CONFIDENTIAL CORNER

By Henry Murchison

Drive Carefully

Once again it is time for us to remind Halls motorists to take extra precautions as they drive on Halls streets.

Schools closed last Friday so children may be seen playing on the lawns and sidewalks and crossing the streets at any hour of the day and early evening.

Perhaps it is just another sign that we are getting older but it seems to us that many of the children are taking even less care in avoiding vehicles as they ride their bicycles, scooters, etc. on residential streets.

Let's all drive carefully for the safety of the children of Halls!

They Are Blooming

Well, the first day lilies are in bloom and within just a few days our beds of day lilies will be a mass of color.

Drive by and enjoy them with us!

New Regime

History was made in Halls Monday night when Pat Higdon was sworn in as mayor of Halls.

Mrs. Higdon is the first woman to be elected to a public office in Halls although women have tried unsuccessfully for a seat on the Board of Aldermen.

At the same time two newcomers, Randy Harris and Tommy Simmons, were inducted as aldermen along with four returning aldermen; Mack Stanley, Dr. Robert Stolarick, Stan Young and Morris McCorkle.

The future of Halls depends on more jobs and Mayor Higdon and the Board of Aldermen are already working toward that goal but to be successful they must have the support of every citizen. Retiring Mayor Sammie Arnold has served Halls well and with the support of everyone interested in the growth and progress of Halls the new mayor and board can do equally as well. Give them your support, not criticism!

West Tennessee's Farms Led State

By Charles T. Peal
Tennessee's ten most prominent counties in the production of soybeans, corn, sorghum and wheat during 1986 were all from West Tennessee, except one.

Dyer, the top soybean producing county, was followed in rank by Obion, Lauderdale, Tipton, and Gibson Counties. Combined, these counties produced over 14,000,000 bushels or 38% of the state's crop.

Acreage devoted to grain sorghum, which had increased substantially from 465,000 in 1985, slid to 165,000. Dyer led the pack with 2,500,000 bushels; Lauderdale was fifth with 510,000. Grain sorghum will be a minor crop in 1987 for Lauderdale County; the price is so cheap it is hardly worth growing.

Farm Land Values

The values of U.S. farmland declined again last year, but less than in the previous year, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

On Feb. 1, 1987, the average value per acre stood at $548, down 8% from a year earlier. Values dropped 12% in 1985.

Real values, which are adjusted for inflation, declined less than in 1985, because of the low rate of inflation in 1986. Real values fell 10% in 1986, compared with 14% in 1985.

County Senior Test Scores Improve, Freshmen Don't

This year's state tests show Lauderdale County's high school seniors improved over last years in all areas tested, but freshmen test scores declined—language sharply.

Seniors generally compared favorably with those in adjoining counties. Dyer County scores plunged.

Seniors here still trailed state averages except in math, where they were slightly above average.

State Rep. Floyd Crain, of Ripley, says the bidding has been delayed while the state sought to supply the beacon and employ local authorities to install it. No local authorities have the facilities required.

Roan Mountain: Jewel of the Appalachians

Roan Mountain, Tenn. - It is a visual spectacle like no other on the planet - a mile-high mountain-top painted in a sea of brilliant crimson and purple.

The blooming of the rhododendron gardens atop Roan Mountain is a scene of indescribable beauty. The 600-acre garden - the largest natural stand of catalpa rhododendron in the world - usually comes to full bloom during the last two weeks of June. At that time, Roan Mountain is certainly the jewel in the crown of the Southern Appalachians.

The mountain, which straddles the Tennessee-North Carolina border about 20 miles south of Elizabethton, is part of the rugged Blue Ridge range. These fabled mountains are among the oldest on earth, dating back at least 650 million years. Geologists believe that when they were first formed the mountains stood as high as 30,000 feet. The ancient forces of wind and weather have worn them down to a fraction of that. Roan Mountain itself stands at 6,313 feet, still one of the highest peaks in the eastern United States.

But "The Roan," as it is known by the valley folk, is distinguished by more than the magnificent rhododendron. This is one of the very few areas east of the Rocky Mountains where igneous rocks are found, and the Roan Mountain gneiss rocks are found nowhere else in the world.

The peak is located within two national forests, the Cherokee on the Tennessee side, and the Pisgah on the North Carolina slopes.

The famous Appalachian Trail, which stretches from Maine to Georgia, meanders across the highlands of the Roan. The gardens are surrounded by a Canadian-like conifer forest. To add to the beauty, ten miles of grassy "baids," the most expansive in the Southern highlands, stretch from Carver's Gap on the Roan to neighboring Big Hump Mountain. In these lofty meadows the grasses and wildflowers ripple in the wind like waves on the ocean. Hikers delight in some of the most spectacular and unimpaired views to be found anywhere along the entire length of the Appalachian Trail.

The blooming of the rhododendron gardens is a cause for celebration, which is exactly what the residents of tiny Roan Mountain, Tennessee have been doing for more than forty years. The annual Rhododendron Festival is held during the third weekend in June, when old-time mountain music, clogging, and crafts add spice to the natural beauty.

While thousands of visitors come to enjoy the mid-summer display, the Roan is a mountain for all seasons. Each spring, wildflower tours and birding walks are held to explore the rich array of plant and animal life. The more than 180 species of wildflowers include showy orchids, trillium, larkspur, and the tiny white flowers of Michaux's saxifrage.

Autumn weaves its own colorful tapestry across the highlands, and the Roan Mountain Naturalists Rally, a weekend of seminars and guided hikes, has been held each September for more than a quarter of a century.

In recent years a growing number of visitors are coming to enjoy the beauty of the Roan in mid-winter, when the area is transformed into a cloudland of snow-capped peaks and crystalline forests. Far removed from the crowds of summer, it is a world of silence and solitude, and for the most part, one explored only by cross-country skiers.

Roan Mountain State Park, nestled in the foothills beneath the peak, is the South's only cross-country ski resort park. The park's own ski center offers instruction, equipment rentals, and guided tours during the winter months.

The state park is an ideal base to enjoy the beauty of the Roan in any season. The park's twenty cabins, open year round, are rustic in design but are equipped with modern conveniences. Linens, appliances, utensils, everything you need to set up housekeeping is furnished except the groceries. Each cabin can sleep up to six people. They are available only on a weekly basis during June through August. Weekly rates are $250. During other times of the year the rates are $68 on Friday and Saturday nights, and $45.50 Sunday through Thursday. Reservations can be made by calling 1-800-421-6683, or contact the park directly at 615-772-3303.

The park also features a swimming pool, tennis courts, hiking trails, and a campground with 90 sites, including 50 with full hookups. Campsites with hookups are $9 per night, tent sites go for $6.50. Unlike the cabins, campsites are available on a first-come, first-serve basis.

The Roan Mountain area is sparsely populated even to this day, but the state park contains a very special reminder of the early settlers who carved out a living on the highland slopes. The Dave Miller Homestead is a beautifully preserved farm located in a hollow atop Strawberry Mountain. The Millers first settled here in 1870, and for generations the family lived in virtual seclusion. In those days, leaving home was a major undertaking, and everything the family needed for survival could be found or raised on the mountain.

Today the farm is preserved intact as a demonstration of early Appalachian life, and the caretaker is none other than Frank Miller, grandson of Dave Miller. Frank was born and raised on the farm, and at age 72, he is happy to sit on the porch with visitors and reminisce about the pleasures and hardships of farming life atop Strawberry Mountain.

For more information on Roan Mountain and other attractions in northeast Tennessee, contact the Tennessee Department of Tourism Development, Room T, Box 23170, Nashville, TN 37202.

8th DISTRICT of TENNESSEE

REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

Tragedy has struck the United States again in the Middle East. Congressional and Administration foreign policy experts are working feverishly to try to put together all the details of the chain of events that led to the attack by an Iraqi jet on the Navy frigate, the U.S.S. Stark.

Tennessee's own Senator Jim Sasser was selected to lead a Senate delegation to the Middle East to look into the matter. In addition, the Administration has undertaken its own investigation into the incident.

The government of Iraq has claimed that the missile attack which severely damaged the Stark was initiated by the pilot in error. They have further indicated their willingness to conduct a joint investigation with representatives of the United States and compensate the families of the 37 sailors killed in the attack.

All of these preliminary actions do not address fundamental questions involved in the incident. The reasons for the attack and how it could have occurred in this day of high technology defense systems will come out in the weeks ahead. However, serious questions will remain about our role in the Persian Gulf. It is those issues that must also be addressed as the incident is reconstructed.

There is no question that the Persian Gulf remains strategically important to the United States and the rest of the free world. It is today, as it has been for many years, the supply route for oil coming out of the Middle East. If for no other reason, the United States must continue to project a presence there. Nonetheless, it appears that we must also ask about the responsibility of other nations who depend on oil from that region to a much greater extent than we do.

We must also remember that the Persian Gulf is essentially a battleground in the Iraq-Iran war. Both nations' air forces routinely fire on oil tankers traversing the Gulf. If we are going to project a presence there, we must remember inherent risks exist that cannot be ignored.

commanders in the field to ensure that they can properly defend themselves and the forces under their command so that even accidents do not result in the unnecessary loss of American lives.

There is no question that the attack on the U.S.S. Stark is a serious matter. Like the bombing of the Marine barracks in Beirut several years ago, it must be evaluated in such a way that prevents loss of life in the future while America's strategic interests in the region are preserved.

Trenton's Incredible Teapots

Trenton, Tenn. — This small, rural city in western Tennessee is perhaps the only place in the world where city business is routinely conducted in an art gallery.

It is not that the city of Trenton can not afford a municipal building. It is more that the municipal building was also designed as an art gallery, and when Trenton's city fathers meet to discuss the city's business, they do it amid the splendor of several million dollars worth of teapots.

Well, Trenton, Tennessee, just happens to be the location of what is proudly proclaimed to be "The World's Largest Collection of Teapots."

We are not talking here about the standard blue or gray enamelware teapot, or the ceramic dice store variety with the painted flowers. These teapots are truly works of art — rare, beautiful and valuable 18th and 19th century antique teapots properly called veilleses-theieres (pronounced vay-ahs tay-air), or night-light teapots.

The incredible collection of these antique teapots on display in Trenton was a gift to the city from Dr. Frederick C. Freed, a professor of gynecology at New York University and a native of Trenton. Dr. Freed amassed his collection during 40 years of searching antique shops around the world.

Dr. Freed originally planned to present his collection of more than 500 antique teapots to the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City. They came to the City of Trenton instead at the suggestion of Dr. Freed's brother.

The idea of the veilleses was born in the 18th century when ceramists in Europe began producing a device for use in sickrooms and nurseries.

The veilleses started out as a simple, utilitarian warming dish set atop a pedestal containing a shallow dish of oil. When the oil was lighted, the contents of the dish were heated. Artists of the period were quick to notice that the flame also shone through the translucent sides of the pedestal producing a soft night-light effect. As the idea of the veilleses caught the public favor, artisans began producing more decorative versions designed as containers for tea and other beverages.

Dr. Freed's collection at Trenton stems primarily from the 19th century when French ceramists began producing elaborately decorated veilleses-theieres which often concealed the fact that they were simply very functional teapots on a warming pedestal.

A teapot spout in the Trenton collection, for example, might be a bobbin of yarn in the hand of a woman, an opening in the plumed hat of a handsome musketeer, the extended arm of a soldier, or a pitcher in the hand of a goddess riding on the back of a leaping dolphin.

There are classic scenes — Romeo serenading Juliet on her balcony, woodchoppers at work, ice skaters warming themselves around a roaring fire — all done in exquisite detail and in brilliant color.

In addition to figures some veilleses were representations of buildings. The Trenton collection includes cathedrals, castles and a variety of houses.

There are examples of timeless humor. One particularly intriguing piece is a beautifully detailed octagonal two-story house. The ivory-covered second floor forms the teapot. At the front door of the warming pedestal base is the tiny figure of a woman helping her obviously inebriated husband into the house.

Square pedestals were often done in lithopane, a process whereby the thickness of the porcelain is varied so that light shining from within reveals a detailed scene in shades of light and dark.

Many of the veilleses in the Trenton collection are the work of Jacob Petit, considered to be the greatest of the 19th century French ceramists. Petit originated the idea of using human or animal "personages" to disguise the functional nature of his veilleses. The 537 teapots on display in Trenton include more than 130 examples of Petit's work. Each is now conservatively worth several thousand dollars.

When Dr. Freed's magnificent gift to his hometown began arriving in specially built crates, the residents of Trenton were astounded at the treasure the city suddenly possessed. The only place large enough to display the incredible collection was the corridor of the local high school, but when the City of Trenton built its new Municipal Building, space was intentionally built into the city council room for the large, custom-made glass cases designed by Dr. Freed to house his priceless collection.

Part of the charm of the Trenton Teapot Collection is its small town setting and the obvious pride the city's residents have in their priceless collection of antique teapots. The collection, for example, is the basis for an annual week-long "Teapot Festival" each year in mid-May.

Trenton (Pop. 4,600) is located approximately 100 miles northeast of Memphis and is about halfway between Jackson and Union City.

The teapot collection is open to visitors without charge any time the Municipal Building in downtown Trenton is open. When the building is closed, a small printed sign on the front door directs visitors to the fire station next door where a friendly fireman will hand over a key to the building with an invitation to "stay as long as you like."

Such an extraordinary invitation, not likely to be encountered at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City, is typical of a small west Tennessee town like Trenton.

For more information about "The World's Largest Collection of Teapots," contact the Tennessee Department of Tourist Development, Room T, Box 23170, Nashville, Tennessee 37202.

Make potato flakes a fish fry favorite

Few things are more Southern than a fish fry. These traditional summer get-togethers will take on a whole new twist when you treat your guests to a new coating for their favorite fish — made simple with potato flakes.

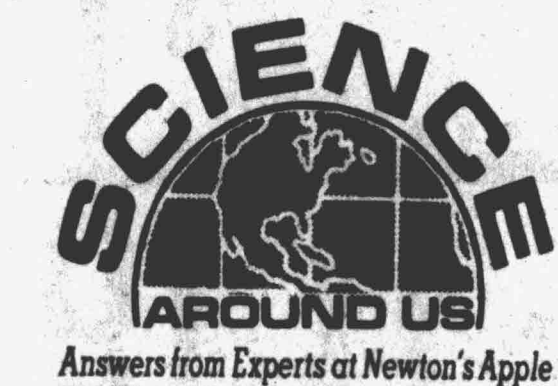

The potato flakes form a crisp, golden coating that seals in the moistness of the fish and provides a delicious change of taste.

Fried Fish with Crisp Potato Flake Coating

1 egg
2 tablespoons water
1 package (2 ounces) Martha White SpudFlakes
1 pound fresh or frozen fish fillets, cut in pieces
Heat 1-inch deep oil to 375°F. Combine egg and water. Coat fish in egg mixture, then roll in SpudFlakes. Fry until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Makes 6 servings.

For a more traditional taste, try the following corn meal recipe which forms a light, crispy coating without a batter. Fish fillets, and whole or cut-up fish work equally well.

Fried Fish
1 cup Martha White Self-Rising Corn Meal Mix

Answers from Experts at Newton's Apple Reflections on Mirrors

Q. What is a mirror?

A. When you're looking in a mirror, you're seeing light bounced back from a surface capable of reflecting undiffused light. The common "looking glass" mirror is made of glass with a thin layer of silver on one side. Light reflects off the visible surface back to the viewer, report researchers from Newton's Apple, a popular public broadcasting science series, brought to you by KTCA, Minneapolis/St. Paul, and the DuPont Company.

the mirror, much as a ball will bounce off the sidewalk at the same angle it is bounced onto the sidewalk.

There are three different kinds of mirrors: plane, which have a flat surface; convex, which are curved like part of the outer surface of a sphere; and concave, which are hollow and curved like the inner surface of a sphere. Concave mirrors include shaving mirrors and makeup mirrors. Many cars have a convex rear view mirror.

The award winning show, Newton's Apple, is a popular public broadcasting science series, brought to you by KTCA, Minneapolis/St. Paul, and the DuPont Company.

Low Back Pain: Causes And Cures

Here's good news for the four out of five people who suffer from low back pain sometime during their lifetimes. The best treatment is prevention — staying in good physical condition and avoiding injuries caused by heavy lifting. Here are important facts on the causes and cures of low back pain.

X-rays of the spine can reveal abnormalities that may result in low back pain.

Low back pain can result from:

- mechanical problems, such as poor posture, lack of regular exercise and obesity;
- injuries from lifting heavy objects, falling, and motor vehicle accidents;
- acquired conditions, such as incomplete formation of the bone in the lower spine and arthritis.

Most types of low back pain can be diagnosed and treated in the physician's office. Orthopaedists are specially trained to conduct diagnostic tests to find the cause of the problem. Once the physician has made a diagnosis, treatment may begin with bed rest.

At times, a corset or back brace may be prescribed to support the spine.

Many people will begin a program of corrective and strengthening exercises prescribed by the physician. Various types of medication may be prescribed to relieve the pain, relax muscles and reduce inflammation. The vast majority of cases of low back pain will respond to nonsurgical care by an orthopaedist.

Cemetery Needs Support

Mrs. Mary Lou Cribfield, secretary-treasurer of the Halls Cemetery Association, has asked that we remind owners of lots in the cemetery that dues must be paid if the cemetery is to be properly maintained.

As most of you know we have insisted that a trust fund should be built up so that continued care of the cemetery would be assured. Response to our suggestion has been gratifying but the trust fund still remains far short of the needed annual return. We have not checked recently but we do know that no more than 20% of the annual maintenance cost is being paid by the trust fund.

After a period of poor maintenance a few years ago the cemetery is again neat and attractive as it should be but the cost of that care is expensive.

Persons owning lots in the cemetery should be carrying their portion of the expense but there are many persons buried there who no longer have any close relatives and in some cases no one at all left to help with the maintenance of these burial plots.

All of us need to do our part plus a little more to maintain the cemetery as we like for it to be. Make your checks to Halls Cemetery Association and mail to Mrs. L. E. Cribfield, Jr., 714 W. Main St., Halls, TN 38040 or to Bank of Halls, P.O. Box 8, Halls, TN 38040.

Contributions to the trust fund should be mailed to Bank of Halls, attention Donald Hogue. Be certain to designate that the money is to be added to the trust funds. Donations to the trust fund should be at least $50.

Enjoying Vegetables

As most of you probably know most of the space in our yard is taken up by flowers such as jonquils, iris, day lilies, daisies and a few rose bushes so the only vegetables we try to grow each year is about six tomato plants. Nevertheless we are enjoying fresh vegetables fairly regularly.

Our niece, Anne Burchfiel, of Tatumville, came visiting recently bringing with her fresh English peas, beets and radishes. We don't know what variety of English peas she grows but they are by far the best we have eaten. Friends and neighbors have given us squash and new potatoes so you can see that Nell and your editor are living well.

It will be some time before we will have home-grown tomatoes but we expect to start eating tomatoes grown in Lauderdale County, the best in the world, within a week or ten days as friends say they will be ripe soon. We appreciate the kindness of those bringing fresh vegetables.

Halls Mayor Urges
Adding Employees

Halls' town board, meeting Monday, heard newly elected Mayor Pat Higdon urge adding to the town's pay-roll an additional policeman, a parttime janitor, and a laborer June-September "for grass and mowing maintenance."

"Since 1977...we have added the Airport [Arnold Field], Crichfield Park, the Senior Center and added and expanded our utility service lines and now face another maintenance job with the Downtown Mini-Park...without an increase in labor force for the City," the mayor said.

She said her requests were "essential to improve the image of the Town to prospective industries and new-comers."

The board unanimously approved hiring someone through September or October to cut grass under the Job Training Program (a federal program paying half the cost of training unskilled workers, with a promise of consideration for permanent employment).

Mayor Higdon appointed to committees:

Fire Dept.—Tommy Simmons, Stan Young.

Planning Commission and Senior Center—Mack Stanley.

Police—Bob Stolarick and Morris McCorkle.

Sanitation—McCorkle, Simmons.

Streets—Randy Harris, Stanley.

Harris, with a second by Young, moved purchase of a basketball and two goals for Northside Park, investigating price of a slide.

Harris, with a second by Simmons, moved to pursue a 99-year lease of a fire truck ($1 per year) from Memphis, per Memphis Mayor Dick Hackett's remarks at the annual Industrial Banquet.

On first reading, a budget requiring no increase in the tax rate of $1.16 per $100 assessment was approved unanimously.

Critchfield Gains
Gates Mayoralty

Ten votes Thursday of last week made Leamon Critchfield the new mayor of Gates, defeating veteran alderman and county Beer Board chairman Hal Michael Pennington, 110-100.

Critchfield succeeds James Paul Archer, alderman elected to complete the unexpired term of John Crutchfield, who resigned the office.

Archer didn't seek re-election as mayor. He and three other candidates were unopposed for re-election as aldermen. The vote:

Booker J. Nance 158
Jan Moore 145
James Paul Archer ... 137
Jackie W. Newman ... 132

There was only one absentee vote; in person, it went to Pennington.

INFORMATION
REGARDING CHANGES IN MEDICARE

On January first, certain changes were made concerning Medicare which you should know about as they personally affect you.

Many people do not fully understand what benefits are payable under Medicare and what expenses the Senior Citizen himself must pay.

Medicare was enacted to help our Senior Citizens pay the ever-rising cost of Hospital and Medical Services; however, Medicare does not pay the entire bill. As you know, some expense is left for you to pay in addition to Medicare. Now, with these new changes effective January first there are more expenses left for the Senior Citizen to pay.

As it is very important that you know about these changes, complete and mail the enclosed postage-free card immediately, so that we may rush you complete information concerning the new changes in Medicare.

Not associated with Social Security, Medicare, or any other government agency.

- I would like to have further information concerning how the changes in Medicare affect my Supplemental Insurance.
- I am especially interested in information concerning Medical and Surgical Benefits payable IN or OUT of the hospital.

Please complete and return this postage-paid card for full details.

Public Cannery
Available Soon

By Charles T. Peal

A cannery will soon be open to the public in Ripley's South Industrial Park, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday, except on Wednesdays.

Equipment in place allows for canning vegetables in glass jars.

Tomato juice is a popular commodity with gardeners who have nice red ripe tomatoes. You do not have to have Number 1s to make good juice.

A machine will be available to make relish, and the pea sheller is a much used item.

Cost to all except welfare and food stamp recipients will be 50¢ for canning facilities and 50¢ for the pea sheller.

Weed Control Shifts

Five inches of rain over the Memorial Day weekend and the week following has given a new direction to weed control in the county's field crops.

Producers of cotton are spraying rhizome Johnson grass with Poast or Fusilade. Cockleburrs and other broad-leaves are killed by DSMA or MSMA. Where weeds are small, Cotolan is used over-top.

Cotton is an important crop in 1987. Most farmers are planting all their allotments, and some are planting "wildcat" cotton to be sold on the open market, with no support price. Some have booked this cotton at prices over 65¢ per pound.

The county grew 17,000 acres of cotton in 1986. The '87 acreage should be about 25,000.

This has probably been one of the best planting and growing seasons the county has had in many years.

Early soybeans are being sprayed for broaf-leaf weed control. There are numerous materials, many for specific weeds; identify the weed problem to determine the specific control.

Corn acreage is up, milo down. Tomato acreage has increased to about 500 along with cabbage to 50 and pepper near 150. Rains have caused the tomato crop to grow well and the prospects look excellent. The first ripe fruit will be picked this week, about an 8-10 days earlier than normal.

Wheat is being harvested; most producers should average more than 40 bushels per acre.

Glume blotch and leaf spot have reduced yields, but the cash flow provided a real value to producers.

Control Crab Grass

Two sprayings, about 10 days apart, of the chemicals DSMA and MSMA control crab grass and dallis grass in lawns with recommended label rates.

8th DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE
REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

As the Nation's largest employer, the federal government continues to set an example for the Nation's workplace. The Department of Transportation is helping to defend against one of our biggest enemies—illegal drugs. In response to President Reagan's Executive Order last fall, the Department of Transportation realizes that Americans must pull together in their jobs in order to achieve a drug-free America. Every day transportation affects many of us, as well as millions of other Americans. Therefore drug use in our transportation system cannot be tolerated or compromised. Ensuring you, the traveling public, a safe passage on our Nation's roads is of utmost importance. The consequences on our roads, rails, air and waterways can be terrifying if there exists a private choice by employees to use drugs. While currently the safest sys-

Those employees who would be subject to testing are the ones directly related to the safety of the public. The functions of these employees have direct impact on the protection of the life and well being of the public, as well as on national security as a whole.

Employees in positions such as highway and railroad inspectors, and also air traffic controllers, will be subject to testing at various times. These times include pre-employment, random, and reasonable suspicion testing. This process of drug testing is for the benefit of public safety. It is not to punish the employees. If an employee tests positive or steps forward requesting counseling, then the Department of Transportation will offer assistance. But an employee found using drugs on the job will be subject to dismissal. The Department is also proposing regulation for airline pilots and crews since these employees have responsibility for the safety of flight operations. Employees in rail transportation are already being governed by a rule dealing with alcohol and drug abuse. However, further regulation is being formulated.

Responsibility for the public safety is most important regarding this whole regulation process. Respect is maintained for an employee's privacy while at the same time work is being done towards a more drug-free environment.

CONFIDENTIAL CORNER

By Henry Murchison

Needs Improving

We don't know just how many Halls customers of Enstar Cable are having difficulty with their cable TV reception but much of the time our reception has been so poor as to be almost useless.

For several days in trying to make calls to the Ripley office to report that stations were off the air, others were so poor that they could not be used, we could only receive busy signals despite repeated attempts leading us to believe that the telephone was off the hook or otherwise placed out of service.

When after several days the call was finally completed we were told that the company was aware of the problems and that a piece of machinery was en route and would be installed correcting the problems.

As this is being written it has been more than a week since that call and the same conditions prevail. Certainly we are aware that electronic equipment is temperamental and subject to difficult problems but it seems to us that Enstar has been lax in anticipating the difficulties since they knew well in advance that such stations as WTBS, CBN and others planned to scramble their signal to force satellite owners to purchase decoders to receive the stations.

It seems apparent that Enstar needs to improve its customer relationship and to deliver what their customers are paying for. Perhaps the problems are not entirely from their neglect but they should be prepared to explain to their subscribers and to make a better effort to serve them.

Off And Running

It seems to this writer that the new administration of the Town of Halls is taking hold in good fashion with goals already set and work on previously planned projects already under way.

We are happy to see the uptown sidewalks being repaired and hope that other sidewalks can be replaced within a reasonable length of time. The sidewalks on West Main and West Tipton Streets are a disgrace and a menace to anyone walking them and we're quite sure most of the sidewalks all over town are in a similar condition. Money, of course, is the big problem but we would suggest city officials walk the sidewalks themselves to see what the school children, the elderly and those without transportation have to contend with.

Property owners will scream but perhaps additional taxes will be needed to build new sidewalks but the need is there. We are pleased that curbs and gutters are being scheduled where needed and we are not suggesting that money slated for that use be deferred. We simply think that some goals should be established and planned. Costly legal suits can be in the future if one person should be injured because of the broken sidewalks.

Commit Children Closer To County

Lauderdale County Juvenile Court has won a grant of $32,000 for fiscal 1987-88 under the Department of Correction's Community Services Intervention Program.

The money will be used to house closer to the county over 15 children who would normally be committed to Department of Correction training schools at the new facility run by Correction Corporation of America and at Saint Peter's Home for Girls in Shelby County.

"I am very pleased that our county's application was approved for this program," says Juvenile Judge Robert C. Wilder, of Ripley.

Wilder has been concerned for years about the cost facility at Spencer Youth Center and the potential problems a facility of that type can create.

"Additionally, it has been very expensive and inconvenient for parents to visit their children in Nashville during the commitment period."

"Now that these grant funds have become available, no child committed from Lauderdale County will be farther than one hour's drive away from home."

"This should enable parents and other members of the family to have much greater participation in the treatment program for the youth during their commitment."

"Further, this change should provide a smoother transition for the children from the correctional facility to their homes in the community."

RED JONES

8th DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE

REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

Along with the recent increase of the speed limit on Tennessee's Interstate highways, safe driving is once again being emphasized.

During the first year of the lowered national speed limit, there were 3,000 to 5,000 fewer highway fatalities. Even still, safe driving accounts for 2,000 to 4,000 saved lives each year.

In view of the recent speed limit increase on our state's highways, it is good to realize that there are pros and cons to any set speed limit.

Since lower oil prices and more efficient cars have alleviated the immediate concern for energy conservation, the fuel savings which exist are claimed not to be worth the cost.

Even though a recent national poll showed that most Americans were in favor of the 55 miles per hour speed limit, only 17 percent reported that they observed it all the time.

Drivers need to be aware of those travelling around them at any speed. Be cautious on Tennessee's highways. Remember that the new 55 mile per hour speed limit applies only to designated Interstate highways in rural areas and don't forget to buckle up.

Troubador's Tale

by Jeannie Turner

The following story was written by the owner of a wild horse from the western plains adopted but neglected by his former owner. He was rescued by the Turners to become the Wilder One on their farm.

ANTIOCH, Tenn.—I held the trophy aloft, my arm of ribbons cascading to the ground in a shower of brilliant reds and blues. "Look what Troubador won!" I exclaimed to a listener. "Congratulations," he said. "Where is Troubador?" he asked. I paused in disbelief, and then I said, "He's in the barn."

Troubador was at the bottom of a long, downhill slide when he came into our life last year. The horse had been exiled from his herd by the dominant male, who drove off the young stallion, punishing him savagely whenever he tried to join the group. Finally injured and demoralized, Troubador came to us.

His face bore deep wrap-around scars where he had once been enclosed in an ill-fitting halter. He trusted neither man nor beast, and the task of winning him over was long and difficult.

My moved my husband, Hardy, and I to volunteer to "rehabilitate" the horse. His future could be determined. We figured this would be a temporary arrangement ending when the horse regained his health and found a home. We did not consider the grim possibility that he might not recover.

When one day he was waiting at the gate of the round pen, he waited impatiently, steam jacking from his black rimmed nostrils in the cool morning air. Sometimes a turning point occurred and he overcame his wild nature, the very core of him, and gave us the greatest gift of all—his confidence and trust. He stood his face against my shoulder, and puffed still.

By the time the Christmas season rolled around we had been riding him about 2 months. We participated in the Nashville Christmas parade as part of a Middle Tennessee Mustang Association mounted unit. He froze when he caught his first glimpse of the tall buildings, and as the floats came rolling by he pruned and danced. However, his calm nature won the day, quietly tolerating all the noise, color and confusion that a parade of that size produces. One week later he was ridden in the Smyrna Christmas Parade.

In April, he carried the mustang club flag in the Columbia Male Days Parade, and traveled up to the Wild Horse and Burro Expo and Show in Lake Park, Illinois. Also in April Troubador competed in Middle Tennessee Mustang Association's season premier horse show, where he won the High Points Championship trophy and title proving that one horse can do it all—and he can. His talents reflect my interest in hunt seat and dressage, and my husband's interest in trail riding, reining, and timed events. Troubador is a key component of Middle Tennessee Mustang Association's Wild Horse Drill Team, and is beautiful to watch as he executes flying changes of leads while bearing the Tennessee State flag at a lope, his long black mane and tail fluttering in tandem.

Enter Troubador in every possible event at horse shows and expositions, and when he is not busy competing, he is usually lost under a sea of spectator's hands. A natural extrovert, his friendly nature attracts like a magnet.

"No I wouldn't have believed it," my friend reported, running his hands down the sleek copper sides. "This horse has come all 1,000' forward from where he started from." I smiled, a smile that rose up from the depths of my heart, in silent agreement. The championship trophy gleamed and shone in the golden afternoon sunlight, proof positive.

For more information about adopting a wild horse or burro and the federal adoption program, call 615-642-1180. Tennessee Wild Horse and Burro Days Celebration will be held June 6-7 in Cross Plains, Tennessee, 25 miles north of Nashville at the Southeastern Adoption Center. Call today for details.

A Success

Going On Old!

Many persons, when asked their age, are hesitant or unwilling to answer, and some are even insulted. It has always been our feeling that one should be proud of one's age, but now we are beginning to wonder.

Thursday of last week, this writer passed his 78th milestone, and we immediately set our goal for 79, but then we said, "Why think about it at all? Why not be thankful for each day and enjoy it as best one can. That really has been our personal philosophy for most of our lives, and we see no reason to change.

We received a number of telephone calls, birthday cards, and personal congratulations, and some offered sympathy, which we rejected, stating that we have worked hard to reach 78 and are happy with the opportunity to go even higher.

Age has its drawbacks, but it also has its compensations. Being naturally lazy, we are now in a position to take full advantage of our age and poor eyesight to avoid doing many of the things that we don't want to do. The only fly in the ointment is that Nell seems to have that figured out and sometimes doesn't let us get away with it.

Working At It

Recently, we have noticed that Halls police officers are monitoring the various stop signs on the streets of Halls, trying to end the habit of some drivers of ignoring the signs.

Since we are hearing some grumbling over fines assessed, it would appear that they may be having some success. We urge Chief Buddy Moore and his officers to keep up the good work and urge Mayor Pat Higdon and the Board of Aldermen to give them the support they need.

Festival Time

The annual Halls 4th of July Celebration and Street Festival will begin this weekend and continue throughout next week. Each year there is something for everyone, ranging from beauty reviews, horse shows, antique car show, arts and crafts show, music and street dances, tennis and softball tournaments, and an open-air church service in Crichfield Park to the climactic fireworks display at 9 p.m. July 4th in the Park. Make your plans now to enjoy the Festival, along with your friends and neighbors.

Expansion In Halls Set By Tupperware

Tupperware Home Parties announced Tuesday major expansion plans for production facilities in Halls and in Hemingway, S.C.

The new facilities will cost in the range of $60,000,000 and provide for increased manufacturing capacity as well as a new automated shipping system.

Construction will begin immediately in Hemingway and in early 1988 in Halls.

The basic objective of these new systems is to provide improved service levels to the consumer while freeing up the Tupperware independent sales force to concentrate its efforts on parties, sales demonstrations, and new customers. Testing of the first unit of this unique system will begin within the next 60 days.

Hiring has already begun in both South Carolina and Tennessee to satisfy the growing production needs.

As part of this new physical distribution system, Tupperware also announced the phase-out of its Jerome, Idaho, plant by the end of 1987.

The Idaho plant is located farthest from key transportation hubs. Its production will be replaced by the expanded plants in South Carolina and Tennessee.
