CONFIDENTIAL CORNER

By Henry Murchison

A Friend Is Leaving

We were saddened last week by the announcement that The Rev. Truman Spurgin has announced his forthcoming retirement and will be moving to Munford later this month.

We had known for some time that he had been considering retirement and had hoped that he would continue to reside here. We have enjoyed our association with him during the past eight years and will miss the banter and friendliness which we have had, as will many other people in Halls. Mrs. Spurgin will continue to teach in Halls, so all ties will not be broken.

Our best wishes go with the Spurgins to their new home, but we hope they will return from time to time.

Trying Again

When you are reading this, the writer will have completed additional eye surgery in an effort to retain some vision.

The surgery was in Henry County Memorial Hospital in Paris Wednesday morning as an out-patient, and if everything goes as expected, we will return home Thursday, after having seen the doctor.

Because of continued loss of vision in my left eye, an effort is being made to use what sight remains in my right eye. There are some problems because of dual areas of sight in the right eye, thus causing double vision; the doctors hope that the problem will not be too acute.

More Personal Gripes

Perhaps it is just as well that we have almost no vision, or we might be in serious trouble.

Several times recently we have seen vehicles pass another vehicle in the intersection of West Tigrett and Carmen Sts., and Saturday morning, someone with a passenger on a motorcycle went around our car while we were crossing the railroad at the Main St. crossing. Such practices are extremely dangerous, and if we could identify the drivers we would be happy to bring charges against them. There is no way that city police can end these actions without the help of the public.

During the weekend, we heard that sand and gravel had been placed in the gasoline tank of a Halls woman. This is only one of numerous acts of vandalism which are occurring in Halls and surrounding areas. Such actions are shameful and inexcusable and should not be tolerated.

Harrell Is Official In State Tourney

Auzie Harrell, of Halls, officiated in the Tenn. Secondary Schools Athletic Assn. Class AAA state basketball tournament in Nashville last week.

HARRELL RE-UNION

Attending a re-union Saturday of descendants of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sam Harrell in the Church of Christ Fellowship Hall in Gates were the B. R. Harrells, Mrs. Hallamay Newman, the Allen Petersons, Chuck, Patty, and Brandy Gremard, Mrs. Joyce White, and Douglas Gooch, of Memphis; the B. R. Harrells, Jr., of Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. Bettie Riddick, the Mike Whites and Dustin White, Mrs. Jimmy Tolbert and Laura Tolbert, Mrs. Linda Rose, and Mrs. Katherine Mansfield, of Ripley; the L. L. Harrells, Mrs. Barry Harrell and Sarah and Bradley Harrell, of Gates; Mrs. Thomas C. Harrell and the T. M. Harrells, of Nankipoo; and the Ellie Harrells and Mrs. Sidney Gooch, of Halls.

State Aid To County Noted As Up 11.2%

State Rep. Floyd Crain, Democrat, of Ripley, and State Sen. Leonard Dunavant, Republican, of Millington, who represent this county in the General Assembly,—and are both candidates for re-election, so far unopposed—estimate this county's state funding for the year beginning July 1st (provided the state collects revenue as estimated) up 11.2% from the previous year, to $30,482,169.

They compare this with a 4% increase in the federal Consumer Price Index for 1987.

Projections are for a 4.8% increase in the county's share of state tax collections to $1,925,578, recovering from the 11.5% drop in the fiscal year before last:

UTM Grant Aids Kamela Bennett

Kamela Elaine Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burney Pierce, of 258 Mill, Halls, has accepted a Minority Scholarship to enter the University of Tennessee in Martin this fall. She will be a freshman pre-pharmacy major.

Nat'l Award For Snyder

Jeffery Michael Snyder, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Snyder, of Halls, who earned a bachelor of arts degree in art May 7th from Freed-Hardeman College in Henderson, has received a Christian College National Art Competition award.

He is a 1983 graduate of Karns High School.

Jackpot!

SUE ANN MOORE, daughter of the Benny Moores, of Dyersburg, and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royce Ford, and Mrs. Tollie Moore, of Curve, has won two scholarships to Murray, Ky., State University and one from the Mid-South Fair in Memphis.

A 4-year University Scholarship carries automatic entry into Murray's Honors Program; a one-year Achievement Scholarship recognizes her 3.39 record in Dyersburg High School, where she is a member of the National Honor Society and the Future Farmers.

The fair's award goes to a Youth Talent contestant exhibiting the devotion shown by Anna Travis, a semi-finalist killed in an automobile accident near Moscow in 1986.

Sue Ann's mother, Brenda, teaches home economics in DHS; her father is agriculture instructor there.

9 From County Hailed At MSU

Memphis State University reports on its spring semester's dean's list:

From Halls — Russell Turner Henderson.

From Henning — Patsy Jeanette Mooney.

From Ripley — Frederick Perry Beinkampen II, Stephanie Denise Clark, Jeffrey Todd Donaldson, Gus L. Hargett III, Christopher Todd Mooney, Lynn Marie Sutter, and Donna Marie Swope.

Church Adds Parking

JACKED UP for moving from is a home being removed to north of First Baptist Church at Tigrett and Church Sts. in Halls to provide additional parking for the church.

MSU Star

RUSSELL HENDERSON, son of the Jack Hendersons, of Halls, has made Memphis State University's Letterman's Club as a member of MSU's baseball team and a participant in the Metro Conference Tournament in Tallahassee, Fla. He made the team as a walk-on pitcher his freshman year and has completed his eligibility. In 1986, he was named to the Metro Commissioner's list for student athletes who earned a grade point average of 3.0 or better. He has maintained this honor and finished with a perfect 4.0 this spring. A 1984 graduate of Halls High School, he will be graduated from MSU in December as a finance major.

Speaker

BUDDY PATEY, of Jackson, former Southeastern Conference football official with many amusing anecdotes to relate, told Halls' 13th annual Industry and Agriculture Recognition Banquet in Halls Elementary School, Tuesday of last week, that Halls and Lauderdale County are known across the state as 'winners' in balanced economic development.

Among about 200 attending to honor farmers and 23 industries were Halls and county officials: State Sen. Leonard Dunavant, of Millington; State Rep. Floyd Crain, of Ripley; and Mayor Rozelle Criner, of Ripley, and Bill Revell, of Dyersburg.

COOK IT LIGHT
JEANNE JONES
PRESIDENTIAL MEATLOAF MADE LIGHTER

Dear Jeanne:
This is the recipe I used in the White House kitchen to make meatloaf for the Nixons. They preferred their meatloaf made only with beef. For other First Families I always used a combination of equal parts beef, pork and veal.
I am sure you can make this meatloaf a lighter entrée, share it with your former President, Henry Haller, retired Executive Chef The White House.
MEATLOAF
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup finely chopped onions
2 garlic cloves, minced
3 slices white bread, 1 cup milk
2 pounds lean ground beef
1 tablespoon salt
1 cup freshly ground black pepper
1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley
1/2 teaspoon dried marjoram
2 tablespoons tomato paste
2 tablespoons bread crumbs
1. Grate a 1 1/2-inch baking pan.
2. Melt butter in a large skillet over medium heat. Cook onions, garlic and bread until just golden. (Do not brown). Let cool.
3. Dice bread and soak in milk.
4. In a large mixing bowl, mix beef by hand with sautéed vegetables and bread pieces. Add eggs, salt, pepper, parsley, thyme and marjoram, and mix by hand in a circular motion.
5. Turn into the prepared pan and pat into a loaf shape, leaving at least 1 inch of space around the edges to allow fat to run off.
6. Brush top with tomato paste and sprinkle with bread crumbs. Refrigerate for 1 hour to allow the flavors to penetrate and to firm up the loaf.
7. Preheat oven to 375 F.
8. Bake on lower shelf of preheated oven for 1 hour, or until meat is cooked through. Pour off the accumulated fat several times while baking and after meat is fully cooked. Let stand on wire rack for 5 minutes before slicing. Serves 6.
I eliminated much of the cholesterol by using corn-oil margarine, egg whites and reduced-fat milk. To lower the sodium without losing the flavor, I reduced the amount called for and added more marjoram and thyme.
Because tomato paste usually comes in a 6-ounce jar, it might be impractical to use only 2 tablespoons for this recipe. For this reason I have substituted tomato paste instead. It gives the meatloaf a wonderful tomato flavor, and by using an entire can you don't have to worry about what to do with the leftovers.
I found that placing the meatloaf on a flat surface helped it fit the pan, eliminates the need to continually stir the accumulated fat. The meatloaf stays below the small amount of fat released and what fat is left can easily be removed after the loaf is cooked.
This is a delicious meatloaf and I hope that you will be pleased with my suggested changes. Thank you for sharing your recipe with my readers.
REVISED MEATLOAF
1 teaspoon corn-oil margarine
1 cup finely chopped onions
2 garlic cloves, minced
3 slices whole-wheat bread
1 cup non-fat milk
2 pounds very lean ground beef
3 egg whites, lightly beaten
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon black pepper
1/2 cup finely chopped fresh parsley
1/2 teaspoon dried thyme, crushed, using a mortar and pestle
1/2 teaspoon dried marjoram, crushed, using a mortar and pestle
2 tablespoons tomato paste
2 tablespoons bread crumbs

(6-ounce) can tomato paste
1. Spray a 13x9-inch baking pan with non-stick vegetable coating.
2. Melt margarine in a skillet, add onion and garlic and cook, stirring frequently, until just golden. (Do not brown.) Let cool.
3. Remove crusts from bread. Place crusts in blender jar and blend to make fine bread crumbs. Set aside. Dice remaining bread into 1/2-inch cubes and soak in milk.
4. In a large mixing bowl, mix beef by hand with sautéed vegetables and bread pieces. Add egg whites, salt, pepper, parsley, thyme and marjoram, and mix by hand in a circular motion.
5. Place rack in pan. Pat meat into a loaf shape, on rack, leaving at least 1 inch of space around the edges to allow fat to run off.
6. Spread tomato paste on top of meat and sprinkle reserved bread crumbs on top. Refrigerate for 1 hour to allow the flavors to blend and to firm up the loaf.
7. Preheat oven to 375 F.
8. Bake on lower shelf of preheated oven for 1 hour, or until meat is cooked through. Pour off accumulated fat after meat is fully cooked. Let stand for 5 minutes before slicing. Serves 6.

fair trade practices, promotes increased export activity by American industry, and provides for improved educational programs to enable our workers to compete in the world marketplace.

Jim Sasser
A Report for Tennesseans

LEGISLATION HELPS TENNESSEE FAMILIES BUY HOMES
Home ownership is the cornerstone of American life. Our homes are where we watch our children grow up, and where we share the precious moments of family life. Homes are also the building blocks of neighborhoods and the friendships that blossom in them. Economically, our homes are of great importance as a primary means for many of our citizens to accumulate wealth.
Unfortunately, after rising steadily for 35 years, the rate of home ownership has been declining since 1980. And because our homes are of such socioeconomic importance, the diminishing ability of Americans to purchase homes stands as a threat to our future.
Statistics show that among Southerners ages 30 to 34, the rate of home ownership has fallen from 62.9 percent in 1974 to 54.7 percent in 1986. Among Southern residents who are 25 to 29 years old, it has dropped from 46.0 percent in 1974 to 39.5 percent in 1986.
Why this decline? The fact of the matter is that while most new homebuyers can afford to make monthly payments on a house, they have trouble accumulating the large lump sum of cash necessary to make a downpayment.
I introduced a bill this week which I believe, when passed, will help to remedy this situation.
The Sasser Homeowner Bill establishes a program that would make use of the Federal Housing Administration, an existing, proven program. It would initiate a new low downpayment FHA mortgage insurance program, several adjustments to existing FHA programs including adjustable rate mortgages and mortgage limit caps, and two innovative new demonstration programs.
The beauty of this program is that, since it draws on already existing institutions, it maximizes efficiency and preserves Federal funds for low-income renters and the homeless. Best of all, this program does not draw on already limited federal revenues — in fact, it generates money in the form of mortgage premiums.
Together, these changes will make it significantly easier for young Tennesseans, and indeed for all young Americans, to finance their first homes.
I intend to work hard to see that this bill gets through Congress so that our young people have a fair opportunity to purchase a home for themselves and their children.
INF Treaty: A Milestone
Although the nuclear devastation at Hiroshima and Nagasaki played a pivotal role in bringing about the end of the second World War, these events also marked the world's entrance into the nuclear age, and opened the door to a missile arms buildup which neither the U.S. or the Soviet Union have been able to contain. The memory of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, now recorded in history books, and the scars and shadows left behind, serve as a vivid and chilling reminder of the brutally destructive power of nuclear weapons.
Today, both the United States and the Soviet Union possess a nuclear arsenal equipped with nuclear weapons 100 times more powerful than those used at Hiroshima and Nagasaki. For several decades, the superpowers have maintained a precarious nuclear balance, but at the cost of building ever more powerful and ever more costly weapons systems.
Over the years, beginning with the nuclear test ban treaty set forth by President Kennedy, through the detente of the 1970's, and SALT I and II, the two superpowers have worked to place limits on continued nuclear aggression.
Last December, the signing of the Intermediate Nuclear Forces (INF) Treaty by President Reagan and Soviet General Secretary Gorbachev marked a positive first step toward actual nuclear arms reduction.
Ratified by the Senate this week, the INF agreement eliminates two entire classes of weapons, with the Soviets destroying more than 1,900 intermediate range missiles based in Western Europe, and the United States destroying some 700 intermediate range missiles based in Western Europe and in storage here in this country.
In addition, for the first time, verification of compliance with the treaty will be conducted by inspection teams from both countries on-site.
With this treaty, I believe the United States stands at the threshold of what posterity may come to view as the end of the age of nuclear weapons. Indeed, it is clear that this treaty has already become a springboard for further negotiations, as this week, President Reagan travels to the Soviet Union for another summit to discuss reductions in long-range intercontinental ballistic missile armaments.
I believe the ratification of this treaty and the further negotiations which it has prompted, mark the beginning of what I hope will be a safer and more peaceful world for ourselves, our children, and coming generations.
Trade Bill Boosts U.S. Competitiveness
There is no question that the nation's spiraling trade deficit has had a devastating impact on our economy. Last year's deficit reached a whopping $177 billion, a total greater than the sum of all of the trade surpluses the United States has accumulated since World War II.
And these deficits have translated directly into lost jobs and crippled economic growth throughout the country. The manufacturing and agricultural sectors of our state and national economies have been particularly hard hit, and Tennessee provides some very vivid examples.
In 1980, more than 56,000 of the manufacturing jobs in Tennessee were exported, representing some 11.4 percent of the total manufacturing jobs in the state. At that time, the value of Tennessee's manufacturing exports stood at some $5.3 billion.
By 1984, the latest year for which statistics are available, the figures show that export-related manufacturing in our state had taken a dramatic decline. The value of export-related manufacturing sales had dropped to $5 billion, and the number of manufacturing jobs related to exports had fallen to 41,000 making up 8.7 percent of all manufacturing jobs in Tennessee. Indeed, workers from small shoe companies in West Tennessee to textile manufacturers in the eastern third of the state have all felt the effects of these statistics on their families and communities first-hand.
Across the state, Tennessee's farm community has also seen decreased export activity in recent years. In 1984, Tennessee farmers exported $316 million worth of commodities. By 1986, the value of Tennessee farm exports had dropped to $265 million, with soybean exports falling from $145 to $120 million, and cotton exports falling from $46 to $21 million.
The Omnibus Trade Bill, which I helped draft, and which was passed by the Senate this week, addresses the problem of our growing trade deficit by providing critical assistance to efforts to boost our competitive position in world markets. The bill strengthens our laws against un-

Fraud Hotline A Valuable Tool
In Combating Government Waste And Abuse

For almost a decade, the General Accounting Office's Fraud Hotline has been quietly saving millions of taxpayer's dollars by acting as a central clearing point for persons to report fraudulent and wasteful practices in government.
I am proud to have sponsored the legislation that created the hotline. It has proven to be one of the most successful programs inside or outside the government.
The number of the nation-wide, toll-free, 24-hour hotline is 1-800-424-5454.

ED JONES
REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

Many of today's college students rely on some sort of financial aid to help pay for the rising costs of tuition, dorm fees and books. Eligible students may receive guaranteed loans, as well as direct Pell grants, from the federal education subcommittee.
One recommendation which has been submitted in the House would tighten the administration of the Guaranteed Student Loan program itself. Another would require better counseling of student borrowers to explain the obligations and terms of the loan. Schools would also be required to collect more identification from the borrowers in order to track down those students who default.
On the Senate side, one senator would like to see a federal student aid restriction on schools with high default rates. In addition, a proposal may be considered which would stiffen the collection responsibilities of lenders.
The Guaranteed Student Loan program began in 1965 with the passage of the Higher Education Act. The program was designed to provide low-interest loans to middle-income students who weren't eligible otherwise to obtain loans.
The Pell Grant program was established in 1972 to assist needy students in good academic standing. This program is available mainly for students from low-income families. Pell grants and Guaranteed Student Loans provide excellent opportunities for students who otherwise can't afford to further their education.

Sick & Ailing

Mrs. Sandra R. Thomason and daughter, of Halls, were dismissed Wednesday of last week from Jackson-Madison County Hospital.

In May, 1985, I married Anita Gandy Olds, of Halls. She and her children attended the schools in Halls.

My children and I attended the Henning and Ripley Schools, because this is where we lived and worked at that time.

We have friends and family all over the county. I am asking all of you to please vote for me on Aug. 4th as your Superintendent of Schools in Lauderdale County.

ED JONES REPORTS FROM WASHINGTON

The United States was recently involved in trade talks with Japan involving a dispute over beef and citrus sales. A policy was implemented four years ago setting quotas on United States sales totaling 216 tons of beef and 130 tons of oranges per year. Under current negotiations, the United States would like to have the quotas raised substantially while Japan only sees need for a moderate increase.

United States trade officials have warned the Japanese government that we will consider retaliation against their products if a compromise is not settled. The retaliation could cost Japan more than $1.5 billion in trade per year. According to U.S. trade officials, that amount is lost in sales of beef each year, in addition to approximately $150 million in lost sales of citrus products to Japan. Japan's offer to moderately increase the quotas of beef and citrus sales would result in about two fast-food hamburgers and two six-ounce glasses of orange juice per Japanese resident each year. Japanese officials claim that because of the intense political pressure on their government to keep the quotas in place, they feel this increase is substantial.

American officials, on the other hand, would prefer that Japan totally eliminate all quotas on beef and citrus sales. In addition, it was suggested that Japan establish a program

The record baseball throw is just under 450 feet; a football, around 300 feet; a javelin, 343 feet; and a Frisbee, 550 feet.

Even Frisbee-catching dogs seem to prefer the easier-on-the-mouth softness and much greater distances possible with the Aerobie. The amazing flying ring was invented by Alan Adler, a Stanford University engineer and an aerodynamicist who's made new use of airflow design. Aerobies are sold nationwide in sporting goods, toy, kite, campus and department stores.

Today's average healthy teenager, however, can easily surpass any of these distances after a few practice tosses with a 10- or 13-inch plastic and rubber flying ring called an Aerobie. For the Guinness Book of World Records, California college student Scott Zimmerman threw one 1,257 feet—longer than four football fields!

Mary Ann Jarrett Is A Super Nurse

By Mrs. Sandra Holman
From all outward appearances, Mary Ann Jarrett would seem to be a very soft-spoken and unobtrusive person. In this case, do not be fooled by outward appearances, because along with this soft-spoken demeanor comes a dynamic and forceful personality just lying in wait for the chance to be heard and for the chance to serve others.

For many years, the citizens of Ripley, Lauderdale County, and surrounding areas, have been touched in some way by Mary Ann. If they ever had to be in the local hospital, be it for a day, a week, or even longer, they surely would have the pleasure of meeting this fine and very dedicated lady.

With fond memories of my own stays in the hospital, and comments made by other people, it came as no surprise to anyone when the first annual "Outstanding Nurse of the Year" award was recently presented to Mary Ann Jarrett.

This honor means even more to the recipient because it was voted on by a committee that was made up, in part, by a group of her peers.

Her career in nursing began in 1968, as a nurse's aide. This opportunity came after graduation from Lauderdale High School in 1967. For five years she worked with the late Mrs. Betty Conner, and it was Mrs. Conner's guidance and encouragement that made Mary Ann decide to attend classes in order to earn her diploma in the field of licensed practical nursing.

She began classes in 1973 and for 13 months she managed to maintain a grading schedule. She attended classes five days a week from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m., she then went to work from 3 p.m. until 10 p.m. three nights a week, and every weekend. She readily admits that this was a difficult task and that without the help and encouragement of Mrs. Conner and her classroom instructor, Mrs. Margaret Shoemaker, she could never have made it during this time of great pressure and long hours.

Following graduation from LPN school, Mary Ann has worked as a nurse in the recovery room, operating room, intensive care unit, and the emergency room.

To go along with the job Mary Ann does at Baptist Hospital Lauderdale, she has managed to raise a wonderful family—with the loving help and support of her husband, James Thomas Jarrett. James has been employed by Reeffoot Lumber for 20 years, and it is his loving support that has enabled her to be a doer and an active participant. The Jarretts have two children—Jamie is a fine young man of fourteen, and G.G. (Gladys Octavia) is nine, and impressed me so much with her love of family and love of life.

The family attends New Hope C.M.E. Church in Henning, where Mary Ann is a Sunday School teacher, a member of the choir, a C.V.P. instructor, and is in charge of public relations for the church. It is in her church that she is able to achieve one of her major goals in life—writing children's stories and plays. She writes and directs Easter, Christmas and other holiday plays, and by doing so, receives the reward of seeing her stories come to life. And to make the reward even greater—to see them come to life through the eyes and actions of children.

Her love of children is respected by all who have ever known this lady. As she told me, her home is childproof—it always has an open door. This was proven to me over and over again as we sat and talked last Sunday afternoon. There was a constant stream of young people coming through that open door, with each one feeling at ease and comfortable in her presence. It is any wonder that, along with all her other civic, church and hospital duties, she is also a member of the Board of Education?

Through her work with the board, she feels that she has gained a voice in what happens to the children in our county, but feels, also, that she has gained some insight into the wants and needs of these children. There are many times that painfully difficult decisions have to be made by the Board of Education. These decisions have to be dealt with in a way that will encourage our children not to continue on a path of self-destruction. The thought that the discipline handed out by the board may be harsh at times, must be accepted by the community as a way in which to discourage other young people from doing the same wrongs. Through Phillip Jack-ship only comes along once in a lifetime.

Although she does not show anger easily, there is one thing that will bring her temper to the boiling point—abuse or mistreatment of a child. She has seen many such cases during her years of hospital work, and it never fails to cause her pain and anguish.

As an example of that extra mile she is always willing to go, I have a friend who had surgery in our local hospital. Because he had recently moved to another town, Mary Ann knew that his pastor could not be with him prior to the surgery. She quietly had prayer for him and for his safety during surgery. She knows that her patients are the children of God, and that with His help it is her job to look after them for their families. She takes her recovery room duties very seriously.

If a patient is there for outpatient surgery, she will call the day before surgery is scheduled to give them all the instructions and reassurance they will need. If they are told to bring someone with them to do the driving, she has been known to follow them out the door to their car—just to be sure they took her instructions seriously, and are not driving themselves home.

She always calls the next day to check on the patients progress and then again five to seven days later to check on them one last time—just to be sure.

Mary Ann is the daughter of Josephus Reed and Gladys (Bit) Reed. "Miss Bit" is well-known for her good homemaking. Her daughter admits that she did not inherit this particular skill and that without the help of her husband, the meals would not be that great at her house.

Her grandparents have also had a lot of influence in her life. Octavia and Grady Reed taught her to love and cherish older people, while her mother taught her the lesson of never taking money for doing chores for other people. The old adage—"It is better to give than receive"—was taught to Mrs. Reed's children at a very young age.

Mary Ann was born on Dock Bates Street in Henning—in the house next door to her present home. She has spent her entire life on this little street, and she is known as the neighborhood nurse. She has always helped her neighbors in any way possible.

She listed for me the three most important factors in her life. They come in the following order: God, family and job. And what about the future? Hopefully, it will include the opportunity to pursue her dreams of writing children's stories and plays. Also, there is the dream of owning and operating her own dry cleaning business in Henning. In the meantime, she has plans to continue taking classes that she has already started at Dyersburg State—working toward her degree in nursing.

All of her activities and accomplishments leave me a little breathless. She is to be admired and respected for each of them. Her attitude concerning every endeavor is the best. She gives everything she does the best that she can give; she dedicates her life to the health and well-being of others; she devotes her time and energy toward the future of our world through the children and she gives of herself as no other person I have ever known.

God luck and best wishes to you Mary Ann. We wish you well and thank you for all you've done for us in your own very special and quiet way. "Outstanding Nurse of the Year" is an honor that is well deserved and very much earned.

Mr. Noah Holcomb has given many long and tiring hours of his own time to see that it all falls into place. Others on the board include Al E. Jones and Corneth York Russell. As usual, Mary Ann gives everyone else credit for the hard work, but I'm sure that she has done her share.

As I said in the beginning, Mary Ann Jarrett is well-known in the area for her 20 years of dedicated service at Baptist Hospital Lauderdale. When asked for some outstanding highlights of those 20 years—she quickly told me of her gratitude and respect for Dr. C. R. Webb. When she had no training in the placement of IV tubes, Dr. Webb took the time to teach her the time to train and guide her in other areas of surgical procedures. I wonder just how many of the 3,000 babies delivered by Dr. Webb were assisted into the world by Mary Ann.

She also has many happy memories of working with Brenda Osborne, Jeanne Shoaf Duncan, Pat Vaughn, and a special friend—Dee Starnes Craig. She and Mrs. Craig had a very close friendship, as well as a wonderful working relationship. When Dee moved away, it was a very painful loss for Mary Ann. They kept in touch as much as time allows, but such a friendship only comes along once in a lifetime.

To The Citizens Of Lauderdale County:

My decision not to seek re-election to the position of Lauderdale County Property Assessor came after long and careful deliberation.

I will always treasure the honor you bestowed on me by electing me to serve as your Property Assessor the past sixteen years.

I thank each citizen in Lauderdale County for the support, kindness and confidence you have shown in me.

I first asked for your support in 1972 because I felt that I was qualified having eleven years of experience with the ASCS office, five and one-half years with Federal Crop Insurance and five and one-half years with Production Credit Association. These duties carried me over the county and made me familiar with the land and the improvements.

I have continued to improve my knowledge of the Assessor's office by completing the many courses offered by the University of Tennessee and the International Association of Assessing Officials. I have also gained much by serving four years on the State Equalization Board and as President of the Tennessee Assessors Association. I am presently serving as a member on the State Assessment Appeals Commission.

To all the employees who have assisted me in fulfilling the duties of the Property Assessor's office, I extend a special thanks and great appreciation for the efficient work and dedication you showed through the years.

I find it difficult to find words to thank my family, especially my parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Roy Crain, my wife, Gladys, and her family, my brothers and sister and their families who have stood by me faithfully during the difficult times in the four campaigns I have run. Any accomplishment or success would have been impossible to achieve without these individuals.

I would like to especially thank the County Commission for electing such loyal people to serve on the county equalization board. These dedicated people have worked many long hours to establish the uniform values of property across the county.

I also appreciate the cooperation of all the city and county officials who have served in the different offices during my sixteen years.

I trust that the voting populace of this county will continue to elect independent thinking people who have the best interest of the county at heart.

Thank you for a wonderful sixteen years.
May God bless each of you.

Sincerely,

Honor America Observance

...That Congress declares the twenty-one days from Flag Day through Independence Day as a period to honor America, that there be public gatherings and activities at which the people can celebrate and honor their country in an appropriate manner.

—Public Law 94-33

Flag Day, June 14th

Through

Independence Day, July 4th

The Board of Directors of the Ripley Chamber of Commerce, with the assistance of the Boy Scouts, urges all businesses, churches, civic clubs, and community groups to HONOR AMERICA in an appropriate manner during the 21 days between Flag Day, June 14th, and Independence Day, July 4th.

1. Display our flag daily from June 14th through July 4th.
2. Pray and thank God daily for our country.
3. In your church, club, and conversation, think, say, and express some positive thing good about our country.
4. Attempt to stimulate love and admiration for our national history and tradition.
5. Attempt to avoid all negative words before our youth about our country, but promote patriotism and love and respect for America.

Lindell Bowie Dies In Crash

Lindell Gene Bowie, 55, of Nankipoo, salesman for Beasley Fabrics, of Springfield, died at 6:10 a.m. Wednesday of last week in a collision on State Hwy. 412, four miles west of Jackson.

Joe N. Roland, 72, of Route 9, Jackson, was attempting a left-hand turn when the crash occurred, according to Highway Patrolman William Hillsman.

Roland was taken to Jackson-Madison County Hospital, in stable condition.

Services were at 10 a.m. Saturday in Halls Funeral Home, with burial in Ripley Memorial Gardens Cemetery.

He leaves his wife, Patsy Belton Bowie; a son, Stan, two daughters, Mrs. Lynne Luck and Mrs. Debra Danley, his mother, Mrs. Katie Bowie, and two brothers, James and Bernell, all of Halls; a sister, Mrs. Bernice Davis, of Oxford, Miss.; and two grandchildren.

Three Countians Get JSC Degrees

David W. Young, of Gates, and

Dunavant Cites County's Gains

State Sen. Leonard Dunavant, Republican, of Millington, a candidate for re-election to represent East Shelby County, Tipton County, and this county, told Ripley Rotarians Tuesday, as program guest of Scott Pipkin, that the county currently gets about $19,000,000 more in state funds than it sends to Nashville (less than $12,000,000).

Noting an Enterprise and Graphic foot-note last week to a summary of state appropriations for the county which he released in conjunction with State Rep. Floyd Crain, of Ripley, he said $28,860 listed for a Welcome Center should have been listed for the Haley Park Rest Area on U.S. Highway 51 south of Henning, which is not a Welcome Center.

[The state has 10 Welcome Centers, near state lines.]

He said purchase of Anderson-Tully lands, not noted in the report he released, accounted for wide swings in other funding.

Meanwhile, Halls Mayor Pat Higdon was astounded by the Enterprise and Graphic publications of the summary, including a state appropriation of $25,600 for a Halls Caboose Museum.

She says Halls never applied for any state funds for the Caboose.

[We advised her to take the money and run.—Ed.]

Re-Union Slated At Wms. Chapel

Williams Chapel Baptist Church at Poplar Grove, on Route 1, Halls, welcomes all to a re-union Sunday, June 12th, of former members and former students of Poplar Grove School, with lunch on the grounds (bring covered dishes) and singing in the afternoon.

Mrs. Tanner

Mrs. Mabel Smith Tanner, 83, of Halls, retired insurance agent and land owner, died Tuesday of last week in Baptist Hospital in Memphis, after long illness.

Services were at 2 p.m. Thursday of last week in First Baptist Church, of which she was a member, with burial in Halls Cemetery. Halls Funeral Home in charge.

Widow of Warren E. Tanner, she was a 50 year member of the Order of the Eastern Star.

EMERY TRAIL

Perspective

What you see may depend on where you stand. From high above it, it's been remarked, a horse looks like a violin.

From Europe, America looks like a great place to invest. Foreign firms open offices and factories here, providing jobs for Americans and helping keep prices down. Many Americans are asking their legislators where they stand on encouraging free trade. Anyone can write Congress on either side of this or any issue at the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510 and the House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

CONFIDENTIAL CORNER

By Henry Murchison

No Blanton Support

Former Tennessee Gov. Ray Blanton has qualified as a candidate in the Democratic primary Aug. 4th for the office of Representative for the Tennessee Eighth Congressional District, to succeed Rep. Ed Jones. Jones is not seeking re-election.

Blanton, convicted in federal court to serve two years in a federal prison, can be U.S. Rep., if elected, but we see no reason why he should have the support of the voters of the Eighth District.

Tennessee already has one Congressman under indictment on federal charges and another who has been under fire on various allegations. While neither of the two has been convicted on any charges, certainly the Eighth District should not add a congressman with a criminal record.

Blanton is not a resident of the Eighth Congressional District. He married two weeks ago, after his wife had divorced him in April of last year, and has announced that he will reside in Jackson, which is now a part of the Eighth District.

Surely we can find someone who can better represent our district!

Another Birthday

On Saturday this writer will reach another milestone when he observes his 79th birthday. You will notice that we did not use the word celebrate, since we are not sure that it should be a time of celebration.

We have no special plans for the day and probably will spend a good bit of the time laughing at the antics of Nell's kitten, "Baby."

We do hope that we will not become appreciably older, as Buddy and Chuck used to think they should be when they were small boys. We creak and groan enough now without it becoming worse.

HERITAGE MEETS

Phyllis Grant, field representative for the American Heart Association, expressed thanks to the Halls Heritage Extension Club for their donation when it met at 7 p.m. May 17th in Halls Community Center.

Ima Webb, president, called the meeting to order. Angie Terry, secretary, read the minutes and Patsy Atkinson, treasurer, reported.

Gentry Lacy gave the devotional, Slow Me Down Lord.

Hostesses Robin Rodgers and Virginia Hurt served fruit salad, brownies, chip and dip, with coffee and soft drinks to members and four guests, Donna Meacham, Phyllis Grant, and Linda and Kyle Diggs.

HISTORY GROUP

The county Historical and Genealogical Society meets at 7 p.m. this Thursday in Northcrest Community Center in Ripley to elect a vice-president (to head a membership committee) and to name a program committee, everyone invited.

Sick & Ailing

Curtis Gause, Jr. injured a hand Monday afternoon while working on a combine on Henderson Farms. After treatment in Jackson-Madison County Hospital, he was dismissed with no permanent injuries.

BRIDGE SAGGING over the Obion River on the Great River Road, which 10 miles west of Halls connects Hwy. 88 with a new road (and parts of the old Levee Road) in Dyer County, was scheduled to open in August; state engineers are studying the feasibility of jacking piers up for repairs. They think low water in the Mississippi River probably dropped the water table to cause a 4-foot drop in the south bank pier, with a 12-foot move toward the river. Two other piers have moved less.

RALPH MAYS, 55, former Halls Elementary School principal, is ending 19 years as superintendent of Humboldt city schools, from which he was graduated in 1951.

He was a teacher and coach before serving as HES principal and was later a supervisor of education, before taking the Humboldt post at 35.

Integrating all-black Stigall High and its Hornet gridders into all-white Humboldt High (whose Rams Mays quarterbacked) in 1976 was a 24-hour job, Mays says, but produced the Vikings and changed society in Humboldt through the schools.

"We're still working on that goal, but I think we've come a million miles."

"I've seen too many people hang around too long," he says, and he has an hour commute each way to work from Chester County, where

Tennis Classic Nears In Halls

Halls' third Tennis Classic in Cribfield Park and at Wilson St. courts begins Saturday, June 25th, and continues Sunday afternoon and evenings Monday through Friday, closing Saturday, July 2nd, with day-time finals.

Events include, for both sexes, singles for under 18 and open sections, plus sections for men over 35 and for men over 50. Doubles include four sections for either sex, mixed sex, or men over 35.

Entry fee is $5 and a can of tennis balls.

Register by 5 p.m. June 22nd by telephoning Randy Coble, 836-9367, or Bob Weeks, 635-4778.

Group Offering Life Saver Tags

The Halls Heritage Extension Homemakers Club took to Halls Elementary School April 28th for pre-school children registering for kindergarten, about 125 Life Saver Tags to be laced into shoe laces, providing identification and some medical data.

To get tags for your children or day care classes, contact Robin Rodgers, 836-5566, Angie Terry, 836-7342, or Ima Webb, 836-5327.

his wife of 17 months, Kathy Cooney Mays, must reside, as an elected school superintendent.

Mays says job offers don't tempt him yet, but after a month or two of relaxing and playing golf and sleeping late, who knows?

"At 55, I'm obviously not going to lie down and die."

Gin Being Modernized

HYDRAULIC SUCK SYSTEM being installed at Edwards Gin in Gates will not need a man standing in a cotton trailer to manipulate the in-take by hand. The operator will now sit in an air-conditioned glass cab above the trailers.

Truck Spills Wheat

ABOUT 800 BUSHEL OF WHEAT were dumped along Highway 88, about two miles west of Halls, at 4 p.m. Sunday, when the load shifted and an 18-wheel truck-trailer overturned. Gaylon Holland, of Humboldt, driving for Hamilton Farm Service, of Humboldt, was unhurt. No other vehicles were involved.

Dot Craddock Tours Europe

Dot (Mrs. Robert) Craddock, of Halls, arrived home Sunday after a 17-day tour of England, France, Switzerland and Italy with her daughter, Jan Vogel-fanger, of Memphis, her sister, Joy Reed, of Jackson, Miss., and 48 others.

Flying to London for three days there, the group crossed the Channel by Hovercraft, drove to Paris for three days, spent two days in Lucerne, Switzerland, and crossed the Alps by train to visit Florence, Venice, and Rome, flying back to New York. Dot was still feeling jet lag Monday morning but said she had thoroughly enjoyed her tour, despite the fact that somewhere between London and Rome, her and Jan's return plane tickets were stolen. Luckily, they were insured.

Town Of Gates Public Water Supply Notice

The following information concerning the potential for lead in drinking water is provided by the Public Water Supplier of Gates in co-operation with the Tennessee Department of Health and Environment and The Environmental Protection Agency.

Lead can be present in drinking water if the materials used in pipes, solders, and fluxes in the water systems contain lead. EPA has now mandated that new water lines and repairs to water lines be lead free. Older water lines containing lead components can remain and are generally less likely to cause significant lead levels in drinking water.

Public water suppliers can also help control lead levels by controlling the corrosiveness of drinking water. The Public Water Suppliers of Gates, in our continuous water treatment process, adjust the Ph level and mineral content to deliver minimally corrosive drinking water to you. (It dissolves lead slowly when compared to corrosive water.) The Public Water Supplier of Gates monitors and tests the corrosivity level of our water after treatment to assure you of minimally corrosive water.

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) sets drinking water standards and has determined that lead is a health concern at certain levels of exposure. There is currently a standard of 0.050 parts per million (ppm). Based on new health information, EPA is likely to lower this standard significantly.

Part of the purpose of this notice is to inform you of the potential adverse health effects of lead. This is being done even though your water may not be in violation of the current standard.

EPA and others are concerned about lead in drinking water. Too much lead in the human body can cause serious damage to the brain, kidneys, nervous system, and red blood cells. The greatest risk, even with short term exposure, is to young children and pregnant women.

Lead levels in your drinking water are likely to be highest:

- if your home or water system has lead pipes, or
- if your home has copper pipes with lead solder, and
- if the home is less than five years old, or
- if you have soft or acidic water, or
- if water sits in the pipes for several hours.

The only way to be sure of the amount of lead in the household water is to have the water tested by a competent laboratory. Testing is especially important to apartment dwellers because flushing may not be effective in high-rise buildings that have lead-soldered central piping.

It is advisable to check your plumbing system to determine if it is likely to contain lead pipes, solder, or flux and to request lead free materials for all repairs. To find out if the plumbing in a residence contains lead, try scratching the pipe with a key. Lead is a soft metal and will scratch and will be shiny. If lead containing materials are present, the following procedures are recommended.

1. Use only cold water for drinking, cooking, or preparing baby formula.
2. Run the water until it becomes cold before use for human consumption.

Further information or a clarification of this information may be obtained by contacting your Public Water Supplier of Gates.

Readers Speak

Editor:
Each year the Staff of the Joint Senate and House Finance, Ways and Means Committees publishes for Lauderdale County a summary of expenditures for the past two fiscal years plus a projection for the next fiscal year's expenditures. Representative Crain and Senator Dunavant mailed to your newspaper this report as published for Lauderdale County which you were kind enough to run in your June 2, 1988 edition.

Several issues were raised that need further clarification.

First, the variance in expenditures under the caption of Recreation/Resources Development had to do with the purchase of land in Lauderdale County. The highest expenditure occurred in 1986/87 when the Anderson-Tully Property was purchased by the Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency.

The item of $28,860 for Welcome Centers was for the operation and maintenance of the Rest Area on the west side of Highway 51, South of Henning. The staff categorizes all "Welcome Centers" and "Rest Areas" under the caption of "Welcome Centers".

We should have clarified these matters when we sent the report to your newspaper.

Two other items of interest could also have been added.

First, the citizens of Lauderdale County paid into the State Treasury taxes of approximately $11.9 million for the year 1987/88. Lauderdale County received back from the State in payroll, expenditures, etc. approximately $27.4 million for a gain of more than two to one.

The second item has to do with the new corrections facility at Ft. Pillow. There will be an expenditure of $34,000,000 for this correction addition, which is scheduled to be completed in the spring of 1990. This will provide 640 medium to maximum security cells and will also provide 350 new jobs with an added payroll of $6,000,000 per year to the community.

As your two elected representatives in Nashville we feel that we owe it to our constituency to provide this information and appreciate your newspaper printing it.

LEONARD C. DUNAVANT, Senator
LOYD CRAIN, Representative

BACKS 'BOOT CAMP'

25th Dist. Attorney General Paul G. Summers, of Somerville, who serves this county, says Gov. Ned McWherter's plan for a "boot camp" prison near the Wayne County Work Camp in Clifton (on the Tenn. River halfway between Savannah and Linden, due east of Saltillo) "deserves studying".

Non-violent first offenders 18-25, due for parole or end of sentence in 12-14 months, could cut remaining prison time up to six months.

Such camps have been started in Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Georgia, Oklahoma, and New Hampshire.

"I have seen thousands of criminals processed through the revolving door of our criminal justice system over the last several years," Summers says.

"Most commit crimes because they never had proper training at home, school, and church. They have little or no self-discipline and they know nothing about the work ethic."

"Those of us who have experienced boot camp know that, at least, such an experience will give one a sense of discipline and, in most cases, pride."

"Since these convicts will be out in the free world in about a year, regardless of whether they go to boot camp, giving them an incentive to cut down their sentence in the boot camp seems practical."

"Limiting the program to non-violent offenders may need to be given more thought; the violent offender needs discipline just as much as a non-violent criminal."

"The public wants our criminals to be punished, but the public also wants them to learn something from the experience of prison."

"The only thing they are learning, as far as I can see now, in prison is how to be more professional criminals when they return to the free world."

"The boot camp concept just might work."

THE LEMONADE YOU DENTIST WILL LOVE!

It's summertime and once again lemonade stands have started appearing on street corners and neighborhood front lawns all over the country. Kids selling lemonade on hot summer days is as all-American as Mom's apple pie, and can be a whole lot healthier!

I have a delicious, sugar-free lemonade recipe for the young entrepreneurs in your family. This year, instead of selling sugar-sweetened water with lemon juice in it, your local lemonade stand can provide customers with a really nutritious beverage — and the American Dental Association will applaud your efforts.

If there is any lemonade left over at the end of the day, pour it into ice-cube trays for refreshing popples the whole family will enjoy. Try this healthy version of the all-time favorite summer refresher.

The South Cumberland State Recreation Area

TRACY CITY, Tenn. — Savage Gull, Fiery Gizzard, Lost Cove, Rat-desake Point, The Great Stone Door. Exotic names for some very wild and rugged places, all located within a beautiful and virtually untouched park known as the South Cumberland State Recreation Area. The park is located in south-eastern Tennessee atop the Cumberland Plateau, the flat-topped mountain that stands like a gigantic wall spanning the width of the state. For most of its length, the plateau is rimmed by sheer vertical cliffs, broken only by the deep canyons or "gullies" carved out through the ages by rushing mountain streams.

The South Cumberland State Recreation Area contains some of the most spectacular and unspoiled sections of the plateau. Maintained by the Tennessee Department of Conservation, it is actually composed of eight separate areas, all managed as one park and connected by highways and hiking trails.

Any visitor coming to the South Cumberland for the first time should certainly make our visitors center their first stop," said park superintendent John Christof. The park is spread across a 100-square-mile region stretching into three counties, so a new comer definitely needs some orientation and maps just to get around to the different areas.

The visitors center is located on State Hwy 56 between Monteagle and Tracy City, only three miles east of Interstate 24. Besides providing maps and information, the center offers audio-visual programs that showcase the incredible and diverse beauty of the area. A variety of interpretive exhibits depict the region's natural and cultural resources.

A stop by the visitors center will definitely whet your appetite for adventure, and you will leave anxious to explore this pristine wilderness for yourself. The South Cumberland is filled with an amazing diversity of natural features: steep-faced canyons that seem to stretch on forever; sandstone-capped pinnacles that offer magnificent vistas; deep, virgin forests where ancient hemlocks stretch to the skies; dozens of tumbling waterfalls that spill into cool swimming holes; and riverbeds strewn with house-size boulders, where the streams mysteriously disappear into sinkholes, only to resurface miles downstream.

Rugged as it sounds, the park provides plenty of recreational opportunities for those who don't care to stray too far into the wilderness. Some of the best overlooks are accessible by short hikes over flat terrain. The small but scenic Grundy Lakes offer swimming and picnicking facilities. The visitors center even has tennis and volleyball courts.

The Fiery Gizzard Trail, a 13-mile overnight hike, follows Fiery Gizzard creek through the gorge, then climbs 500 feet to a spectacular overlook at Raven Point, and follows the canyon rim to Foster Falls. Local legend has it that the name was coined by none other than the famous frontiersman Davy Crockett, who sang his tongue on a hot turkey gizzard while camping in the area.

The South Cumberland area is as rich in history as it is in beauty. For centuries, native Americans lived and hunted in these river gorges. In the 1830s, a stagecoach road was built through the Collins River gorge, and the stacked stone grades built on the section that climbs out of the canyon can still be seen. The rock work remains in good condition, a tribute to the craftsmanship of the slave labor used to build them.

A series of "beehive" coke ovens, remnants of a late 19th century coal mining operation, still stand at Grundy Lakes. In the 1890s it was the scene of a violent uprising when the state government sent in convicts to replace striking miners. According to local records, the rebellion was finally put down by a force of 5000 Tennessee militiamen. This section of the park has been listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Today, the South Cumberland protects one of the last true wilderness areas remaining in middle Tennessee. For more information, contact the Tennessee Department of Tourist Development, Room T, Box 23170, Nashville, Tennessee 37202.

Blanton Here

KAY BLANTON, of Nashville, a candidate to succeed Ed Jones as U.S. Representative for the Eighth District, visited the Golden Hawaii Restaurant near Ripley Monday with his bride June 9th, Karen S. Flint, 42, to whom he made dozens of long distance calls (10 from Tokyo, one for $70) he tried to charge to state taxpayers before he was sped from the governor's office by now Gov. Ned McWherter and other state officials who were convinced he planned to open prison gates, in his last hours in office, with pardons sold to dozens of convicted criminals. McWherter says Blanton has paid the penalty for corrupt practices with a 2-year federal prison term and that he will support Blanton if he wins the nomination.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express to you our heartfelt thanks for each and every act of kindness shown to us during the illness and recent death of our loved one, Ruth Cooper. Your prayers sustained us more than a few times, each card received was an assurance of your concern, each phone call a desire to help, the beautiful flowers said more than words can say, the love and care put into each dish of food supplied our every need, the kind words the minister spoke meant more than they will ever know, the lovely care of Williams Funeral Home will long be remembered. It is our prayer that God will pour out His richest blessings upon each of you in a very special way.

Rev. R. J. Cooper, husband Merle Carter, Stella Forrester, and Larry Cooper, children Atlas Summers, brother Stan and Gale Cavness, Jerry and Garry Forrester and Mike Cooper, grandchildren Adv.

Drouth Curbing Bean Contracts

By Charles T. Peal "I can't contract any soybeans at these higher prices, if I don't have them," farmers say during the current drouth.

Green Scene

Lack of moisture across the major grain growing areas is having an impact on commodity prices. Corn is now showing signs of moisture needs. When the corn plant reaches the pollination stage, lack of moisture has a drastic effect on the yield produced since a kernel which does not begin developing at this stage cannot start later.

Water, nutrients, especially nitrogen, are in heavy demand. Unless we receive adequate rainfall quickly, yields will be reduced considerably. The high yield farmers obtained in 1987 encouraged them to increase acreage above the 11,000 acre amount with its 123 bushel average yield.

As of June 17th, only 2.46 inches of rainfall has been recorded at the Ripley weather station since April 17th, when .80 fell.

Talley Farms proved that cotton can be planted in 47 degree soil, germinate, and maintain a reasonably good color.

"We probably would not get away with it another year," says Sidney Talley, Jr.

Cotton, as the result of dry soil and the rain on the 21st, 22nd and 23rd of May, is in three different sizes. Some seems to be growing well, while in other fields, it's just sitting there.

Pre-emergent and preplant materials have not worked well, as they need moisture for activation. This means producers are having to use topical applications, such as MSMA, to control cockleburrs and Fusilade for Johnson grass.

Cotton does not have a normal cast. It appears to have a blue cast.

Thrips attacked cotton early and in large numbers. Temik applied at planting was not activated sufficiently to do a really good job. Producers have not only sprayed thrips as needed, but are now applying materials for plant bugs on larger cotton.

But cotton is a sun plant with a tap root, and the final results can only be tabulated when the last row is picked.

All the June soybeans have been planted, and most are up to good stands. Some fields have skips where seeds were not in the moisture. Upland beans in eroded Grenada soil are beginning to show signs of drouth stress.

Wheat beans have not all been planted because of lack of moisture and cloudy conditions. Beans can make normal yields when planted up to July 15.

Vegetable crops such as tomatoes are suffering from the heat as well as lack of moisture. The second bottoms where vegetables are all planted usually have fewer moisture problems. Pollination becomes a problem on tomatoes above 85 degrees. Plants have not grown as large this year but are loaded with fruit on each cluster.

Irrigation is being used by many to help the fruit grow larger and maintain productivity. Though the outlook is not too encouraging at this writing, a reasonable amount of moisture periodically can make the difference. The sub-soil was well recharged last fall, and there is still a reasonable amount in most places. The sub-soil moisture accounts for the excellent wheat yields we had.

The county Disaster Committee has made a preliminary report of the status of the crop, pasture, and hay situation, in the county.

River Dries Up

Candidate

JERRY PILCHER is a candidate for the office of Assessor of Property in the Aug. 4th election.

"I am a life-long resident of Lauderdale County and am a graduate of Ripley High School," he notes.

"I have had four years experience in public service as an alderman, during which I served as Chairman of the Gas and Water Board. I have worked in the construction and building fields, both commercial and residential, for over 30 years, which enables me to have a good background for the duties of this office."

"As Assessor of Property, I will use my influence to promote Lauderdale County and to better our community. It is my aim to serve each individual fairly and honestly, to have an open door policy in which we can discuss any problems and work toward solutions that are fair and acceptable to everyone. I promise you honesty, integrity, and to perform the job to the best of my ability."

"My wife, Carolyn, and I have four children, Mrs. Sharon Barnes, Mrs. Margie Brooks, Mrs. Jan Brannen, and Jim Pilcher, and seven grandchildren. We are active members of First Baptist Church of Ripley."

"I earnestly desire to serve you as your next Assessor of Property and would appreciate your vote and support on Aug. 4th."

Kelly competes in dairy products, David in swine. Kevin Bragdon and Bryant Nichols, Junior High competitors from Lauderdale Middle School, took first place in bicycles and small engines, respectively. Darrell Fain was runner-up in safety.

Others competing were Lori Little, of Ripley, in health, and Brad Porter, in poultry.

CONFIDENTIAL CORNER

By Henry Murchison

An Enjoyable Weekend

This writer had a particularly enjoyable weekend as we observed our seventy-ninth birthday on Saturday followed by Father's Day on Sunday.

We received a number of birthday cards and several telephone calls including a call from our foster brother, Fred Permenter, of Ripley, Miss. Since we had not seen Fred in almost two years we were happy to have his call. Other calls were from friends in Halls.

Sunday Nell took us out for breakfast at Shoney's in Dyersburg. Buddy and Chuck called to wish us Happy Birthday and Happy Father's Day and one of our granddaughters, Jennifer, of Miami, Fla., called late Sunday afternoon.

We appreciated every call and card. By the way Nell made me a birthday cake the middle of the week but it almost didn't make it until Saturday!

Somewhat Surprising

Reaction to our comments last week on the candidacy of former Gov. Ray Blanton was somewhat surprising to us.

The first person we talked to Thursday morning when we reached the post office complimented and agreed with what we wrote as did several others during the day. Also we received telephone calls from others agreeing with our comments.

As a usual thing we are in the minority on our political opinions but many persons seemed to agree with us that Blanton's candidacy should not be supported.

Fine Eating

This is the best time of the year when it comes to a choice of food. For more than a month beginning late in April we enjoyed fresh strawberries. Now Lauderdale County tomatoes, the best in the world, are available and fresh peaches grown in West Tennessee can be purchased at the orchards. Other fresh vegetables are ready but won't last long unless we get some rain.

Miss Carnevale is a 1985 graduate of North Side High School and a graduate of Jackson State Community College where she received an associate science degree. She will attend Union in the fall majoring in elementary education. She is employed by St. Mary's Day Care.

Mr. Arnold is a 1978 graduate of Halls High School and a 1983 graduate of the University of Tennessee in Martin where he received a bachelor of science degree in business administration and accounting. He is general manager of Arnold Food Services Inc.

Courtesies Honor Recent Nuptials

Ladies of Eureka United Methodist Church at Forked Deer honored Jane Glenn, bride April 30th of Dr. John W. Hale, Jr., of Jackson, son of the Johnny Hales, of Forked Deer, with a shower Friday at the church, giving Jane a corsage of white roses to complement her blue cotton knit outfit.

After Mrs. John Emerson led games and Mrs. Keith Warren read a poem, cake and goodies were served with punch.

Special guests were the groom's mother and his aunt, Mrs. Virginia Walpole, both of Forked Deer.

The newlyweds were honored Saturday at the Jerry Cribfield home in Halls, where vegetables and dip and cheese and crackers, served in the sun-room, were followed at pool-side, at tables laid with red and white checked cloths and centered with red geraniums, by barbecue, baked beans, and potato salad, with iced tea or Coke. Home-made ice cream capped the menu.

Co-hosting were the Mark Cribfields, Jr., the Ricky Cribfields, Mr. and Mrs. Greg Dobbins, and the Jeff Moores, of Halls.

The groom's parents were special guests.

U.T. Accepting Rhonda Hines

Rhonda Hines, of 136 Jaynes Drive, Halls, has been accepted to study medical technology at the University of Tennessee in Memphis.

She is a graduate of the University of Tennessee in Martin.

Belton Family Has Re-Union

Monroe Belton's family gathered on the lawn of his home at Nankipoo to honor him on Father's Day.

They included his son, Raymond, with his wife, Lucille, and his daughter, Virginia Olds, and grandchildren, Jerry Olds, Artelle Belton and Sue Wright, and families, of Halls, his daughter, Loudean Cross, his sons, Jackie, and wife, Quida, and Thomas, and wife, Billie, and his grandchildren, Bruce Ward, Katherine Belton, Sondra Wright, and Raymond Belton, Jr., and families, of Memphis, granddaughter Donna Hawks, and family, of Jackson, granddaughter Katie Spence, and family, of Crockett County, and a friend, Jim Ferguson, of Woodville.

Keep frozen poultry hard-frozen until time to thaw, and cook promptly after thawing.

Patriot Hailed

MRS. KITTY BROWN, 98, of Halls, saw the Key Corner Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution place a bronze marker (right), gift of her daughter and granddaughters, at the foot of the grave of her great-great-grandfather, Daniel Agee, in Union Methodist Church Cemetery, north of Trenton, June 11th.

Seen with her are four later generations—Ruth Wilkes, of Dyersburg, Alice Calhoun, right, of Athens, Ala., Ann Eager, left, of Nashville, and Joseph Eager, Alice's sister, Marilyn Wilkes, of Huntsville, Ala., was unable to attend.

Alice, reporting research in which Marilyn was instrumental, says Daniel's grandfather, Matthew Agee, a nobleman, emigrated from France after Louis XIV revoked the Edict of Nantes (which tolerated Protestants) in 1685; helping William of Orange gain the English throne in 1689 won him land in and free passage to Virginia, where he arrived in 1700.

Daniel was born Dec. 29, 1764, in Buckingham County, Va. He served in the Revolution in the 4th Regiment of Light Dragoons, formed in 1777.

He married Jane Shoemaker about 1785. By 1792, he had moved to Sullivan County, in far northeast Tennessee, buying 100 acres. In 1801, he was in Smith County, just east of Nashville. He bought land in Alabama in 1817 and was in its 1830 census. He was in Trenton by 1840. He died in 1854.

John Daniel Agee, the sixth of seven children, was born in 1806; he died in Crockett County in 1892. He was Mrs. Kitty Brown's great-grandfather.

Bishop-Burleson Vows Scheduled

Looking Back

The death of Bobby Dodd, retired football coach and athletic director at Georgia Tech University in Atlanta, brings back a lot of memories to this writer.

Dodd played his football at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville and was a member of the backfield which contained the Touchdown Twins, Gene McEver and Buddy Hackman, and, we believe, Quinn Decker at fullback, and Paul Hug and Max Brandt at ends. At one time we could name the entire team, but over the years we have forgotten.

We saw our first major collegiate football game in 1928 when Dodd and his teammates, largely sophomores, defeated Vanderbilt and brought the attention of the football world to Tennessee.

Bob Neyland had been coaching the Vols for two years when this sophomore group began the creation of the Neyland dynasty at Tennessee, which covered more than 25 years. Neyland, an Army Reserve officer and later a brigadier general, was a graduate of West Point and a strict disciplinarian, while Dodd was a free soul who had complete confidence in his ability to do the job as quarterback. As a result the coach and the player were oftentimes at odds on the practice field, but never at game time.

In 1929, McEver became Tennessee's first All-American, and the next year Dodd was the school's second All-American.

Many tales have been told of Dodd's escapades, but one of the most amusing was told to me by a friend who was a student at UT during those years. Dodd, outstanding athlete, would sometimes walk down a flight of wooden stairs, leading to the practice field, on his hands. Herman Hickman, built like a bear, would try to emulate Dodd with the result that he rolled down the steps. Hickman later coached at West Point and was a top-notch after dinner speaker.

After watching this football team play, we became and remain a staunch Volunteer fan and managed to see most of the teams play from that time until the 1970's.

After leaving UT Dodd was named football coach at Georgia Tech and later athletic director and never held any other job, retiring a few years ago. Dodd was named to the Collegiate Hall of Fame in 1957.

Ed Bryant Pursues House Votes Here

Ed Bryant, 89, Jackson attorney seeking the Republican nomination for the U.S. Rep. seat being abandoned by Ed Jones, Democrat, of Yorkville, visited the county last week, saying he would do more than "simply answer letters and telephone calls."

Among local escorts were Russell G. (Wimpy) Reivers. Bryant's focus as a Congressman, he said, would be on those issues which pertain to a strong defense, economy and moral fiber for the country.

On defense, Bryant said "Our Country must have the ability to defend itself against any outside force."

"Communism is the chief threat to our freedom, and in our relations with Russia, we must always be mindful of their goal of world domination."

Bryant supports the defensive measure, the Strategic Defense Initiative, financial aid for Central American democracies, and an arms control agreement only if it is bi-lateral and verifiable.

Bryant pledges to maintain the high quality constituency service this district has seen.

However, with the number of staffers each Congressman has in Washington and in the District, he sees no problem in this area of service.

According to Bryant, the over-

Earliest Cotton Blooms Posted

The Stoneville 409 seed were planted April 17th.

First bloom reported to The Lauderdale County Enterprise Monday was from the T. L. Cribfield, Jr., farm near Knob Creek, a Stoneville variety planted about April 23rd.

4-YEAR GRANTS

Alex Haley Scholarship sponsors, who last week reported their grants are for five years, now say they are only for four.

All make-up of the 8th District is better suited for a Republican Representative. On those "day-in and day-out" voting matters, the newer Congressmen must vote partisan, with his national party, in order to advance into positions of leadership, he says.

A Republican is better able to vote conservatively because his party's national agenda or platform is more conservative than the national Democratic Party's platform, he says.

During the day's local campaigning, Bryant visited with workers in the area, as well as a number of Republican supporters.

Refuge Readied

WILLIS WHEELER will manage the 657-acre Lauderdale Waterfowl Refuge (formerly Lake Lauderdale), a mile north of Halls, which the state is preparing to flood this fall, after purchase (at $850 per acre) from Billy Y. Walker, of Dyersburg.

July 2 — From noon, music in downtown park, local talent invited. 4 p.m., Patriotic Parade by children under 17 (bicycles, tricycles, pets, ponies, skateboards, scooters, strollers, wagons, etc., with free drinks for all participants); send name, address, and category to Jerry Puckett, 530 S. College, Halls, 836-9237.

July 2 & 3 — Men's double elimination slow-pitch softball tournament, sponsored by Halls Softball League in Crichfield Park: individual, 3-place team trophies, home run plaques. Entry fee $65 by 6 p.m. June 30th to Marvin Scarce, 836-5232, 836-9233.

July 3 — Union Service at 7 p.m. in Crichfield Park led by The Rev. Kim Kulow, minister of First United Methodist Church.

July 4 — From 4 p.m., music and picnics in Crichfield Park; fireworks at 9 on the old Air Base, directed by Jerry Cribfield.

Historical Tidbits

Mud Island: The Mississippi River's Showcase

MEMPHIS, Tenn. From St. Paul to New Orleans, the Mississippi River has helped to shape the character of some of America's greatest cities, but nowhere is the influence of the river more deeply felt than in the city of Memphis.

The Mississippi and cotton made Memphis a great commercial center. In the boom days of the late 19th century, Front Street was lined with cotton warehouses, and steamboats lined the waterfront waiting to take on cargo of the precious "white gold" to fuel the textile mills of Europe.

The steamboats dumped their ballast loads of cobblestone on the river bank. Those 19th century European cobblestones now pave the Memphis waterfront, and cotton is still a major Memphis industry.

When the City of Memphis decided to display its rich river heritage, it chose as its showcase a river land mark known as Mud Island.

Legend says the low island formed when a Union gunboat sank during the Civil War. The ghost of that ancient ironclad is among the many attractions of the incredible Mississippi River Museum, a focal point of the 52-acre Mud Island entertainment complex.

Mud Island is a unique concept. It is not an amusement park. It is not exactly a theme park. It is more than a museum, but it has elements of all three with restaurants, shops, live outdoor concerts and other attractions as well.

Dedicated to the 1,000 miles of the Lower Mississippi River between Cairo, Illinois, and the Gulf of Mexico, Mud Island's most spectacular feature is The River. With a five block long scale model of the entire Lower Mississippi.

This ingenious miniature Mississippi, where one step equals one mile, faithfully duplicates the exact river channels, the twisting tributaries and the flood plains of the river.

The streets, river bridges and landmarks of the major cities of the Lower Mississippi - Cairo, St. Louis, Memphis, Vicksburg, Natchez, Baton Rouge, New Orleans - are readily laid out in state tiles and steel ribbons along the banks of the model. Markers and plaques along The River Walk tell of steamboat disasters, river pirates, Civil War battles and once-thriving towns which died when the river changed its course.

The showplace of Mud Island is the 18 gallery Mississippi River Museum, a showcase for the people and the history of the river with exhibits ranging from Indian arrowheads to a replica of the pilot house of a modern diesel towboat.

In the museum's Riverfolk Gallery such legendary river figures as Mark Twain and boatman Mike Fink come to vivid life, along with steamboat captains, riverboat gamblers, showboat entertainers, levee workers and light keepers.

The nearby Theater of River Danzlers, graphically illustrates through film, slides and drawings such historical tragedies as steamboat explosions, yellow fever epidemics, and the great earthquake of 1812 when the Mississippi flowed backward to fill the depression known today as Reelfoot Lake.

One of the museum's most popular attractions is an authentic, full-sized replica of an 1870s steamboat. Duplicated down to its luxurious imported carpets and marble-topped tables, the elegant salon of The Belle of the Bluffs literally echoes with long-ago "conversations" about steamboat races, cotton prices and the "latest" fashions from Paris.

The startlingly realistic audio presentations of the Mississippi River Museum are among its most intriguing attractions.

The shouted commands of officers aboard a Union ironclad, a replica of the boat several which Mud Island allegorically formed, mix with the sounds and flashes of cannon as the gunboat approaches a Confederate shore battery clearly visible through the boat's gun ports on the bluff above.

A short escalator ride later, visitors are perched on the bluffs looking down at the gunboat and listening to the commands of Confederate officers as they labor to bring their huge batteries to bear on the boat beneath them.

Many of the sounds of the river, however, are more soothing. One section of the museum is dedicated to the unique music of the Mississippi. Scott Joplin Ragtime mixes with W. C. Handy Blues, Louis Armstrong Dixieland, Elvis Presley Rock and Roll and Barkays Rhythm and Blues all unique musical styles which developed along the river from St. Louis to New Orleans.

An authentic replica of a turn-of-the-century honky tonk also helps to bring alive some of the river's rich music heritage.

Married In Knoxville

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL DEAN CRAIG were married at 7:30 p.m. May 14th in Church Street United Methodist Church in Knoxville, with Dr. Richard C. Looney officiating the double ring ceremony in candlelight.

Given in marriage by her father, Raymond Hand, of Knoxville, the bride wore a full-length ball gown of white silk shantung featuring a dropped waist bodice, embellished with heavily beaded, re-embroidered Alencon lace. A full balloon skirt extended to a chapel train.

Her cathedral length veil of illusion was edged with re-embroidered Alencon lace, flowers and beads. It was attached to a heavily beaded band of lace flowers.

She carried a cascading bouquet of freesia, lily of the valley, white roses, gardenias, amilax, enchantment lilies and larkspur.

The bride carried two lace handkerchiefs belonging to her paternal grandmother and maternal great-grandmother.

The only jewelry was a pair of pearl and diamond earrings, a gift from her parents.

Her sisters, Kimberly and Susan Hand, of Knoxville, were maids of honor. Other bridal attendants were Catherine Gaines, of Germantown, Charlotte Hand, cousin of the bride, Katherine Patch, of Clarksville, Julia Malcott, of Lexington, Ky., and Pamela Owens and Stephanie Johnson, both of Knoxville. They wore peach floor length gowns of silk taffeta. The gowns featured V-backs and rear bows. They carried cascades of Lady D. Roses, Sweet William, and white larkspur.

The groom's father, Louis Lynn Craig, of Ripley, was the best man. Groomsmen were Sherrell Armstrong, of Tiptonville, Allen Barrett, of Germantown, Greg Dodge, of Knoxville, Andrew Harrington, of Dyersburg, David Hobbs, of Charlotte, N.C., Clayton Pattat, of Memphis, and Lewis Pipkin, of Ripley. They wore black tuxedos with white pique shirts and ties and white gloves.

The groom's mother wore a floor length gown of pale peach silk. The sheer bodice featured re-embroidered flowers and crystal beads.

The groom's mother chose a floor length gown of iced aqua chiffon, accented with sequins and a beaded motif.

Each mother wore a white gardenia corsage.

The groom's sister, Melissa Chast, of Ripley, and the bride's cousin, Amiee Jo Hand, of Clarksville, kept the register.

Organ selections by James Rogers accompanied the University of Tennessee Brass Quintet, with Trumpet Voluntary in the professional. Robert Berington sang The Wedding Prayer before the processional and The Lord's Prayer during the service.

After the vows, the wedding party was transported to Cherokee Country Club in a trolley lavished with white satin bows.

In the reception there, guests were greeted by waiters with trays of champagne. The ball room was filled with large vases of fresh flowers on the credenzas and smaller arrangements on each of the tables. Large baskets of flowers hung from the three chandeliers in the center of the room.

Serving tables on either side of the ball room were covered in white cloths with tall floral arrangements and silver candelabra. The terrace was also used for the guests. A large wicker swan filled with flowers was the center piece for the serving table. Candles surrounded the table arrangements.

The guests enjoyed a menu of warm cheese puffs, hot artichoke dip, shrimp mousse, fried chicken fingers with honey mustard sauce, savory meatballs with Dijon mustard sauce, stuffed new potatoes with cheese and caviar toppings and fresh strawberries served with powdered sugar, chocolate sauce, or strawberry yogurt. At the end of each serving table, a waiter carved whole tenderloin of beef, served with homemade rolls and sauces.

The main dining room was the setting for the bride and groom's cake. The bride's cake was a 5-tier white cake with lemon filling. Hundreds of small sugar flowers covered the cake. Fresh flowers surrounded the bride's table. The groom's cake was a 3-tier chocolate cake adorned with fresh fruit.

Rice bags of ivory illusion, tied with peach satin ribbon, in a white wicker stand with cascading flowers, were distributed by Beth Jenkins, of Ripley.

The rehearsal dinner was held at Regas Restaurant in Knoxville. The centerpiece was a crystal bowl used at the rehearsal dinner for the groom's mother and her daughters. It was filled with fresh spring flowers. Guests enjoyed a prime rib dinner. The groom's father ended the dinner with a champagne toast to the couple.

After a honeymoon in Jamaica, the newlyweds are residing in Asheville, N.C. The groom is employed by First Union Corp.

The drawing room is a shortening of the word withdrawing, for the room to which guests withdrew.

Owning an add-on heat pump is like having your cake and eating it, too!

Now you can have your comfort and cut your costs, too! Amazing, but true, your gas or oil furnace becomes a money-saving heating and cooling system when you attach the electric add-on heat pump. Attach it to your present furnace and watch your heating bills begin to shrink.

In the winter, the add-on saves you money by pulling free heat from the outside air. But, when the temperature drops to freezing, the add-on automatically shuts off and turns on your existing furnace. This dual system gives you maximum energy saving.

In the summer, the add-on gives you a bonus - economical whole-house cooling.

Have it all! Call your electric company for more information. No-money-down, low-interest financing available.

Married In Halls

MR. AND MRS. MARK ANTHONY BROWN were married June 26th in First United Methodist Church in Halls, by the Rev. Robert A. Brown officiating in the glow of dozens of candles.

The bride, Sherry Leanne Vaden, was given by her father, Paul Vaden, of Halls. Her gown was enhanced with elaborate lace appliques on a sheer half-collar and sheer lower portions of richly ruffled sleeves. A dainty caplet worn well back on her coiffure held a veil of illusion.

Mrs. Jan Vaden was matron of honor. Other bridal attendants were Mrs. Tonya Hurt and Miss Ginny Vaden. Flower girls were Miss Melissa Hurt and Miss Jeffie Vaden.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jamie L. Brown, of Halls, wearing a white tuxedo with white shirt bow-tie, and cummerbund, was attended by his brother, Kurt Brown, as best man. Groomsman were Joe and John Eskridge, of Halls. Ushers were Paul Vaden, Jr., Michael Jacobs, Trey Hurt, and David Medlock.

Music began at 2:30 p.m., with Barbara (Mrs. Thomas) Hendon, of Halls, at the organ, accompanying Susan Phillips, soloist. Miss Deana Seigler played two selections on the flute.

After the couple lit a unity candle to close the vows, a reception in the Fellowship Hall honored the couple and also noted the 50th wedding anniversary of the bride's parents, reported elsewhere in this issue.

The bride, a 1981 graduate of Halls High School, is employed by Sherry's Tone & Tanning Salon at 112 West Main in Halls. The groom, a 1979 graduate of HHS, is self-employed. The newlyweds are residing in Halls.

Home Vows Said

MR. AND MRS. BRET ALAN COOK were married May 26th in an afternoon ceremony at the home of the bride's aunt and uncle, the Don Burnhams, at 326 Burke Drive in Ripley.

The bride, Tonyia, is the daughter of the Ron Hilliards, of Halls. The groom is the son of Tommy Cook, of Tuscola, Tex., and the late Kay Woodley, of Halls. He is the grandson of the Holford Swanners, of Halls.

previous night. Enraged and embarrassed, Hood ordered an assault on the massive Union army.

The Carters did not evacuate, and by afternoon, it was too late. Twenty-eight people - family, neighbors and servants - huddled in the basement for five hours while the battle raged, fearing the house would be burned over their heads. During the battle, a Union soldier sought refuge in the house. Unable to open the back door, and with bullets flying around him, he used his rifle to break in. After the battle, Carter had the door repaired with a simple wooden covering, and that is how it remains today.

Carter was never reimbursed for the damage to his home, and perhaps sensing the historical importance, he did not repair the bullet holes.

A museum and battlerama at Carter House interpret the horror of the war and its lingering effect on the South. The museum displays guns, swords, medical instruments, uniforms and a Confederate flag. Also displayed is a collection of souvenir pins and photographs commemorating troop reunions as late as 1921.

Another home on the edge of Franklin, Carnton, also played a role in the battle. The bodies of five Confederate generals were laid on the back porch, and the house was filled with the wounded. Blood stains are still visible on the floor where operations took place.

Reminders of Franklin's past are found not only in its house museums, but in the 15-block downtown area, listed on the National Register of Historic Places. Preserving this area is the work of Historic Downtown Franklin.

"We say that we are 15 miles and 100 years down the road from Nashville," says Rudy Jordan, executive director. "Our uniqueness is our history."

Surrounding the Square and lining Main Street are restored 19th and early 20th century buildings. More than 40 shops offer crafts,

Bridal Shower

JANE HALE, recent bride of Dr. John Hale, of Jackson, was given a gift tea from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday in Halls First Christian Church, with Dr. Hale's mother, Helen (Mrs. John) Hale, left, of Forked Deer, as a special guest. Cake, mints, and nuts were served with punch. Hostesses were Cathy Ashmore, Paula Bales, Rita Bradford, Katie Davis, Rowena Dunaway, Dot Henderson, Pat Higdon, Betty Pennington, Vonada Shelton, Jean Spence, Marie Sumrow, and Beverly Taylor.

Jim Sasser
A Report for Tennesseans
LEGISLATION HELPS TENNESSEE
FAMILIES BUY HOMES

Homeownership is the cornerstone of American life. Our homes are where we watch our children grow up, and where we share the precious moments of family life. Homes are also the building blocks of neighborhoods and the friendships that blossom in them. Economically, our houses are of great importance as a primary means for many of our citizens to accumulate wealth.

Unfortunately, after rising steadily for 35 years, the rate of homeownership has been declining since 1980. And because our homes are of such socioeconomic importance, the diminishing ability of Americans to purchase homes stands as a threat to our future.

Statistics show that among Southerners ages 30 to 34, the rate of homeownership has fallen from 62.9 percent in 1974 to 54.7 percent in 1986. Among Southern residents who are 25 to 29 years old, it has dropped from 46.0 percent in 1974 to 39.5 percent in 1986.

Why this decline? The fact of the matter is that while most new homebuyers can afford to make monthly payments on a house, they have trouble accumulating the large lump sum of cash necessary to make a downpayment.

I introduced a bill this week which I believe, when passed, will help to remedy this situation.

The Sasser Homeowner Bill establishes a program that would make use of the Federal Housing Administration, an existing, proven program. It would initiate a new low downpayment FHA mortgage insurance program, several adjustments to existing FHA programs including adjustable rate mortgages and mortgage limit caps, and two innovative new demonstration programs.

The beauty of this program is that, since it draws on already existing institutions, it maximizes efficiency and preserves federal funds for low-income renters and the homeless. Best of all, this program does not draw on already limited federal revenues - in fact, it generates money in the form of mortgage premiums.

Together, these changes will make it significantly easier for young Tennesseans, and indeed for all young Americans, to finance their first homes.

I intend to work hard to see that this bill get through Congress so that our young people have a fair opportunity to purchase a home for themselves and their children.

Halls History

By Mrs. Charles Alcock
Sometime ago, I told you that my desk looked like Shoo's. This morning, I found a letter from J. B. Ellis which reached me in February. Enclosed was a letter from Fred Whitaker, asking about what had been done about Halls High School's Homecoming of the Classes of the 1920s and 1930s.

We have had one planning meeting and do not plan to have another. Each class is responsible for notifying class members.

Some classes are using the following on a post card:
"Halls, Tenn., Dear Classmate of ____ What: Halls High Homecoming. Who: Classes of the 1920s and 1930s. Where: Halls High School Cafeteria. When: Saturday, Oct. 29, 1988. Time: 12 noon. Visitation. Lunch: 1:00 p.m. Cost: $10 per person."

Your check must be received by me no later than Oct. 15, 1988. We look forward to seeing you and your spouse or friend. (Sign your name) and be sure and put the return address on the front of the card.

Several classes have already mailed out these invitations, and the sooner it is done the better, as some may want to plan a vacation around this date.

We will go from the cafeteria to the Junior High School auditorium, where Bill Kelly will play the piano for an old-time Saturday afternoon dance. We used to call them Les Danca.

We may even have a dance contest. Mary and David Harold Hurt usually are shoos-ins in this category, but they may have to move over for Bruce and Naeline Wilkes Jordan, who can really cut a rug, too.

When we were in school, we all lined up, boys on one side and girls on the other, and marched in to our seats from outside the building, weather permitting, or from the hall, if not, to the tune of Hilda Abernathy, Rebeah Avery, playing the piano, Margaret Daws, Marsaline Harward, Dorothy Pugh, or Virginia Stephens.

I loved the march Dorothy Pugh played so much that I made both of my daughters have it for their recital piece one year.

Dorothy Jordan Moore is also a talented musician, and Bill is hoping they will spell him at intervals during the afternoon.

We are planning for Frances Moore Hendren to lead a sing-along. Many requests have been made for Henning Andrews, J. B. Ellis, Marvin Nunn and Owen Wiley to sing. They were our quartet; all four had good voices and loved to sing.

A representative is needed for the Class of 1936 which included Anley Ellis, Frances and Baby Lucas, and L. R. Vior.

If you were in that class, please contact me (836-7773).

Franklin Lives With Its History

FRANKLIN, Tennessee - Aged trees shading historic homes, a Confederate monument on the Square and a downtown of quaint Victorian-style shops convey that Franklin, Tennessee knows its place in history and lives with it daily.

Like 18th century settlers undoubtedly found the little valley surrounded by the Tennessee hills as beautiful as residents do today. Officially founded in 1799, the town was named for Benjamin Franklin.

By the early 1800s, Franklin boasted signs of progress - schools, churches, lawyers, doctors, ministers, gunsmiths and wagon makers. Magnificent homes, many still standing today, were further evidence of prosperity.

It was the Civil War that forever changed the quiet little community, thrusting tragedy into the townspeople's back yards. Homes throughout the area carry stories of the war. Harrison House was used as a Confederate command post for planning the Battle of Franklin. At another home, family members led their blindfolded horses to the third floor ballroom to hide from the soldiers.

Perhaps nowhere are the effects of one of the bloodiest battles of the war more visible than the Carter House and Museum where the home, farm office and smokehouse are still scarred with bullet holes and mini balls. The site interprets Franklin from the 1830s to the 1860s through the lives of Fountain Branch Carter, his wife Mary and 12 children. Typical of many settlers, Carter began with 19 acres and one slave and amassed 288 acres, a cotton gin and 28 slaves. Built in 1830, the small house, designed by Carter, overlooked rolling farmland.

Life might have continued peacefully if fate had not placed the Carters in the midst of a battle on Nov. 30, 1864. The Confederate army, led by Gen. John Hood, had been outsmarted by the Union army which had slipped past them the crystal, antiques, art and clothing. Polished wooden floors, high ceilings and huge oak doors with beveled windows compliment the exteriors.

The return to downtown has been a 10-year project. "Since 1978, the number of people on the street is phenomenal," Mrs. Jordan says. "The first phase was the renovation; now we want to get more people here."

Attracting people are shops like Window on Main Street, featuring art from whimsical to wild. Local artists produce most of the silk shawls, handmade pottery and contemporary art objects. Other shops offer everything from South American fashions to American punk. A multitude of antique stores including Antiques on Main, Pebblestone Court and the Franklin Antique Mall offer a chance to explore. Restaurants like Choices, an elegant establishment in a building that once housed a hardware store, also attract visitors.

Just off the Square is St. Paul's Episcopal Church, built in 1831, the oldest Episcopal Church in Tennessee. The small building was used as a barracks and hospital in the Civil War. Its altar silver and church records were hidden, but the pews, pulpit and furnishings were used for firewood by Union troops. The dark interior is highlighted by exquisite Tiffany windows added in 1915.

A few blocks away is the Masonic Hall. Built in 1823, it is the oldest public building in town and the first three-story building in the state. President Andrew Jackson met here with the Chickasaw Indians to negotiate the sale of their lands.

Centering downtown is an Italian marble dedicated on November 30, 1899, the 35th anniversary of the Battle of Franklin, by the United Daughters of the Confederacy. One of the inscriptions reads: "We who saw and knew them well are witnesses to the coming age of their fidelity."

The continued fidelity of Franklin's citizens is reflected everywhere - in the respect of its past, preservation of its buildings and plans for its future.

A number of festivals and tours of private homes are held each year in Franklin. For more information about Franklin, the Carter House and Museum, Carnton, festivals and tours contact the Tennessee Department of Tourist Development, Room T, Box 23170, Nashville, Tennessee, 37202. - Carolyn Brackett -

Said property is bounded and described as follows:

Lying and being in the 8th Civil District of Lauderdale County, Tennessee, and more particularly described as follows:

BEGINNING at a point in the center of the gravel road running from the Double Bridges-Unionville blacktop to Poplar Grove and known as the Poplar Grove Road, said point being located 11 1/2 chains west from the southeast corner of a 29 acre lot owned by Pete Watts and wife, Lela M. Watts, runs thence north 200 feet to a stake; runs thence west parallel with said Poplar Grove Road 135 feet to a stake; runs thence south 254 feet to a point in the center of the said gravel road; runs thence along the center of said gravel road east 171 feet to the point of beginning.

This being the same property conveyed unto Tansil Phillips and wife, Jacqueline Phillips, by deed recorded May 22, 1972, and dated April, 1972, said deed being recorded in Deed Book 85, Page 219 in the Register's Office for Lauderdale County, Tennessee.

The sale will be made for cash in bar of the equity of redemption and all exemptions, subject to being raised and reopened as provided by law, and the rules of Court, and the order of the Court. The sale will be made with all taxes through 1987 to be paid from the proceeds of the sale, and the purchaser to assume the 1988 taxes. Possession of the premises will be given upon receipt of the deed.

Witness my hand on this 21st day of June, 1988.

SANDRA BURNHAM
Special Commissioner
