HALLS, TENNESSEE, JANUARY 2, 1986

VOLUME 92—NUMBER 1

Murchison With Alabama Daily

John H. (Buddy) Murchison III, son of retired Halls Graphic editor Henry Murchison and Nell Murchison, has resigned as publisher of the Carthage, Tenn., Courier, to accept the position of publisher of the Troy, Ala., Daily Messenger, effective Jan. 3rd.

Murchison also has been named vice-president and member of the board of directors of Tillotson Publications, Inc., which owns and operates two additional newspapers in Alabama and two other in Iowa.

Murchison, 45, attended the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, where he was employed by The Knoxville Journal. He later was employed by Tennessean in Nashville and the Huntsville, Ala., Times before joining the Boone chain. With Boone he was editor at Oskaloosa, Iowa, Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Andalusia, Ala. before going to LaFayette, Ga., as publisher of The Walker County Messenger.

He became publisher of The Carthage Courier in August. 1984. In going to Troy, Murchison rejoins Dolph Tillotson, with whom he was associated at Oskaloosa and later with Boone Newspapers.

Murchison and his wife Jean. plan to move to Troy immediately.

NEW WEEKLY BANKRUPT

After the Internal Revenue Service seized about $500, from bank deposits, against unpaid tax bills listed at $15,000 (including taxes with-held from employees' pay checks but never paid to the IRS), the Johnny Massengills, fourth publishers of The Lexington Times in its nine years of challenging the 101-year-old, prize-winning Lexington Progress, filed Friday for bankruptcy.

The Progress, with Steve Corlew, son of the late Lauderdale County Judge Jerry Corlew, on its news staff, outsold the Times 2.77 times in the last U.S. Postal Service audited sales certified in 1985.

With a little more thought, Massengill told The Jackson Sun, he "probably wouldn't have bought the business in the first place.

"At the time, I should have realized that...three people couldn't make it before me."

WHEN THE TEAM includes just one senior, the underclassmen have a lot to do with the outcome in Halls' basketbal contests, and Brian Halliburton, a Tiger sophomore, has risen to the occasion with good efforts in the early going. Halls is 3-5 at the break, and efforts by Halliburton, like this blocked shot against Bradford, are keeping the Black & Gold a respectable club. Chocs Edge Halls Cagers Short On Killer Instinct

In basketball, just as in boxing, it's best to put your opponent out when you get him down.

At Dyer County Friday night, the Halls basketballers forget that rule and took a knock-out in a 63-62 loss to the

"We just don't have the killer instinct," said Head Coach Winston Jarrett after watching his squad squander lead after lead and then lose the heart-breaker. "We had every chance to put them away but didn't do it, and it cost us."

Halls, now 3-6, must bounce back from the disappointing loss to face tough Denmark West, district foe Kenton, and rival Ripley in a 3-game slate this week. West visited Halls Tuesday, Kenton is the host Friday and Ripley travels to Halls Saturday.

"That's three big ones," Jarrett added. "We'll have to put Dyer County behind us. That's one that got away."

The Tigers took control midway through the first period after struggling early and, despite a technical on Jarrett for hollaring at the officials, built a 14-7 lead as play moved into the second period. Rodney Foster made a pretty move inside for two to give Halls the lead at 8-7 then Chuckie Nelson added long range jumper to put the Tigers up 10-7 and on the way to an early lead. In period two, Dyer County made a slight comeback, cuttin their deficit to three at 20-17 before Halls rolled off six straight, sparked by a good effort by Tyrone Patrick on the boards and at the free throw line. With the Halls lead at nine, Dyer County regrouped and shut down the Tiger attack. At the 1:30 mark, the game was knotted

PROPOSED TEEN YOUTH CENTER COMMITTEE STATEMENT

JANUARY 11, 1986

On December 10, 1985 a group of concerned christians met at Halls. to minister to troubled youth including those who were addicted to drugs or alcohol and a park and recreational grounds to be used on a scheduled basis by all interested churches in this area.

by all present that in order to conform to existing laws that the center would provide counseling only for teens with drug or alcohol related problems If they were interested in participating in a program designed for these particular needs, the counselor or administrative committee would help place them in homes equipped to provide these services.

Due to the fact that this was only one group, officers were elected on a temporary basis and plans were to be formulated to have meetings in several West Tennessee towns and cities, finally consumating their effort with a corporate meeting of all groups to draft by-laws for such a center elect officers, and appoint committee for all functions of the center including taking applications and hiring a director.

Frank Sanders stated that he had conversed with Mr. Jim Langley and was informed that the heirs to the Langley Estate located on Curve-Central property if an agreement could be reached with the heirs. An article was prepared for the local papers to encourage support of this endeavor. We confess that the article did not clearly define the intent of our project Due to the inadvertant failure to clearly define our purpose many phone calls were received opposing the purchase of the Langley Estate. We were informed that a petition was being prepared and would be circulated in the community where the property was located objecting to a center for rehabiliation of persons with drug or alcohol related problems in the community.

After learning of the concern of the community, we extended an invitation to the citizens of the community to meet with us, present their petition and we would also try to to explain our intent.

This meeting was held on Tuesday, January 7th at Hallo, TN with open discussion of all concerned. The petition was read with the following quotation:

We the citizens of Lauderdale County are opposed to locating a Rehabilitation Center in the house located on the Curve-Central Rd known as the old Langley Home This house is located in a rural residential area and cannot be properly protrolled by security people. We futher think that it would be a threat to the citizens living in this area.

We feel that the meeting was very informative and profitable to all an effort, but were concerned that the location was not the most desirable for this cause. The planning committee for the center met and after talking to Mr. Jim Langley decided to suspend the effort to purchase this particular property. It was agreed to continue our effort and search for a more suitable location. The committee also issued the following statement.

I. Any effort to obtain the property or establish a center was thoroughly examined from a legal prospective and safety percautions were taken by surveying the work of other similiar center. We feel that a center located anywhere in West Tennessee would comply with all points of the law and would not threaten the safety or peace of any community. II. The opinions of the persons residing in the immediate community of such a proposed center should be respectively considered. III. The decision to not proceed with the purchase of the Langley property was based soley on the concern of the immediate community and in keeping peace among family members who would be affected by the purchase of the community but from widely scattered areas of the county. The petition ggested political intent and not investigative concern by the wide

As the Congress returns pre-paring for the 1986 Session, the issue. This is not a new pheno mena. Federal spending had long been the subject of great debate and will continue to be as Administrations and the Congress seek to apportion tax funds to meet the needs of this country. However, in the last five years, the budget debate has been especially intense as huge budge deficits have become more diff cult to handle. Attempting to cope with defic-

Most people hav already heard of the so-calle Gramm-Rudman legislation which was designed to demand a balanced federal budget by 1991. This year will be its first in operation. Consequently, the entire nation will get a chance to no only hear about it but see how works as the budget debate

The American Civil War was a ghastly affair in every respect. In addition to some 300,000 deaths on the battlefield, more than a million men on both sides carried the scars of war wounds well into the 20th century. But the war did produce one good effect. It gave American medicine a "shot in the arm," so to speak.

The Civil War practice of medicine is the subject of a fascinating new exhibit currently in progress at the Abraham Lincoln Museum on the campus of Lincoln Memoria University at Harrogate, Tennessee. The exhibit, running through November 1, is perhaps the most extensive collection of Civil War medicine ever assembled. "A collection of this caliber will very likely never be grouped together again," explains museum director and chief conservator Edgar Arch er who worked for more than a year to assemble the exhibit from a variety of private and public sources. "It is unique because so many of these items were lost or destroyed after the war. Most of what was left disappeared into private collections.

"Civil War medicine was surprisingly advanced in some respects," Archer notes, "And the battlefield provided a place for experimenting in new techniques, but infection was a major hazard from any wound and amputation was a standard battlefield form of surgery. One Civil War authority has noted that a sol dier's chances of surviving a battle were approximately

99%, but his chances of surviving the hospital if he were wounded were about 30%." The wide use of amputation is evident in the wide array of medical kits on display in the Lincoln Museum exhibit. "At the beginning of the war the United States Army owned exactly one stetho scope and one medical manual," Archer said. "As the war progressed the Union. Army developed standard medical kits, but Confederate surgeons throughout the war had to order their own custom medical kits from manufacturers all over the world with the result that no two medical kits are likely to be exactly the same. The one thing they all had in common was a complete set of amputation in-

"Dentists on both sides had much the same problem Their kits leaned heavily on large files, heavy probes and pulling pliers. Extraction was as standard a practice for dentists as amputation was for surgeons. The kits we have on display truly show the horrors of Civil War dentistry." One of the most intriguing items in the exhibit is a display of dispensary chemistry which in the modern world is known as pharmacy. Drugs range from morphine and opium to belladonna and quinine. "Most were adminis tered by doctors with absolutely no knowledge of the hazards of drug addiction,' Archer says. "A wounded soldier who spent several weeks or months in a hospital stuffed full of morphine or opium often had quite an addiction problem when he was finally released.

"Ether and chloroform were also among the relatively new tools available to Civil War surgeons. Ether, unfortunately, is a highly volatile substance and since candles and lanterns were the usual forms of light, doctors spent much of the war trying to find a happy medium be-tween light and safety. Explosion was a constant risk in a Civil War operating room." Another fascinating feature stained stretcher. The Englishmade undercarriage indicates that it was a Confederate vehicle since the Union Army had its own manufacturers. "The ambulance corps was one of the many new procedures developed during the war," Archer said. "It was the first time a system for moving the wounded functioned properly. Another concept developed during the Civil War and still in use today was 'prioritizing' the wounded treating the most severe wounds first.'

The exhibit's considerable impact is further intensified by a photo series from both period medical books and actual field hospital oper-

"Frankly, some of then are pretty gory," Archer admits. "But the purpose o this exhibit is to show peopl the reality of the Civil War rather than the myths of glory which have grown up around it. There is nothing glorious about these photographs. General William Sherman once observed that 'war is hell.' That is the reality this exhibit so graphically illustrates."

Despite Hustle, Halls Girls Lose Their 33rd

Despite hustling efforts by the Halls girls, a trio of tough pponents put three more losses on the Lady Tigers' record in recent outings, pushing this year's winless streak to 15 and the string of consecutive losses to 33 over the last two years. "The hustle is still there, but we're just not putting every thing together at the same time," said Head Coach Bobby Cair after his ladies dropped contests last week at Lake County and Sharon and again Monday night at Crockett County. "The girls are showing some patience on offense, and they have the desire. They want to win and they're working, it just hasn' come together.'

At Lake County last Tuesday, Lady Tiger fans thought the losing streak was destined to come to an end, when the Lady Falcons got off to a slow start. But, as if the teams were trying to give the other the upper hand, Halls' girls struggled in the pening half and fell into a deep

After one period, the Black & Gold girls had netted just six points and were down by seven An even-scoring frame in period two failed to help the Halls cause and Lake County coasted to the victory by outscoring the Lady Tigers in each of the final frames to record a 56-38 triumph.

Rhonda Hines' 12-point effort led Halls. Bonnie Reese netted 21 and Kim Crawford scored 12 to pace Lake County.

On Friday, Sharon hosted a District 13-A skirmish and Halls jumped to a quick lead behind the hot-handed shooting of freshman Pam Hutcherson. The fleet footed guard pumped in eight quick points and the Lady Tigers were up 8-4 in the opening seconds, only to see the host squad come alive and squelch any Halls dreams by rolling to a 42-23 halftime lead.

In the second half, Halls struggled, falling behind by seven more in period three. A 12-9 fourth stanza erased little from the deficit and the Lady Tigers came up on the short end of a 65-42 score.

Hutcherson finished with 18 to lead the Halls girls but she was the only Lady. Tiger to record double figures. Sharon, mean-while, had four players in double digits, including center Mary Witherington with a game-high Pam Hutcherson scored 25 to lead the Lady Tigers, followed by 27 for Crockett County.

A foot injury forced starter Paula Hutcherson to miss Monday's action and her playing time in the coming days could be limited. With her sidelined, Cain has just seven players.

"We're definitely an improved eam." Cain added. "We lost to Crockett County by 41 the first time we played them. Monda night, we lost by 18. That shows these nights, maybe we'll get it all together and go home with a

We at Halls Satellite Systems would like to take this opportunity to thank all of our customers for their support. We have had a very successful year.

I know that everyone has heard that "the sky has gone dark," due to scrambling, but this is an exaggerated impression. Yes, HBO and Cinemax are now scrambled. It is also stated that a few more stations are going to scramble. This has scared everyone from buying a satellite. I urge you and your families to come by our shop and look at our displays. You will see the choices you really have a chance to see with a home satellite take away enother 15 or so mations, I will still be able to watch around 100 channels.

any of your friends who have satellites. Ask them,

"Is the sky dark?" Then contact your Congressman and State Senator. Ask them about the scrambling issue. Do not believe just what you hear advertised on your local cable. Please check further down the line. You might be surprised what the entire truth of the matter is.

We don't have any de-coders in stock, due to HBO's not releasing them as promised. They will be available soon, according to HBO.

My suggestion is not to buy one right now. I am not going to support HBO for its actions. Contact me for more details.

Again, thanks to my customers. I really appreciate your business.

There are the economic benefits that come with construction of the facility as well as the jobs and economic stimulus that the facility will generate. During the recent holiday recess, constituents throughout West Tennessee expressed their reservations to me about locating MRS at Oak Ridge. Many feel that locating the facility there would be detrimental to the environment and would present a danger that does not now exist. It is my understanding that the sentiment in the Oak Ridge area itself is split on the subject.

Many people may wonder what this MRS is. It is basically, understand, a facility to repackage sent nuclear fuel from nuclear power generation and other sources. The radioactive rods used in the nuclear reactors would be shipped to the MRS facility in Oak Ridge and placed into stainless steel canisters. This process would allow for the fuel to be consolidated for easier handling. The newly packaged spent fuel would then be stored temporarily before being shipped to a permanent depository elsewhere.

The nature of this facility lends itself to controversary. will essentially process a hazard-ous substance, much of which

miles southeast of Savannah, Tenn. Lutts is a close-knit community, bonded together by what many consider "time-honored" values. In this town, no matter where you live, you're a neighbor—and treated as such. Everyone is on a first-name basis. The postman still stamps your mail when you leave the change in the mailbox. And any schoolboy will tell you that spelling bees are as hard as they ever were. Even nature seems to preserve this community's traditional way of life. Early-morning fog lingers here, as if sheltering the town—if only for a moment—from outside change.

But while residents of Lutts hold fast to traditional values, they also reach out for innovation. For example, blend of new and old. Residents are working with videotape equipment compile a visual montage of the people, places and events through the years that have given the community its special flavor.

The tape ties together bits and pieces of the community: families. townspeople in various roles and local groups and their influences on the area. This collection traces the themes threading these pieces together: loyalty, dreams, generosity and a deep-rooted heritage.

The result is a modern-day rendition of an old-time homeplace symbol a sort of video patchwork quilt. Among those featured in the show is 86-year-old Bid Kilburn. He is taped in surroundings familiar to him —the area that once was Hogan's Pole Camp. "I was the waterboy here," he says, staring proudly into the camera. "Watered the 40 hands who worked here—five cents apiece. Earned me $2 a day." He leans against a weathered, falling structure that once was the commissary for the camp, a wooden pole manufacturing business during the 1930s. "I also sold whiskey for 75 cents a pint," he adds with a

Fred and Edwinna Stricklin share memories of the town's early years on the video. Sitting beside the stove on a crisp fall morning, the Stricklins travel back through time with just a glance out the window.

"The name of the town used to be Pinhook," says Mrs. Edwinna, going by her "proper" title as the ladies of Lutts do. "They say an old lady was going fishing and didn't have a hook. So she took an old straight pin and bent it around her finger. From then on the community was called Pinhook." of ancestors who were among the Brownie and David Franks farm land outside of the town. They take a break from harvesting long enough other when the harvest comes," says Brownie, leaning against his tractor.

The brothers and their neighbors pitch in during the busy seasons o the year, helping each farm to sow and reap its best crop possible. Although many hours of labor are put in, no attempt is made to keep things advantage one year, and another the next," adds David. "But we don't worry about it." Not only is Lutts an area of rich borly attitudes—this town is a place where dreams occasionally come tru After living three-quarters of a century, strawberry farmer Zell King dream. He built for himself a unique dwelling-a four-story, red rounded structure with a tiny green roof. Thi one-of-a-kind home also features hollow log windows that from the outside resemble the seeds of

The hammering of workmen completing Zell's pride-and-joy resound through the surrounding area. Finishing touches are being put on the inside: strawberry plaques all over the walls; banisters made of wooder carved strawberries: a swing suspended from the ceiling filled with, naturally, strawberry - adorned pillows; and a strawberry rug covering the wooden

This community is a very special place to those folks who call it home. Because the residents have taken the time to record a living picture of Lutts as one of their Homeable to "come home" to this neighborly community for many years to come. For those lucky enough to se the video, the old adage, "You can? never go home again," just won't Halls Cagers One Point a little afrai for granted." Behind Yellow Jackets With 11 seconds remaining in a tight contest with unbeaten Greenfield, Halls Head Coach Winston Jarrett had a plan. And it almost worked.

Jarrett's plan was a three step effort for his Tigers to recover from a 71-68 deficit with no time outs remaining and odds against them. Two steps worked well but some lost time on the clock and the inability to steal an inbounds pass in the closing seconds left the Tigers 71-70 losers to the unbeaten and stateranked Yellowjackets.

to host Kenton on Friday.

Greenfield with 23.

LaFrazier.

Stage one of the plan was the easy part. With Greenfield up by three with just 11 seconds remaining, it was going to allow the Tigers an easy basket and time to expire without ever putting the ball back into play. Jarrett told his team, when he used his final time out at the 11 second mark, to take the easy bucket, then go to step two.

Step two was also fairly easy. Illegal but fairly easy. The veteran coach told his players to score the easy bucket then leap out of bounds and grab the ball, a move which would result in a technical foul but a move which would stop the clock, give Halls a chance to make a steal and an opportunity to score and tie or win the game.

After the easy basket, the team did as told, a player grabbed the ball and even tossed it in to score for Halls but it was illegal, no points counted and the technical was called. The officials, however, failed to see what had occurred, allowed about five seconds to run off the clock and made the three step plan an impossibility.

With no time showing on the clock but still a fraction of time left before the horn actually sounded. Greenfield was allowed to shoot the technical and throw the ball in bounds. The technical shot went off the rim, keeping it a one-point game, but, with no time on the clock, the inbounds pass allowed the fraction to tick off the timer and set off the horn before an effort to steal the ball could be made.

An unbeaten Greenfield remained unbeaten. Barely.

"It almost worked," said an upset Jarrett. "If the officials would have called the technical immediately, there would have been four or five seconds remaining and we'd have had a chance. As it was, there was really no chance, even if we'd stolen the "But we can say we sure gave them a good scare."

Halls dominated the first half against the 16-0 Yellowjackets and, with Chuckie Nelson giving an outstanding defensive effort and Rodney Foster carrying the offensive load, the Tigers had a 36-31 lead at the half

In the third period, Greenfield took two from its deficit and finally took its first lead of the second half in the early minutes of the final frame. As time ran ander one minute, the visiting Jackets moved ahead by three and the teams swapped buckets until Jarrett put his plan into lace with 11 seconds remaining

And it almost worked. Green-field, however, held off the Tig-ers' challenge and recorded its 6th win this season, sixth in

Gina Warren Leads Halls To Jr. High Meet Crown

With sharpshooter Gina Warren leading the way, Halls Junior High's Lady Tigers rolled to a pair of wins and the championship of last week's Duo County Basketball Tourna-

Warren scored 20 points in the team's 41-19 victory over Henning in Wednesday's opener then returned Friday in the title tilt against Ripley with 21 to direct the Halls group to a 53-30 win. Her performances earned her the tourney Most Valuable Player award

"She played well," said Coach Paul Climer. "She got into a little foul trouble in the championship game but we made a couple of changes and it allowed her some easy lay-ups in the third quarter and we wrapped it up."

In the boys' tourney, Halls had a good first half against Ripley opening night but the host team made a run late in the second quarter to take control and a 41-28 triumph. Henning defeated Brownsville in its first-round game then dumped Ripley in the title game to take the championship.

"The boys' record doesn't look very good, but it doesn't show how hard the team worked and how many close games we were in." Climer said. "We were in all but two or three rames and, with a break here and there, could have had a respectable record."

The opening round loss left Halls' boys at 1-12. In the girls' competition, Halls started Wednesday's opener in a lackluster style and had just a 13-10 lead at the intermission But, with Warren sparking the team in the third frame, Halls

outscored the Henning squad 19-and coasted to the easy win and into the title game. "I was worried," Climer said after the poor first half. "We'd. beaten Henning twice and I was a little afraid we'd taken them

Climer's Lady Tigers again had a slow start in the title game with Ripley, a winner Thursday over Brownsville. At the intermission of the championship round. Warren had seen little playing time because of three uick fouls and Halls was ahead by just five at 24-19. But, as was the story in the opening round win. Warren found her mark poured in 10 of the Lady Tigers 16 third-period points and boosted the Black & Gold team to out the tournament," Climer added. "After Gina got into foul trouble, we moved her back off the front and she was open for several lay-ups in the third quarter. It really put the champion

Backing Warren's scoring pace was Kecia Miller with two double-digit outings. She scored 15 points in the Henning victory and had 14 in the title tilt. Halls was also awarded sports manship trophies for both the boys' and girls' teams, giving Climer an extra benefit for his coaching chores. "It is a pleasure to coach good kids and an extra pleasure to know we can participate in sportsmanlike manner," he said "I'm proud for both teams." Climer said the girls' 10-3 record is the best record a girls team has recorded in his 15-year District 13-A play. Halls dropped 6-10 overall, 2-4 in district career at Halls and the first championship for the girls since rules changed from six-on-six. Foster led Halls with 20 points, half-court contest to five-on-five followed by Bobby McKinney with 16 and Brian Halliburton full court games.
