Tupperware Gift Is Saluted

By Charles T. Peal
Six East Tennessee trees have just been declared new national champions by the American Forestry Association, the organization the measurements of winners in the national register of big trees.

With these additions, Tennessee can now lay claim to 12 national tree champions.

One of the new trees, a paw-paw, old and near death but persisting nearby the Springdale fire tower in Claiborne County was nominated by Harold West, a local tobacco farmer. The gnarled, lightning-struck tree has trunk girth of 4 feet, 7 inches, height of 25 feet, and a crown spread of 23 feet.

This small-growing understory tree forms colonies of root sprouts and produces a banana-like soft fruit which use to be harvested in the early days. Many remember boyhoods in which whistles were made from this wood, because the bark slips easily. There are still some of these trees growing in Lauderdale County.

Anyone who believes he or she knows the area whereabouts of possible big tree champions is asked to contact the local state forester.

Gardens Planned

1983 is here, and what was last year's vegetable garden has suddenly become this year's garden. Start planning the garden now in order to make maximum use of every inch of space to meet family needs.

One of the more important requirements for a successful garden is its location. Locate the garden in an area that is exposed to full sunlight in order to produce maximum yields of high quality vegetables. They cannot survive very well in soils that are poorly drained. Choose soils that are brownish in color.

Test the soil to determine the lime and fertilizer needs. Proper lime levels in the soil are very important to efficient fertilizer use and control of certain disorders such as blossom-end rot on tomatoes.

Plant long growing crops such as strawberries and asparagus in areas where they can grow for several years and not be in the way of cultural practices required for other crops. Consider the number in your family, their likes and dislikes, and whether there is a need for both fresh and frozen products.

Heavy fruiting crops such as tomatoes, peppers, cucumbers, and beans should be planted where they will be exposed to the greatest amount of sunlight. Crops which are grown for their leafy or vegetative characteristics, with the exception of sweet potatoes, can be planted in the more shady areas of the garden. Such crops include lettuce, radish, broccoli, cauliflower, and cabbage.

Make a scale drawing of the vegetable garden before planting to assure efficient use of the area. Include row spacings to be sure all the desired vegetables will fit into the available space. If planting dates, required amounts of seed or transplants, and variety names are included on the plan, it will be easy to order or purchase seed.

Crops having similar maturing dates should be grouped together so that space may be easily utilized for later plantings. Don't plant all of the short-season crops required to meet family needs at one time. Successive plantings of radishes, snapbeans, lettuce, sweet corn, cucumbers, and other crops ten to fourteen

Manager

RONNIE HINES, 39, has been named manager of the Halls branch of Lauderdale Farmers Co-Operative, succeeding Jack Newman, who resigned last week to join Gates Banking & Trust Co. Hines, son of Mrs. Jane Hines, of Halls, and the late Robert Hines, is a 1962 graduate of Halls High School. He was employed by Sylvania at Dyersburg for 15 years before the plant closed in 1981. He joined the Co-Op in November, 1981. A former HHS football player he is an avid hunter and horseman. He and his wife, the former Brenda Jennings, of Halls, reside at 136 Jaynes Drive in Halls, with their children, Rhonda, 14, Rodney, 11, and John, 6.

days apart will provide fresh vegetables over a longer period of time. Tomatoes are a long-season crop, but making two or three plantings of this crop will allow fresh tomatoes late in the growing season.

Many varieties of vegetables are available. Choose those which are recommended and are adapted to your area. These varieties are listed in Publication 447, "Vegetable Garden Guide" and Publication 418, "Recommended Vegetable Varieties" both of

A Different View-Point

In an address delivered Friday night before the Tennessee Press Association meeting in Nashville, Gov. Lamar Alexander told of proposed changes in the public school curriculum and increased teacher pay in an effort to better prepare students for future jobs.

At the same time, he told of plans to create merit pay for teachers and so-called master teachers.

Much of the program is badly needed, but we have serious reservations about merit pay, since the difficulty of determining just who will qualify will likely create additional problems.

We approve and applaud Gov. Alexander's goals but would urge a great deal more study before including the merit pay program. It has been our experience that most teachers are dubious of such a program.

In the Memphis Commercial Appeal Sunday, there was an item in News Of Bygone Days, 125 years ago, that was telling of the churches, theatres, schools, etc., in Memphis, and ended with a few things that Memphis did not have which the editor apparently felt it should have. Among those listed was, in the editor's words, "worst of all, not a single school bus." How times do change! Now, the scream on every side in Memphis is about the numerous school buses and the required school bussing.

Meeting last week, the oil producing cartel known as OPEC failed to reach an agreement to slow the decline of oil prices, and in consequence many so-called economists are predicting dire results, foretelling bank failures, etc., because the poorer oil producing nations cannot meet their indebtedness. What a change from just a few years ago, when these same economists were blaming the uncontrolled surge in oil prices for the woes of the world.

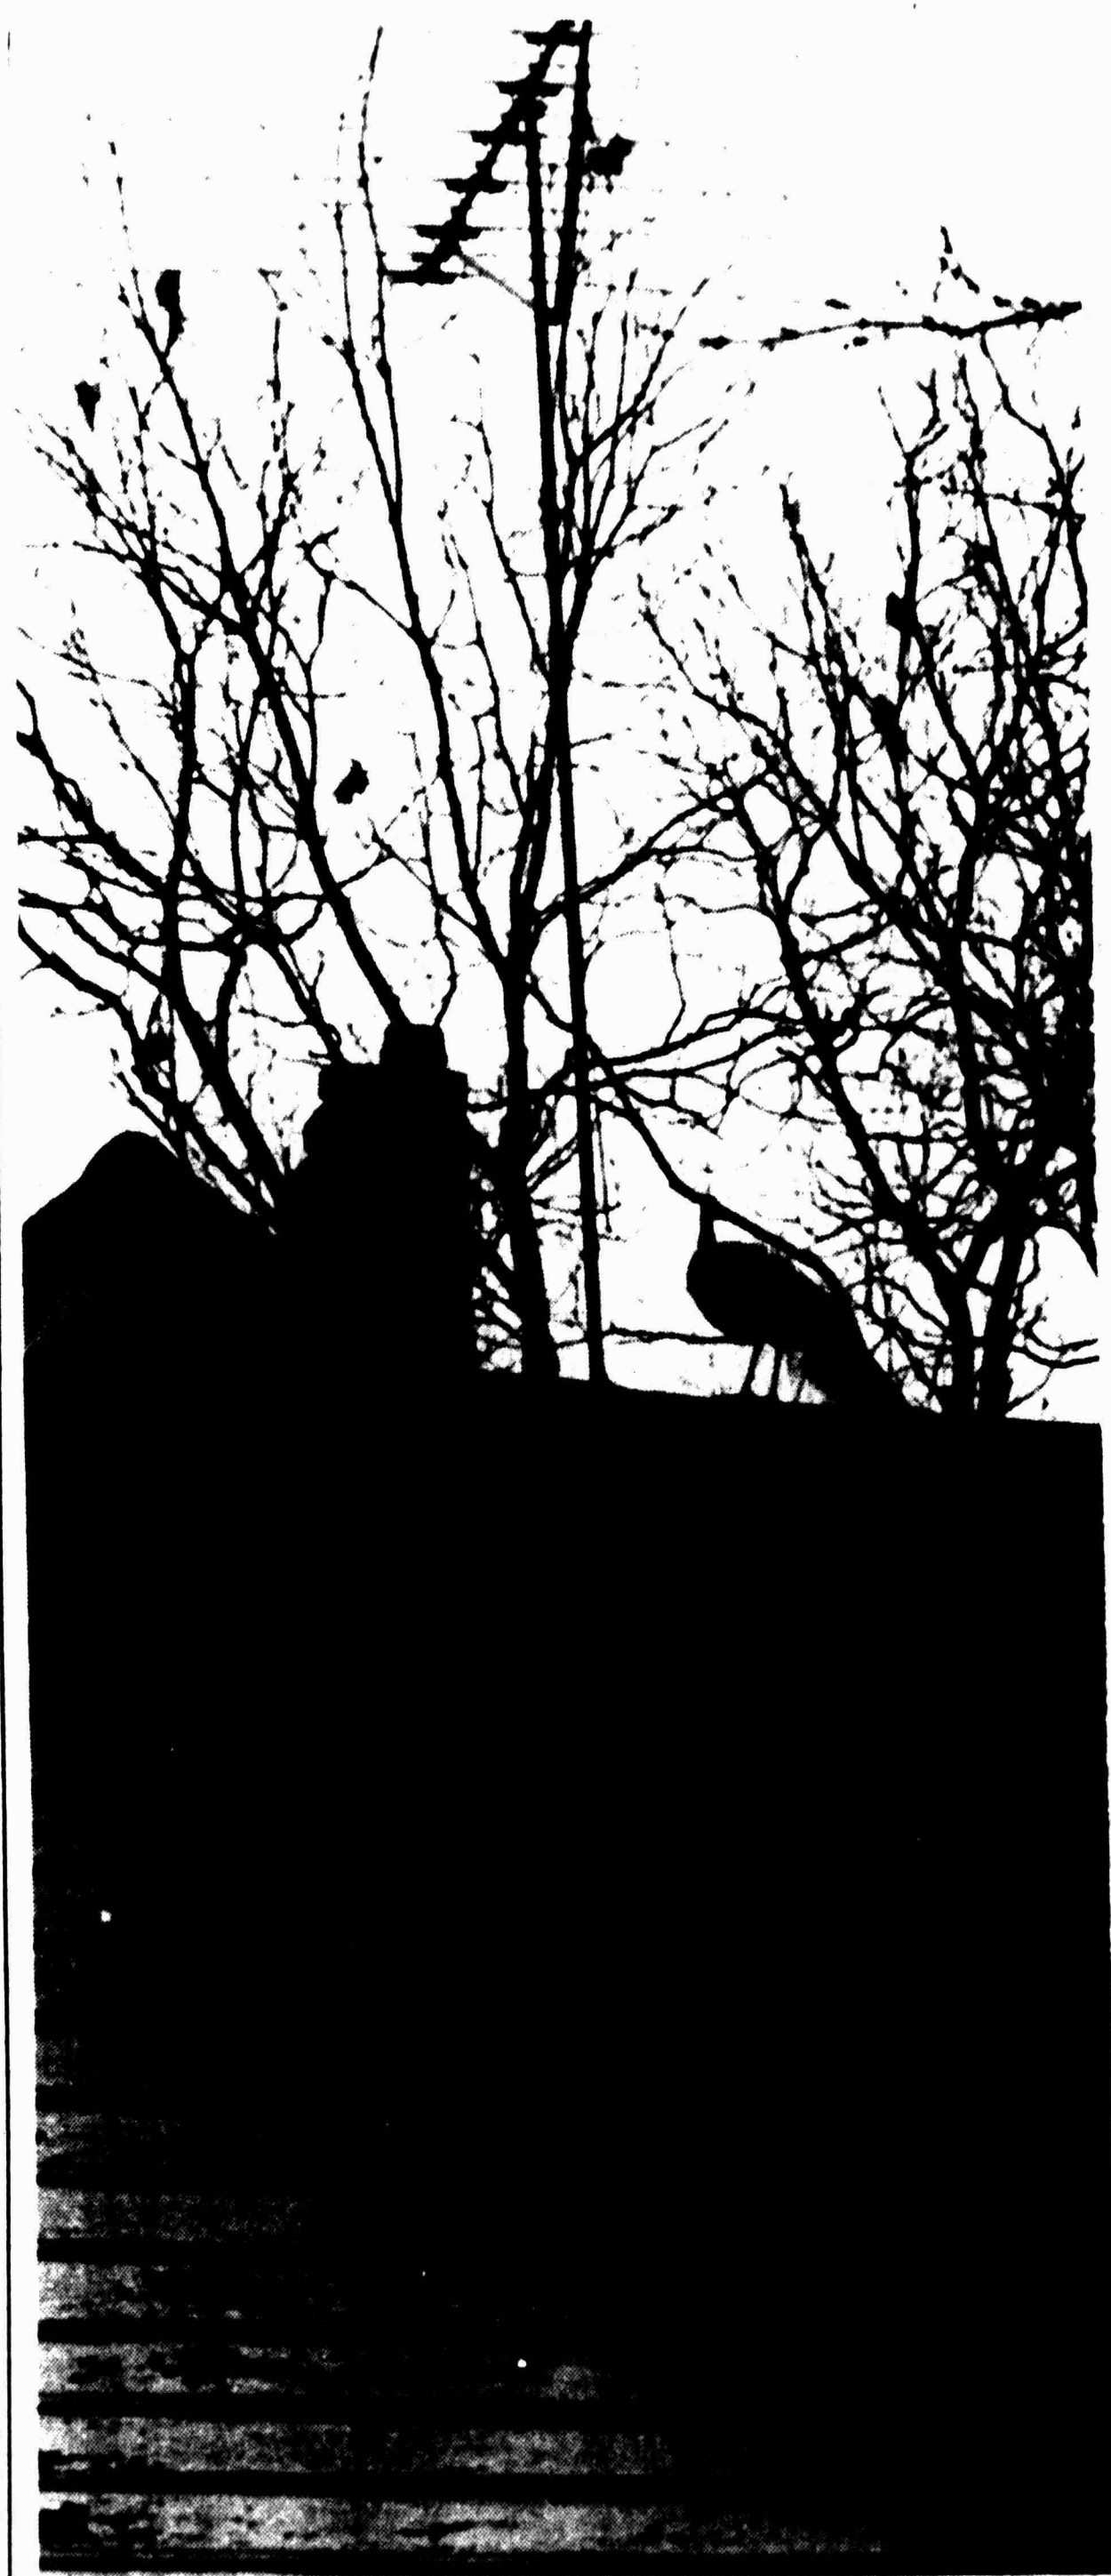

Some of these days, the world business leaders are going to learn that they cannot repeal the law of supply and demand, which always results in falling consumption with rising prices.

which are available at your local County Extension Office. If possible, it is good to select varieties which are resistant to diseases because this will improve yields and quality of vegetables.

Don't be too eager to plant your garden with the first warm weather that occurs in late February. Keep in mind the average frost-free dates of April 10 for Lauderdale County and plan your planting dates accordingly. Planting vegetables as soon as the soil and air temperatures become warmer will allow greater production than late plantings. Plantings which occur at this time are less subject to insect damage than late plantings.

If land is available, rotate your garden annually to reduce a build-up of diseases, insects, and nematodes. If this is not possible, rotate the crops within the garden.

VIEWING THE WORLD Friday morning from the rooftop of the L. E. Cribfield house on East Main St. in Halls was this peacock. The Charles Cherrys had an added attraction for breakfast when they looked out a window and saw the bird next door. Jimmy Newman, of Ringer Lane, Halls, retrieved his bird Saturday morning.

HALLS SCHOOLS

By Candie Chipman and Kimberly Free
Several band members from Halls Junior High School participated in the Junior High All West Tennessee competition in Jackson.

Flag position try-outs are next Wednesday. Among the many hopeful girls are several eighth graders.
Basketball season ended leaving both boys and girls without a victory. The season was delayed at the start by Christmas parades and such, so several games were postponed, but even a postponement didn't help the Tigers; they had eight games and eight losses. Better luck next year!

A not-so-looked-forward-to event was the receiving of report cards Thursday of last week. Although everyone was expecting quite a fall in grades, most students did fairly well.
Honor roll students for the third six weeks:
Eighth grade—Scott Davis, Trent Sutton, Leanne Johnson.
Seventh grade—Kim Keen, Geary Vaden, Tammy Jester.
This year's class favorites, chosen by students, are dependable, hard-working students:
For the eighth grade: Mary Ann Swims, former cheerleader, and Monty McWilliams, basketball and football manager.
For the seventh grade: Whitney McConnell, football cheerleader and basketball player, and Ashley Burnette, football player.
Action Teams from Halls High School's Distributive Education Club will present a program Friday to fourth grade rooms on "The Harmful Results of Shoplifting." Members of the teams are Diana Campbell, Susan Woods, Jackie Jacobs, June Gilliland, Jim Vaden, Paul Reynolds, Fletcher Taylor, Randell Stenson, Tonya Taylor, Eldred Tyus, Stephen Hudson and Ricky Harber, Eugene Coffey and Angie Smith.

Another Action Team has painted new barrels for the school grounds and downtown Halls. Members of this group were Randy Hutcherson, Zack Heath, Steve Shands, John Lynch, Barry McWilliams and Sandra Jones. Hutcherson Scrap donated the blue paint.
A third Action Team is working on the annual fashion show. The March 11th show will be held for high school and junior high students. The March 13th show will be for the public. Models will be selected from the high school.

Members of this team are Tracie Dawson, Carol Avery, Masy Burrough, Tonya Taylor, Dana Hendren, Allison Hardy, Jennifer Countess, Jennifer Moore, Loretta Pool, Juanita Moore, Sharon Jackson, Tammy Mann, Stephen Hudson, Tracie Daniels, Angie Abernathy, Sharron Rickman, Tina Johnson, Chris Jones, Ray Newman, Pat Smith, Scott Meeka, Lawayne England, Clay Dew, Paul Ward and Clay Beavers, Margaret Robinson, Teresa Buckner.
A fourth Action Team is planning a banquet April 12th in the Community Center. Special guests will be all employers of club members. Team members are Freddy Cherry, Tammy Johns, Prince Duke, Tania Reece, Lori Lovelace, Alessa Newman, Tammy Hunter, Teresa Wallace, Teresa Dennis, Gertrude Eison, Sheila Gillon, Lisa Gilon and Kim Jackson.

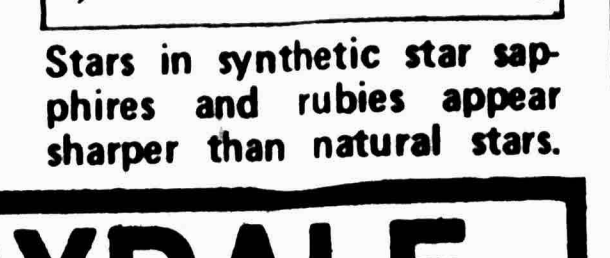

Another team is planning Career Day for Halls High, March 25th. Speakers from all areas of business, education, and military services will be represented.
Members of this team are Robert McBroom, Tommy Goodwin, Leonard Davis, Randy Smith and Rhonda Mila.
Also helping on this team are Tammy Reed, Lawyne

England, Bobby McCadney, David Davis, Beverly Henson and Reginald Moses. There will be a Financial Aid Workshop at 7 p.m. Feb. 3rd in the Halls High School library. All students planning to go to college who may need financial aid should attend with their parents. Parents should bring 1982 income tax statements. Representatives from Dyersburg State, The University of Tennessee in Martin, the University of Tennessee, Knoxville and Memphis State will be present.

ED JONES
8th DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE
REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

Though the 98th Congress formally convened on Jan. 3rd, its formal initiation of legislative business did not get underway until last week. This situation occurs at the outset of each new Congress for several reasons.
First, the President's State of the Union message traditionally affords the Administration the opportunity to not only report on the State of the Union, but also to present a legislative agenda.
In addition, with many new Members coming to the Congress, the Committees of the House and Senate must formally organize before they can begin considering legislation and get that legislation ready for action on the floor.
What added this year to the emphasis usually placed on any State of the Union message was the state of the economy and the anticipation that President Reagan's budget proposal would contain record setting deficits.
Certainly, there was little disagreement over the broad goals the President mentioned during his speech. No one questions the need to get fed-agreed to an eight billion dollar cut in defense spending. However, that cut reflects the acceptance of President Reagan's freeze on federal and military pay. In fact, that one action will save about four billion.

The remainder of the defense savings comes from lower fuel costs resulting from lower oil prices worldwide and from lower inflation.
Consequently, when fully considered, it appears that there is really no cut in defense spending.
Even members of the President's own party are saying that more must be done in that area.
Just a few days after the State of the Union message, the Administration announced that unemployment was likely to go over 11.5% nationwide, thus indicating even more impetus for some kind of government effort to get the unemployed back into paying jobs.
There is little doubt that the actions of this Congress are going to be framed by intense

Addressing Students

SANDRA STANLEY, savings teller at Bank of Halls, spoke to Halls High School vocational education students Monday on how their studies relate to business requirements, in observance of Office Education Week and Vocational Education Week. A vocational education student in HHS before her graduation from it, she majors in business in Dyersburg State College and was a part-time book-keeper for McDearman Motors in Halls before joining Bank of Halls as a teller in March, 1980.

CONFIDENTIAL CORNER

By Henry Murchison

Completely Wrong

More than a week has gone by since members of the Independent Truckers' Association declared a strike in protest of the recent tax bill increasing the gasoline tax by 5¢ per gallon and adding certain taxes on the trucking industry, some of which are not effective until July, 1985.

Since the start of the strike Jan. 31st, acts of vandalism and at least one murder have occurred, as violence spread through most of the 48 contiguous states. As a result, it seems to us that the truckers have harmed their cause much more than their method of protest has helped.

Certainly the truckers have a right to strike and by other means protest, but they do not have the right to damage property, threaten lives, and otherwise disrupt the lives of those who do not agree with them.

The truckers should start now to work toward repeal or easing of the tax increases through legal and sensible means and not try to coerce the Congress or the public with violence and terrorism.

Perhaps they have some grievances, but they are unlikely to receive any relief with their present methods.

Touches Locally

Most of our readers know that Krista Hendren, daughter of the Thomas Hendrens, of Halls, was recently diagnosed as having leukemia and that she is receiving treatment in St. Jude Children's Hospital in Memphis.

What most of you do not know is that Krista is being treated with new drugs that were pioneered by Dr. Gaston Rivera in St. Jude Clinic and by Dr. Thomas L. Avery in the hospital laboratory.

The treatment incorporates the use of two new drugs, VM-26 and Cytosine arabinoside, for use in "high-risk" leukemia. Twenty-eight children have been treated with the new drugs, and of this group, only eight have relapsed.

Dr. Avery, who resides in Bartlett, is the son of the Paul Averages, of Gates, and the brother of Paul Avery, Jr., of Halls. He is a graduate of Halls High School, the University of Tennessee in Martin, and the University of Minnesota.

The article telling of the new treatment and its developers was published in a St. Jude Hospital publication, Partners In Hope, and was taken from an article by Dr. Alvin Maurer.

Cotton Meeting In Brownsville

By Charles T. Peal

Lauderdale County cotton producers are invited, at 9:15 a.m. Feb. 22nd, to a Cotton Marketing and Outlook Conference, including luncheon, in the Gold Room downstairs in the Brownsville Bank.

Green Scene

The program, arranged by the Extension Service, Cotton Board, National Cotton Council, and Tenn. Agricultural Council, will present well known and high quality speakers on various aspects of cotton economics and marketing, current and future.

Outlook's Improving

Much of the gloom and doom of the 70's is being answered with optimism. It turns out that we're not going to breed ourselves out of existence, nor are we going to allow our air and water to become so dirty that we die from our own filth. We're not going to run out of energy, and there is a growing belief that as some of our other natural resources become scarce, we will have the technology to replace them.

Soil erosion is going to continue to be a problem until we face up to it, and one of the most critical problems in agriculture at the end of this century will be a shortage of water.

Individual states and the federal government will continue to improve their ability to open up world markets to U. S. products.

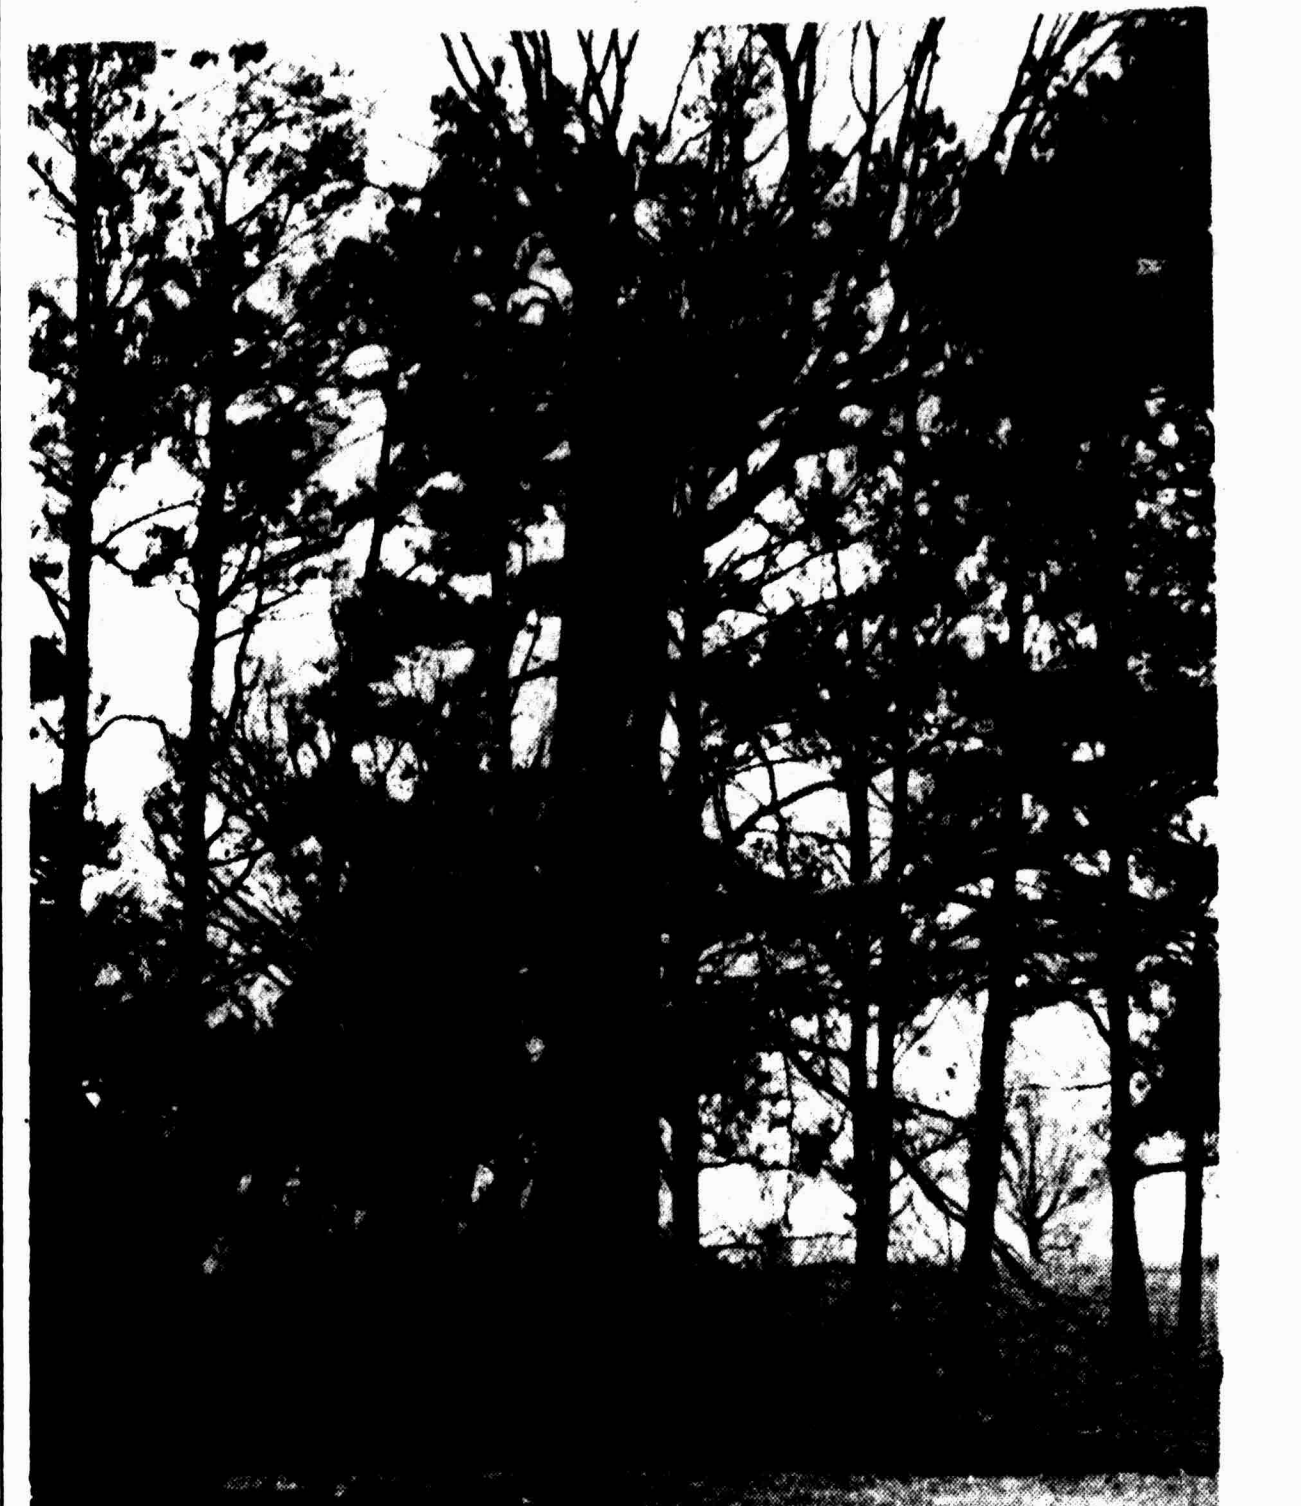

We're going to learn to do a more successful and vigorous job of promoting farm products in our domestic economy as well.

"Computer technology is going to allow farmers to do a better job of planning ahead and will also help keep costs under control.

Ownership of farms will continue to be mostly by the family or an individual. Foreign investors and large corporations will not take over U. S. agriculture.

The public's awareness over health and diet will increase, creating more demand for

SAVERS WARNING

NEXT, THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT IS GOING TO WITHHOLD TAXES FROM YOUR SAVINGS INTEREST AND DIVIDENDS...

The recently passed tax bill will require us to withhold and forward to the Internal Revenue Service 10% of the interest you earn on depository accounts, certificates, and dividends.

A vigorous campaign to convince Congress to repeal this 10% withholding tax is urgently needed. To be successful, this campaign will require the help of each and every one of our valued customers.

Our bank, along with financial institutions across the United States, is working to change the law. We feel that it is unnecessary, unfair, and unjust.

We urge you to join our efforts by writing letters to your representative in Congress and to the two senators from this state. Tell them you want the 10% withholding tax repealed, because it would impose an unfair penalty on savers like yourself.

For assistance in contacting your representative and senators please ask any of our bankers. If we all act now, Congress will get a clear message from the voters back home, and they will work to repeal this needless law.

The word theatre comes from the Greek word theatron, meaning "a place for seeing."

THE TENNESSEE TRAVELER

Memphis Clarence Saunders is best remembered as the inventor of the first successful self-service market and building a pink marble mansion, commonly known as the Pink Palace. Saunders' idea eventually grew into the huge Piggly Wiggly supermarket chain, but before the Pink Palace was completed Saunders went bankrupt. The mansion came into the possession of the city of Memphis, which turned the landmark building into an impressive museum of natural and cultural history.

One of the most interesting of the Pink Palace's many fascinating exhibits is an exact replica of Saunders' original self-service market, complete with signs telling patrons how to shop. The shelves of that 1917 Piggly Wiggly are fully stocked with items of the period when Ivory soap sold for 7 cents a bar, Campbell's soup for 8 cents a can and Heinz catsup cost 12 cents a bottle.

In addition to the replica of the nation's first self-service market, the museum contains a full-sized replica of an 1880s general store and a turn-of-the-century drug store complete with soda fountain and hundreds of patent medicines and nostrums like Kutnow's anti-asthmatic cigarettes and Acadonia's boil poultice.

Another of the museum's favorite attractions is the Clyde Park miniature animated circus. Sealed one inch to one foot, this five-ring, hand carved circus contains more than 1,000 pieces. With the flip of a switch lights glow under the big top, jugglers juggle, and acrobats come to life on the high trapeze.

Other cultural exhibits are actually a series of interrelated displays which trace the development of the Mid-South, with particular emphasis given to Memphis. Exhibits range from prehistoric Indian artifacts to 20th century political figures like E.H. "Boss" Crump.

In the settlement and pioneer life section stands a re-constructed log cabin filled with pelts and handmade furnishings of the early 1800s. Surrounding the cabin are crude implements and saddles.

Growing up on the banks of the Mississippi, Memphis soon became known as a cotton trading center. Cotton is still the Mid-South's most important crop and exhibits progress through the era when cotton plantations were a way of life. Included here are bills of sale for slaves, a 60 pound iron ball with manacles, a 300 pound cotton bale and a hand-operated cotton gin.

Representing Memphis' history as a river town are bone dice from rowdy river characters and the evening attire their "painted ladies" wore. This display also presents articles from river boats like stevedore hooks and steamboat whistles.

One of the most substantial Civil War exhibits in America offers a step back in history. Artifacts include a surgery equipment, swords, flags, uniforms, carbines, Confederate currency and cannon balls imbedded in a tree trunk.

Not only is Memphis recognized as a cotton-trading center, it's also known as a major hardwood market. On the museum's first floor a small forest of tree specimens and a large tree house reflect this heritage. A "talking" tree dispenses forestry information and suspended above

The Pink Palace

This section is the complete, intricate root system of a loblolly pine.

The first floor of the two-story museum is devoted to natural history. More than a half-dozen interesting exhibits range from a live ant farm to a fossil of a 75-million-year-old reptile. Enhancing the exhibits are audio visual and many hands-on attractions.

For example, a unique model allows one to not only hear the sounds of birds but to simulate the movements of a bird in flight. A melon-sized ostrich egg, a hummingbird nest and a mounted screech owl are among scores of related articles in this bird exhibit.

The insect zoo showcases hundreds of bugs and spiders including a colony of white termites eating its way through decayed wood. Casemakers, such as wasps, can be found here as well as hundreds of butterflies, each with its own distinctive markings and vivid colorings.

Other highlights of the natural history area include a geology display with a working seismograph and a modern $750,000 planetarium which features weekly celestial and laser shows. Outdoors a man-made Oxbow lake recreates an abandoned river channel.

Other exhibits include a history of famous black Memphians and a large area for special changing exhibits. The museum is open Tuesday through Sunday with a $2 adult admission.

For more information about the museum's first floor attractions in the Tennessee area, contact the Memphis Department of Tourist Development, Room T, Box 23170, Nashville, Tennessee 37202.

Black pepper

Stuff turkey with Fruit Stuffing (recipe follows) or choose your own favorite. Close opening and truss with twine and wooden skewers. Sprinkle with black pepper, poultry seasoning, paprika or a little ginger, or rub with garlic to taste. Do not use salt.

Coat bird with oil. Place two saucers upside down in a baking dish large enough to hold the turkey. Rest bird on saucers, breast side down. Cover with wax paper.

Allow about 10 minutes per pound total cooking time for turkeys up to 12 pounds; 7 to 9 1/2 minutes per pound for larger birds. Divide cooking time in fourths. Turn one side up, then the other side up. Finish cooking breast side up.

During the last half of cooking time when turkey begins to brown, cover wings and end of drumsticks with small pieces of aluminum foil. Foil should not touch walls of the microwave.

After 80 minutes cooking time, test for doneness by inserting a fork between thigh and body. If juices run clear, the bird should be served at once. If the juices have a pink tinge, cover the bird with foil and let stand 15 to 20 minutes to finish cooking outside the oven.

Note: Cooking times are approximate, since they vary according to the shape and conformation of the bird.

Drain and pit. Cook apples in butter or margarine in a shallow baking dish about 10 minutes. Soak bread cubes in water, squeeze dry. Combine with fruit, poultry seasoning, salt, lemon juice and eggs. Mix well. Use to stuff a 10- to 14-pound turkey.

Let's talk turkey

By DESIREE VIVEA
Copley News Service

The early American Indians had been dining on drumsticks long before Columbus heard the first gobble of our delicious friend, the turkey.

Benjamin Franklin suggested that the turkey reign as representative of our country (animalistically speaking) and to grace the Great Seal of the United States. Instead of the bald eagle Ben upheld our humble turkey as the "all-American bird." No doubt he revealed in many a succinct slice.

You want your "all-American bird" to earn show-stopping acclaim as well he should. If you have reservations about preparing roast turkey in your microwave oven rather than its conventional cousin, fear not! You run less of a risk of ruin a la micro, and are free to devote your time to the 237 other pressing matters tugging at your apron strings as you prepare the traditional feast.

To stuff your mind with turkey tips, here are several suggestions to boost your bird. For starters, turkey ranks highest in protein for any cooked meat is lower in cholesterol and rich in riboflavin and niacin.

You can thaw your bird outside of the refrigerator by leaving him in his original wrap and placing him in a large, completely empty, passing plastic bag. A 20- to 25-pound bird takes 15 hours to thaw, an 8- to 12-pound about 12 hours. Remove the giblets immediately upon thawing.

A turkey is fully cooked when juices run clear yellow when the leg is pricked deeply with a fork, or a meat thermometer inserted between thigh and body reads 175 to 180 F, making sure to touch the meat. The most accurate thermometers read from 8 to 230 degrees.

Dr. Tucker Following Grandpa's Footsteps

History began to repeat itself earlier this month when Dr. William H. Tucker, of Ripley, began serving his patients at the Halls Branch of Family Practice Clinic. Dr. Tucker is the grandson of Dr. Will Tucker, of Double Bridges, who served patients in North Lauderdale County and South Dyer County until his death in 1921. Of course with some 62 years gone by not many remain who remember Dr. Tucker personally but there are many remaining whom he delivered into the world. In addition to his medical practice Dr. Tucker was a former president of Bank of Halls, serving from 1901 to 1921.

The present Dr. Tucker 46, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Tucker, of Dyersburg. He attended Dyersburg High School at the University of Tennessee at Knoxville, and the University of Tennessee Col-

Prescription For Disaster

During the weekend we were listening to a number of TV commentators and also reading columns in newspapers, all of which were detailing just what the Reagan administration is doing wrong in the government's dealing with Russia. Included among the newspaper columnists were James Reston, Joseph Kraft, Garry Wills along with TV Commentator John Chancellor and others.

It appeared to us that each of these so-called experts was favoring some arrangement with Russia which would leave the United States completely vulnerable since history has shown that the word of Russia is worth exactly nothing.

We hope that President Reagan, Secretary of State Shultz, and others in the administration will not be swayed by suggestions from any of these men.

It, of course, would be well if some agreement could be reached that would reduce the chance of nuclear war but the United States should not be placed in a position where it must trust Russia. The protection of the United States must be the first consideration and a strong armed force would seem to be the only way that we can be considered safe in any way. Following the reasoning of some of the critics of Mr. Reagan's policy could be a prescription for disaster.

Enjoyable Afternoon

Taking advantage of the sunshine and the almost spring-like weather Nell and your editor drove to Reelfoot Lake Sunday afternoon to do a little eagle watching.

It was amazing to this writer the number of persons who were there, apparently most of them for the same reasons although the restaurants appeared to be doing a booming business. We saw cars from a number of Tennessee counties as well Kentucky and Missouri and at least one car from Arkansas. The car from Arkansas held two young couples equipped with fine cameras and telescopic lenses who were trying to get good shots of the eagles. While we only saw about a half a dozen of the majestic birds we only covered the southern and a small portion of the eastern lakeshore. Reports are that the eagle population continues to grow each year.

The eagles will soon be leaving Reelfoot but we can recommend the drive for an enjoyable few hours.

Three Receive Union Honors

Three Lauderdale County students are among 112 students named to the fall semester dean's list at Union University in Jackson.

The honor is given to students who make at least a 3.5 grade point average out of a possible four points for 12 or more semester hours, said Vice President for Academic Affairs, Dr. Hyran E. Barefoot.

Students from Lauderdale County, listed by hometown, include: Halls: Paula Burroughs and Sandra Sue Jones; Ripley: Lu Anne Webb.

Jones Ailment Kills Hearing

U.S. Rep. Ed Jones was dismissed Tuesday from St. Francis Hospital in Memphis, to which he went with blood pressure problems, but a hearing he had scheduled Thursday in Dyersburg, on emergency farm credit legislation, has been postponed.

He had planned the hearing so that it would provide ample opportunity for farmers to present comments and ask questions.

"The Subcommittee on Conservation, Credit, and Rural Development wants to obtain all possible points of view regarding the emergency credit legislation we are working on," said Jones, who chairs the Subcommittee.

"Consequently, we are going to try to structure the hearing so that agricultural leaders can present their views of the agricultural credit situation and so that farmers can present us with information on the kinds of financing problems they are facing."

Scheduled to begin at 9 a. m. at Dyersburg High School's Little Theatre on Saturday, February 19th, the hearing was to have had two sessions. The morning session scheduled a number of witnesses to offer formal testimony including farmers, commercial lenders, federal agricultural agency officials, and farm credit system officials. The afternoon session was to have been less formal and open for comments from those in the audience.

"Hopefully, this arrangement will allow the Subcommittee to have the benefit of a larger number of participants that we would be able to accommodate in a one day hearing otherwise," Jones said. "It is awfully important."

TENNESSEE TRAVELER

Roger Dillard, Tennessee Mountaineer

Roger Dillard is an anachronism. In an age of interstate highways and central heating and air conditioning, he is a throwback to the days of the frontier when men like Davy Crockett and Daniel Boone roamed the wilderness, staking their lives on their skills with the primitive weapons of the frontier.

Dillard, too, is an expert with such weapons as the bowie knife, tomahawk, spear, and bow and arrow. It is a skill which he brought him both international recognition and a livelihood as perhaps the nation's only full-time instructor in primitive weapons, a trade which he practices at Silver Dollar City, the Smoky Mountain theme park at Pigeon Forge, Tennessee.

Dillard's dedication to the primitive lifestyle is more than just an image to be shed at the end of the day when the park gates close. The fringed leather shirt, breeches, boots and hat are his normal attire.

"There are a lot of places, like restaurants, which won't let me in," he admits. "But this is what I am and I just go someplace else."

He also admits that his wife, Candy, is not exactly thrilled with his plans to build his own log cabin in the Smoky Mountains and live a totally primitive lifestyle.

"It's not the lifestyle she objects to," he explains. "It's the lack of plumbing and electricity."

Dillard's involvement with the primitive lifestyle originated with a deep passion for the martial arts.

"I studied and taught karate, the Kwon Do, Kung Fu and all that sort of thing. I used to do exhibitions which included demonstrations of primitive weapons like the Samurai sword and the Indian Kriga knife. One day I stumbled into a tomahawk throwing contest in Greenfield, Ohio. I won it and I left that contest feeling as if I had discovered something that belonged to me. Three months later, I took third place in a national competition and discovered that a lot of people besides me have a fascination with the old weapons."

Dillard's prowess in the martial arts has given him incredible reflexes and led him into a promising show business career. He has demonstrated his skill at catching flaming arrows shot at him on "That's Incredible and You Asked For It." He has appeared in several motion pictures, including "Bubba" with Robert Redford and "Archer" for which he did several fight scenes.

While Dillard intends to pursue his film and television career, most of his time from April through October is spent introducing Silver Dollar City visitors to weapons like the bowie knife.

"The mountaineer carried the knife in his belt," Dillard says, brandishing the heavy, vicious looking knife. "He threw it by the handle, not by the point as most people think."

With a swift motion, the big knife sails through the air and thuds solidly into a log target several yards away. He retrieves the knife and hands it to a fascinated spectator. The twelve inch blade looks slightly ridiculous in the hands of a man dressed in Bermuda shorts, but is obvious from the way he fingers the knife that some sort of dream has just come true.

"People really get hooked on these weapons," Dillard says. "Some of them will come back day after day to practice."

This man, however, is having his problems. The knife keeps striking the target and bouncing away.

"Back up half a step," Dillard advises, drawing a line in the dirt with his heel. "Try it from here. Everybody has a natural range. It's just a question of finding it."

The knife point bites itself in the edge of the log target and a self-satisfied grin creeps over the man's face. Dillard moves on to a second man speculatively hefting a steel-bladed tomahawk.

"Go ahead," he urges. "Give it a try. Hold it right at the base of the handle. Put your thumb straight up along the back side. Now, just reach back and throw."

The steel blade sinks into the center of the target and Dillard breaks into a wide smile. "All right! You look like you're ready to throw for a score."

Dillard sees his role at Silver Dollar City as more than just providing an entertaining few minutes of exercise. It is also a serious yearlong competition.

"We have the biggest competition of its kind anywhere in the world," he says proudly. "Thousands of people take part in it every year. Each October we hold the finals during the Fall Festival at Silver Dollar City. A lot of people have admired the medals we present to our winners and have tried to buy them from me, but the only way to get one is to win it in competition right here."

The biggest known snowflake in the world fell in Montana in 1887; they measured 15 inches in diameter and were eight inches thick.

At least 150,000 species of flowering plants are known.

Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency News Report

The Tennessee Wildlife Resources Commission had its latest meeting in January removing all restrictions against stocking the White Amur in Tennessee farm ponds. Prior to the meeting the use of White Amur for the control of water weeds in ponds had been restricted only to those West Tennessee counties in the Mississippi drainage area.

Fishery Biologists have searched for a biological means of weed control for many years, and tested many species of herbaceous fish prior to the introduction of the White Amur in Arkansas more than ten years ago. After its introduction in Arkansas many states took a cautious approach toward introducing the species in their waters for fear it would not be ecologically compatible with their native species. This fear has never materialized in Tennessee. Tennessee Biologists who have worked with the White Amur without exception feel confident the White Amur is the best weed control found to date and probably the best we will ever find for the control of aquatic weeds in farm ponds.

Water weeds are not only unsightly in farm ponds, but also interfering with fishing, and by protecting smaller fish which always results in poor fishing over a period of time.

Licenses Expire Soon

The Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency would like to remind its license buyers that all 1982-83 licenses and permits expire at midnight Feb. 28, 1983. A spokesman for the agency advised that most 1983-84 licenses and permits are scheduled to go on sale at all license agents the last week in February. All 1983-84 annual licenses and permits will be valid from the date of sale until midnight Feb. 28, 1984.

Those who plan to buy the $60 Sportsman's license are again reminded that they cannot buy this particular license from their local license agent. Sportsman's licenses are available only by application to TWRA's Nashville office. Order forms for the Sportsman's license are now available from all license agents, wildlife officers and TWRA offices.

Time To Build Beds

Spring is around the corner and peak crappie fishing will soon be here. In the period 1968 through 1972 biologists of the Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency evaluated methods of "getting fishermen and fish together". One of the best ways found was for fishermen to build artificial fish hides or so-called crappie beds. Many of our Tennessee reservoirs are aging and as such fish often use areas other than those they used years ago. One of the reasons they do so is that natural fish cover (stumps, logs, bushes and bars) has changed as the reservoirs aged. Many of the stumps are gone, many of the logs are silted in, some of the bars have eroded or have been dredged and in some cases bushes have been cut.

The best all-around artificial fish hide evaluated and/or developed by TWRA is called a stake bed. Many of Tennessee's best fishermen now build stake beds in their hot-spots because they have found that, properly built and positioned, they yield bluegill, bass, crappie and other species. If you want more information on how to build stake beds write: Stake Beds, c/o The Fish Management Division, TWRA, Ellington Center, Box 40747, Nashville, Tenn. 37203 and ask for a free copy of the technical paper on the subject prepared by G. Pett, TWRA Biologist. It is only a few pages long and gives graphic descriptions on how to build stake beds. Stake beds built and properly located in March of weeks and they will get better as they age. Many of the beds built in 1968 are still producing fish today!

Plant For Wildlife

For several years the Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency has offered the Plan and Plant Program to landowners interested in improving their land for wildlife. Before planting any type of wildlife food or cover material on your land it is a good idea to first develop a detailed plan of where to plant each particular type of grain, tree, or shrub. In some cases only manipulation of crops or a simple disturbance of the soil by disking prescribed areas are needed. Of course, each farm is different and planning is needed for each, depending upon its attractiveness to wildlife.

Most landowners have target species in which they are interested in managing such as quail and rabbit or deer and turkey. Each species requires different types of food, cover, and nesting areas. For example, rabbit and quail prefer open areas such as weedy fields and grain crops, surrounded by fence rows which act as travel lanes and protective cover. On the other hand, deer and turkey require a more wooded type habitat interspersed with open fields. By managing timber, open fields, and fence rows, one can increase the number of rabbits, quail, deer and other species, including non-game up to a level that the land will support.

After planning is accomplished, management practices can then be implemented by planting supplemental food plots, improving fence rows, building nesting boxes, manipulating crops, improving timber stands and so forth.

If you are interested in the Plan and Plant Program, please call your local Wildlife Officer or call 1-800-372-3928 for assistance.
