A Wet Start For The New Year

Pigs Are Big For Countian In New Jersey Restaurant

Connie Strassburg, daughter of the Richard Lazures, of Nankipoo, and her husband, Mark, are well into their third year of treating residents of Atlantic Highlands, N.J., to (after Mark's New England clam chowder) Memphis style hickory smoked ribs and chicken, baked beans (including the drippings from the meats), and Tennessee hot fudge cake, plus char-broiled beef, sea foods, and strawberry pie.

Since they opened their restaurant, the Memphis Pig Out, in May, 1985, customers have built their collection of pigs to more than 300—from tiny crystal pigs to large ceramic piggy banks they display, along with other collectibles, in a massive curio cabinet which covers the rear wall of the main dining room, which features red-checked curtains and tablecloths.

The antique bar is from a California ferry boat of the 1930s. There's a large private room downstairs, with its own bar and stereo system, and the Memphis Pig Out not only has a take-out menu but caters private parties for four to 400. "Customers feel that they're at home, and it is our home, Mark's and mine," Connie says.

Farm Census Is Underway

By Charles T. Peal
Farmers in this county have received census forms to be answered and returned by Feb. 1. The Census Bureau collects this data every five years. Results guide decisions by the Congress, the U.S. Department of Agriculture, state and local governments, and research groups.

The census provides benchmark data for current statistical series, such as Gross National Product.

Places from which $1,000 or more of agricultural products were produced in 1987 are being asked to respond.

Farm Credit Boosted

The Dec. 19th compromise and final passage by Congress of the farm credit bill provides up to four billion dollars in assistance through the sale of government guaranteed bonds.

It creates a financial assistance corporation which will oversee a revolving fund to assist ailing system institutions.

Monies from the bond issues and a one-time assessment on each institution will help fund the troubled system.

Government assistance will come through paying the interest on the 15-year bonds. The system, however, will make the bulk of the payments during the life of the bonds and is expected to repay all of the aid when it recovers.

Other key provisions of the bill will protect borrower stock, allow for re-structuring of the system, increase borrower rights, and establish a secondary market for farm mortgage bans.

One of the legislation's major selling points is that it was the least costly alternative and provided the most safeguards to taxpayers.

For farmers, it lessens concern that funding through the appropriations process would pit the system against farm programs.

Cotton Sales Gain

Consumer purchases continue to add up to increases for cotton, according to figures developed by Cotton, Inc., from Market Research Corporation of America data.

Cotton's share of all apparel and home fabrics sales (excluding carpets) grew to 49% for the first nine months of this year, a 4% gain over the same time period last year. This translates into an additional 327,000 bales of cotton consumed.

"Cotton is fueling the textile market," says Mary Grant, Cotton, Inc., senior director of market development.

"The cotton momentum is set to continue well into the future, as the tremendous acceleration in growth during 1987 and continued consumer preference for cotton point to long-term gains in our market share."

Forked Deer's Crests Posted

Forked Deer River flood waters have slowly receded since the river crested Wednesday of last week.

The North Fork reached 25 feet, three feet over flood stage.

The South Fork crested at 14 feet, five feet over bank-full.

H. T. ERWIN, of Highway 88 west of Halls, stands beside his Suburu Brat which on New Year's Day was in the catfish lake behind his home. He tells Phillip Hurt it slipped into the lake while he was feeding his fish.

Mayor Higdon Sees Progress

In the past six months, "many positive strides have been made that make Halls a better place to live," says Mayor Pat Higdon.

"Some of the projects from the past administration were completed such as the construction of the mini-park, sidewalk repair, and fencing of the airport. During this time we have also completed some needed repairs to the gas lines, the water plant and railroad spurs; leased new equipment for summer work; secured a change in design on the widening of Highway 88; purchased land previously owned by Tech-Four as a building site for a City utility building, and erected traffic signs where needed.

"Five ordinances were passed, but the one which will have the most positive impact on the citizenry will be the Slum Clearance Ordinance whereby property owners will be prompted to remove abandoned houses or improve their state of repair. We have at least four houses in Halls that have been abandoned for ten years or more, and they are definitely a hazard. We also passed an Energy and Water Conservation Resolution, which will allow the City to receive funds to improve our conservation measures.

"Many of the other projects undertaken are in various stages of completion such as the caboose mini-museum, development of a long range program on street improvement, updating playground equipment and park facilities, purchase of ICG railroad property between Main and Tigrett, collection of delinquent taxes, construction of a City utility building, the mini-park wall, Community Development Drainage Grant, and establishment of an equipment replacement schedule.

"Compliance with zoning regulations continue to be a problem, and these cases are also in various stages. It seems that most of us want rigid zoning ordinances until we want to do something contrary to the ordinance. I consider zoning to be a protection of the property of the community-at-large and feel we have a definite obligation to enforce these ordinances. We are working through these cases slowly but surely, and hope to see future cases settled promptly before they become a problem. Unfortunately, the effort and money expended to deal with the violations prohibit us from moving forward in other areas."

Halls Hosting Meet Champs

Friday, Halls hosts District 13-AA's Dyer County High School, whose boys are 9-5 after a 77-50 win from Milan in finals Wednesday of last week of the Lions Club tournament at the University of Tennessee in Martin.

Milan sank to 5-9. It had coasted over Martin Westview, 83-60.

Mims, Fisk Saluted

Junior forward Lacy Mims (5-11), one of four Choctaws with double digits, led Dyer County with 28 points and made the all-tourney team.

Senior guard Wayne Fisk (5-9) had 15 (his average last season), after 23 in a 75-58 semi-final win from Greenfield. He was chosen most valuable player among boys in the tourney.

Senior center Marshall Harris (6-5) had 23 in the final. He had fouled out in the second minute of the fourth period against Greenfield, scoring only 10 in that contest, in which the Chocs wobbled through much of the first half.

Greenfield (falling to 6-6) led 15-13 after one period but trailed 28-23 and 49-40 after subsequent quarters.

Fisk and Harris are among five Chocs back for the second consecutive year.

Fourth year coach Tony Jones says his squad looks like two seasons ago, when it ended the year 17-5; last season, it was 5-19.

Unlucky On Seven

The Lady Chocs won only seven games in each of the last two seasons.

Fifteen girls are back from last year's club, 7-22.

Senior forward LeAnn Foster (5-8), one of three starters back, posted 20 points in a 52-28 win from Halls Nov. 24th, after a 25-9 lead at the half.

Halls teams travel next Tuesday to Lake County.

Sick & Ailing

Lynn Scott Vaden, who had surgery Dec. 23rd in Dyersburg Methodist Hospital, is recuperating at home with his mother, Mrs. Lynn Vaden.

Garfield Parker returned home Thursday of last week after treatment in Dyersburg Methodist Hospital.

Norene (Mrs. Farnsworth) Pugh fell through a chair on which she was standing Wednesday of last week to clean a window sill on which she had had Christmas decorations. She was taken to Baptist Hospital Lauderdale, where both legs were bandaged and one required several stitches.

County Power Rates Decline

Electric rates in the county will drop on all meter readings taken this week, the Tennessee Valley Authority reports.

Forked Deer Electric Co-Operative, based in Halls, Southwest Electric Co-Operative, based in Brownsville, and Ripley Power & Light Co. are sharing in TVA's settlement of a contract dispute with the U.S. Department of Energy.

"A consumer using 1,500 kilowatt hours will now pay $86.67, $5.24 less than before," says Hubert Williams, Southwest's general manager. "A 2,500 kilowatt hour bill will be reduced by $8.72."

Rate reductions will be similar, though not exactly the same, for all three county power systems served by TVA.

Obsequies Mourn Rev. T. L. Mabens

The Rev. T. L. Mabens, 85, of Halls, died Dec. 23rd in Baptist Hospital Lauderdale.

He was serving as moderator of Mississippi Valley District Association; a member of the Business Committee of the Tennessee Baptist Missionary and Educational Convention.

Halls Board Fixes Fees For Garbage

Halls' city board Monday set a $3.50 fee per month for two garbage collections per week from businesses, with a $3.50 charge for each additional collection.

All aldermen except Tommy Simmons, absent, voted on second reading for an ordinance requiring a permanent foundation and a chassis obscured from view for a manufactured home.

On the motion of Stan Young, seconded by Morris McCorkle, a 3-2 vote approved without bidding a contract with Barcroft Welding, of Ripley, to erect, for no more than $4,900, on an hourly charge basis, a utility building on land purchased from Tech Four, with $1,804 approved for site preparation and $3,000 for insulation.

Mack Stanley opposed the motion, in favor of taking bids.

The board approved unanimously, on the motion of Randy Harris, sale to Oneal White of 1.68 acres at $1,000 per acre, plus $175 survey fee, retaining rights to a railway spur.

The board set the price of lots on Walker St. at $3,500 each.

The board deferred until February's meeting a decision on replacing a trencher's 37 h.p. engine, at about $2,900, or buying a new trencher at $25,000 to $30,000.

Milton Williams requested for First Baptist Church new sidewalks.

The board was also asked to clean out the ditch between Main and Tigrett to Hall St.

Arms Treaty An Important First Step

The intermediate range nuclear missile treaty signed recently by President Ronald Reagan and Soviet General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev marks an important first step on the long road to nuclear arms reduction.

Under the terms of the agreement, the Soviets will destroy more than 1,900 intermediate range missiles currently based in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union. In return, the U.S. will destroy nearly 700 intermediate range missiles, based in Western Europe and in storage here in America.

The important aspect in this treaty is that, for the first time, verification is by on-site inspection. In other words, we don't have to trust the Soviets to comply with the treaty; U.S. personnel can be on hand to see that the missiles are destroyed and the sites are empty.

Clearly, this treaty marks a significant starting point for further negotiations on nuclear weapons. Our ultimate goal should be meaningful reductions in long-range nuclear weapons.

The President and Secretary Gorbachev made real progress on arms control during the summit. Less was done in the areas of human rights, the Soviet presence in Afghanistan and the conventional arms imbalance in Europe.

But, the momentum from the INF agreement should carry over into these other issues in future discussions.

Debate on ratification of this treaty should begin in the United States Senate sometime after the holiday recess. I am confident that the Senate will unite behind the President's efforts.

CONFIDENTIAL CORNER

By Henry Murchison

A Happy Holiday

Nell and your writer drove to Murfreesboro the Monday after Christmas. We were met there by our son, Chuck, his wife, Lisa, and our grandson, Patrick, and drove on to Marietta, Ga., to spend a week with them.

Despite the torrential rains which had flooded West Tennessee during the previous week, we had a beautiful drive down with no problems but had quite a bit of cool weather and showers while in Marietta. However, the weather permitted us to visit one of the larger malls of the area and do a number of things, but most of the time was spent visiting with Chuck, Lisa, and Patrick, although Chuck, Patrick, and your writer did watch a number of bowl games.

On Friday, our oldest son, Buddy, who has recently moved to Calhoun, Ga., drove down for lunch and to watch some football with us. Patrick had left Thursday to return to his home in Miami. Thursday night we watched the Orange Bowl, parade and Friday night the Orange Bowl game between Oklahoma and Miami. We were particularly interested because Jennifer, Chuck's daughter, was one of a drill team which participated in the parade and half-time activities. Unfortunately, we were unable to pick out Jennifer from the 28 girls, but we do know that the group appeared with singer Leslie Uggams. The parade and half-time show were taped, so later we will have a copy of it, Saturday all of us cheered hard to bring Tennessee a victory over Indiana in the Peach Bowl. Would you believe that Chuck had tickets to the Peach Bowl but none of us attended?

Sunday morning we left Marietta to drive to Calhoun to spend the day and night with Buddy, but it was almost a mistake. Since it was only 55 miles, we chose not to leave Marietta until about 10 a.m. The trouble was that apparently everyone from Indiana and Tennessee who attended the Peach Bowl chose the same time. Cars waving Tennessee Big Orange flags and Indiana emblems, buses bearing fans, the two school bands, and the regular heavy I-75 traffic filled the interstate.

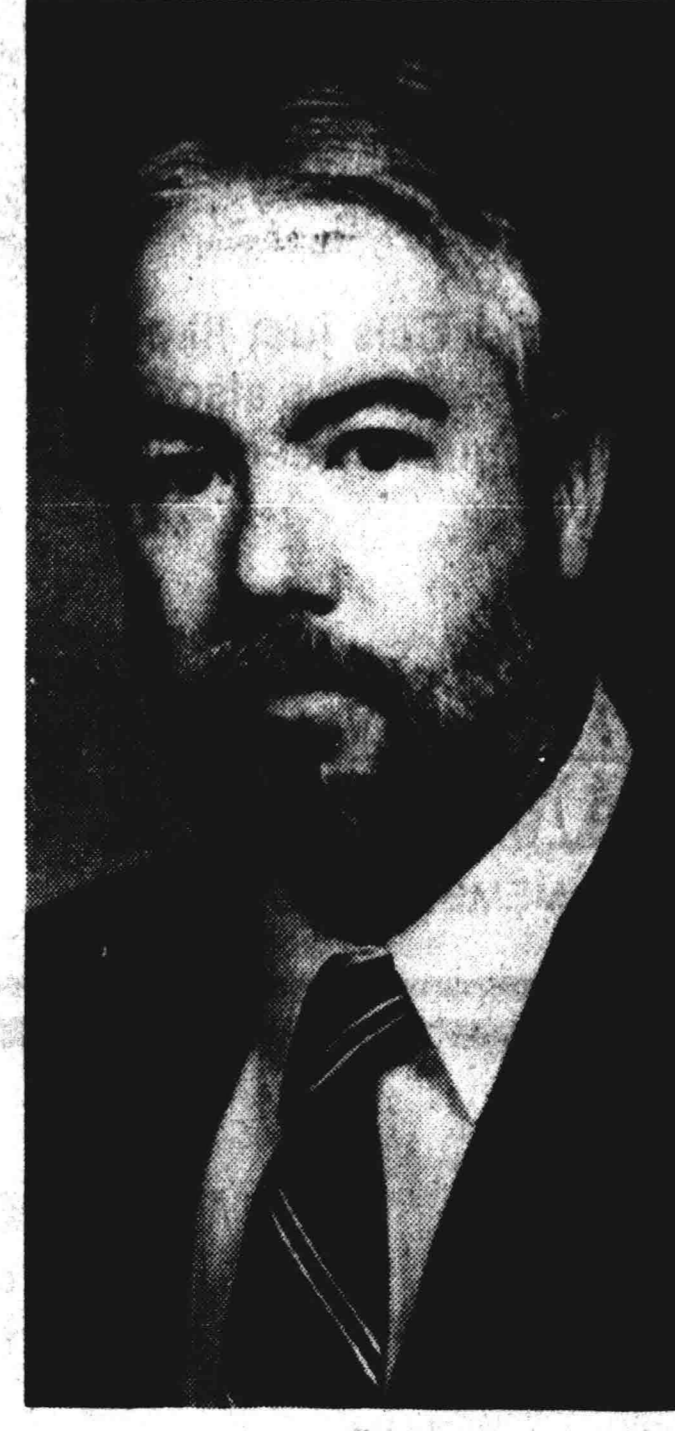

Sunday night after Buddy had returned to his apartment (Jean will not join him until later this week), he called to say that I-45 was closed over Sewanee Mountain because of snow on the mountain and for us not to leave the motel until he checked Monday morning.

Monday morning he checked with the Tennessee Highway Patrol in Chattanooga and was told that the interstate was clear of snow but foggy.

We delayed our departure to give the fog time to clear away and arrived home shortly after three o'clock, drove to Ripley to pick up our kitten at the kennel, and were happy to be at home despite having a good visit.

The next thing we knew we were snow-bound and neither has been out of the house since Wednesday. We hope that we can come out of hibernation by the time you are reading this column.

Last Year's Rains Around 60 Inches

By Charles T. Peal

The official weather station in Ripley recorded 59.16 inches of rainfall in 1987; 37 days had "trace" amounts, so we can say we Green had 60 inches, nine inches above the normal amount of 51 inches for the area.

April, May and June recorded 2.98, 5.35 and 3.87 inches, respectively, resulting in an almost perfect planting season.

January had only one inch, while February recorded 5.16 inches to provide the necessary moisture for planting.

Soil moisture replenishment was nil, inasmuch as the winter moisture was low. This affected our soybean crop, resulting in a low county average of 20 bushels per acre. The July rainfall of 3.36 and August amount of 2.00 inches was not enough to sustain soybean moisture requirements.

October brought only 3.21 inches, allowing cotton producers to harvest an average of 915 pounds of lint per acre, the largest yield ever in Lauderdale. Of course, this means some producers made more than 1,100 pounds per acre.

The November rainfall amount was 6.55 inches, followed by December with 14.76. The December moisture was concentrated from the 23rd through the 27th. On Dec. 24th, we received 4.53 inches.

It is hoped these December rains, plus the snow and rain during the remainder of the subsoil, will help producers plan their cropping systems.

Birding

DAVID H. HURT attempted Monday to drive flocks of blackbirds away from his home on West Main by creating disturbing noises. Halls Mayor Pat Higdon has called upon Halls residents to join in efforts to drive the birds away by clapping garbage can lids together or other unusual noises. The weather has hampered any concerted effort.

Schools Approved Through 1989-90

"Tennessee is fortunate to have a school system such as Lauderdale County Schools," state Commissioner of Education Charles E. Smith writes county Superintendent of Schools Phillip Jackson.

"Requirements of the State Board of Education are met, or you have carefully accounted for them," Smith writes.

"Therefore, your school system is approved for the school years 1987-88 through 1989-90.

"Your system is to be commended for steps taken to remove fire and safety hazards and providing a safe environment for all students."

"This has been a long time coming and is rare among school systems in our state," Jackson says proudly.

"Our citizens and their official county and city representatives are to be commended for their efforts on behalf of our school facilities."

The Board of Education meets in its building at 402 South Washington in Ripley at 5:30 p.m. Jan. 14th.

4-H Here Since 1932

A mother called Jane H. Connell, Associate Extension Agent, last week, asking her to explain the 4-H activities. Her son is a fourth grader, and she wanted a little more information to help him be ready for his 4-H Club meeting this week.

After explaining the 4-H poster content and public speaking contest, activities that are taking place at club meetings this month, Jane mailed her some general information about 4-H.

There have been organized clubs in Lauderdale County public schools since 1932. However, boys and girls clubs have been around since 1926. Tennessee's history of 4-H Clubs goes back even further than that.

The 4-H youth programs are an important and integral part of the Agricultural Extension Service of the Institute of Agriculture at the University of Tennessee. Their mission is to help young people become self-directing, productive and contributing members of society.

An effort is made to supply 4-Hers with opportunities for leadership development. Each time a 4-Her gets in front of the club to share, that person is gaining skills to become a more self-confident and productive person. Leaders constantly encourage our 4-Hers just to participate. It does not matter if they do not win every time. The important thing is that each time they try, they are developing skills that will have a life-time affect on them.

Jane believes parents should encourage their children to become more involved in 4-H.

EHCs Into New Year

Extension Homemakers Clubs of this county are starting a new club year.

The Extension Clubs are one phase of Extension Home Economics Program of the University of Tennessee Agricultural Extension Service. The main purpose of the Extension Homemakers Club is to gain new and useful ideas for home and family living. Our priority areas for 1988 are food, nutrition and health, family economics, and family relations. All programs given at monthly meetings will focus on one of these program areas.

All members are asked to carry their fair share of the club responsibilities, to host the club once during the year and to become an officer when the time comes. Anyone interested in joining an established club should contact me at the Extension Office, 638-9551.

Any program offered by the Agricultural Extension Service is offered on a non-discriminatory basis.

The following is a listing of the established EHC Clubs in Lauderdale County, the club presidents and meeting dates:

Bear EHC, 2nd Wednesday, Mrs. Lillie Ray, president.

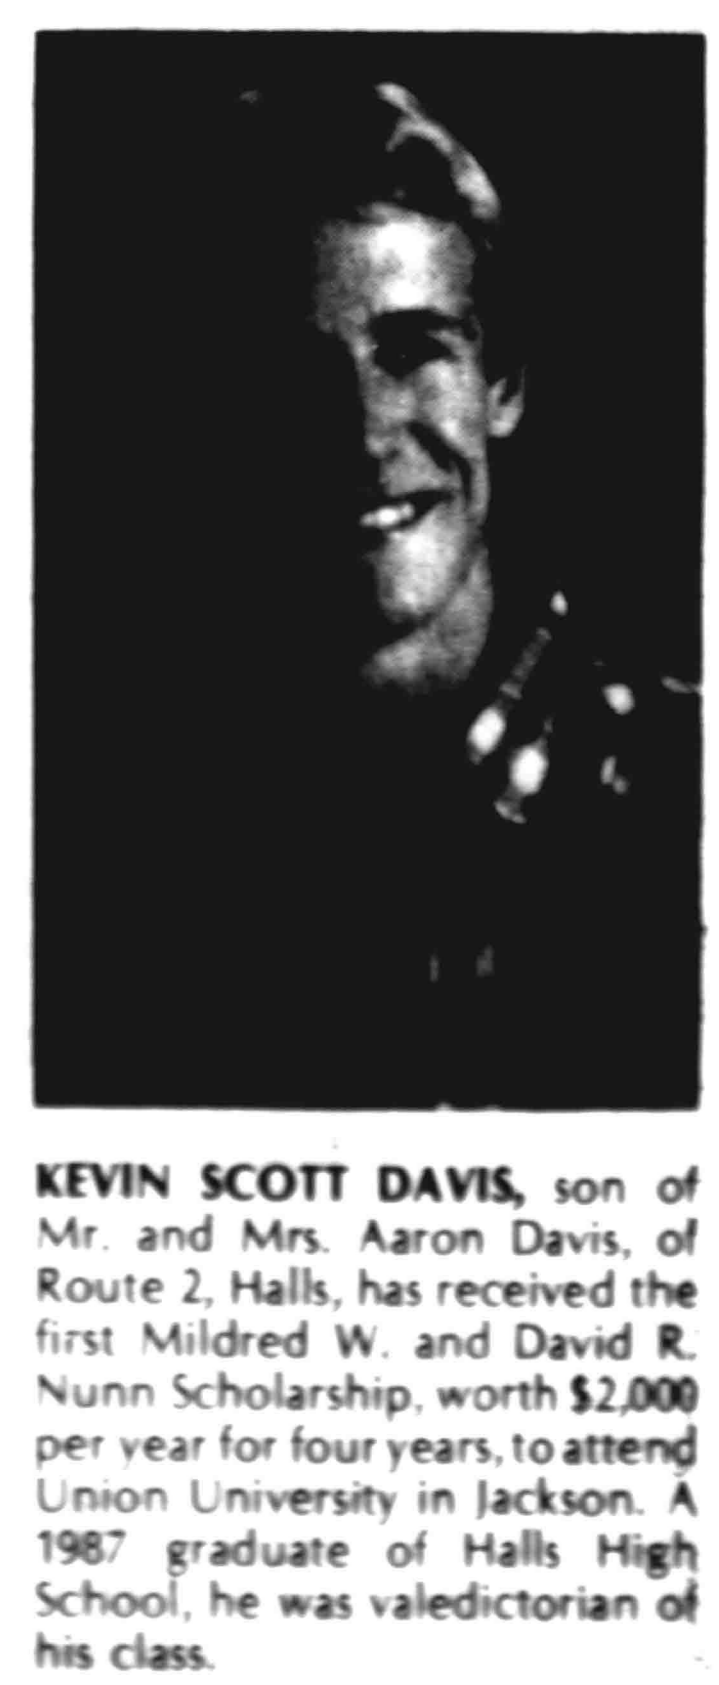

Carve-Woodville, 4th Tuesday, Mrs. Chandler Davis, president.

Do-Sew, 2nd Thursday night, Latricia Turner, president.

Gates, 2nd Tuesday, Lois Gamble, president.

Snow Pleasures Outweigh Woes

By Mrs. Sandra Holman
Once—sometimes twice—a year, during that season of the year that we call winter, God sees fit to bestow upon us that astounding phenomenon that we call a snowfall. This particular winter season has brought us what I will, more fittingly, call a blizzard. Anything over a trace of snow, which we normally get each winter, should be called a blizzard, in my opinion.

This snowfall brought us the proverbial "Winter Wonderland." And, we have to admit that it was a sight to behold. It seemed to brighten up our drab and dreary world with light—even in the darkness. You could look out the window anytime—day or night—and the world seemed to have taken on a "clean" look.

Even though we all tend to grumble and groan about the inconvenience of this occurrence in our lives, deep in our hearts we all can see and appreciate the beauty of snow and the wonder that God has created.

I have finally decided there are reasons for snow. Snow has been sent down to test the endurance of us all—especially parents.

Children believe that even though they have been suffering from a cold or some throat chicken pox, or any other childhood illness—snowtime is outside playtime, and to heck with whatever ailed them yesterday—today they are going outside to romp in the snow!

We, as parents, feel that it is our duty to give our little (or even big) ones all the sane reasons why they do not need to go outside in this weather—but we already know that, in the end, we are going to give in and let them out into the beautiful snow that only comes once or twice a year, after all.

So, to our duty as a loving parent, we outfit our children in the layers of clothes that we believe will protect them from the biting cold and the penetrating wet stuff.

We pile on clothes in the following order: two sets of underclothes, three pairs of socks, two sweatshirts or one sweatshirt and one sweater, a scarf and/or ear muffs; jeans, or insulated pants of some type; a nice warm hat (on top of the ear muffs and/or scarf); mittens, and last, but certainly not least, boots—insulated of course.

gies. But we must be cautious—when two or more children are locked up in the house, out of school, and with nothing really creative to do for two or three days—one may not survive the pressure.

When you can sense that they are reaching this point, send one of them to grandma's house. It's the least she can do to help preserve the well-being of her own grandchildren.

There are many good things that can come from being snowed out. I don't want to make it sound like the snow is nothing more than a bothersome event—because it's more, much more than that.

There is all the good food that is cooked while it's nice and cold outside. There will be tons of home-made chili, spaghetti, soup, hot chocolate, and, of course, snow cream, made during this special time. I seem to gain lots of extra pounds in the winter—almost like I've gone, or am going, into hibernation like a bear.

Somehow, we feel that the store is going to run out of groceries during the "Great Blizzard of '88." But we really don't have much else to do but eat and watch TV during those long days of confinement, now do we?

We must not forget to be extra considerate during these house-bound days. There are so many other people who are not able to get out and do the normal routine of daily living. Remember the shut-ins and the elderly. Remember the people who do not have the convenience of transportation that we seem to take for granted. Call them—ask if they need a ride, items from the grocery, a ride to church, or even to visit with a loved one. You could even share some of that homemade soup or chili with them—just think what a treat this would be for someone who does not have easy access to all the necessities that we take for granted in our daily lives.

Yes, we grumble and groan about the snow, the inconvenience of it all—but we also see and feel the beauty of it all around us. We can know the reason for it, but most of all, we can enjoy it for what it truly is—another gift from God.

When these same children are not outside, somehow managing to entertain themselves, they are inside with "nothing to do." This year I am grateful for our VCR, and grateful for the video rental stores' long hours and leniency in getting the tapes back to them—when parents get off from work. I'm sure they appreciate the weather and the booming business it brings to them during this seasonal break.

THE ED SUMROW, JR. HOME at Poplar Grove was destroyed by fire Wednesday afternoon of last week. The family had left the home early that morning. A passing motorist telephoned an alarm about 1:45 p.m. Halls fireman fought the blaze for several hours in icy temperatures.

hanging from places that were frozen when it fell. It looked like little tables of ice and snow encircling each tree and bush.

On this day, I saw 14 deer—14 of the most beautiful creatures that I have ever seen. I have seen deer many times in this area, but never with the beautiful backdrop that was present today. Against the snow, they looked completely at home—which they are. Six of them stopped to stare at me as I jumped from the truck to get a good shot with my camera.

We stood and looked at each other for what seemed like several minutes—each of us wondering what the other had in mind.

I was in awe, but I'm still unsure of what the deer could have been thinking of. I hope the beautiful doe could sense my respect for her and the world she lives in.

It is a world unto itself. You can only feel a certain amount of closeness to God and nature when you are so completely surrounded by all this overwhelming evidence of His love.

Chickamauga - The Fatal Order

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. Had it not been for one mistake, William Starke Rosecrans might well have been president of the United States. In the summer of 1863, Major General "Rosey" Rosecrans of Cincinnati was perhaps the best-known general in the Union Army. His bloodless capture of the important rail center of Chattanooga made the end of the war seem imminent. Rosecrans was a national hero and eager to press his advantage.

With Confederate General Braxton Bragg's opposing army in apparent retreat, Rosecrans rashly chased his retreating foe southward in what he believed was a race for Atlanta.

The "retreat" however, was an illusion. The wily Bragg had turned and was now lying in wait along the banks of Chickamauga Creek just ten miles south of Chattanooga. On the night of September 18, 1863, the two armies stumbled into each other.

What began as light skirmishing escalated into a major confrontation on the morning of September 19, when Bragg launched a full-scale attack trying to turn the Union left flank and block Rosecrans' path back to Chattanooga. A day of heavy fighting in the dense woods and underbrush along the creek left both armies exhausted and the issue undecided.

By sheer coincidence, 11,000 Confederate soldiers selected that precise moment to launch a charge at the exact spot Wood had just vacated. The result was a spectacular rout.

Rosecrans watched in horror as the Confederate charge rolled over his undefended line.

"If you care to live any longer," he told his aides as bullets began whizzing around their heads, "get out of here!"

With his army crumbling around him, Rosecrans agreed with the advice of his chief of staff, a future president named James A. Garfield, who urged him to retreat to the relative safety of Chattanooga where reorganization might be possible.

It was Rosecrans' second major mistake of the day. Union General George Thomas was already rallying every man he could find for a stand on Snodgrass Hill which stopped the Confederate advance, allowing what was left of the Union army to make an orderly withdrawal. As a result, the commanding general was among the first members of the fleeing army to arrive back in Chattanooga.

Rosecrans was never able to live down the fact that he had inadvertently led the retreat from Chickamauga. The newspapers, which had made him the hero of Chattanooga, now branded him as the "coward" of Chickamauga, forcing President Abraham Lincoln to remove him from his command.

Today, William Starke Rosecrans is the only commander of a major Union army without a single monument on any battlefield.

Vindication of a sort, however, came to Rosecrans in 1889 when he returned to Chickamauga for a battlefield reunion of Union and Confederate veterans and received the cheers of 10,000 men who recognized him as a general of unquestioned ability who made one mistake in the heat of battle and paid for it the rest of his life.

In 1890, less than a year after the reunion, the battlefields at Chickamauga and Chattanooga became the nation's first, and largest, national military park. The park visitor center on U.S. Highway 27, which bisects the park, contains many artifacts from the battle and provides an excellent overview of the two days of fighting which claimed 34,000 casualties. It also contains the superb Fuller Gun Collection, the world's most complete collection of military shoulder arms.

Side roads off U.S. Highway 27 lead past rows of cannons to such battlefield landmarks as Snodgrass Hill where Thomas made the stand that saved the Union army, and in the process cost Rosecrans both his reputation and his command.

On the battlefield itself more than 400 markers and plaques explain what happened.

The huge park also contains 666 monuments honoring the men who fought at Chickamauga. The most spectacular is the Wilder Brigade Monument, an 85-foot tower, erected by the survivors of the only unit on the Union right to hold its ground after the Confederate breakthrough. Wilder's stand gave Thomas the time he needed to organize his defense of Snodgrass Hill.

The most unusual is the Kentucky monument honoring men who fought in both the Union and Confederate armies at Chickamauga.

REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

Recently, the Tennessee Valley Authority settled its pending lawsuit against the U.S. Department of Energy. Under the terms of the agreement, the Department of Energy will pay TVA $1.8 billion by the end of 1994. This agreement will allow TVA to reduce its electric rates by six percent for all of its power consumers.

This settlement brings to a conclusion a controversy that had its roots twenty years ago. In 1967, the Department of Energy, through its predecessor agencies, signed contracts for TVA to provide 4,485 megawatts of power for its uranium enrichment facilities at Oak Ridge, Tennessee and Paducah, Kentucky.

That is a huge amount of electric power. In order to meet that additional demand on its power system, TVA had to make substantial investments to increase its generating capacity. Recognizing that at the outset, TVA negotiated a contract, signed by DOE, that established minimum payments to be paid by the Department regardless of how much power it used. That contract was negotiated to protect other TVA power consumers.

In 1981, long after TVA had committed itself to constructing the additional power generating capacity, TVA was notified that DOE would not use all of the power it thought it needed. Earlier this year, DOE announced it was going to pay only half of the power payments it had agreed to in its contract for 1987.

Failing to negotiate a settlement that was equitable for the remainder of its customers, TVA had no choice but to sue DOE to obtain the payments that had been negotiated in good faith.

This dispute goes further than just a transfer of federal funds between agencies. In the first place, TVA is charged with insuring that its power system is self-sustaining. Consequently, any loss of revenue from one source has to be made somewhere else, either by making reductions in its costs of operating or by raising its rates.

Secondly, the amount of money at stake was substantial. By withholding half of its 1988 payment, DOE would have reduced TVA revenues by $255 million. That means that TVA ratepayers would have been subsidizing a national program aimed at strengthening America's world position in the area of uranium enrichment. That would have been the result if this settlement had been reached because TVA had already raised its rates by 6 percent to make up for the lost revenues.

The $1.8 billion does not cover all of the amounts due to TVA under its contract with DOE. However, it does allow the TVA Board of Directors to drop that portion of the rate increase it attributed to the DOE contract problem.

This decision by DOE to live up to its contractual agreements is a big victory for the consumers of electric power in the Tennessee River Valley. The entire Tennessee Congressional delegation has been supportive of TVA's effort to win this case for obvious reasons. It was the people of the Valley who stood to lose so much if DOE did not live up to the commitments it had made.

Summers Explains Sentencing Puzzle

"We have reached the point in Tennessee where a prison or jail sentence does not mean what it says," says District Attorney General Paul G. Summers, of Somerville, who serves this county.

"The public and the juries convicting criminals do not understand the system. When a defendant receives a prison sentence, he is sent to the Department of Correction or to the local jail, depending upon the length of the sentence. If it's less than six years, the judge can send the criminal to jail. If it's more than six years, he goes to prison, if there is room.

Tennessee presently is under a federal court order not to house more than just over 7,200 prisoners. Therefore, many murderers and robbers sit in the local jail, pending their transfer to the prison.

"The sentencing judge must set the defendant's parole release eligibility date, after 20% to 40% of the sentence, depending on the crime and the criminal's prior record.

"Judges are required to sentence the defendant to the lowest possible sentence for that particular crime, considering the criminal's background, prior record, and other factors presented on a pre-sentence report.

"If the defendant is a first offender, commits a property crime such as larceny, and pays the victim back, the judge is probably going to sentence him to the local jail and suspend most all of the sentence. If the judge does not, a higher court most likely will send the case back for re-sentencing, because it was too harsh.

"Also, if the prison becomes too overcrowded, the Parole Board and Governor must reduce the prison population by releasing as many defendants as needed to adjust the numbers and not violate the court order. So, the RED date does not mean too much under our current law.

"The bottom line is that judges don't have that much discretion in sentencing. If they can give work release, probation, or a suspended sentence, they pretty well have to do that. If they do not give some leniency to the defendant, they must explain why. If the judge does not explain why properly, a higher court will reverse him. And there we are again back in court for a new sentencing hearing.

"We must build more prisons, work camps, and jails. If we are not willing to spend the money and support legislation for these projects, we must change our attitudes. If we want to punish people by locking them up, we must have the facilities to do that.

"We cannot under our constitutional guidelines lock a defendant up in a cage and feed him bread and water. Everybody knows that, and that is not a consideration anymore. Prisoners must be treated humanely, and they must be kept busy. The situation is complex.

"I have seen prisoners sentenced to five years in the State Penitentiary who returned home after serving four months. I don't like it; I don't think the public likes it. But if we are going to keep criminals from being us back home from the courthouse, we must change our attitudes. We must be willing to pay the price if we want to do something about crime. And we must do it now.

"Otherwise, the price-tag of crime for our children may be too high for them to pay."

Shot Twice In Burglary, Poplar Grove Man Says

Wayne Seals reports about $100 in cash, a .22-calibre automatic pistol, and a 30.06 deer rifle missing from his mobile home at Poplar Grove after an intruder shot him twice in the upper left thigh.

After work, Mr. and Mrs. Seals and their baby returned to the trailer about 12:15 a.m. Tuesday, they tell Sheriff Milford Durham.

Mrs. Seals says that seeing a man in a trench coat, and, she thinks, masked, behind the door, she called her husband, who wrestled him outside, where three shots were fired before two men ran to a vehicle and fled.

Wounds, thought to be from a .38 calibre pistol, sent Seals to Dyersburg Methodist Hospital. He was dismissed later that day.

U.S. Okays $2,500,000 To Buy Wetlands Here

The new federal budget appropriate for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service $2,500,000 for land acquisition to expand the Chickasaw National Wildlife Refuge northwest of Ripley, formerly the Upper Anderson-Tully Unit.

This extensive bottom-land hardwood habitat in the Mississippi River flood plain has been identified as among the most critical wetland areas in Tennessee.

The Nature Conservancy has backed efforts of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency to complete the area's purchase.

Congress was asked for $5,000,000 for this purpose, but the amount was cut 50% during the tough budget-making process.

Another $8,000,000 was appropriated for the North American Waterfowl Plan—$2,000,000 in Canada and $6,000,000 in the U.S., including the Lower Mississippi Valley.

The funding for Canada will be used with a million dollars from Ducks Unlimited, a million from several states, including Tennessee, and $4,000,000 from Canada to launch a billion-dollar, 15-year plan for North American waterfowl management.

Arwood Tells Rotary: Lure Humming-Birds

Poston Arwood, of Halls, though suffering from ribs broken in a slip on ice last weekend, delighted Ripley Rotarians Tuesday with color slides and commentary on Open Lake and hummingbirds he attracts there (50 or more visible at one time).

Program guest of Ned Poynter, he credits the birds with gobbling up mosquitoes, in addition to the sugar water he provides (up to 10 gallons a week—a cup of sugar per gallon—he expects 15 gallons next season (about April 1st through late August).

(He says his sugar purchases persuaded a grocery clerk he was making lots of moonshine.)

Keep feeders clean and replace unused water once a week, and you'll have hummingbirds, he says.

CONFIDENTIAL CORNER

By Henry Murchison

Snow Hater

While snowbound for a week, this writer began to wonder just why and for how long I have hated snow. I have never been afraid to drive in it and rarely have had any problems—and no major accidents—but we never seemed to enjoy snow as many persons do.

Our feeling about snow must date back to the great snow-storm of 1917-18, when I was eight years old. I don't remember, but I have been told that it began snowing in November, and I do remember that by Christmas there were great drifts of snow everywhere.

For Christmas I got a pair of leather leggings and pants with lace-up legs, so I wanted to try them out. Dad and Mother were dubious, but finally Dad raised a window and dropped me into a snowdrift, into which I completely disappeared. I dug out, played a few minutes, and went back in the house to get warm. Incidentally, the leggings did not keep my legs dry, as I had expected. Later Dad and I went rabbit hunting with sticks, but we did not kill any. That was all right, since we didn't expect to find any, although many were killed in this manner.

On Jan. 1st, we moved to a house across town at Maury City, and everybody except me became ill with influenza. I never did get sick so consequently was left to myself much of the time. Since the ground was covered with snow, and it was still falling, I decided to build an igloo on the north side of the house. I suppose I had seen pictures of igloos in books, because I knew just how they should look, but I didn't know just how to make a dome shape, so I compromised on that detail. Somewhere I found a wooden box about the size of four bricks; I packed it full of snow, poured water on it, and gave it time to freeze. I had plenty of time because school was closed, but I didn't have any playmates because everyone was ill with the flu or was afraid to be around it.

It took some time to build the igloo, which I topped off with planks covered with snow. It was large enough that I could comfortably sit down and move around inside but not tall enough to stand in. The igloo lasted into late March.

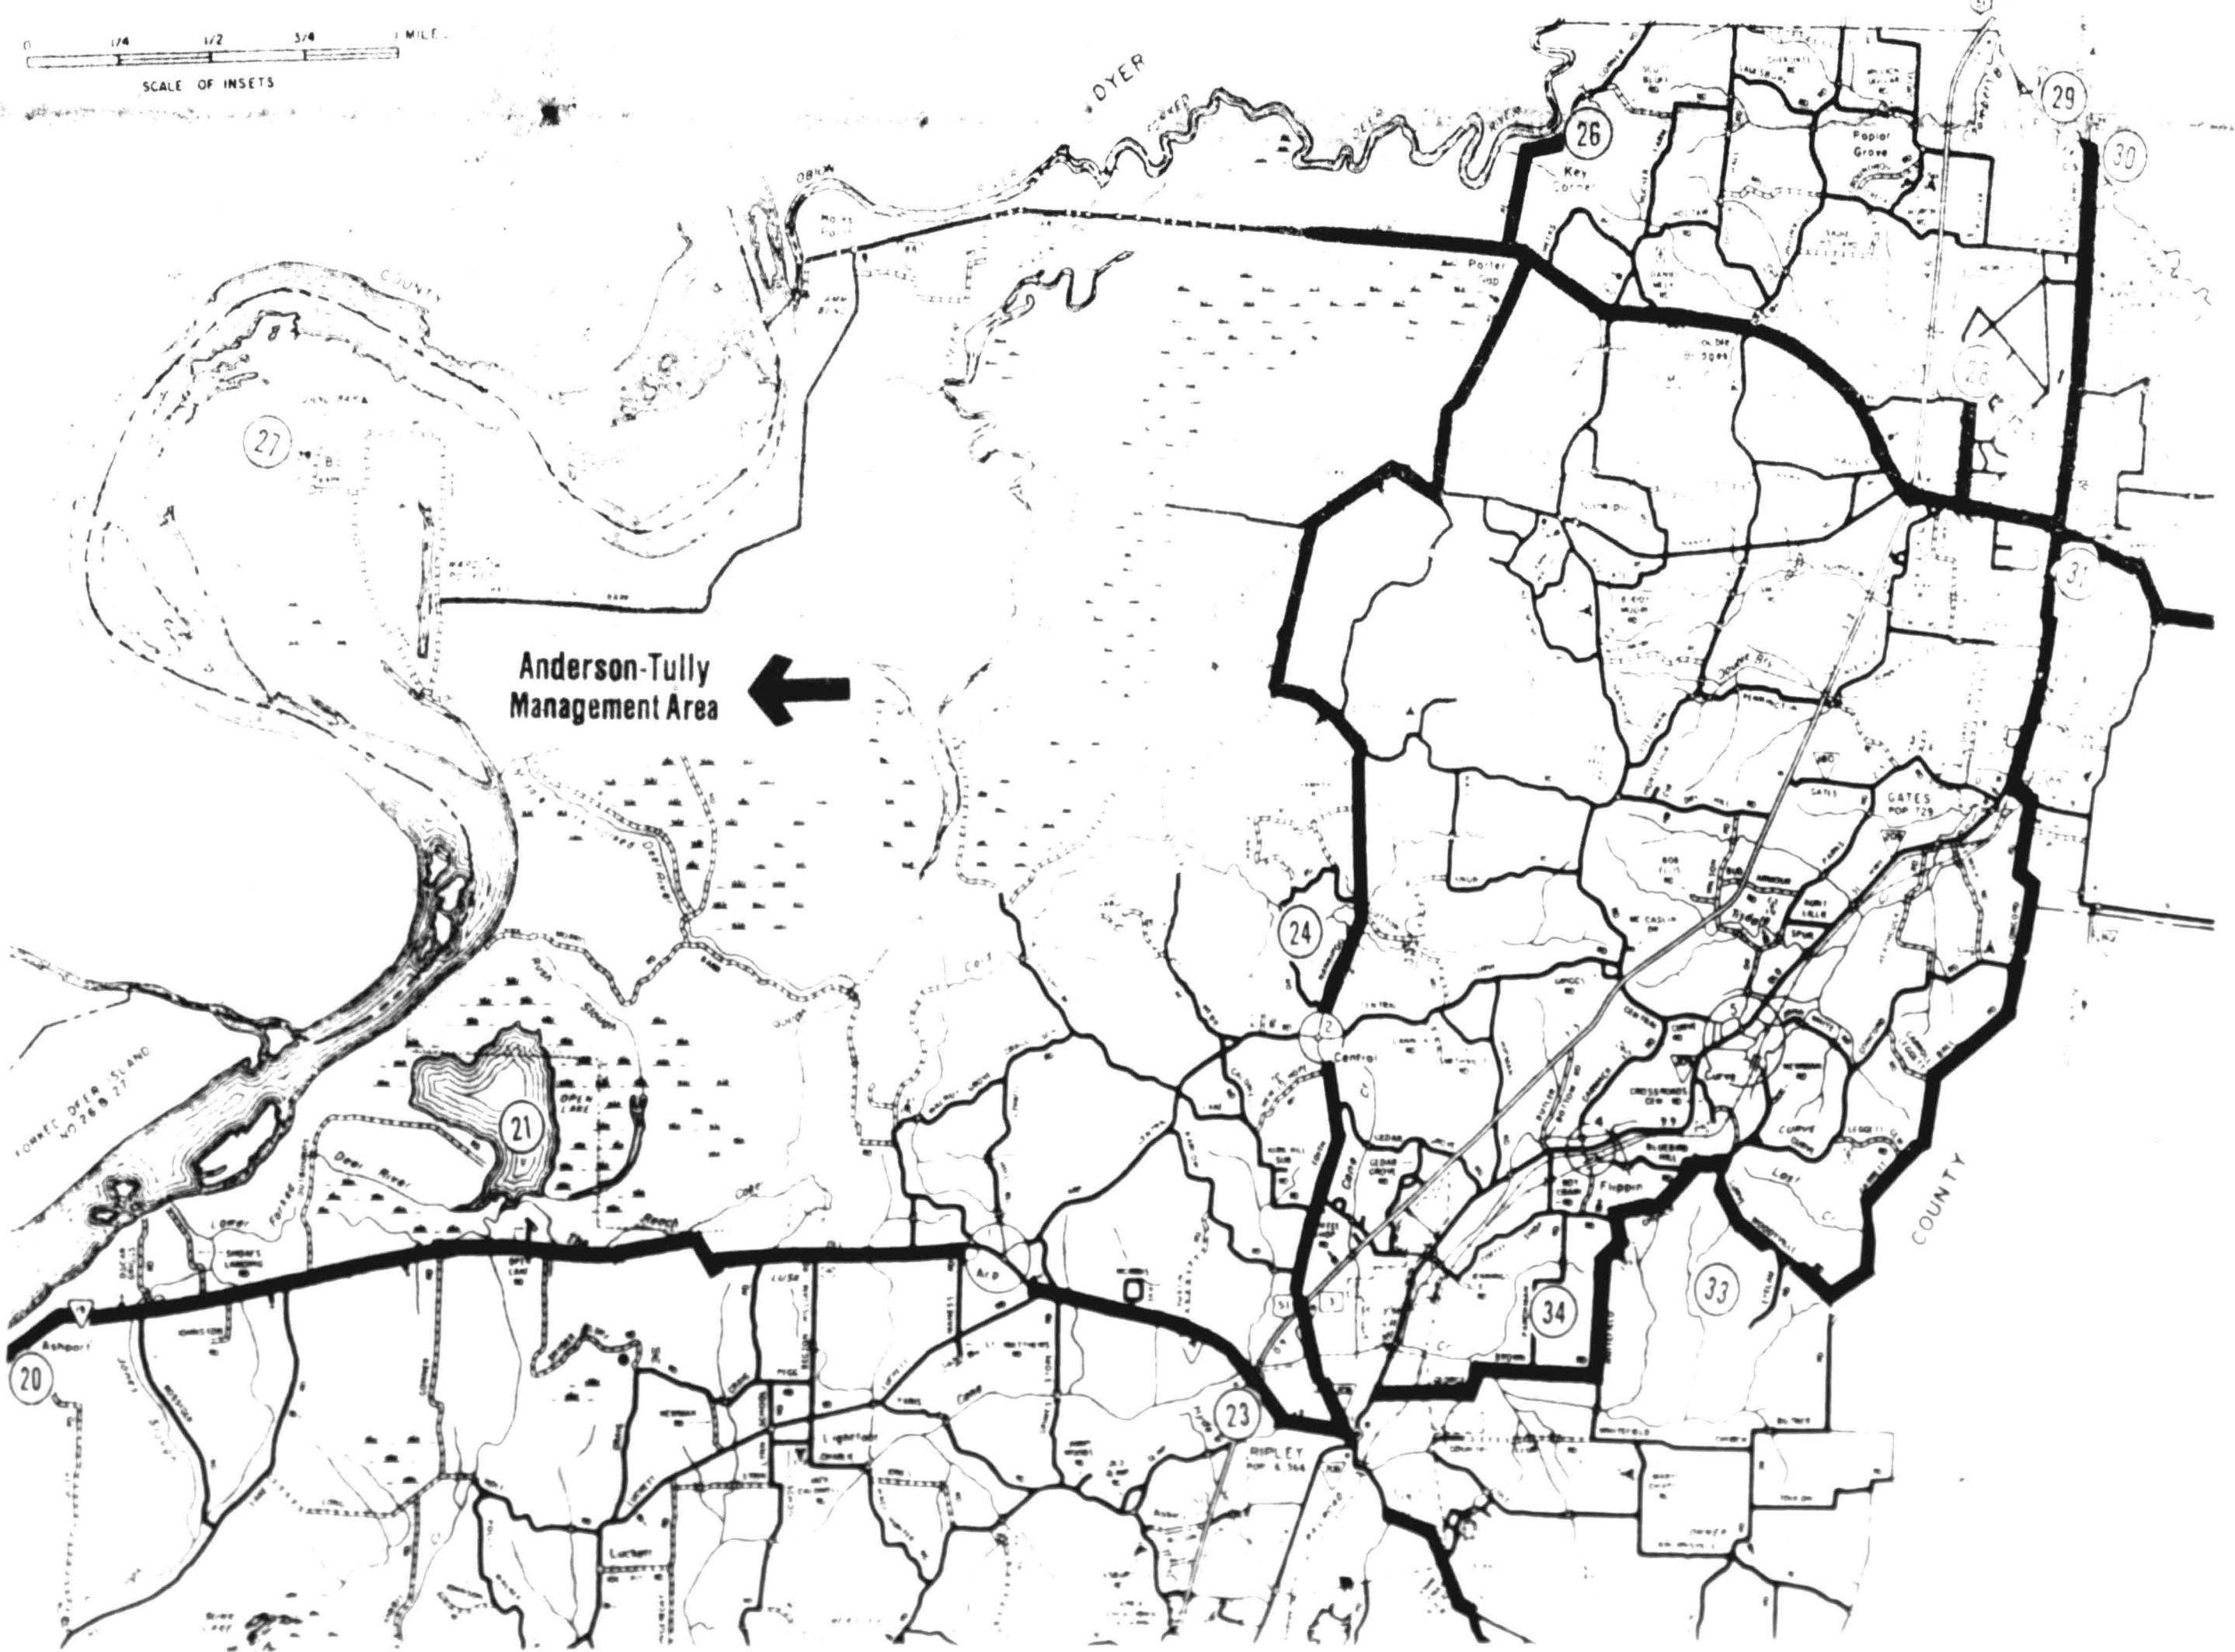

Later, before Dad purchased a house on the same side of town as the school, my younger brother, Doug, began to cry on his way to school. This was unusual, since Doug ordinarily cried only when he was mad. I tried to calm him but finally decided to take him back home, which turned out to be a good decision, since Doug was beginning to have frobbitten ears, fingers, and nose. Such things were always happening to Doug. Anyhow there was snow on the ground, and although I had never heard of the chill factor, I am sure it was well below zero. You can easily see why I got enough of snow at an early age.

A Real Asset

I wonder how many of us realize just how much of an asset the Halls Public Library is to Halls and the surrounding area.

We have had the library for only a few years, but it has grown immensely during that time. Marie Sumrow and Jean Spence, librarians, are doing a fine job in aiding readers and will make an effort to get any book which is not already available in the library.

If you are not using the library, then you are depriving yourself.

Counties surrounding us observed Dr. Martin Luther King's holiday with the closing of government offices, schools, and banks. What happened to the schools in Lauderdale County? Are we retreating or progressing?

Most of our children are striving hard to be good citizens and make a worth while contribution to society. Much has been accomplished, but it seems they are still being judged by their color instead of the content of their character.

Since it is a "first," the total observance of Dr. King's day is of utmost importance to them.

Black history isn't a part of the curriculum. Not much is ever mentioned about black accomplishments. We all have heard of George Washington, but what about George Washington Carver?

To have Dr. King's day be declared a "snow" day should be an insult to all citizens who are interested in seeing our county move forward.

Halls History

By Mrs. Mary Alsbrook
 My column this week is taken from the Annual Catalogue of Halls High School, 1911-12. There were three terms, beginning Aug. 28, 1911; second term beginning Nov. 20, 1911; third term, Feb. 19, 1912.

On the front cover was the following quotation:

"If a father wishes to give his son a legacy that will endure while life exists, let him send him to an institution where he can receive a practical education, and he will have the satisfaction of knowing that he has given him what is better than houses, lands or farms, or even gold or silver. These things may take wings and fly away, but knowledge will last while life and reason exists. —Horace Mann."

The next page had the following faculty: High School Dept. R. A. Moser, A. B. Principal, Cumberland Univ., Lebanon, Tenn.; Miss Lydia Schorn, L. I. Peabody College, Nashville; Miss Georgia Cunningham A. A. Tenn. College, Murfreesboro, Tenn.; Grammar School Dept., Miss Louise Dickinson and Miss Donnye Worley; Primary Dept., Miss Nina Bond, Miss Emma Leonard; Dept. of Music, Mrs. Lula Harward, Miss Emma Williamson; Dept. of Art, Miss Lois Covington.

According to my calculations, there were 353 students enrolled for that school year. I wonder what the teachers' union or association would say if 12 teachers taught so many, and this was a public school. It not only gave high school diplomas but offered teachers training courses entitling the student to a teacher's certificate.

The following subjects were offered: First term, Algebra, Grammar, Arithmetic, Geology, Pedagogy; second term, Algebra, Rhetoric, Physics, Agriculture, Education Psychology; third term, Plain Geometry, Literature, Civics, and Methods.

The Bookkeeping Dept. course embraced bookkeeping (single and double entry), business forms, partnerships, corporations, commissions, retail and wholesale, and other like businesses; arithmetic, grammar, composition, spelling, penmanship, and commercial law. The aim of this department was "to give such training as will enable the graduate not only to keep books but to have a general knowledge of business laws and customs. Whether engaged in commercial, professional or other pursuits of life the knowledge obtained by taking this course will prove to be of inestimable value to the possessor.

"The instruction in this department is thorough and yet the cost is but a trifle as compared to other schools of the same class. A diploma will be given to those who complete this course."

ED JONES

REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

8th District, TN

As Congress gears up for 1988 after its holiday break, many items are on the legislative agenda.

Although legislation required to reduce the budget deficit was approved in the last few hours before adjournment in December, work must continue with the plan for fiscal year 1989. The new law requires President Reagan and Congress to discuss and approve a budget for fiscal year 1989 with a deficit of no more than $136 billion.

In addition, one of the major banking issues would expand the powers of banks by allowing them to underwrite and deal in securities, insurance, and real estate. Most states have been barred from this activity since the Depression. Interpretations by courts and bank regulators, as well as state laws, are beginning to change, though, allowing more leniency in banking projects.

Another banking issue deals with credit card disclosure. This legislation would require more disclosure of credit card information by banks, department stores and other firms that issue credit or charge cards. Card issuers would have to clearly display on the application forms the annual interest rate, annual fee or transaction fee, and grace period before interest is charged.

In education, a school-aid reauthorization measure that would enlarge existing programs will be considered. This education legislation provides funds for almost every federal program available for elementary, secondary, and vocational education.

The Clean-Air Act will be an important environmental issue in 1988. Congress will be working on legislation pertaining to the ability of cities to comply with clean air standards. In a last minute extension of last year's compliance this year Congress will probably increase funding for AIDS research, although no national policy on AIDS has been established.

One of the issues important to Tennessee is the possible construction site of the Superconducting Supercollider. Our state is one of the eight finalists recommended by the National Academy of Sciences for the world's largest atom-smasher. Scientists hope that the high-speed collisions of the atoms would lead to new information about these tiny building blocks of matter. Legislation authorizing this high-tech project is currently pending.

CONFIDENTIAL CORNER

By Henry Murchison

More About Snowstorm

When I wrote last week about the 1917-18 snowstorm, I didn't mean to start a stroll down memory lane, but a telephone call I received triggered other memories.

"Miss Kitty" Brown called to say that she remembered the snowstorm quite well. She and her late husband, Jim Brown, moved to Halls from Old Field community in Crockett County in December of 1917 with snow on the ground and still falling. She confirmed that the snow remained through March.

"Miss Kitty" said that a few days after moving to a house on South College she peeked out the window and saw what she took to be a crippled beggar coming toward the house. She was pleased when he stopped at the home of the late H. T. Abernathy, but a short while later there came a knock on the door, and there stood the supposed beggar, The Rev. Mr. Bagby, pastor of Halls First Methodist Church.

Probably I have written about this before, but my father purchased his first new car, a Model T Ford, from Mr. Brown about the time of the end of World War I. My memory is more of the steel rod which Dad had installed across the front of the car to hold the front fenders steady as they had a tendency to flop on rough roads. It isn't clear whether this was something that Mr. Brown and Dad contrived or they had picked up from some other else, but later we saw many cars with a similar arrangement. Later Dad bought a Ford with a self-starter as well as other Fords.

"Miss Kitty" told more of the snowstorm and said that their son, J. H., was born shortly after they moved to Halls, in February, I believe she said.

Some Happy, Some Not

We have been interested in comments we have overheard about the new Post Office and its location.

Most all comments about the building itself have been complimentary, but quite a few have been unhappy because it has been moved from downtown, and some do not like the need for a key for their boxes, instead of combination locks.

Personally, I am happy with both changes. I like the fact that the post office is no longer in a congested area, and also I prefer a key to unlock my box.

I realize that the move has caused inconvenience to some, but in the long run I think the new location will prove to be preferable.

Deer Kills Show Spurt In Region

Deer kill tags from Lauderdale County, for kills outside Wildlife Management Areas, processed through Jan. 20th, totaled 220, up from last year's total 171.

The 28.6% gain was in line with a 26.8% gain in Region I (basically West Tennessee).

Only Lake County kills fell, from 43 to 22. Crockett kills rose 50%, 18 to 27. So did Dyer's, 42 to 63.

Houston gained most, 56.2%, to 633, trailed by Humphreys, up 52.1%, to 3,044. In total number of kills, Humphreys was second, behind Hardeman's 4,590 (up 21.8%).

Benton, Carroll, and Obion had gains of 42% to 46%. Stewart had 38.4%. Other counties were in the 20s. Tipton had 20.4%.

Of 25 counties in the region, 14 had 1,000 or more kills. Land Below The Lakes kills totalled 2,390, with hunter success rates around 21%.

All hunters may apply for 1988 LBL quota hunts even if they received 1987 permits. All 1987 applicants for the Kentucky hunts were accepted; only a few were rejected for the Tennessee hunts.

LBL will retain the assured permit system to guarantee a permit for hunters rejected three consecutive years.

Star LBL kill was a 221-pound 8-point buck, felled with a bow by John Harrison, of Danadrige.

Mission Hails Sadie Stokes

Sadie Stokes, of Gates, has received a certificate of appreciation from the Dyersburg-Dyer County Union Mission for most hours of volunteer service last year—931 hours.

PAUL HARRIS FELLOWSHIPS—each denoting a gift of $1,000 to the Rotary Foundation's international programs—were announced Monday at the weekly luncheon of the Gates-Halls Rotary Club by Fred Faulk, left, of Ripley, former district governor. One went to Bobby Webb, not pictured, who is not a Rotarian but is being saluted by the club for his service to the Halls band. In upper photo, Leta Ann Harris, widow of Robert G. Harris, a Rotarian two years, accepts his Fellowship. Below, David Nunn, a Fellow, honors his wife with a Fellowship. During the current campaign for PolioPlus, in which the Foundation seeks to immunize all the children of the world against polio and other dread diseases, the five Rotary Clubs in Lauderdale, Haywood, and Tipton Counties have raised more than $76,000 under the chairmanship of Roy Thompson, secretary of the Ripley club.

Prison Plans Move Ahead

Inman Construction Co., of Memphis, is apparent low bidder, at $747,500, to construct the administration building of a 640-bed addition to Fort Pillow Prison west of Henning. Gov. Ned McWherter's budget request to the legislature includes $98,000 to relocate a vegetable storage house at the prison.

NOT MRS. SEALS

Wayne Seals, shot early Tuesday of last week at a Poplar Grove mobile home, was accompanied to the trailer by Darlene Hendren, not Mrs. Seals. We regret the misidentification.

Erodible Land Eligible For A 10-Year Subsidy

Lauderdale County farmers may, beginning Monday, bid to enroll highly erodible land (which produced an agricultural commodity during any two years from 1981-85) in the Conservation Reserve Program, to earn annual rental payments, about Oct. 1st, for 10 years.

In addition, the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture pays half the cost of establishing a permanent conservation cover.

In five previous enrollments, maximum bids in Tennessee have ranged from $50 to $60 per acre, depending on location in the state.

Many acres still being cropped in Tennessee can't produce the same net income, even at prices well above current levels, says Charles M. Farmer, Extension Service economist.

A leaflet, Making The Conservation Reserve Program Decision, is available at the county Extension office.

Enrollment, or additional information, is available at the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office, 635-9091.

Enrollment closes Feb. 19.

Lucky Humphrey Lives Up To Name

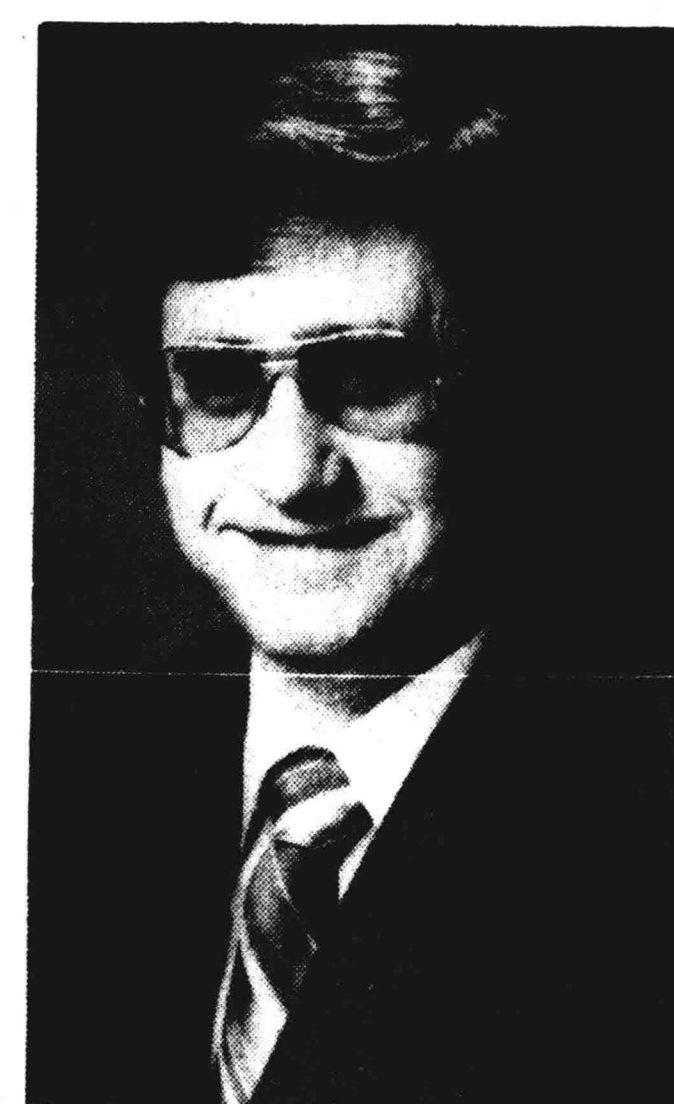

Lucky Humphrey justified his name as Puckett's NAPA Auto Parts in Halls held its annual Customer Appreciation Supper Jan. 21st in Halls Community Center.

He won a complete car stereo system, one of many door prizes.

The menu, for 85, featured barbecue, by Fisher's Meat Co., with baked beans, slaw, and lemon cake.

Special guests were B. S. Spaulding, Memphis sales manager, and factory representative—Glynn Dytri, Rayloe, Jim Huskings, filters; Jim Kalkbrenner, batteries; Tom Manard, United Products; and Virgil White, belts and hose.

On Board

THE REV. DOUG BAKER, pastor of Parrans Chapel Baptist Church, on Route 1, Bolivar, son of Leota (Mrs. James W.) Baker, of Halls, and brother of Lindell Baker, of Gates, has been elected to the executive board of the Tenn. Baptist Convention. Born and reared at Halls, he married Betty Hooper, daughter of the James Hoopers, of Halls. The Bakers have three children, Amy, Jeff, and Michael.

Halls Girls Win At The Buzzer

Pam and Paula Hutcherson each hit two free throws in final seconds to score a combined 34 points and pace Halls High School's girls to a 52-47 win Friday from Greenfield, in the HHS gym.

Kecia Miller had 11. Halls led 29-24 at the half. The win upped the Halls record to 11-5, 4-2 in District 14-A. Halls' boys went to 12-4, 4-2 in the district, as Walter Skinner's 22 points, including a 3-pointer, led Greenfield to a 72-68 win.

Halls had held the 4-point margin at the half, 31-29. Halls plays Friday at West Carroll.

Halls Plant Purchased

ANDERSON HICKEY'S PROPERTY in Halls, leased by the firm from Halls' Industrial Development Board, has been purchased by the firm. Transferring ownership at a

HALLS POST OFFICE has been moved from downtown into a new building with keys required for post office boxes.

Halls History

By Mrs. Charles Alsbrook
J. B. Ellis, of 3611 Easary Road, Knoxville 37918, wants to help with Halls High School's Home-Coming '88 of classes through 1939.

He will contact Henning Andrews, Marvin Nunn, Fred Whitaker, and Owen Wiley, for whom he has addresses.

He sent names of ten others who reside around Halls or have relatives here, for us to locate.

He says we certainly should not delay, as most of us are over 70. J. B. was a senior when I was a freshman. I boarded with his mother when I was a sophomore and he was at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville on a football scholarship.

To earn money other than his scholarship, his job was firing a family's furnace the year I lived with his mother.

She would always read his letters to his brother, Aubrey; to me and to Elaine Hurt, who also boarded there; and to Mr. Ellis when he came in from his job in Mississippi.

Mrs. Ellis also tutored my friend, Mildred (Younger) Sumrow, in second year algebra.

We were taught by Mr. New the first year; he died that summer.

Mr. Fleming taught or tried to teach us second year algebra, and either we hadn't gotten the first year, or he was unable to get it across, two years in one.

Somehow, if I could ever get my equation set right, I would manage to get the answer—and believe I still could—but those problems about how many plants to buy for half an acre of cabbage plants set one foot apart and in rows three feet apart were easier for me to work by arithmetic.

J. B. was graduated from UT. He was on the All Southeastern Conference football team. I think he played tackle, if not it was guard.

Others from Halls High School have gotten through college on football scholarships from noted universities, but as far as I know, J. B. was the most noted football player to graduate from HHS.

He Peal, of Dyersburg, was also on that UT team.

Every million years an entire thin surface layer of the Moon's soil is turned over 100 times by meteorites that land on the planet.
