Pat Adcock Attended Governor's Academy

Pat Adcock, freshman English teacher in Halls High School, spent two weeks in the second annual Governor's Academy for Teachers of Writing at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, directed by Tennessee writer Richard Marius.

Experts in the teaching of writing addressed the Academy and worked with teachers in small groups.

Teachers also attended evening "festivals" in which Tennessee writers read from their works and spoke about writing.

Among them were Wilma Dykeman, newspaper columnist, novelist, and essayist, of Newport, and poets Jeff Daniel Marion, of Carson-Newman College, and Nikki Giovanni, Knoxville native now living in Cincinnati.

Work on the book is progressing, and a brochure is scheduled to be mailed to try to reach every household in the county by the last of September. Each family in the county will be invited to submit a history.

If you do not receive a brochure, contact Oneal Ammons, 635-1942, Willie Mae Harmon, 635-3791.

Halls Edged Cavs Late; USJ Is First Home Foe

Halls High School's Tigers trailed 6-0 Friday until, in the last two minutes of their season opener against Crockett County in Alamo, senior halfback Tim Wright scampered 68 yards to the Cavalier one.

He added the missing yard with 1:31 on the clock, and Justin Taylor kicked the decisive point, 7-6.

Cavalier Terry Wade had scored in the third period on a 75-yard pass from Russ Avery, but a try for two extra points failed.

Except for that bomb, the teams were pretty evenly matched in rushing, passing (though Crockett went to the air much more often, linking 3 of 16), punting, and fumbling.

Crockett, however, was far out front in the penalty department, with 11, for 114 yards, to Halls' four for 40.

Halls B Eleven Over Crockett

Halls High School's "B" football team won from Crockett County's Cavaliers in Alamo Monday evening, 7-0.

Patrick Dampier went 28 yards, late in the third quarter, to post the score.

Mark Bentley kicked the extra point.

Mitch Anderson intercepted for Halls in the end zone to preserve the win.

Remaining games (6:30 p.m.):
Sept. 14 At Jackson Univ. School
Sept. 28 Dyer County
Oct. 5 At Lake County
Oct. 12 At Trenton
Oct. 19 Crockett County

BAND EXHIBITION

Halls High School's Golden Tiger Marching Band will have an exhibition at 6 p.m. Sept. 3rd on the football field.

Immediately following will be a Band Booster meeting. Everyone is invited.

He got that right.

Erich Berme's 47-yard punting average and 43-yard field goal sank the knife Friday into Kilzer's old stronghold, Class AA-Trenton, keeping the Tide in poor field position all evening.

Berme also took a 32-yard pass from Steve Treadway for a TD; Treadway tossed a 38-yarder to Clark Higgs for another tally.

It was tied at the half, 14 all, but the third period FG (3 points) decided it over a Trenton safety (2 points) in the final stanza.

CONFIDENTIAL CORNER

By Henry Murchison

Letter Appreciated

A few days ago this writer received a nice letter from Vandolyn Lawrence Hooks, of Owensboro, Ky., stating that she enjoys the Halls Graphic and that she doesn't remember missing an issue since she and her husband, Floyd Hooks, left Halls in 1955.

Vandolyn is the daughter of Mrs. Lucille Ward, of Owensboro, and the late James Lawrence, of Halls. Floyd was an assistant football coach and principal of Halls Elementary School during his stay here. Both have been teachers at Owensboro since they left Halls. In addition Mrs. Hooks is editor of the publication issued by the Kentucky Elementary School Principals' Association.

In her letter Vandolyn wrote of her strong support of the nomination of Judge Robert Bork for a position on the United States Supreme Court. She urges active support for Judge Bork and suggests that Senators be contacted stating that the voters want the nomination confirmed.

Mr. and Mrs. Hooks plan to visit in Halls during the Labor Day weekend and hope to see many of their friends and relatives. We are looking forward to seeing both Floyd and Vandolyn.

Chief Moore Asks Help

Halls Police Chief Buddy Moore has asked that we remind motorists to use their turn signals as they approach the intersection of West Tigrett and Carmon Streets when school is opening in the morning and again in the afternoon when the traffic is heavy at the close of school.

If you have been involved in that traffic you know that it is a nightmare for about 20 minutes both morning and afternoon. Any help that motorists can give the officer on duty will be greatly appreciated. We add a suggestion that anyone who can reach their destination without using that intersection from 7:30 to 8 a.m. and 2:15 to 2:45 p.m. will do both parents and officers a favor as well as themselves.

It's Football Time Again

Once more it is football time in Halls and for the first time in many years we will not be attempting to cover the Halls Tiger games.

We plan to attend the games but we won't be walking the sidelines with camera and note pad. It is something that we have enjoyed and will miss.

We plan to attend as many games as possible but don't know how well we will be able to see the plays. We look forward to seeing our friends and Tiger fans at the games. Congratulations to the Tigers for their come from behind victory at Alamo last Friday.

Note Burned

BURNING THE NOTE paid off last week at Bank of Halls to free Halls' First Assembly of God of debt were, in ceremonies Sunday, The Rev. Bobby Willeby, center, and trustees Elton Bryan, left, and Ricky Critchfield, right.

Ripley Power & Light Customers: Ripley Power & Light Co. Needs Your Help!

As many of you have noticed, some of the new high pressure sodium (yellow) street lights blink on and off. This is an indication that the light bulbs are at the end of their life.

Because these lights heat up, then begin to blink, it is very difficult for us to find and repair all of them.

We are asking all customers on our lines to call our offices (635-2323 or 836-7595) and give a detailed location of the street lights that are out or blinking in their neighborhoods.

If you prefer, use the space below to describe the location and mail it or bring it by our offices in Ripley or Halls.

We thank you for your co-operation and hope to have your street lights repaired as soon as possible!

REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

We've all heard of acid rain and how it destroys vegetation, forests, and elements such as bronze or copper. Acid rain is something that we haven't had to worry too much about here in the south, that is until the past few years.

For the year 1985, a town in Mississippi not too far from Memphis registered the fifth highest acidic rainfall in the nation. That single rainfall contained 170 times more acid than normal rain. This is not the only town in the south recording high acid rainfalls. In fact, the south recorded five of the nation's ten most acidic single rainfalls in 1985.

Sites in East Tennessee and Kentucky were in the top twenty yearly rain averages containing the most acid for 1985. Even though acid levels are rising in the rain falling on the south, northeast states are still averaging the most acid rain per year.

Considering the neutral pH reading of 7, the more acid a substance contains, the lower the pH reading will be. Normal rainfall has a pH of around 5.6. The highest single acidic rainfall for 1985 which occurred in South Carolina had a pH reading of 3.16.

As one can tell, rainfalls with readings such as this can possibly have a harmful effect on the environment. Scientists don't agree that immediate damage to plants or animals occurs from acid rain, but problems can develop as a result. The acid emissions contained in such rainfalls can be attributed to industry and power plants.

Acid rain is chemically caused by sulfur dioxide, as well as nitrogen oxides. Coal, which produces more than 55 percent of our nation's electric power, contains a rather high content of sulfur meaning that industries using coal need to be aware of the dangers that may result. Heavy pollution from these power plants may be the cause of acid rain problems.

One of the ways to curb acid rain pollutants is a process known as sulfur scrubbing. This results in a large amount of sludge which is expensive to dispose of. However, this sludge can be turned into gypsum and sold to builders for use in concrete and wallboard. This serves as a cost-effective way to clean up the air from acid rain.

West Germany has confronted the problem of acid rain and proposed regulatory sanctions against industries. Acid rain was becoming very dangerous to small-forest owners, as well as endangering the existence of farmers. Six states, all in the northern U.S., have already enacted acid rain control legislation.

An example of the damage and corrosion that acid rain can cause is to look at our nation's symbol, the Statue of Liberty. This erosion was the cause of a very expensive and long period of restoration which was just completed last year. If acid rain can do that much damage to such a colossal statue, steps need to be considered in protecting our environment and our farms from the acid rain enemy.

CONFIDENTIAL CORNER

By Henry Murchison

Keep On Trying

"It ain't over 'til it's over" is a somewhat garbled comment which has been attributed to Casey Stengel, Dizzy Dean, Yogi Berra and various other sports personalities, but this writer suspects it originated in the mind of some sports writer.

No matter the origin, it seems probable that Coach Andy Pugh, his assistants, and the Halls Tigers, as well as the Tennessee Vols, Coach Johnny Majors, and his staff are now firm believers that the saying is true.

You will remember that the Halls Tigers came back with about two minutes remaining in the game at Crockett County to cover almost 70 yards for a touchdown and extra point to defeat the Cavaliers, and then last Friday evening, University School of Jackson kicked a field goal and defeated the Tigers 16-14.

Sunday, the Tennessee Vols worked their way about the same distance and same time to kick a field goal for a 23-22 win over the University of Iowa in the Kick-Off Classic played in East Rutherford, N.J.

We would imagine that the coaches and teams felt that their chances for a victory were slim when they got possession of the ball, but a never give up attitude brought victory even that late in the game.

Neighbors Can Help

A series of daylight burglaries in Halls during the past two weeks has law enforcement officers and citizens angry and frustrated.

One way to help end these burglaries is for neighbors to keep watch on houses which are empty during the daylight hours. The Halls police department will appreciate any calls if suspicious persons are seen around a house or in a neighborhood.

We Are Pleased

Nell and your writer are pleased and proud grandparents this week. Our granddaughter, Wendy, Buddy's daughter, a freshman in Union University in Jackson, has accepted an invitation to become a member of the University Singers.

Wendy has been a member of choral groups both in Junior High and in Grissom High School at Huntsville, Ala. and has won some state-wide honors in Alabama.

The reason that we are so pleased and proud is that the group is limited to about 50 students and usually is composed of upper classmen and music majors and minors. Wendy tried out Monday of last week at the suggestion of some members of the group and Tuesday was invited to join the Singers.

Westside Church's Home-Coming Set

The Rev. Richard Owens, of Henderson, a former pastor, will be the speaker Sunday as Halls Westside Baptist Church observes its annual Home-Coming with Sunday School at 10 a.m., worship at 11, and lunch in the fellowship rooms.

At 1 p.m. The Laymen's Quartet, of Brownsville, will present a program of gospel songs.

The Rev. Stan Anderson, pastor, invites all former members and the public.

Daylight Burglars Hit 4 Halls Homes

Four Halls homes have reported day-light burglaries during the past two weeks, and an intruder fled the scene when someone was at home at a fifth house.

All residents of the houses reported robbed were normally away from the houses when the robberies occurred.

Jewelry was taken from one of the homes, money from another, and money and jewelry from the other two.

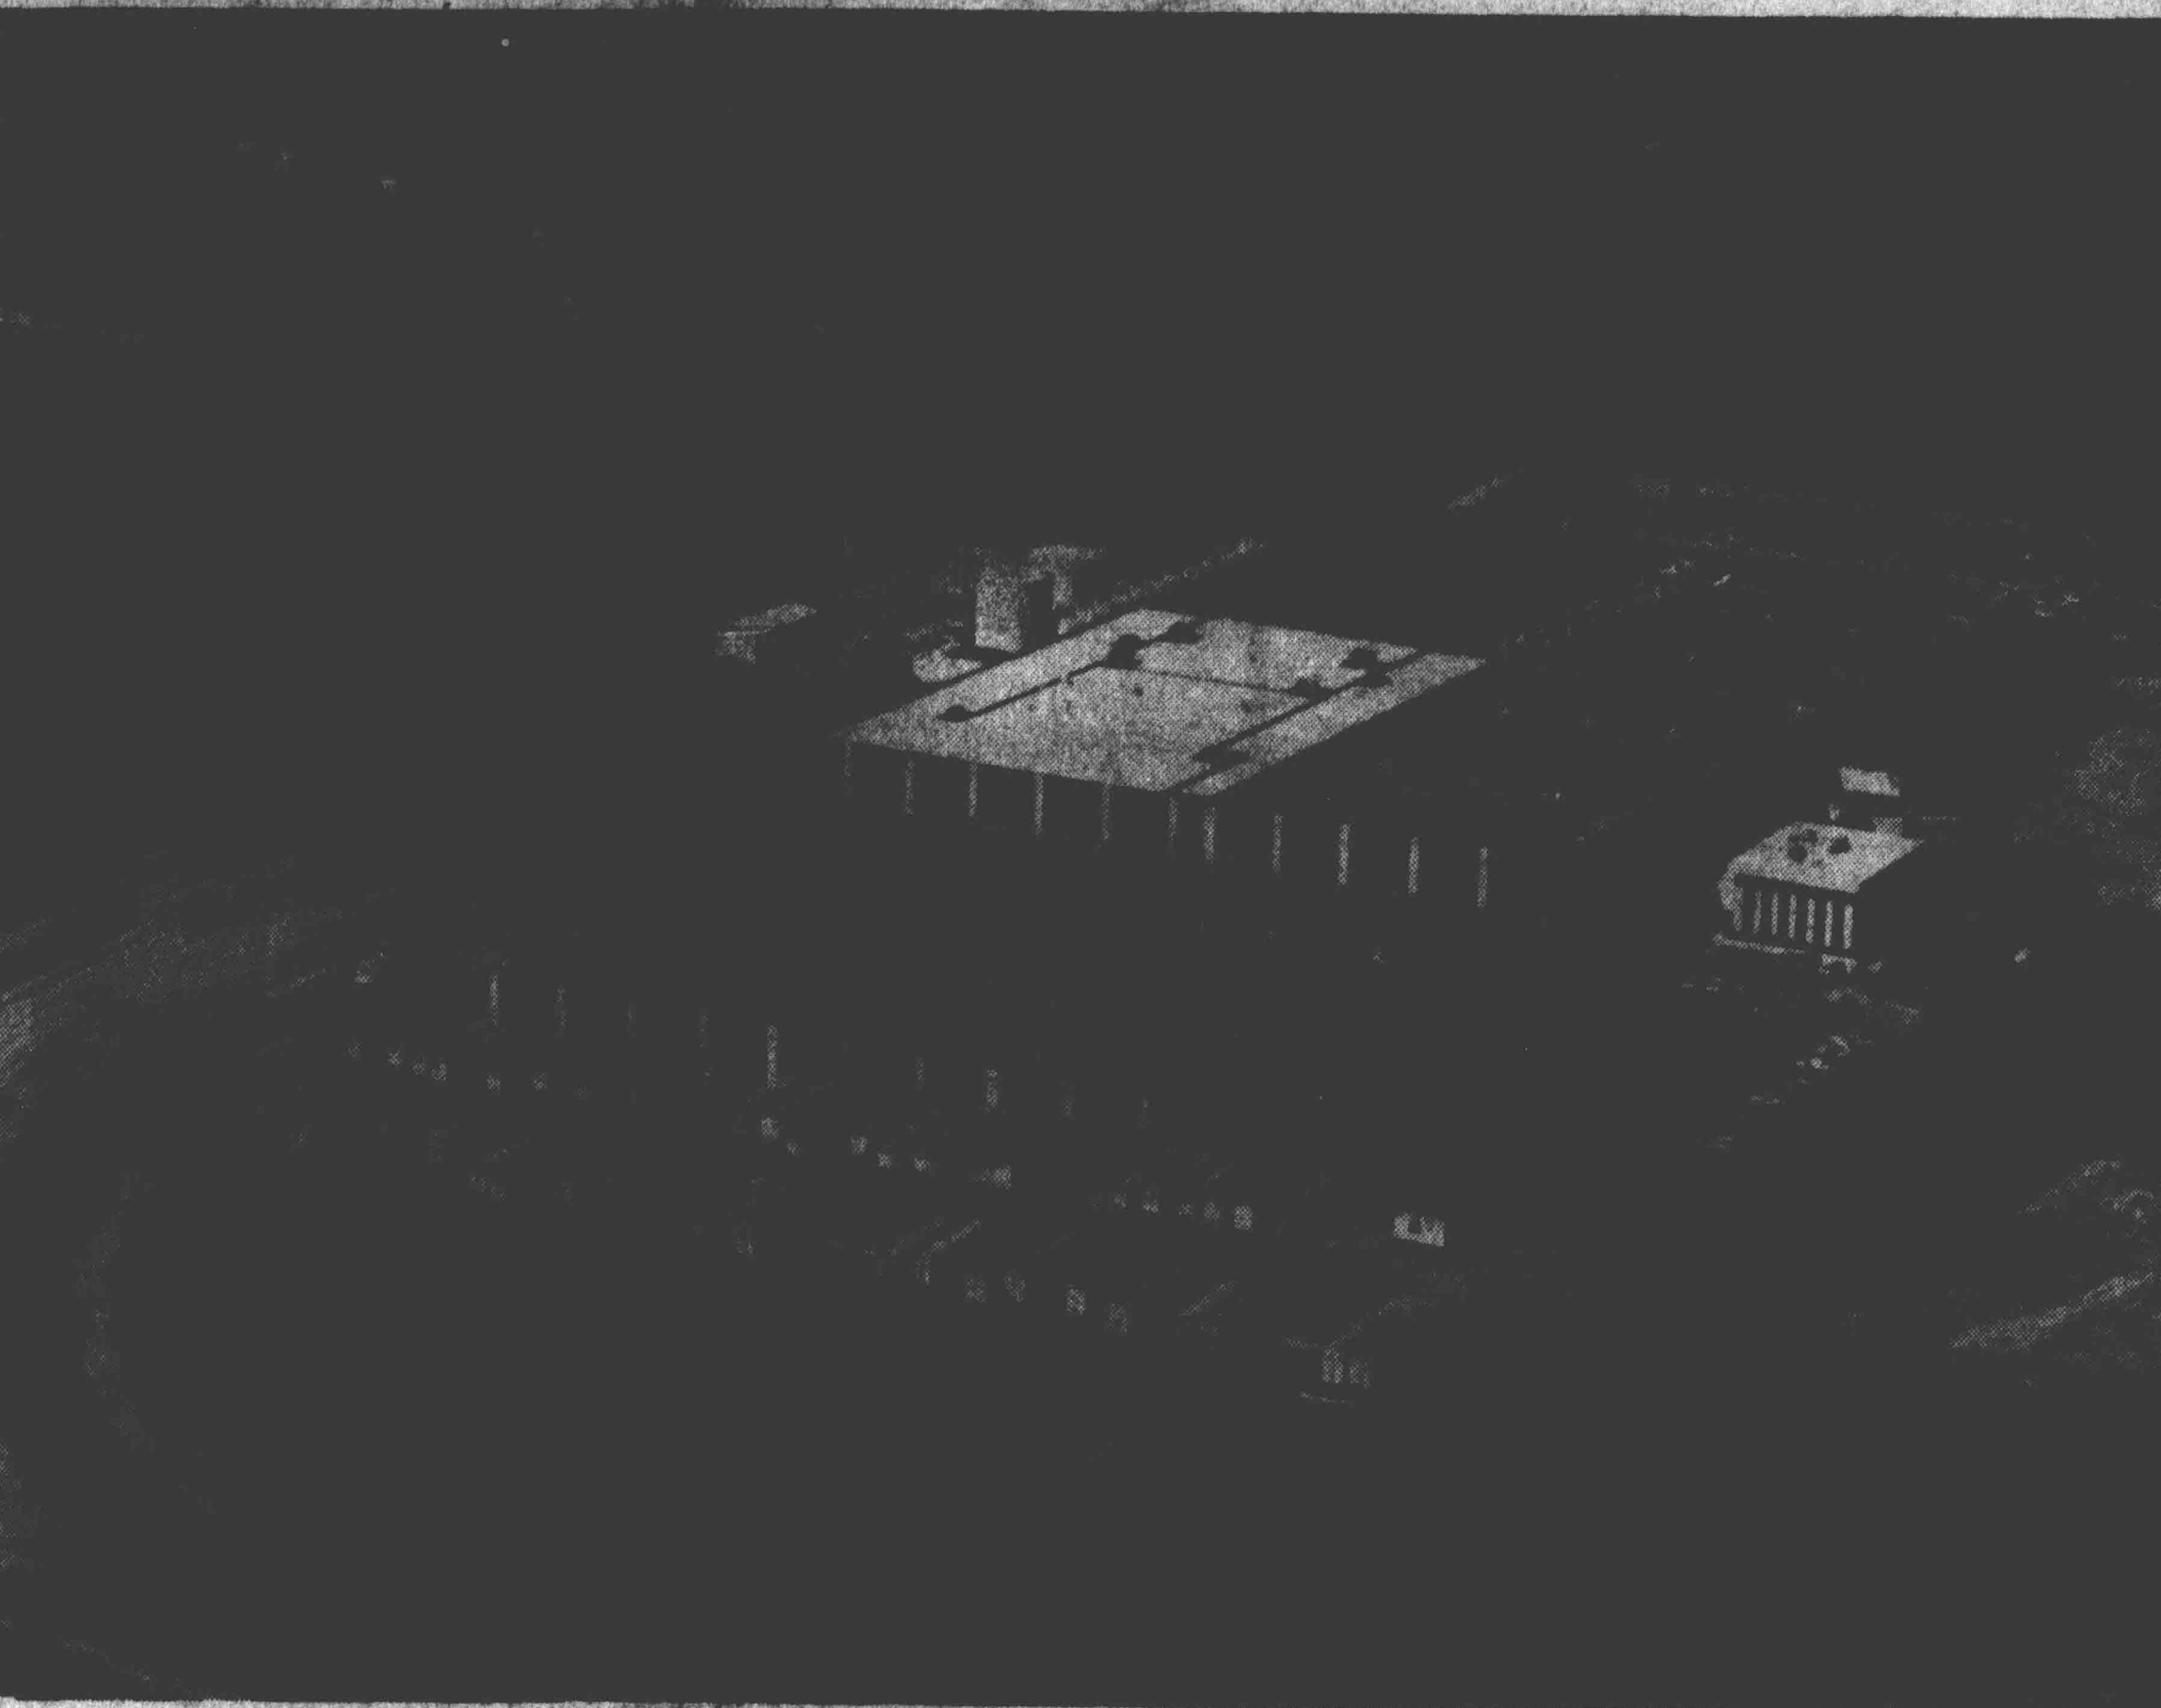

Halls Police Chief Buddy Moore says rear doors were forced at two of the houses, but there was no evidence of how entry was made at the others.

NANKIPOO RE-UNION

A Nankipoo School re-union, all day Sept. 12th, will be held in the former Nankipoo School, now the Rescue Squad Building. Bring a sack lunch and invite your classmates.

Tupperware Making Room

TUPPERWARE CO. IN HALLS has demolished its recreation building (empty site at lower right) for a $30,000,000 expansion. The firm is closing a plant in Jerome, Idaho, to expand in Halls and in Hemingway, S.C., which are closer to key transportation hubs.

Halls Hosts Trenton, Also Edged By USJ

Halls High School's Tigers, edged 16-14 Friday by University School of Jackson, this Friday host, outside District 14-A, Trenton Peabody's District 13-AA Golden Tide, who lost their opener to USJ, 17-16.

Last Friday, Trenton defeated Martin Westview, 20-6.

USJ Coach Walter Kilzer, head coach in Trenton 31 years before his retirement in 1977, says that without his team's kicking, "Trenton would have beaten us by three touchdowns."

He went to the Trenton locker room, after the game, and said "You fellows out-played us tonight."

"You were physically stronger than we were."

"I feel like we were very fortunate to win."

"I am going to tell you something—don't quit on Coach Jim Graves."

Another meeting is planned soon to consider a budget.

The 25-year-old mission operator at a thrift store, transient lodge, youth home, and chapel, aids victims of tragedies, and offers counseling, food, home Bible study, and radio, jail, hospital, and Christmas toy ministries.

USJ Nips Halls With Field Goal

University School of Jackson senior Eric Bremel kicked a 25-yard field goal with 18 seconds in the game Friday to edge Halls High School's Tigers, 16-14.

Halls led 14-7 at the half, on two and one yard runs by Tim Wright, Justin Taylor kicking.

Bruin quarterback Steve Treadway, who passed for 109 yards, tossed to Clark Higgs for 21 and to Bremel for 12 for touchdowns, but Bremel missed the extra point kick after his tally.

He made up the omission with the field goal.

His 43-yarder had defeated Trenton last week.

Trenton Ranks Thin

In his second year as head coach, Graves (85-61, 578 in 14 years) has only 28 varsity players, having dropped, last fall, several good athletes unwilling to meet team rules.

Trenton was 2-8 last year, scoring only 44 points and suffering five shut-outs.

"We can't afford to have any one position hit hard," Graves says.

"We must remain healthy, because there aren't many personnel moves we can make."

The silver lining in last year's debacle was that younger players moved up, to gain experience for this fall's campaign.

And among the 28 are seven offensive starters, including five linemen, and eight defensive starters.

Trenton allowed USJ only 17 yards offense in the second half, but that was all USJ needed, with a superb kicking game (punting average 46.5).

Fumbles Hurt Trenton

Trenton fumbled the opening kick-off to USJ's Clark Higgs on its 33. Five plays later, Eric Bremel took a 22-yard scoring strike from Steve Treadway, and USJ led 7-0 in 2:21.

Trenton fumbled the ball away again on the USJ 37 and failed to post a first down on three possessions before it moved 86 yards in 12 plays to score senior Doug Ganaway (5-11, 165) from the one. USJ's Brent Patrick blocked the kick attempt.

With 4:00 in the half, senior Todd Hensley (5-11, 165) intercepted Treadway and returned the ball 16 yards to the USJ 24. Sophomore Walter Dickson (5-9, 175) got 10 and 14 for the TD and two points after to make it 14-7.

The Coke Ovens National Historic Site

DUNLAP, Tenn.—The Sequatchie Valley of southeastern Tennessee is a spectacularly beautiful place. The mountainous escarpment of the Cumberland Plateau rises like a sheer wall on the western edge of the valley. From the highlands of the plateau there are panoramic views of the wooded valley with its patchwork quilt of small farms and towns.

Farming has always been a way of life here, but around the turn of the century the valley town of Dunlap was also a bustling industrial center built around the presence of coal.

The industry the mines brought vanished long ago, but the remains of the huge operation at Dunlap are still there in a delightful 62-acre park listed on the National Register of Historic Places as The Coke Ovens Historic Site.

"For years, this was the county garbage dump," says Caron Camp, president of the Sequatchie Valley Historical Association and the guiding force behind Dunlap's efforts to restore an almost lost piece of the valley's heritage. "Everybody knew what used to be here, but no one was really sure exactly what was left when we started digging things out again."

What Dunlap's dedicated corps of volunteers discovered under the decades of garbage was an impressive turn-of-the-century industrial complex with long double rows of large "beehive" ovens designed to turn coal into coke for use in the iron and steel foundries of nearby Chattanooga.

"The earliest ovens were built in 1902," Camp says. "Another 118 were added in 1906, and 100 more in 1917. There were 288 of these coke ovens in operation when the company went out of business in 1927."

The ruins of the once thriving complex cover most of the 62 acres of The Coke Ovens Historic Park. The sandstone and brick walls of the 1917 ovens still stand much as they looked when master masons built them, and excavation work continues to uncover more of the earlier ovens from 60 years of neglect.

"Each of the ovens was a 12-foot circle," Camp explains. "They were built in double rows with each separate oven touching those on either side. Railroad tracks ran along the top of each row. Coal was fed into the top of the ovens from rail cars. Each oven held six tons of coal, which made three tons of coke. After 72 hours in the oven they would spray it down with water, pull the coke out with long rakes, and load it onto railroad cars for shipment to Chattanooga."

The old rail lines are still there, too, buried now under accumulations of dirt and debris washed into the old rail beds.

"There are still millions of railroad spikes in here," Camp says, pausing to sniff with the toe of his shoe at the top of a rusty spike poking up in the pathway. "You can see indentations in the ground where the cross-ties were. A metal detector just goes crazy in here with all the buried steel!"

The peak-like setting of the coke ovens today is a far cry from the industrial reality of 60 years ago. Huge trees now grow where the railroad tracks once ran, and along the earth-covered mounds which still bury many of the unexcavated 1902 and 1906 ovens. Nature is also busy reclaiming the stone walls and crumbling fire brick of the more "modern" 1917 ovens. It is a setting reminiscent of the ruins of ancient jungle temples on the pages of National Geographic.

"The heat alone made any growing thing impossible when the ovens were operating," Camp says. "You can see inside the ovens where the heat melted some of the fire brick and fused it into glass. People who remember those days say there was always a reddish glow coming from here at night."

A man-made mountain towers over what was once the site of a three-story-tall coal washer, the backdrop for a replica of a coal mine entrance.

"The mine entrance was actually part of a movie set," Camp laughs. "It was built for a television movie which was filmed here and in Chattanooga. The dirt pile is real, though. The coal around here turned out to be extremely dirty. They had to literally wash every bit of coal they took out of these mines."

The mines are also still there, high on the mountainside above the valley. They were linked to the coke ovens by a steep incline railway.

"The incline was 3,900 feet long," Camp says. "It was built in 1900, and it operated by gravity. The weight of a loaded coal car pulled the empty car up from the bottom. There was no other means of power."

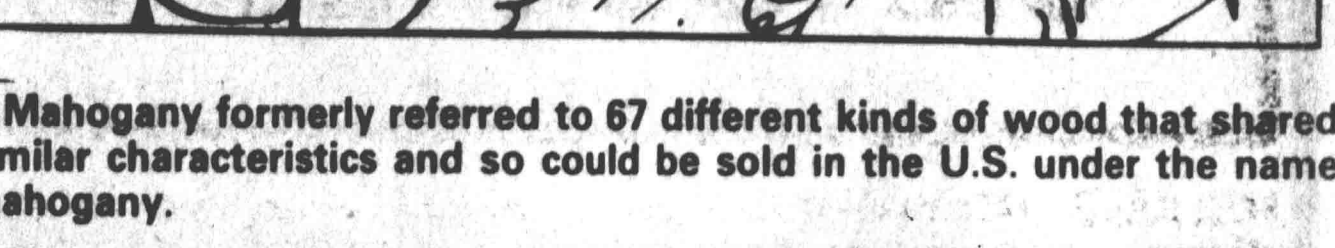

The presence of the incline also led to a unique method of transportation for many of the valley miners. "It was known as the incline horse," Camp grins mischievously. "The horse was a little wooden seat with a roller and a shoe on the front which fit over the incline rail. After a ten-hour shift in the mine, working for $2 a day—big money in the valley at that time—the miners would take the quick-way home. They rode their horses down the incline rail to the valley. Some of the old-timers say you could look up on the mountain at dark and see a whole line of lights from the miner's hats as they came down the incline on their horses."

"Incline horse racing eventually turned into a big Sunday sport in the valley. So far as we know, this is the only place in the world where a device like this was used."

"It was extremely dangerous, of course." Camp adds seriously. "These things could attain speeds of 50 or 60 miles per hour. The wooden seat was very important. It served as insulation. Some miners actually had their pants catch fire from the friction, and there are still a lot of old miners in the valley with coal dust permanently embedded in their elbows and knees from spills on incline horses."

Soil Tests Help To Add Alfalfa

By Charles T. Peal
Charles Love, of Halls, wants to establish alfalfa this month. To prepare for sowing, he tested his soil, and the results were quite pleasing. His calcium level was 6.1 on the Green pH scale. Alfalfa requires a pH of 7, so the application recommendation for this element is two tons.

Phosphate and potash tested high, requiring application of 30 pounds and 135 pounds respectively of actual plant food.

Compared to another producer whose sample called for 30 pounds and 240 pounds, there is quite a differential in fertilizer cost per acre.

Producers should test soil now for fall crops and next year's annuals, such as cotton, soybeans, and corn. The $2.50 per sample is a small investment in view of the money-saving potential.

The University of Tennessee soil testing program is geared to the crops and soils in Tennessee. Information on the sampling procedure may be obtained at the County Extension Office.

Editor:
Halls has had a lot of burglaries recently. I know nothing of the other burglaries until I experienced an attempt on our home. Seems our home, nor our small town, is not the place to be, if you want to be safe. Our lovely small town needs to wake up and never think it will not happen to it, for crime is here among us.

It seems the burglaries are not being taken seriously; take my word for it, when you see someone breaking the glass, reaching inside, and unlocking the door, then you'll take your home and life seriously.

All neighbors need to keep an eye out on each others' houses. If we all work together, maybe we can stop these things from happening.

Halls needs a Neighborhood Watch, and one needs to be started soon.

I know a stranger, nor any person, has any business on another's property, but cars are parking on the Halltex parking lot at all hours. Some just speed and do doughnuts at 3 p.m. or 1 a.m. This is private property, and no one should be on it.

CONFIDENTIAL CORNER

By Henry Murchison

Board's Problems

Halls' Board of Mayor and Aldermen has some decisions to make which it will not find easy.

In the board meeting Tuesday evening of last week the Board had citizens calling for the removal of stray dogs, the enforcement of the ordinance concerning abandoned automobiles, and a decision on what to do with dilapidated buildings.

Alderman Randy Harris again questioned the legality of the curfew law and asked City Attorney Charles Dyer to request an opinion from the state Attorney General.

The Board passed on first reading an ordinance to begin steps to rid the town of abandoned buildings but deferred any action on efforts to control dogs running loose, removal of inoperable cars, or the curfew.

None of these problems are new, but it would seem to be time for the Board to determine just what should be done about them.

The stray dogs problem has created much controversy in the past and will again. The abandoned cars and buildings have also been problems, with little success in handling them. It is our feeling that strong ordinances should be created and enforced, and we believe that the curfew law is legal and needed, but the Attorney General should settle this matter.

We don't envy members of the Board, for they will make many persons angry, but it is their job.

New Kid On The Block

The Murchisons have a new family member. Last Friday evening our granddaughter, Michelle, and her boyfriend, Carson Hampson, both seniors in Rhodes College in Memphis, came to join us and her father, Buddy Murchison, and Jean, of Troy, Ala., for the evening meal.

Michelle and Carson brought a present for Nell, a beautiful six weeks old kitten which has been named Baby. Your writer is now in third place in this family, as the kitten has become the center of attention.

The young lady seems to be quite happy and has already figured out ways of obtaining what she wants. She is especially fond of Buddy's other daughter, Wendy, a freshman in Union University at Jackson, who had also come here for the weekend.

Halls District Debut Visits Weak Sharon

Halls High School's Tigers, 1-2 after a 21-14 defeat by Trenton Peabody last week, go to Sharon Friday for their District 14-A opener.

Sharon lost last week, 13-6, in the first game at Wood's West. Carroll has ever won, after a 21-game losing streak.

If Halls tops Sharon, Halls will be in a 3-way tie (1-0) for district leadership with Greenfield and with the winner of this week's visit by South Fulton to Lake County.

Sharon has already lost in the district, to Greenfield, 29-0.

Sharon Coach Larry Ingle says summer jobs hindered practice for his squad of 25 Eagles, including only three full-time starters—senior tailback Scott Gaylor (5-7, 145), senior tackle Jesse Doster (6-0, 190), and junior guard David Ballard (5-0, 175).

Quarterback Greg Gardner (5-10, 150), a junior, started the last three games last fall.

Battered By Bruceton

Sharon dropped its opener in Bruceton, 55-0, piling only 44 yards to Bruceton's 306. Anthony Currie scored on a 45-yard run and a 55-yard pass interception. "We didn't do anything wrong," says Bruceton coach Rod Stundvart.

Sharon got blanked again in Greenfield, 29-0, after junior Eric Higgs posted three Yellowjacket scores in the first half, on runs of one and 30 yards and a pass from Trent Seates worth 38 yards. Seates linked five of seven passes for 150 yards and hit sophomore Randy Hinfestler for a 50-yard touchdown. Lynn Scarbrough completed the scoring with a 44-yard field goal.

West Carroll's Tracy Taylor scored first, on a 33-yard run, in the first period, and Tim Halliburton kicked the point after. Sharon came back with a pass from Gardner to Daniel Arnold for 14 yards to make it 7-6 after

Dickson Collision Claims Life Of Anita Blanks, 19

Gates Hires Chief, Eyes Street Signs

Gates' city board Tuesday of last week week employed Bob Gray as chief of police, on 90-day trial, at $225 weekly.

The board approved erection of street signs if it can be done for no more than $1,500.

The board approved painting parking places down-town, including two for the handicapped by the telephone booth at Pennington Seed & Supply.

The board decided to look into laws governing annexations and the picking up of dogs and holding them for a time before turning them over to the county rabies officer.

Mayor W. L. Critchfield presided. Aldermen present were Booker Nance, Jackie Newman, and Jan Moore. Paul Archer was absent.

Heritage Club Enrolling Two

Wynette Elmore and Olga Dew were welcomed as new members when the Heritage Club held a called meeting Aug. 25th in the home of its president, Patsy Atkinson.

Patsy spoke on citizenship, community out-reach, and the Constitution, reading an article by William Tyler Peigs.

Patsy served refreshments. Virginia Hart won the door prize.

Federal Grant Plans $400,000 Boat Ramp

U.S. Sen. Jim Sasser reports he has won agreement from the Senate's Energy and Water Appropriations Sub-Committee to match $200,000 in state funds for a $400,000 boat launching ramp on the Mississippi River, west of Halls, to replace a ramp on the Obion River reported "unstable".

"I do not foresee any problems arising on the House side," says U.S. Rep. Ed Jones. "I certainly will be working with members of the House Appropriations Committee to insure their concurrence in the Senate action."

Claybrook Death Sentence Voided Competes

The state Supreme Court has reversed the murder conviction and death sentence in Crockett County, in June, 1984, of Willie Claybrook, 37, who has since been on death row in Nashville's main prison.

A 25-page opinion by Chief Justice Ray L. Brock, Jr., holds that Circuit Judge Dick Jerman, Jr., should not have allowed persons summoned for possible jury duty to hear other prospective jurors being questioned by attorneys in the jury selection process.

The case must be tried again, unless prosecutors drop it, but the opinion did not grant a request by Claybrook's attorney, David M. Livingston, of Bolivar, that any new trial be held in another county than Crockett.

Livingston says most jurors were aware that Claybrook had been convicted of second degree murder in Lauderdale County, serving part of a 10 to 20 year sentence.

He says this prevented an unprejudiced trial. Claybrook was convicted in Crockett of bludgeoning to death Lesley Jennings, 87.

REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

This week marks another outstanding occasion during the bicentennial celebration of the United States Constitution. Two hundred years ago on September 17, 1787, the Members of the Constitutional Convention signed the document that laid the foundations for our democratic society. All but three of the delegates signed the Constitution which allowed it then to be sent to the states for ratification.

This historic event officially began the process of establishing a federal government of the people, BY the people, and FOR the people. As the cornerstone of the American republic, our nation's Constitution symbolizes our ideals of freedom, hope, justice, and equal opportunity for all. The American dream is based on promises from the U.S. Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

After the signing took place, the states began ratifying the Constitution and suggested that a Bill of Rights be added to protect the rights of the people. This process continued over four years before the Constitution and the Bill of Rights were accepted as a whole by all of the states.

To honor the signing of the oldest written instrument of national government in the world, a Celebration of Citizenship is to be held to remind Americans of the importance of this document. On Sept. 18th, our nation's political leaders will join with America's youth in a ceremony to be broadcast nationwide on radio and television at 1 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time. This patriotic salute will take place on the steps of the United States Capitol.

Highlighting the celebration will be the reading of the Preamble to the Constitution and the joining of all Americans in reciting the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag. Everyone is urged to join in saluting the United States Constitution and the freedoms and responsibilities of citizenship by tuning in to your radio or television.

In addition to this nationwide broadcast, every school in America has been asked to participate in a teach-in where students will celebrate the rights and responsibilities of citizenship. Teachers have been urged to design their own programs and activities to assist in this day-long event, A Celebration of Citizenship.

Too often we take for granted what it means to be an American citizen. This is an excellent opportunity for us to show our appreciation to the Founding Fathers for the rights and privileges we enjoy. For our Constitution to have lasted these past two centuries really says a lot. There still remains enough strength and support in this document for it to carry on for many more.

Join with us in honoring our Constitution, and rededicating ourselves to keep its principles alive.

Ask Dean Witter about our latest EasyCash™ CDs.

Pick the maturities that best suit your needs, from six months to ten years, and assure yourself of high interest returns.

These EasyCash Certificates of Deposit are issued by banks and savings institutions and are FDIC or FSLIC-insured. They sell in denominations of just $1,000, making it easy to invest as much or as little as you'd like. And they normally pay higher rates than current U.S. Treasury Bills.

Best of all, EasyCash CDs have a decided advantage over conventional CDs because you can get cash out, if necessary, BEFORE MATURITY AND WITHOUT PENALTY. Although not obligated to do so, Dean Witter presently maintains a viable secondary market in these securities. The price you receive in this secondary market could be more, or less, than you originally invested. This price depends, of course, on existing market conditions at the time.

The Frontier Towns of Northeastern Tennessee

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn. - The quiet and beautiful northeastern corner of Tennessee is some of the richest historic ground in America. Its original settlements were the first on the western side of the Appalachian Mountains. Its residents included such legendary figures as Daniel Boone, Davy Crockett, Andrew Jackson and John Sevier.

In the late 18th century this was America's frontier, a bustling center of activity and enterprise. It was the first stop on the westward migration, and the patterns set by its settlers became the framework for what historians call "the American experience."

But the boom days ended early in the 19th century as the focus of American attention shifted to other places. The thriving towns of the frontier withered, their historic old homes and buildings left frozen in another time.

Jonesborough, on U.S. Highway 11E just southwest of Johnson City, is a prime example of the time capsule effect so prevalent in the area.

Chartered in 1779, 17 years before there was a Tennessee, Jonesborough was a center of urban life on the frontier. The entire town is now classified as a historic district. Its architectural treasures include The Chester Inn (1797), the unusual Sister's Row (1820) and the log Christopher-Taylor Cabin where a young frontier lawyer named Andrew Jackson once boarded.

Greeneville, farther south on U.S. Highway 11E, was one of the most sophisticated of the frontier towns. Founded in 1783, many of its buildings were brick and much of the town's antebellum architecture remains intact. The oldest structures include The Sevier-Lowry House (1790), The Antrim (1793), Greenwood (1810), The Mansion House (1810), The Dickson-Williams House (1815), The Valentine Sevier House (1830), the tailor shop and home of President Andrew Johnson (1830), and the home he returned to after his term as president (1849). Tusculum College, founded at Greeneville in 1794, is the oldest west of the mountains. The historic buildings on its campus include home of founder Samuel Doak (1818).

As contrary to the popular belief fostered by Walt Disney, Davy Crockett was not "born on a mountain top in Tennessee."

He was, in fact, born on the banks of Limestone Creek just outside Greeneville at what is now Davy Crockett Birthplace State Park which features a replica of the log cabin where Crockett was born in 1786.

Piney Flats, on U.S. Highway 11E just north of Johnson City, is a tiny community most notable for an impressive log home called Rocky Mount, which served for 18 months as the capitol of the Territory of the United States South of the River Ohio.

Built in 1770 by William Cobb, the two-story log house was a frontier mansion. Now a state historic site, Rocky Mount offers a rare opportunity to sample the lifestyle of the 18th century.

Visitors arrive at the front door as "guests" of the Cobb family. The year is 1791. Territorial Governor William Blount is "away on business," and no 20th century questions are permitted, thank you. Rogersville, on U.S. Highway 11W northwest of Johnson City, is a close second to Jonesborough in terms of age. Its main street is still lined with early 19th century buildings. Among the most notable are the Hawkins County Courthouse (1836), the Masonic Temple (1840), and the Hale Springs Inn (1824).

The latter is Tennessee's oldest hotel. Delightfully restored, its high-ceilinged rooms furnished with antiques and wood burning fireplaces, the hotel has never stopped serving travelers.

Kingsport, on Interstate 191 northwest of Johnson City, began in 1802 when William King built a major frontier shipping point all the way to the Gulf of Mexico, the boatyard immediately became known as King's Port.

In 1818, Richard Netherland added a tavern and boarding house to the thriving complex. Netherland Inn, little changed from 1818, is today the centerpiece of Kingsport's Boatyard Historic District.

Just a few miles away is Exchange Place, another of the landmarks of the Tennessee frontier. The large log building was a major stop on the Great Stage Road - a place where stagecoaches could exchange stage horses for fresh ones, and passengers could exchange Virginia currency for the Tennessee variety.

Blountsville, on Tennessee State Highways 87 and 126, was established in 1792, and is one of the last remaining towns of the frontier where log cabins can still be found on Main Street.

Walking and driving tours of the Blountville Historic District include the Deery Inn (1801) and the John Anderson Townhouse (1811).

Elizabethton, on U.S. Highway 321 east of Johnson City, was a settlement Daniel Boone knew as Fort Watauga. The palisaded fort at the shallow Spycamore Shoals crossing on the Watauga River was the scene of some of the most dramatic events in American history, including the formation of The Watauga Association in 1772 which drafted the first constitution ever written by Americans.

Exhibits at the reconstructed Fort Watauga at Spycamore Shoals State Park tell the story of the Watauga Association settlements, and the story of the 1780 rendezvous at the fort by the Overmountain Men who marched victoriously against a British army at Kings Mountain, South Carolina, in a battle which marked a turning point in the American Revolution.

One of Elizabethton's most historic buildings is the Carter Mansion. Built around 1780, the unusual frame house with its paneled walls and unique fireplace paintings is one of the last remaining links to the Watauga Association which set a pattern for what would become the United States of America.

A newly hatched alligator is just eight years old. It will grow about a foot a year until it reaches the average adult length of six to eight feet.

Visitors arrive at the front door as "guests" of the Cobb family. The year is 1791. Territorial Governor

Eye Generic Certificates

By Charles T. Peal

With cash corn prices likely to be well below price support levels again this year, wise use of generic certificates can strengthen the marketing program and increase net farm income.

Generic certificates are being issued by the U.S. Department of Agriculture as partial deficiency payment and as the total annual payment for participation in the conservation reserve program.

Since commodity certificates buy a crop which has been sold to others who can use them should understand the various marketing alternatives available for the certificates.

Generic certificates can be exchanged for cash at face value, sold to someone else or used to redeem a crop which has been placed under loan.

As long as a market premium is offered, a farmer who cannot use a certificate will be better off to sell it to someone else rather than exchange it for cash. The market price of certificates is broadly determined by the supply of and demand for them.

The major demand consideration is their loan redemption value. This value is based primarily on the relationship between the county loan rate, the posted county price and the local cash price. The lower the posted county price in comparison with the loan rate, the greater the certificate value. Many farmers have used certificates profitably to redeem crops shortly after they were placed under price support loan. The certificate can redeem the loan and allow storage space to be increased. A leaflet that explains how generic certificates can be used and how to determine certificate value is available in your County Extension Service Office.

Store Sweet Potatoes Sweet potatoes will keep for several months if harvested, handled, and stored properly. Sweet potatoes are sensitive to frosts and freezing temperatures and should be harvested before these occur.

Eating and storing qualities are reduced by temperatures below 55 degrees Fahrenheit. When harvesting, care must be used to avoid bruising or cutting the roots. They should be cured for eight to ten days at 80 to 85 degrees Fahrenheit.

During thickens and toughens the skin which heals minor cuts and prevent the loss of moisture. This process also causes starch to be converted to sugar. Any sweet potatoes that are damaged should be removed before storage.

They should be stored under medium dry conditions at 60 degrees Fahrenheit or as close to this temperature as possible. Never allow the roots to be exposed to temperature below 55 degrees Fahrenheit.

Tennessee's Awesome Autumn Auto Tours

NASHVILLE, Tenn. - October is a time of change. It is the month when the soft green hues of summer are replaced by the blazing reds and golden glows of autumn.

The change occurs everywhere, of course, but there are certain "special" places where the beauty of autumn is awesome.

Roan Mountain in the northeastern corner of Tennessee is best known for its spectacular 600-acre rhododendron gardens, the largest natural stand of rhododendron in the world, but Roan Mountain also offers an exceptional autumn color display, which reaches its peak early in October.

One of the most impressive drives is along the winding main road from Roan Mountain State Resort Park, where overnight accommodations are available, to the top of the 6,313-foot mountain.

Another exceptional autumn color drive is along Tennessee State Highways 67 and 91 from Elizabethton to Backbone Rock near the Tennessee-Virginia state line. The route leads through the aptly named Mountain City and the delightfully named tiny town of Laurel Bloomery, home of the famous Iron Mountain Stoneware.

Tours of the dinnerware manufacturing operations are free.

An excellent time to enjoy the peak fall color season in northeastern Tennessee is October 9-11 during the National Storytelling Festival at nearby Jonesborough, Tennessee.

The Great Smoky Mountains National Park annually draws more than one million visitors each October for one of the most impressive autumn color displays in the world.

Three recommended color viewing areas within the national park are the Newfound Gap Road linking the resort cities of Gatlinburg, Tennessee, and Cherokee, North Carolina; the 11-mile one-way loop road through Cades Cove; and the Roaring Fork Motor Nature Trail just outside Gatlinburg.

Accommodations in Gatlinburg, and other resort cities around the park, are often at a premium during the peak color weekends in mid-October. Advance reservations are strongly advised.

Gatlinburg also displays its outstanding reputation as a craft center each October during the month-long Fall Craftsmen's Fair. U.S. Highway 411 from Maryville, just south of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park, to near Cleveland, Tennessee, is another exceptional fall color route.

Side roads lead into the huge Cherokee National Forest which covers most of eastern Tennessee. State Highway 68 through Tellico Plains to Cohee Creek and Highway 165 to Bald River Falls are recommended side trips.

Chattanooga celebrates the autumn season with two major activities designed specifically around the fall color season, which usually peaks in southeastern Tennessee in the latter part of October. The annual Autumn Leaf Special, October 17-18 and October 23-24-25, is an 120-mile excursion by train from Chattanooga through the Cumberland Mountains, to the resort city of Crossville.

Sponsored by the Tennessee Valley Railroad and Museum, the Autumn Leaf Special offers a rare opportunity to recreate the golden days of the American railroads, including such bygone luxuries as a full-service dining car, office cars and private coaches, as well as old-fashioned railroad coach cars.

The excursion can be made in one day, or overnight packages can be arranged either in Chattanooga or Crossville.

Chattanooga's second major autumn event, the Fall Color Cruise and Folk Festival (October 24-25 and October 31-November 1) offers the opportunity to enjoy Tennessee's autumn color by boat in the spectacular Grand Canyon of the Tennessee River.

Hundreds of boats, including the 500-passenger stern-wheel riverboat Southern Belle, make the 30-mile river trip from downtown Chattanooga to the Color Cruise site at TVA's Shelburne Recreation Area on Nickajack Lake.

An impressive variety of live entertainment and a huge arts and crafts show are among the attractions at Shelburne.

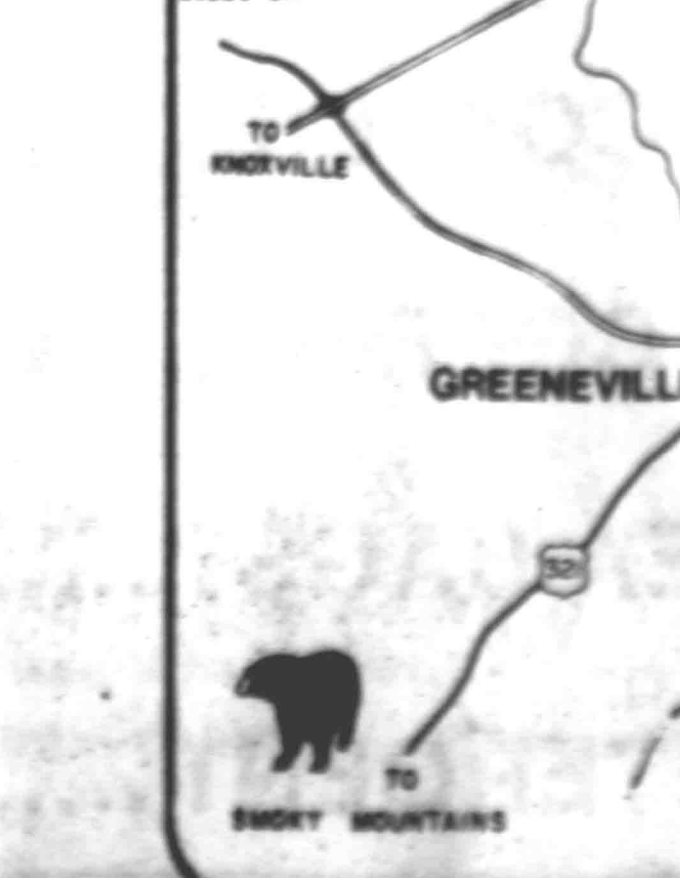

Bus service is also available to and from the Color Cruise site. It is also accessible by automobile via U.S. Scenic Highway 41 which parallels the Tennessee River through the canyon.

U.S. Highway 127, also known as the Bluegrass-Chickamauga Vacation Corridor, is another area offering some of Tennessee's most beautiful fall foliage.

Two exceptional areas along U.S. Highway 127 are the Sequatchie Valley between Duntrop and Crossville, Tennessee, and the huge new Big South Fork National River and Recreation Area near Jamestown, Tennessee.

The Sequatchie Valley, just west of Chattanooga, lies at the foot of the sheer escarpment of the Cumberland Plateau. Short drives to the top of the plateau on state highways 8, 30 or 68 lead to panoramic overlooks of the valley. The Coke Ovens National Historic Site at Dunlap is also worth a stop. Overnight accommodations are available at Fall Creek Falls State Resort Park which has its own awesome display of autumn color.

The park can be reached by either state highway 8 or 30. Advance reservations are advised.

Big South Fork on the Tennessee-Kentucky state line is one of the newest national parks in the United States. The autumn scenery includes overlooks into deep river canyons and sweeping vistas of some of the most rugged, unspoiled terrain in the eastern United States.

Maps and other information about the Big South Fork are available at the National Park Service Visitor Center at Oneida, Tennessee.

The Natchez Trace Parkway, which begins southwest of Nashville, is another exceptional autumn color drive.

Scenery along the Parkway is generally unspoiled by towns and commercial development.

For more information, contact the Tennessee Department of Tourist Development, Room T, Box 23170, Nashville, Tennessee 37202.

Road-Blocks Aid Liver Transplant

To help raise another $29,000 ($31,000 already raised), the government contributing $35,000) to get Carolyn Hardin, 41, of Dyersburg, in line for a liver transplant, Halls' Heritage Extension Club will hold road-blocks from 3 to 5 p.m. Friday and from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday at two Church St. intersections in Halls—with Tiggert, near First Baptist Church, and with Sharp, near Rainbow Food Store (formerly Q-Mart).

Mrs. Warren Nunn, of Halls, is also helping; contact her at 836-5141.

Comments Vary

We have not been uptown many times the past few days, but we found interesting the various comments on last week's Corner in which we discussed the trials and tribulations of the Halls Board of Aldermen in its efforts to pass ordinances to control inoperable vehicles parked on the streets, abandoned buildings, the curfew law, and straw dogs.

Most persons with whom we talked didn't seem to have a great deal of interest in the ordinances concerning inoperable vehicles and buildings, although they agreed that something needed to be done. The majority seemed to approve of the curfew, but the dog question was another matter.

As we anticipated, a proposed ordinance to control stray dogs and possibly requiring that dogs be on leash is getting the greater amount of attention. Opinions vary from thinking all stray dogs should be destroyed to some who think that dogs should be allowed to run free at all times.

We predicted last week that the Board can expect problems, and so far there is no indication that we should change our mind, but we repeat that ordinances covering all of these should be passed.

Tammy Scallions

Tammy Kay Scallions, 19, of Friendship, died Saturday after a sudden cardiac arrest while crossing the center line and struck her coming car.

She was driving west on Tennessee 88 about a mile east of Maury City when her car and the trailer collided at 12:06 a.m., said communications supervisor Don Rogers of the Tennessee Highway Patrol in Memphis.

Rogers said the cotton trailer, which was being hauled behind a pickup driven by William Otis Jelks, 27, of Maury City, was struck from behind by a pickup driven by Jeffrey Gagnon, 22, of Alabama.

The collision caused the trailer to come loose, Rogers said. Miss Scallions was wearing a seat belt, Rogers said, but he said he did not know whether Jelks or Gagnon was wearing seat belts.

Gagnon was in fair condition Saturday in Jackson-Madison County Hospital. Jelks was not hospitalized.

"As far as charges, everything's still under investigation," Rogers said. Services for Miss Scallions, an employee of Todd Uniform company in Maury City, were at 2 p.m. Sunday in Floyd's Chapel Methodist Church, of which she was a member, with burial in the church cemetery, Halls Funeral Home in charge.

She leaves a son, Christopher Scallions, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Terry Scallions, a brother, Anthony Scallions, and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Ferrell, all of Friendship; and another grandmother, Mrs. Marjorie Scallions, and her great-grandmother, Mrs. Katherine Fisher, of Memphis.

Services were at 1 p.m. Friday in Hopewell Cumberland Presbyterian Church, of which she was a member, with burial in Memorial Park Cemetery.

ED JONES

8th DISTRICT of TENNESSEE

REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

This past week the House passed the Textile and Apparel Trade Act of 1987. Studies have shown that during the next two years over 200,000 jobs will be created and our federal deficit will be reduced as much as $500 million. This could mean a lot to Tennessee, as well as to our own district.

discriminate among nations meaning the global limit does not single out specific countries.

Compensation is provided by granting the President the authority to reduce tariffs on textiles and apparel covered by quotas. This will prevent rollbacks in trade which might provoke retaliation against U.S. exports, especially agriculture. The bill will control future global imports at a more orderly rate.

The Textile and Apparel Trade Act will establish quotas on all textiles and textile products imported from other countries based on the level of those imports for 1986. A one percent growth rate will be allowed each year. Footwear imports will also be limited to 1986 levels.

This is a long overdue stipulation needed to keep the domestic industries afloat; especially when the textile, apparel, or footwear factory may be the largest employer in a rural county. When these domestic industries can no longer compete with the foreign imports, the plants close down making it very difficult for the small towns and communities to survive. The Textile and Apparel Trade Act should help remedy that situation.

The most common form of child abuse.

The leading child-killer in America isn't cancer, or Muscular Dystrophy, or any disease at all. It's adults. Adults who neglect children... by letting them ride unprotected in the car.

The leading child-killer in America is also the most curable. The cure is in your hands. Buckle it.

BUCKLE UP

It's more than a law. It's a lifesaver.

As of 1986, imports comprise more than half of the total textile and apparel industries in America. Of the domestic industry, Tennessee is one of the top eight states in the U.S. with the most jobs in textiles and apparel. Therefore, losing business to importers has a great impact on the workers and communities in our state.

In the past six years, textile and apparel imports from foreign nations have more than doubled causing the loss of more than 400,000 jobs and 1,500 factories in our domestic industries. The footwear industry has suffered just as much. In Tennessee, eight footwear factories closed in 1985 including ones in Camden and McKenzie. In 1986, six footwear plants closed in our state including the Brown Shoe Company in Kenton.

With Tennessee being the fifth most important footwear-producing state in the U.S., we have seen the effects that such imports can cause. The Textile and Apparel Trade Act will control the textile, apparel and footwear imports that come into our country. This should cause the U.S. cotton and wool sales to rise while domestic farmers regain use of their own market.

As of 1984, footwear was the major employer in Benton County and the second or third major employer in Carroll, Gibson, Obion, and Weakley counties. To date, there are only 27 footwear factories left in Tennessee. The footwear industry in Tennessee accounts for six percent of the total footwear produced in the United States.

The new approach to the Textile and Apparel Trade Act of 1987 addresses many criticisms of a similar bill passed last year. The new bill does not

The Peabody And Its Famous Ducks

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — It was the ducks that made The Peabody famous.

Oh, it was always a good hotel — an outstanding hotel, in fact. For more than a century it has radiated the warm glow of southern hospitality over the city of Memphis and the entire Mid-South. But The Peabody is more than just an elegant hotel. It is an institution, due in part to the ducks.

The names on The Peabody guest register reflect its exalted position among the South's hotels. Presidents Andrew Johnson and William McKinley stayed at The Peabody. So did Confederate generals Robert E. Lee, Nathan Bedford Forrest and Jubal Early. There are dozens of celebrities like William Faulkner and Charles Lindbergh among the prominent names on the old guest registers.

It was the place to see and be seen, a fact noted by author-historian David Cohn in 1935 when he wrote: "The Mississippi Delta begins in the lobby of The Peabody and ends on Catfish Row in Vicksburg."

The original Peabody opened its doors in 1869 during the turbulent Reconstruction days following the Civil War. The $60,000 showplace with its 75 rooms, private baths, ballroom, saloon and lobby were the height of luxury. A room and meals at The Peabody could cost as much as $3 or $4 a day.

By the time the hotel moved its present location on Union Avenue in downtown Memphis in 1925 it had already established its reputation as one of the landmark hotels of the South.

But it was the ducks that gave The Peabody the status of legend. It all started in the 1930s when general manager Frank Schutt went duck hunting. Live decoys were legal in those days, and one weekend after returning from a hunting expedition Schutt and his friends decided it would be great fun to park their live duck decoys in the beautiful, but barren, fountain in the hotel lobby.

It was the beginning of a tradition which made The Peabody unique among the world's hotels.

The original ducks are long gone, of course, but their descendants still grace the beautiful travertine marble fountain in The Peabody lobby, and admiring spectators gather by the score each morning and evening for what has come to be known as "The Duck Ceremony."

It begins with the unrolling of a 50-foot-long red carpet stretching from the fountain to one of the hotel elevators. With ranks of attending bellmen at rigid attention along both sides of the red carpet and the stirring sounds of The King Cotton March filling the lobby, the elevator doors slowly open for the stars of the drama — a Mallard drake and four hens.

The ducks, fully aware of their importance in the scheme of things at The Peabody, strut majestically along the red carpet, across the hotel lobby, and into the fountain where they spend the day entertaining visitors.

The ceremony is repeated in reverse each afternoon as the ducks return to their nighttime living quarters on The Peabody roof — a spot appropriately known as "The Duck Palace."

In addition to the plush Duck Palace, which is open for visitors to see, The Peabody roof also boasts an equally popular place for people.

Originally known as "The Marine Roof" the open-air roof offers an impressive view of downtown Memphis and the nearby Mississippi River. The Marine Roof was also a spot for fun. While lavish formal balls were going on downstairs in The Peabody ballroom, Memphians would "go up top" to find a livelier style of music on the roof.

In 1938 the east end of the roof was enclosed to create a nightclub called The Skyway. The club was a huge success, offering the likes of Paul Whiteman, Jan Garber, Les Brown and Ted Weems. In the 1940s The Skyway was one of three major locations for live network radio broadcasts during the era of the big bands.

In the 1970s The Peabody, like many old-line downtown hotels, fell on hard times and closed its doors. Its passing was mourned by the entire Mid-South.

Its restoration and reopening in 1981 was greeted with an almost overwhelming enthusiasm.

The Peabody restoration was designed to showcase the hotel as it was during the height of its fame. There are, however, some concessions to modern travelers in The Peabody of the 1980s. The rooms are larger for one thing, which means that instead of the original 635 rooms, the hotel now has 452. There is also a magnificent Grecian-style swimming pool in the basement, which the old Peabody did not have.

But the beautiful original stained glass skylights still grace the lobby ceiling. The exquisite travertine marble fountain still stands in the lobby beneath the skylights, and the ducks, of course, still spend their days playing happily in its waters.

The image of the famous Peabody Ducks is everywhere. There is even a restaurant called Dux, which does not serve duck in any form, by the way.

Standing on the mezzanine under the ornate stained glass skylights looking out across the wood-paneled lobby past the marble columns and brocade carpets, past the marble fountain with its cawing ducks, and the lobby bar with its black-sashed waitresses, it is entirely possible to hear the echoes of another era rising from the conversation below — indistinct, whispery words about steamboats, river tragedies and cotton crops. It is an extraordinary feeling.

It is an extraordinary hotel.
