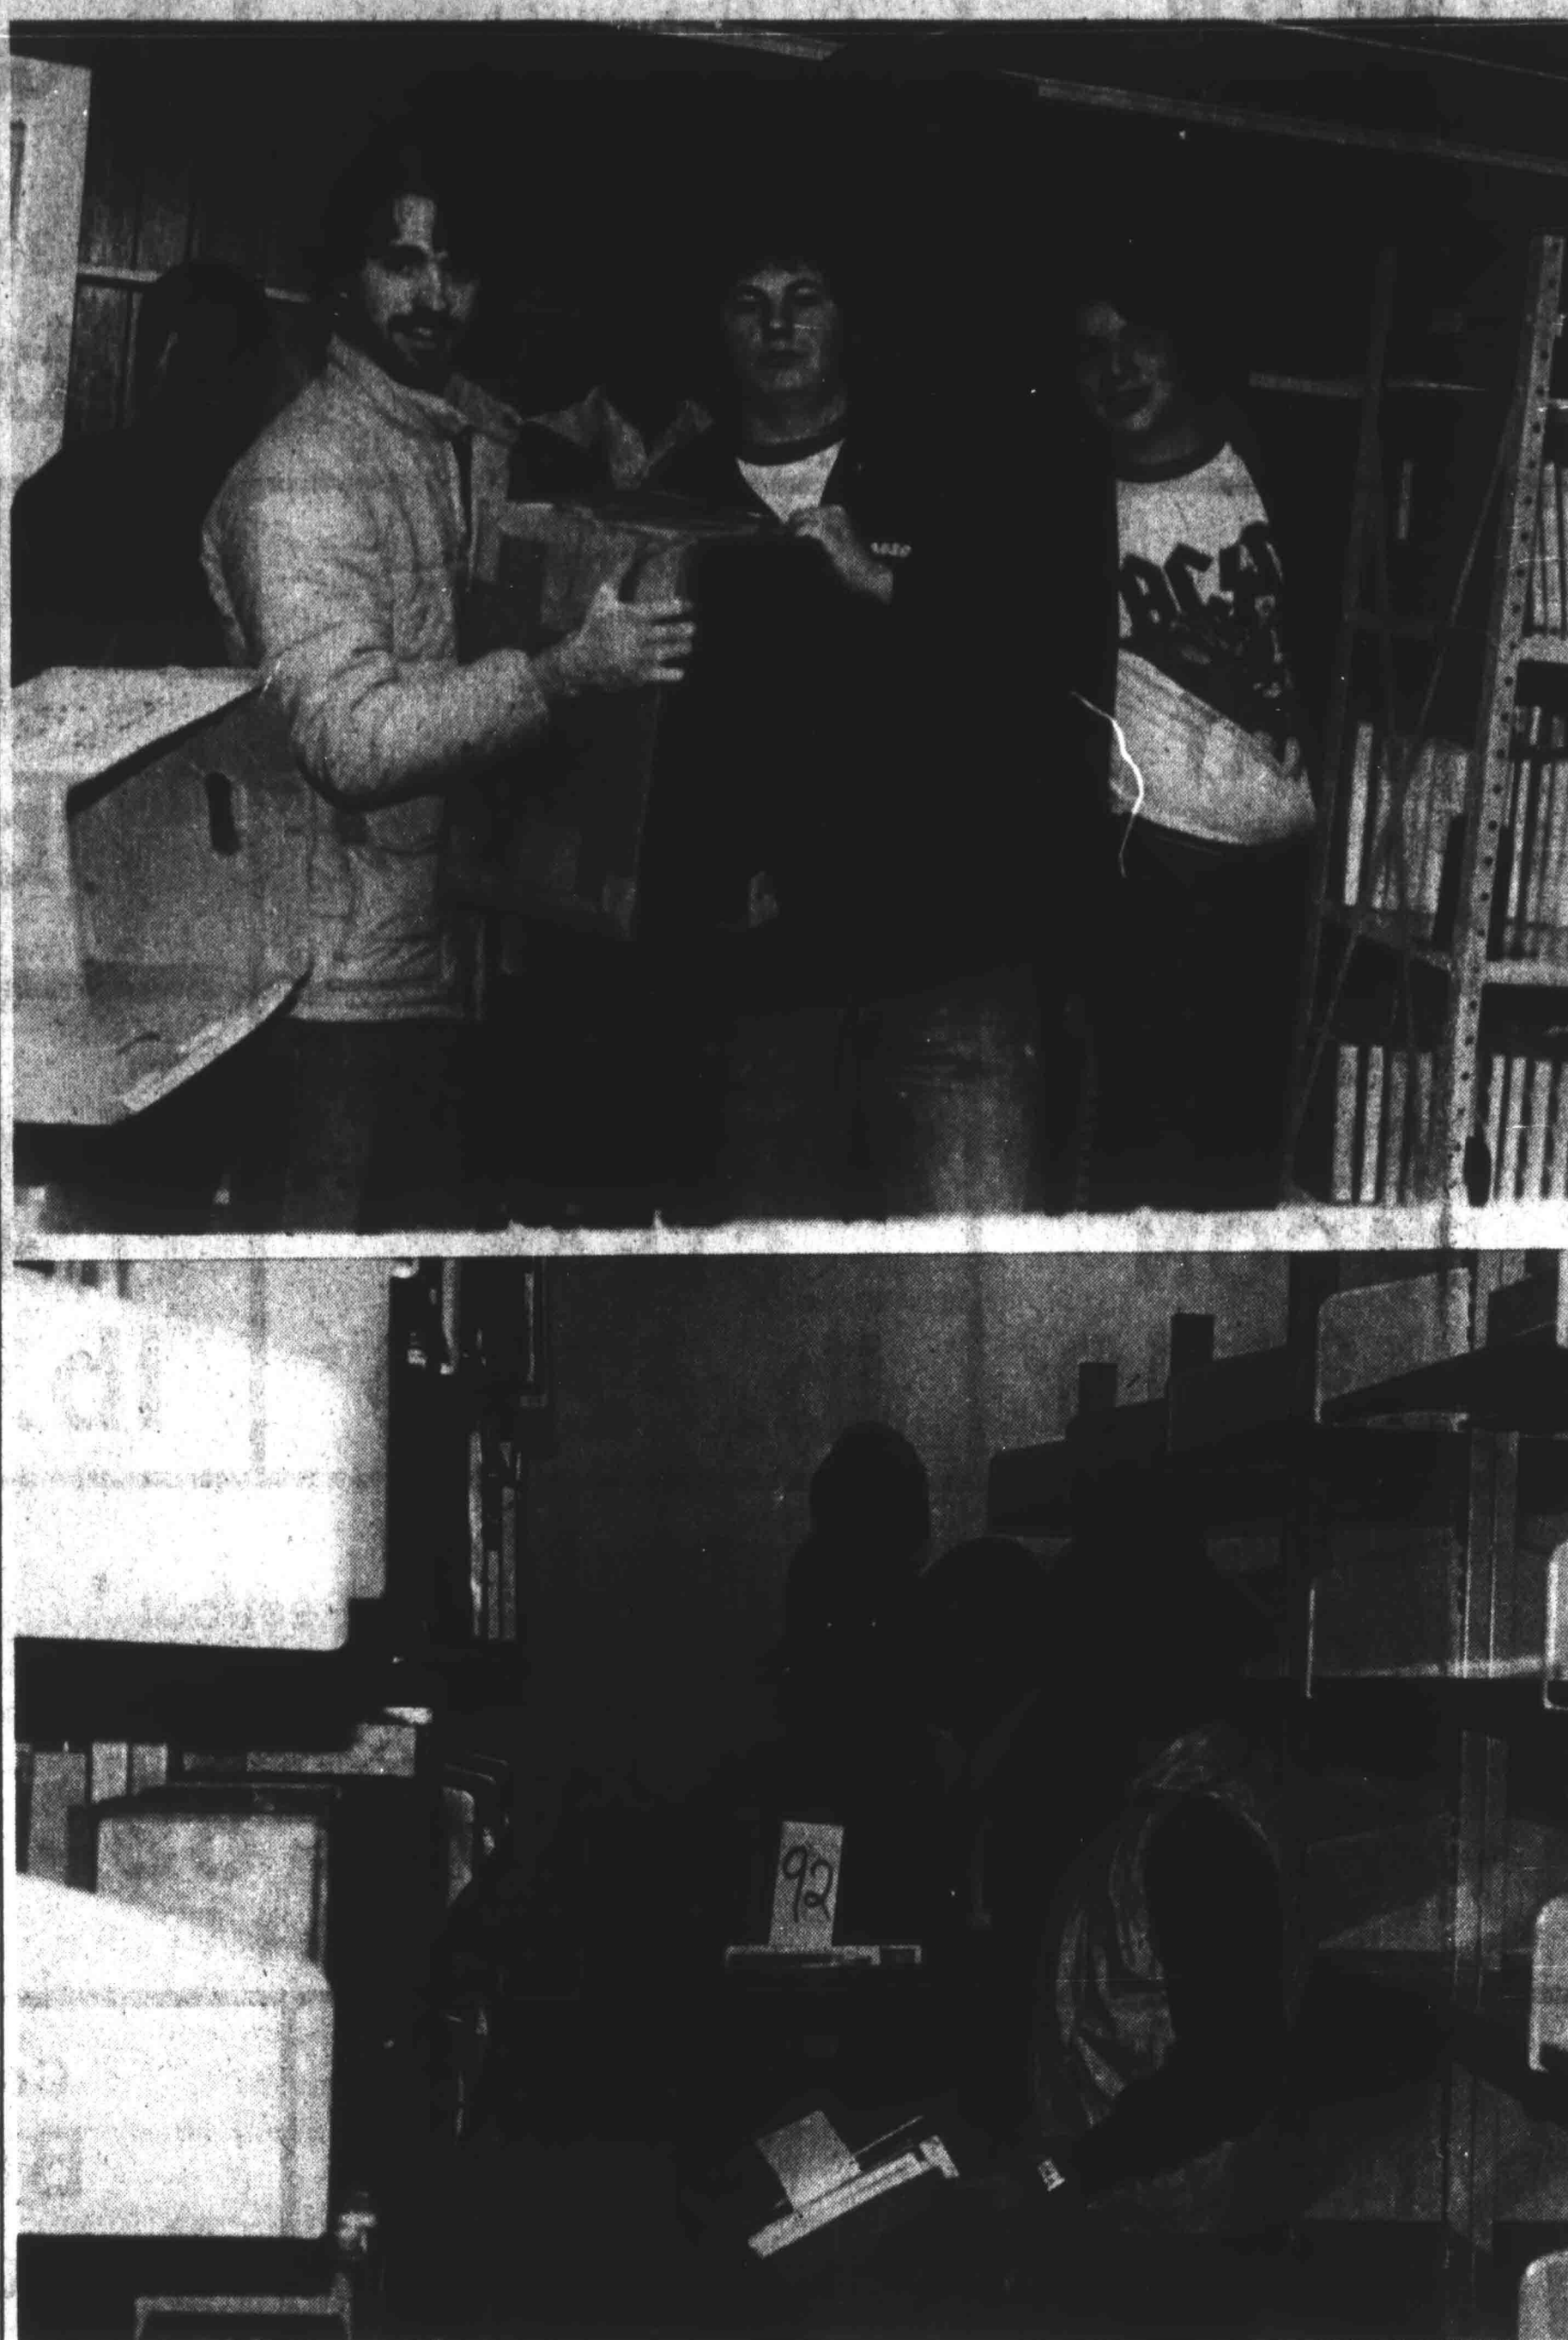

"Two sons and four daughters were born to them: William H., Conley, Acolian, Miriam, Tuley L. and Jewel.

"Mrs. Hall was born in Rutherford County, Tenn., August 2, 1848.

"Mr. and Mrs. Hall are members of the Christian Church, and he is a Democrat.

"He owns 750 acres of good land, with a nice residence and good improvements, and also owns Hall's Hotel, besides other residences and business houses at Hall's Station. He is a liberal, upright man, and a most valuable citizen.

"He has two sisters and one

NATO Cagers Include Hurt

Sgt. Jeff Hurt, grandson of the Wymond Hurts, of Halls, who is with the Air Force, stationed in Iceland, has been chosen for the North Atlantic Organization basketball team.

He will fly to Heathrow Airport Jan. 30th to spend a day in London, and go by train to Glasgow, Scotland, for two days, and go to Edzel, Scotland to participate in a week-long U.S. Armed Forces Overseas, Tournament with Army, Navy, and Marine Corps teams from all over Europe.

TREES DESTROYED

Call Halls Police Chief Buddy Moore, 836-9285, if you can help him learn who destroyed young trees on the Halls Elementary School campus.

Present were seven members and three visitors, Mrs. Patricia Galloway, of Double Bridges, and Mrs. Edna Hardy and Mrs. Mabel Harrison, of Barr.

Mrs. Connell explained quilting by the block and quilting as you go with small frames to hold as you work.

Pattern making was shown, and she displayed several pillows with patterns of flowers which were quilted.

Mrs. John Kilpatrick led the devotion. Roll was answered with a product each liked.

Mrs. Ann Swime spoke on food and nutrition and Mrs. Elaine Hilliard talked on home management.

Refreshments were enjoyed. The next meeting will be at 1:30 p.m. Feb. 17th, with Mrs. Elsie Hilliard.

WALTER I. MADDEN, of Jackson, will speak at Halls-Gates Rotary Club at noon Monday on his trip to Russia.

Former plant manager of American Clean Tile Co. in Jackson, he is manufacturing manager of the plants in Jackson, Fayette, Ala., and two plants in Kentucky. He is president of the Jackson Rotary Club. He was chosen Jackson's Man of the Year in 1979.

Candidate

JOE B. O'STEEN, reporting many inquiries as to my intentions pertaining to the upcoming sheriff's election on Aug. 5, 1982, says he will be a candidate for re-election.

"I have enjoyed being your sheriff for the past 5 1/2 years. I appreciate the support I have received from you wonderful people of Lauderdale County. We have come a long way, but we still have some work to do. Together, we can complete the job we started.

"Yes, we will face some trying times between now and election day. There will, no doubt, be several candidates in this sheriff's race. Our opposition is already working and planning on how they can divide our votes. We must stand united.

"As has always been my policy, I will not be drawn into a mud-slinging type campaign. Most of you know me and know what I stand for. I ask your continued support for the upcoming campaign. Let's keep Lauderdale County moving forward. We cannot afford to regress. Talk to your friends, talk to your neighbors, talk to everyone who will listen to you, and let's have another victory come August 5, 1982."

ASPAR TIPS

Few people realize that the asparagus is a member of the lily family. If allowed to grow, the asparagus tips would throw out tall stalks and crown them with six-petaled flowers, the trademark of the lily.

Let's Talk

Learn to make a firm decision

By REV. LEE TRUMAN
Copley News Service

A common problem of persons who seek professional help through counseling is that they have not learned to be peacefully decisive.

People make choices every day, but some never seem to make choices which fit their core needs, avoiding situations in which it is necessary to make irreversible decisions. They will struggle through the tangled self-created underbrush of their own frustration and blame unfriendly circumstances or their stars while they trudge through life.

These bewildered persons vaguely want a different kind of life, a life more closely related to their ideals, but they are never quite able to achieve the techniques of being decisive, and for them life stays in the same old rut.

To be a decisive person is one of the important achievements of emotional maturity. A counselor's rule of thumb is that the deeper the emotional confusion, the harder it will be for that person to make any firm decisions.

When a person is caught in the grip of emotional conflict, the simplest decision can be impossibly difficult. In extreme forms, this kind of emotional incapacity can leave people in an unmoving state for hours or they move aimlessly about until they are able to summon enough inner strength to make a choice. Such persons need intensive care.

Ten percent of being decisive is knowing where one wants to go and 90 percent is learning to say "no." The art of being able to be negative, to be quietly unaggressive and firm, is the mark of individuals confident of their direction and committed to letting no minor consideration divert them from their course.

There has been so much emphasis put upon our "thinking positive" that we have lost the skill and place in our lives for the quiet firmness to say "no."

To make a few feeble, half-hearted choices is the mark of vacillation, and the lot of vast numbers of

Nuptial Rites Said

MR. AND MRS. OLIVER JOSHUA NUNN, Jr. were married in the home of the groom's parents, in Halls, at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 18th. The Rev. Paul Jones, pastor of First United Methodist Church of Halls, performed a double ring ceremony.

The marriage took place in the living room before a white prayer bench, flanked by baskets of magnolia leaves. On the mantel was an arrangement of 'mums and Dutch iris with pink candles in hurricane shades. Dutch iris and baby's breath in a low bowl stood on the secretary.

The bride, Linda Baker Meeks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Baker, of Gates, wore a soft lavender dress with tiny pleats running vertically from shoulder to hem, outlined with ruffles at the neck and hem. She wore a corsage of pink orchids.

She entered on the arm of her son, David Meeks. Her attendant was her sister-in-law, Mrs. Royce Baker.

Mr. Nunn was best man for his son. The dining room table was laid with a cut-work cloth made by the groom's grandmother, the late Mrs. Katie P. Warren. It was centered with a 5-branched candelabrum filled with white candles and pink carnations.

The pink and white bride's cake, topped with the bride and groom dolls from the parent's cake of 1936, was served by Mrs. Royce Baker.

Mrs. J. W. Warren, Jr. served a pink punch. A groom's chocolate cake, decorated with white tennis rackets, was offered by Mrs. Harry Adcock.

When the bride and groom departed they were pelted with snow balls instead of rice!

The bride's grandparents, were the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker, of Halls, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Beard, of Frog Jump.

The groom's grandparents were the late Joshua Henry Nunn and the late Dr. and Mrs. James Willis Warren, of Forked Deer.

Both bride and groom attended secondary school in Halls. Mr. Nunn was graduated from University of Tennessee College of Pharmacy in Memphis. He is owner and operator of Nunn Drug Co. in Halls.

Backyard Gardener

Try these in 1982 garden

By PATRICK DENTON
Copley News Service

Every year, a group of new varieties of home garden flowers and vegetables is announced as the "All-America Selections" for the coming garden season. These new award-winning varieties have been rated as the best for North American gardens by a council of expert, professional judges at trials conducted across the United States and Canada. Though experienced hobby gardeners like to try these superior new varieties in their gardens each year, beginners should consider them too because they have been judged best in their class.

And for flower's best means uniform plants and blossoms, a long season of bloom, and resistance to weather, disease and pests. In vegetables, best means top quality taste and texture, high yields on compact plants and disease resistance.

Let's Talk

A time to die

By REV. LEE TRUMAN
Copley News Service

A friend, who was both a competent and brilliant professor recently died. In the process of his terminal illness, he kept a detailed account of the things that were happening to him, his thoughts, feelings, and the insights that came as a part of this experience. He was a trained observer, and both he and his surviving spouse asked that they would remain anonymous.

"He told me I had to go into the hospital immediately and suddenly I felt both fear and panic. I didn't know what was wrong, or even what he suspected. Suddenly I was a trained observer, and both he and his surviving spouse asked that they would remain anonymous.

"The next day, Saturday, I went to the hospital and they found me a dead. The last time I was in the hospital was when I was 15 years old and had my tonsils removed. I had never been a patient in one.

"I was negatively impressed with how one gets processed as a patient. I went through all of the business rooms and finally they put me in a wheelchair. There was nothing wrong with me, I could walk. The only limit to my activity was my fingers, but here I was in a wheelchair.

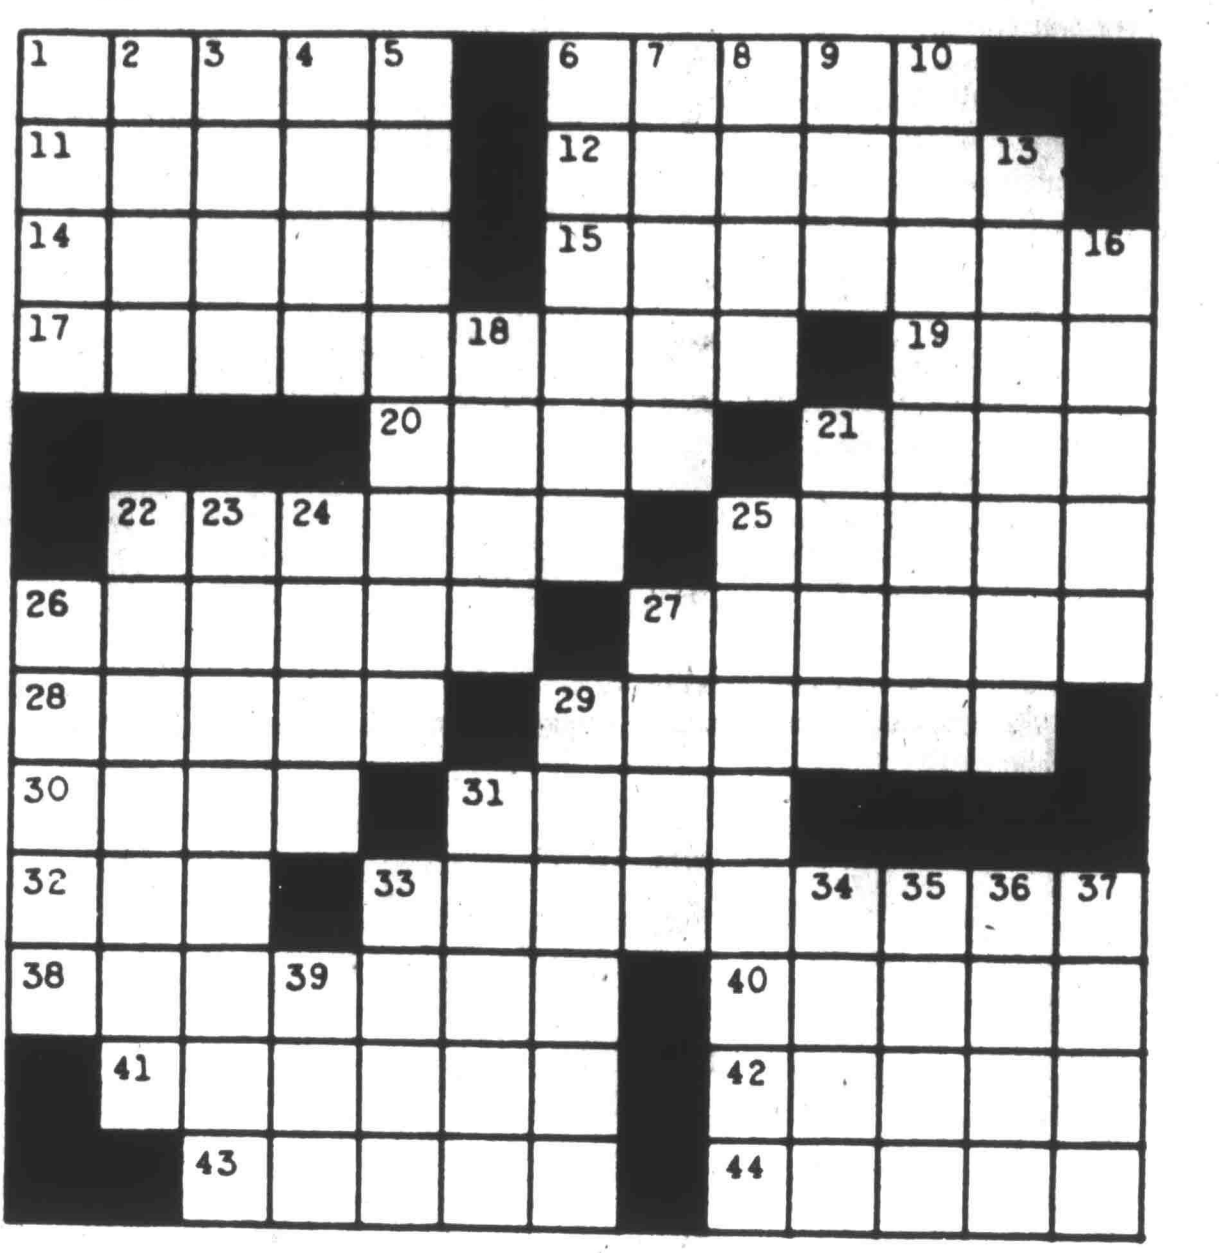

"Again, I had a sense of being passive, inactive, and one assumes the role of a patient. This is the way you behave in a hospital.

"Because my doctor didn't practice in the hospital nearest my home I was to be in, and they did not do a thing for me that whole weekend. Why the waste of money keeping me in the hospital over the weekend I do not know. Besides, it was my luck to be put in the wrong ward.

"Monday morning they moved me to the right ward, the neurosurgeon came with two medical students. He said what I had was a rare disease and it was instructive for these two medical students to see these symptoms.

Stitching Witchery

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

A long time ago I wrote a series of columns on putting a sleeve into a garment. It was not much changed since then. Sleeves still go into the armhole and sleeves still can say "homemade" if not done correctly.

Here's how it goes: Cutting: Of course, be sure the sleeve is cut as the pattern directs. Next, consider alterations. If you have made any changes in the front or back bodice that affect the armhole, you must adjust the sleeve accordingly. Make all markings clearly.

Ease stitching: Before underarm seam of sleeve has been stitched make the ease stitching around cap. Unless otherwise designated by your pattern, this stitching is made from notch, over cap, to notch. Adjust the stitch length of your machine to a longer stitch, but one only long enough to be pulled. A stitch too long will cause puckering in your sleeve cap.

Loosen upper tension slightly. Stitching from the right side of fabric, make one row of stitching on the one-half-inch line. Make a second row between the first row and the raw edge.

Underarm seam and cuff: Stitch and press underarm seam. Attach cuff (it is so much easier to work with a cuff before the sleeve has been set in).

With wrong side of garment toward you, slip sleeve into armhole. Pin shoulder line, underarm seam and notches. Pin between notches and underarm seam.

Gently pull on bobbin threads of ease stitching to draw sleeve cap into armhole. Sleeve should remain slightly larger than area to which it is to be stitched. Adjust ease smoothly and do not work any ease in at top of sleeve (one inch on either side of shoulder line).

Basting: Once easing has been done, pin frequently with pins at right angles to stitching and heads beyond raw edge. Check for any unwanted pleats or wrinkles.

Hand-baste sleeve in place on one-half-inch line. Remove pins and stitching. Machine-stitch sleeve in place starting and stopping at underarm.

Make a second row of stitching on the one-half-inch line. Do not trim remainder of seam allowances unless specifically called for in your pattern.

Do not steam press sleeve cap. Simply finger press seam allowances toward sleeve.

At one end of gathering, insert a pin at right angles to the stitching. Wrap the thread ends around the pin to secure. From the opposite end gently pull on bobbin threads to work in gathering. When gathered to the right length, insert a second pin to secure these threads end. Now, nothing can go anywhere while you work.

Work with the gathers until they are evenly distributed and neatly in place. Pin at right angles to stitching.

Hand-baste on the one-half-inch line. Do not remove gathering stitches yet. Machine-stitch on the seamline, having the gathered section toward you. Keep a hand on each side of presser foot to prevent overlapping or pinning. Stitch slowly and you'll be all right. Remove gathering stitches.

If you are gathering a long area (such as the top of a skirt), do not make the gathering stitches all in one piece. Break them up into sections. Much easier to work with and much less chance of breaking your thread.

Another way to gather: Lay a length of pearl cotton, dental floss, embroidery floss or two strands of regular thread along the line to be gathered. Over this cord, narrow zigzag. Gently pull on each end of cord to gather. Works great for easing in a sleeve also.

Generously grease sides and bottom of 13x2-inch pan. Line bottom of pan with wax paper; sprinkle with two tablespoons confectioners' sugar.

In large saucupan, dissolve one package gelatin in 1/2 cup water. Add one pack-used for construction may have matched lines, but when it is concentrated into a buttonhole it can suddenly become too dark or too light. Neither is real terrific.

Work practice buttonholes in scrap of your fabric to find the right cord thread. Except as special design features, buttonholes should not be noticed.

Hemlines: Oh, the stories I could tell about hems. From too wide to too narrow, from uneven to sagging, hems can be a pain.

Remember, the same width hem does not work for every fabric. Stitches used to put in a hem should never be noticeable on the right side of the garment (work stitches BETWEEN the hem and garment, not over the hem edge). Do not turn under the raw edge of the hem allowance except on very lightweight fabrics. Use hem tape ONLY when absolutely necessary.

Above all, make sure your hem is level.

You wouldn't think garter could be all that big a deal, right? You write the fabric to fit another piece of fabric and you stitch.

Well - it isn't that easy. Badly done, garters are as noticeable as lipstick on a shirt collar (although not as life-threatening).

Set the stitch length on your machine to a stitch just long enough to be pulled - no longer. Loosen upper tension slightly. Make two rows of gathering stitches, one on each side of the seamline (at one-half and three-fourths inch).

TENNESSEE TRAVELER

Skiing In Tennessee

Snow skiing in Tennessee? You bet!

Thanks to new snow-making techniques and safer equipment, skiing below the Mason-Dixon line is not only possible but positively exhilarating.

With at least 19 active ski clubs scattered across the state, Tennessee has developed three major ski areas to serve this rapidly growing sport. Cedar Cliff in Clifton, Tennessee, and Ober Gatlinburg in Gatlinburg, Tennessee, both offer Alpine, or downhill, skiing. Roan Mountain State Resort Park near Roan Mountain, Tennessee, provides a wonderland for cross country skiing.

Ober Gatlinburg, atop Mt. Harrison overlooking the resort city of Gatlinburg in the Great Smoky Mountains, is Tennessee's largest ski resort. Ober Gatlinburg has expanded significantly over the past year with the addition of new ski runs, more snowmaking equipment and two new quad chairlifts. The four ski runs available range from a novice slope to a challenging 3,200-foot slope designed for intermediate or better skiers. Two other advanced runs will be completed next year.

In addition to the natural ski runs, Ober Gatlinburg offers the world's largest artificial ski surface. The 215,000 square feet of astroturf covered with a layer of tiny plastic beads and sprayed with a silicon solution provides a year-round ski area which operates even during the summer months.

Rental equipment is available and expert instruction is offered for individual or group lessons. The entire area is lighted for night skiing and capacity is approximately 3,000 skiers per day. The resort also features a winding, 1,800-foot Alpine slide, an ice skating arena and the Old Heidelberg Castle with American, Swiss and German cuisine and an oom-pa-pa band.

Although Ober Gatlinburg can be reached easily by automobile, many people find it more convenient to park in downtown Gatlinburg and ride up to the ski lodge on an aerial tramway. Soaring to a height of 300 feet above the ground, two counter-balanced cars each carrying up to 120 passengers make the trip in 12 minutes on a regular daily schedule.

While there are no overnight accommodations at the ski lodge, the city of Gatlinburg offers scores of hotels and motels, many offering weekday or weekend ski packages. Information on ski packages is available from the Gatlinburg Chamber of Commerce which maintains a toll-free number, (800) 251-9868, for out-of-state residents. Tennessee residents may call (615) 436-4178. Ober Gatlinburg also offers a toll-free number for information on ski conditions, (800) 251-9202, for out-of-state residents.

Cedar Cliff, located near Waynesboro in the southwestern part of the state, is Tennessee's other major downhill ski resort. Presently there is a 600-foot beginners slope and construction is underway for an improved intermediate slope with a double chair lift. Eleven snowmaking guns assure a snow-covered slope when weather permits, and complete equipment rentals and professional instruction are available. Group skiing is offered Mondays and Tuesdays and the slope is lighted for night skiing.

A day lodge offers concessions and meals, and overnight accommodations may be secured at nearby Waynesboro or Savannah. Information of ski conditions is available by calling (615) 676-5122.

One of the fastest growing winter resorts in Tennessee is the beautiful Roan Mountain State Resort Park in the northeastern corner of the state. The 6,283-foot Roan Mountain has long been famous for its breathtaking summer display of rhododendron, but the addition of cross country ski trails has made the park a year-round attraction.

Unlike the heart-pounding excitement of downhill skiing, cross country skiing affords a much more relaxed pace. The natural beauty of the mountain landscape, the abundance of wildlife and the quiet solitude of the winter scene are among the rewards for winter visitors to the park. With its high meadows, fields, and forests, Roan Mountain is perfectly suited for winter activity.

The three designated trails encompass roads, paths, and other parts of the park which lend themselves to travel on snow. The easiest of the 8½ miles of trail is the Meadows Trail, which meanders through the meadows along the Doe River. The Forest Trail, which winds along an old logging road, and Mountain Trail, which leads over a wide, paved road from Strawberry Bald, both contain steep grades and should only be attempted by more accomplished skiers.

The park does not provide ski rentals, but accommodations inside the park include 20 modern cabins, each sleeping six people, plus two campgrounds and a restaurant. Reservations and ski conditions are available by calling (615) 772-3303.
