Construction of six I-beam bridges on State Highway 88 in Lauderdale County is expected to be completed by early. November, if the weather cooperates, an official of the prime contracting firm reports.

"We started work on this project in August, 1983, and I know that travelers in the area will be as happy to see it completed as we will," says G. W. Stephenson, secretary-treasurer of W. T. Cutchin & Associates, Inc. of Dyersburg.

"It is being completed in three phases and has taken us a while because traffic had to be maintained, and we had to do half of. the work at a time-tearing out only sections of some of the exisiting bridges at a time," he says.

Gates To Hear Quartet, Trio

Gates Church of God (Holiness) will host the Hobe Sound Quartet at 7:30 p.m. July 5th and the Kansas City College and Bible School Trio at 7 p.m. July 7th.

The Rev. Johnny Smith, pastor, invites the public.

2 Halls Reviews Set For Festival

The Halls Parent-Teacher Organization will sponsor a county-wide Tiny Tot and Junior King and Queen Beauty Review for the Tomato Festival.

The Junior Review, for ages 6-late Rev. Ray Cavness, of Halls, will become managing editor of The Halls Graphic July 15th

He is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Happle Cavness, of Halls, and The Rev. R. J. Cooper, former pastor of Halls' First Baptist Church, and Mrs. Cooper, who now reside in Christmasville, near McKenzie.

A 1977 graduate of Halls High School, he attended the University of Tennessee and Dyersburg State College. He has been employed by the Dyersburg State Gazette and the Union City Daily Messenger.

His wife, Darla, is the daughter of the Robert J. Eppersons, of Dyersburg. A 1982 graduate of Dyer County High School in Newbern, she took an associate degree in business administration from Dyersburg State College and is attending the University of Tennessee in Martin, majoring in secondary education. She was employed in Union City as a teacher's aide in Central Elementary School.

The couple will rent the John Moore house at 542 East Main St. in Halls.

systems, with the same number six periods, plus 30 minutes for lunch.

"Presently," says School Supt. Phillip Jackson, "there is no daily time for planning, evaluation of student performance, or departmental meetings at grade level, especially in elementary schools.

"With the new Basic Skills requirements and proficiency testing, time must be found for records and needs assessment without using teaching time.

"The daily 45 minutes would also be available for parent conferences, staff development, particularly for new teachers, and faculty meetings.

"Effective teaching is the results of adequate planning and preparation

Aides may not be used to give teachers free time because the state requires certified personnel for physical education, library, etc.

"I cannot perceive of teachers blatantly abusing the planning time. Teachers have personal lives, too. "Abuse cannot be ruled out. If this is indeed a major concern, perhaps "2:30 out" should be considered on a trial basis. If the time is not used well, action will have to be taken to rectify the matter, it is hoped, on an individual basis. "We realize there will be some initial problems. Some sacrifices will have to be made. Yet, we are only talking about children arriving at home 30 minutes sooner than now. And this is to the advantage of many bus riders, especially during the winter months, when children are presently arriving home after dark. "The only reason for considering "2:30 out" is to improve the instructional system. The key is planning and preparation. The daily 45 minutes give us some sense of quality control by insuring adequate planning time. The present system offers no way to monitor time spent in planning.

The contract was awarded in July, 1983. Cutchin's bid was $2,565,625.

The project will construct six pre-stressed I-beam bridges over Mill Creek, Sumrow Creek, Tisdale Creek, and the South Fork of the Forked Deer River; five concrete box bridges; and four concrete box culverts; grading, drainage, and paving of the approaches; guard-railing; pavement markings; and temporary traffic signal system.

MRS. ROGER BRUCE VOGELFANGER, the former Janiece Craddock, daughter of Mrs. Robert E. Craddock, of Halls, and the late Mr. Craddock, pledged her wedding vows Saturday in the home of her brother, Robert E. Craddock, Jr., and his wife at 540 South Goodlett in Memphis, where mixed summer flowers were used throughout the house.

Larry Kennon, friend of the groom, officiated.

Jan wore a tea-length, blouson, long-waisted dress, a Kitty Kyle original designed with intricate, hand-made cotton lace. The bodice featured a softly scooped neck-line with a Bertha collar and delicate, puffed sleeves interlaced with ribbon. Falling gracefully from the hip-line were tiers of lace. The bride was attended by Mrs. Jimmy Heidelberg. The groom's father, Charles Vogelfanger, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. was best man.

The bride's mother wore a tea-length gown of aqua silk, the groom's mother one of rose silk. Each wore an orchid corsage. Classical guitarist Terry Mitchell played for the reception in the home.

After a Caribbean cruise, Dr. Vogelfanger and his bride are at home in Memphis.

Out-of-town guests included the Charles Reeds, Miss Kim Reed, and Mrs. Ralph Hargrove, of Jackson, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Roberts, of Yazoo City, Miss.; the Roy Arnolds, of Fairfax Station, Va.; and Adam Freed, the Mark Freeds, and Miss Leah Freed, of Springfield, Va

Student loans might not seem to be an attractive area for a bank. The default rate remains relatively high in the first two years of repayment, and the eclipse of the baby boom has meant fewer high school seniors packing off

But Ms. Talbot said the number of problem loans falls off sharply after the two-year level, and the recent growth of the ranks of those reentering college - such as women who have been raising children - makes the potentia loan market relatively stable.

In the Student Loan Swim

Chase already is handling a heavy volume of student loans from Californie, and Ms. Talbot said the bank w be going after more loans in Ohio once the offices it will gain from the six thrifts it has acquired or plans to acquire there are in place. And drawin from her extensive background wit dent banks - both at Chase and at Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. where she was a float consultant fo five years before coming to the bank -"I have a few favors to call on," she said, with the grin of someone wh knows she has just that.

Other money center banks are mov ing into student loan processing, sh oted, and the waters are further toiled by the complex nature of the sti lent loan business. With its host of di healty in keeping track of students bace they leave college, and the intro-buction of variable-rate loans, the com-lows students to enter application in-formation directly on terminals, thus speeding the approval process. More-over, she said, Chase wants to take advantage of its own automated clearing house to facilitate disbursement and collection of payments, and is looking at an automatic debit system for student loan accounts. And yet, she sighed, "there's still a lot of paper shuffling. I have a very large controller's area simply because there are so many different aspects of the business that have to be monitored

But - and here she brightened she said that an entirely new loan processing system, which she requested, will be put into effect in the first quarter of next year. Using a new mainframe computer, the system will allow the downloading of data onto personal computers, permitting changes or up-dating to be handled more speedily.

Superclerks to Supervisors

Asked about the challenges she still faces, Ms. Talbot said, "One of the big things is the people. We're changing people's jobs...Particularly in a 250person environment, we tend to promote too many persons who are superclerks to supervisors and not give them proper training as supervisory inagers.

This means trying to get people to conceptualize differently, "to do things that are more business-related, not just run a line operation. Yes, you've got to count your widgets. But you've got to sit down with me and say, 'Let's brainstorm this product. Where do we go with it?" "

Numbers and Deborah Talbot, as they say, go back a long way. She earned a degree in mathematics at Memphis State University and taught school for all of a month — "that was not to be my life," she said - before starting a banking career at Union Planters National Bank in Memphis in the early 1970s.

She left Peat Marwick at about the time she would have been considered for partner. She had been running their New Jersey practice and "I just didn" see that was what I wanted to do going forward." She chose Chase, she said, because "there wasn't this absolute split between back office and front

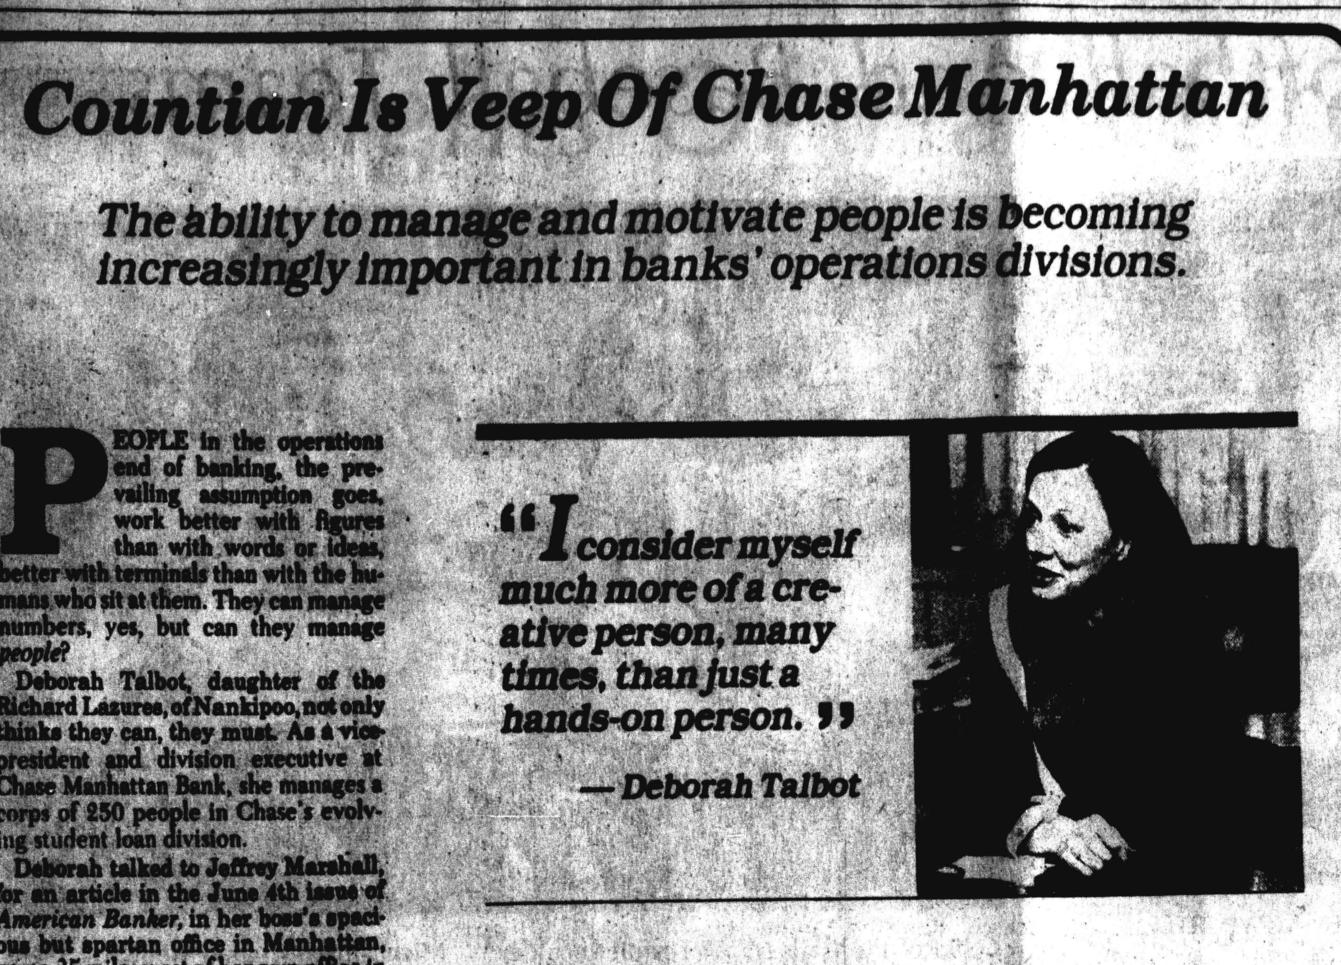

"I refuse to be treated as a secondclass citizen, and there are still banks in this city today who will put you into second-class citizen status automatically if you're in operations. There are even people in this bank who will do that. I've come out of meetings absolutely furious because" (and here her voice takes on a superior tone) "I'm from operations, and how could I possibly understand a market?"

But opportunities for operations people seem to be growing, she said, and while "operations people don't tend to be very creative," she sees herself an exception to the rule.

"I consider myself much more of a creative person, many times, than just a hands-on person," she said, adding that some of her closest friends are artists and photographers. In fact, she traveled to Chicago in May to photograph sites at Northwestern and the University of Chicago; the photos will be used to help sell the student loan program.

Her current assignment, she said, narks one of the first times that Chase has "brought out" an operations divi-tion head to run a business within the

"The bank is looking at people and that their growth needs are, and at the ame time trying to match them up and I think for me, it was an excellen notch up, because it is a big challeng and I get home a lot of times at 9 or 10 o'clock at night and still don't feel like I've gotten a lot done."

County Forced To Void Plaques Hail School Pact With Cities Billy Spence

Four incorporated cities in the county, who after many onths of negotiations agreed to yield shares of state sales taxes to help the county finance $6,975,000 in bonds to build a new school for grades 4-8 east of Ripley Elemen-tary School, learned Monday from the County Commis-sion meeting that the deal is off.

The reason: The Internal Revenue Service says the unty will earn more interest on the reserve funds provi in the agreements than its interest cost on bonds—a io-no, to give the bonds the required tax-exempt status. Ripley's city board, key to the now defunct agreement upported by boards of the other three cities, insisted om the first that county proposals would provide the bunty with hundreds of thousands of dollars in interest, a addition to funds required to retire the bond issue.

The CC was advised Monday that the agreement final-ly hammered out between the cities and the county still fattens the county's coffers beyond Interal Revenue Service guide-lines and will have to be re-negotiated.

The school for which the bonds are proposed would supersede Arp School, both Henning schools, and Ripley Junior High; add to Halls Elementary; and renovate Halls Junior High, Halls High, and Ripley High School's gymnasium and its vocational and handicapped education

Welcome Back To Halls

We are pleased that Gale Cavness is coming to Halls as managing editor of The Halls Graphic. A major worry as we approached retirement time was being able to find someone who would be interested in Halls first. We believe that has been accomplished.

While many of our readers may not know Gale personally, his father's family resided in the Halls area for many years, and his mother's family is also known here.

Gale is a graduate of Halls High School and is interested in the schools and every aspect of the area. He appears to be as happy in returning to Halls as we would like for him to be. Gale has several years experience as a newspaper reporter and has proven to be an excellent writer. He will find that a weekly newspaper is very different from the daily newspapers for which he has worked, but he should adjust to the differences. We believe that our readers will be happy with the new ditor. He likes people, and people usually like him. We will be bringing him around next week to meet many of you. M

After a short time, we realized that something was wrong, and in looking closer, we found that we had a July, 1974, issue of the Digest.

Since we have found it interesting in the past to refer to old copies of various national magazines, we continued to look brough the 1974 issue.

One of the major stories deplored the abuses and misuses of scholarships and recruiting of athletes at major colleges. Does that sound familiar?

During recent months, much has been written in major During recent months, much has been written in major magazines and newspapers and in television news broadcasts about the evils of recruiting athletes. HALLS, TENNESSEE, JULY 18, 1985

The Halls Board of Mayor and Aldermen Monday of last week oted to retain its present tax rate of $2.30 per $100 assess-accept a budget estimated $1,630,128.00 for the 1985-86 fiscal year, about $53,000 less than for 1984-85.

On motion of Eugene Pugh seconded by James Jones, men voted unanimousl

ermen voted unanimousl return to Bank of Halls for its imental value a clock loaned the city more than 30 y struction project was underway the bank.

The bank plans to obtain clock for the city to replace the time-piece used at City Hall for more than three decades

Aldermen awarded a contract to Neal Erwin for painting the water tank in the Forked Deer-Concord community.

Mayor Sammie Arnold announced that he had been invited to attend the next board meeting of the Tennessee Aeronautics Association to discuss renovation of the city's airstrip. Arnold said a 75% versus 25% grant is available and that the 25% local funding may be met from volunteer work or in-kind ontributions Aldermen voted to buy a new police patrol vehicle from Hamby Ford in Ripley. The $11,185.60 bid was selected from among three at the recommendation of Police Chief Buddy Moore, because of his liking for model and Ford's performance in past use.

Bids were also submitted by Carlton Chevrolet and River Road Dodge both of Ripley.

Alderman Mack Stanley announced that he had been asked by the city's planning commission to inform the board of an alleged zoning violation in an R-2 zone-use of a trailer as office space. Aldermen voted to investigate.

Halls Trio Attend CloseUp Session

Sara Kiestler, Kelly Vaden, and sponsor Pat Higdon represented the Halls High School CloseUp Club in a Tennessee Tomorrow Summer Conference Friday and Saturday, at Belmont College in Nashville, to plan the program for Govern ment Days in Nashville in March, 1986

They heard Gov. Lamar Alexander and gubernatorial date Winfield Dunn speak and answer questions.

Sen. Douglas Henry, Jr., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, held a question-andanswer session televised by C Span. Kelly Vaden was one of the questioners on the televised

Same Tax Rate Held For Halls 2:30 School Closings

VOLUME 88—NUMBER 27

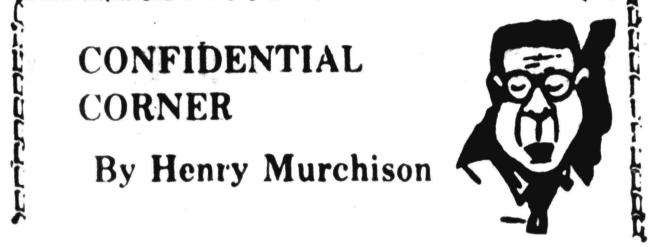

The county Board of Education's meeting Thursday of last week adopted a proposal by the Educational Task Force to dismiss county schools 30 minutes earlier, at 2:30 p.m., still teaching students for six periods, plus 30 minutes for lunch, but giving teachers 45 minutes, until 3:15 p.m. each school day, for meetings, planning, parent conferences, and other needs.

The board trimmed $146,000 from its 1985-86 budget, as required to allow the County Commission's holding the tax rate at $3.25 per $100 assessed value, by dropping an elementary school physical education program and cutting funding of band pro-grams in Halls and Ripley from $30,000 to $5,000.

Negotiations continue between the county and its four incorporated cities on a new agreement under which the cities would help fund $6,975,000 in bonds to build a new school for grades 4-8 east of Ripley Elementary School.

The county has learned from its bond attorneys that the deal it made with the cities will not qualify the bonds for tax exemption, since the county would earn more interest on its reserves than it would pay interest on the bonds.

At least two new proposals by the county to the cities have been supplanted by a new offer in preparation as this newspaper goes to press. No decision is likely soon.

We're Flattered

We would imagine that most of you are tired of reading about our retirement, especially since, so far, we have only partially retired, but we would be remiss if we did not acknowledge our appreciation to the Bank Of Halls and the many persons who came to the reception Friday afternoon.

We were both grateful and flattered by the many kind words that were said to us and for the best wishes for our retirement. Naturally, we were surprised and pleased to receive the certificate presented by State Rep. Floyd Crain, naming us as an honorary staff member of the 82nd Legislative District for the Tennessee House of Representatives. We were surprised, because over the years, we have at times been very critical of the Legislature. We are pleased to think that they were aware the existence of your editor and The Halls Graphic. We also were pleased and happy that many county officials, advertisers, and subscribers came to wish us well, and that our son, Buddy, and his daughter, Wendy, were able to be here for the reception.

Thanks from both Nell and your editor to everyone for their many kindnesses!

Not So Funny

During these recent months, a great deal has been written about the so called pages in many of the nation's daily news-

Such "comic" strips as Doonesbury and other that have been used for political satire have been dropped by many newspapers, in some cases because of the satire and in others over dispute concerning the amount of space the strip should

Personally, we have not been impressed by many of these strips, while we have enjoyed others, but we wonder if the "funny page" section is not being abused and misused. Certainly, many of the strips are not at all amusing, so perhaps those cartoonists should be featured in the editorial sections, with the comic pages being reserved for those strips which can actually amuse and entertain the reader.

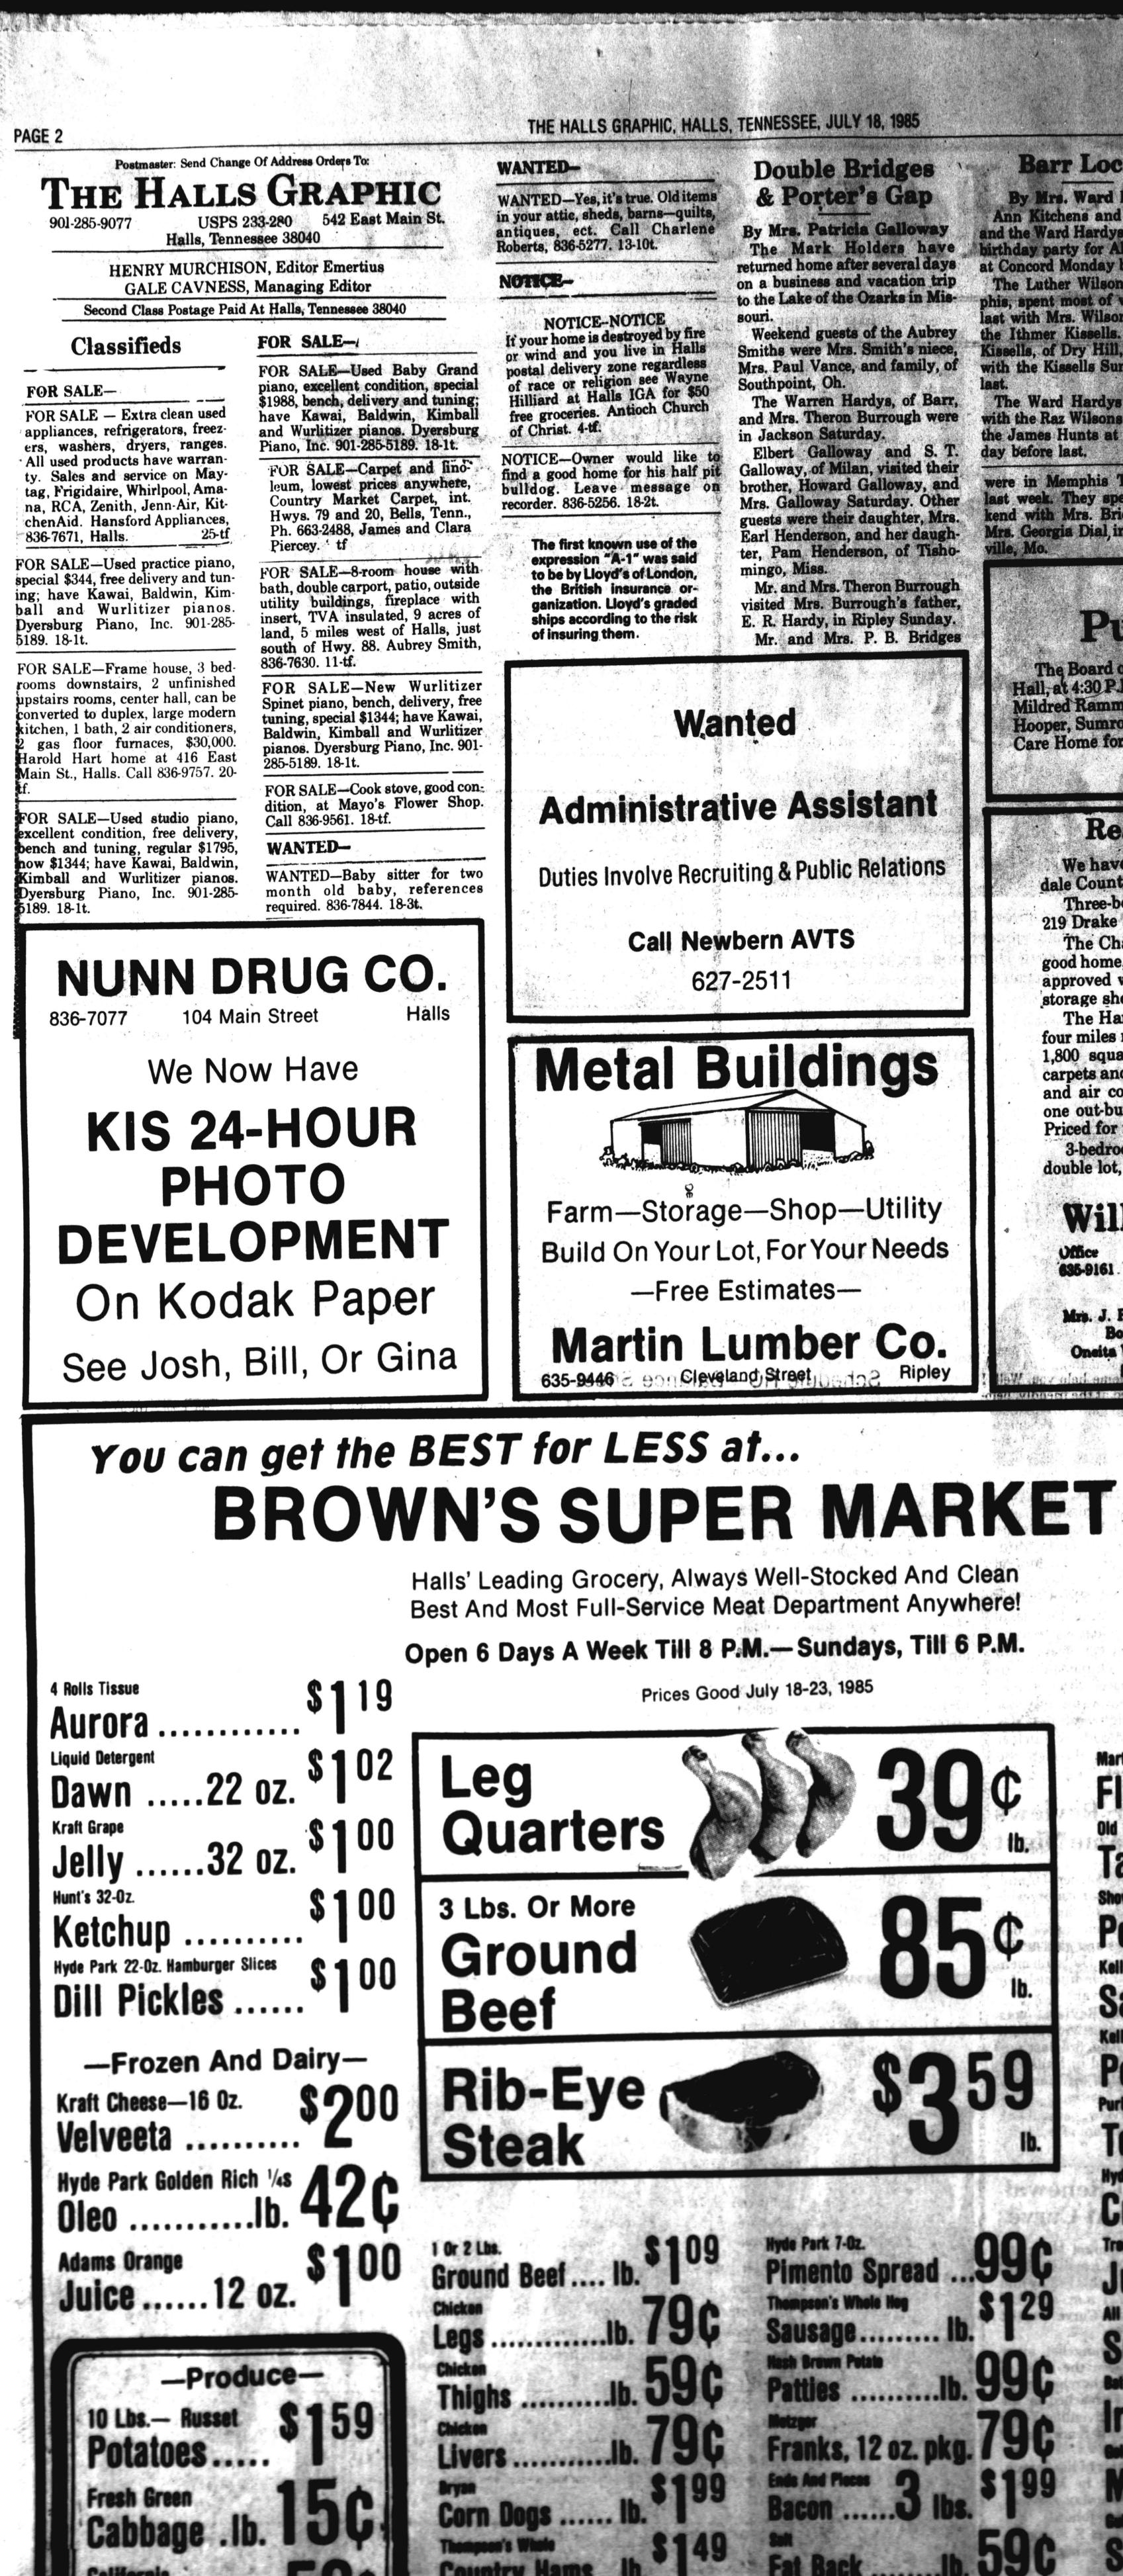

Probably, once again, we are being an "old grouch," but we like Dennis, the Family Circus, and similar strips and hope that the trend toward satirical strips will not continue to grow.

I've never written a paper Il you about two of the friendl isiness women I've ever encour tered. They are the women at the Halls Furniture Co.

A few months ago, I went in their store to look around. They never tried to talk me into buying anything, though there were a few things I liked. Before I left, we were all sitting down on the furniture, just talking.

if you tell the salesperson you're only looking, they walk off and never say another word. Then if you do find something you want won't come help you. Well was surprised at the friendly, he. l atmosphere at the Halls Furni ture Co. I've had a lot of people tell me the same thing about their going out of their way to help you, and that's what made me decide to They are two super ladies and I hope their business goes a long native and announced candidate for governor in 1986, has formed a 'Don't Dump on Tennessee' committee and launched a letter-writing and petition drive to pressure Congress to keep the facility out of he Volunteer State.

Tennessee is a beautiful state and I don't intend to see turned into the nuclear fuel dump of the nation,' he said. addition to letters and petitions I will call hearings state-wide to generate support for the position that we don't need other people's nuclear waste in our state.

The U.S. Department of Energy announced in April that three potential sites for a facility to temporarily store spent nuclear fuel are in Tennessee. The preferred site is the ccording to Cochran, Tenesseans should also fight the DOE project to protect ves and the environme heritage of Tennessee, but this is where we must draw the line likely make it the largest repository of radioactive spent fuel in the world....and our Tennessee highways and railroads will be the conduit. If this site is ap proved for Tennessee, there will more than 1.500 trucks each year moving in our state with radioactive spent fuel as cargo. And that means 1,500 more opportunities for accidents, Frankly, the few hundred jobs the site will create simple aren't worth the risk.

Cochran said the majority of spent nuclear fuel to be stored would come from private, forprofit businesses across the country, and he questions why Tennessee was chosen to be potential site for storage of 'the most hazardous materials nown to man.

According to a DOE news release dated April 25, 1985, 'the process of identifying the candidate sites took into consideration the fact that a large majority the nation's commercia nuclear reactors are located the eastern and midwestern portions of the United States Therefore, DOE searched for significant spent fue be shipped. Budget Mess

As we predicted several weeks ago, very little progress has been made in establishing a federal budget for the 1985-86 fiscal year.

Both branches of Congress have passed their own version a budget, but efforts to reach a compromise budget have been completely unsuccessful, with each branch blaming the other for the failure to pass a budget.

So far as we are concerned, they can both save their accusations, since there is enough blame to cover every member of Congress.

We would venture a guess that virtually every member of Congress will contend that the budget deficit must be ended, but few have demonstrated the backbone needed to cut spending and establish a balanced budget.

Questions are many and answers are few about the best means of establishing a balanced budget, but it would seem to us that a freeze of the present budget would be a step in the right direction. Then Congress possibly could determine just where additional cuts can be made with the least harm to all needed programs.

There's much conversation about cutting defense spending, and we would be inclined to agree. We have always supported a strong defense and will continue to do so, since we feel that thousands of American lives were lost during World War II because we were ill-prepared. However, waste and fraud have become so prevalant in defense spending we need to back off and take a second and longer look as to what we need and don't

Of course, every special interest group will be opposing any cuts or a freeze, but the time has come to face up to the fact that we can no longer support the continually climbing budget deficits.

We can understand that members of Congress must consider the effects of their votes on their chances for re-election. but they must face the fact that the welfare of our nation must come before the welfare of the individual, whether Congressman or average citizen.
