PUBLISHED WEEKLY

HALLS, TENNESSEE, MAY 4, 1989

VOLUME 92—NUMBER 18

SCOTT WILLIAM AMMONS, 18, of 914 Floy, Memphis, son of Mrs. Norma Holloway, of Halls, died in a 1974 Chevrolet Camaro which left Curve-Nankipoo Road, westbound, about 12:35 a.m. Saturday, hit a tree, and burst into flames, according to Highway Patrolman Raymond Smith.

Steven A. Deason, of Route 3, Ripley, John L. Nelson and Lee Vivian, of Route 1, Halls, and Dalton Jackson, of the Halls area, coming upon the accident scene, pulled from the car Scott's brother, Thomas Wayne Ammons, Jr., 26, of Memphis, and Carl Morin, 23, of 860 Creston, Memphis, both in serious condition on arrival at the Regional Medical Center in Memphis, and Samuel May, Jr., 19, of Frayser, in critical condition at the RMC.

Services for Scott Ammons were at 2 p.m. Monday in Ripley Funeral Home, with burial in Poplar Grove Cemetery near Henning.

He also leaves his father, Thomas Ammons, and two other brothers, Michael and Ricky, of Memphis; a half-sister, Miss Michele Holloway, of Halls; three step-brothers, Donnie Moore, of Halls, and Jason Holloway and Justin Holloway, of Knoxville; and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Madden, of Northlake, Ill.

Looking Back 75 Years

Hatchie River Outing Slated

The Nature Conservancy will sponsor a field trip along the Hatchie River May 13th.

Trip leaders Joe Guinn, naturalist, Linda Waters, Assistant Manager for the Hatchie National Wildlife Refuge, and Bob Ford, project manager for the Hatchie State Scenic River, will take participants on a hike along the perimeter of a cypress tupelo gum wetland area bordering the Hatchie.

The walk will follow a course beneath a 100-foot canopy of towering hardwood bottom-land forest, which contains over 60 species of trees, and over 100 species of birds, including migrating warblers and other exotics returning from South America.

The walk will include a visit to an Indian Ceremonial Mound, and areas considered among the most significant stopover points for migrating ducks, geese, swans and waterbirds in the lower Mississippi valley.

The tour will conclude with lunch atop the 300-foot Chickasaw Bluff, overlooking the Mississippi River.

Meet at 8:30 a.m. in the lobby of the Best Western Motel in Covington. Participants may wish to stay there overnight Friday. Plan on about five hours, and bring lunch, boots, and binoculars.

The Nature Conservancy is a national non-profit conservation organization devoted to the protection of ecologically significant natural areas.

The Tennessee Field Office, organized in 1978, has protected more than 47,000 acres in the state, many of them in West Tennessee, including areas in the Chickasaw National Wildlife Refuge, along the Hatchie, and in the Reelfoot Lake area.

Van's Crash Claims Life

Mrs. Dean Pennington Jordan, 62, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Pennington, of Gates, was killed about 11 a.m. Friday when the right rear tire blew out on a 1978 Chevrolet

The County Commission's Extension Committee links the county to the University of Tennessee. Current committee members are Ronnie Roberts, chairman, Mrs. Thompson Wadsworth, secretary, Neal Crain, Jimmy Fullen, Vernon McBride, Sr., Eugene Pugh, and Mrs. Don Ray.

C. H. Denson was our first County Agent, beginning Jan. 1, 1913. Seven Agents served from that time until July 1, 1939, when Farmer Paschal came here to head Extension and Agricultural Adjustment Administration programs.

In the early years, the County Agents were called 'Farm Demonstrators,' whose demonstrations compared improved farm practices to old ones.

The first 4-H agent, Leroy Collier, was hired Jan. 14, 1946. William G. Lanham, Jr., Ed White, Dan Brown, James Moody, Charles Peal, Jerry Parker, David Hill, and the present agent, Richard Buntin, have followed him in responsibility for the boys' 4-H program.

Oliver Nunn, of Halls, was appointed special agent, Aug. 16, 1947, serving Lauderdale and Dyer Counties in adult agriculture until Jan. 31, 1949.

Eighteen home economists have had appointments in Lauderdale County, beginning March 5, 1914. Ruth Barton (Mrs. Acton Holmes) served from Sept. 1, 1928, to June 30, 1931. Nancy Warren (Mrs. Lynnwood) Grammer was home agent from January 1, 1940 to Dec. 31, 1943.

Fannie Scott was the first Home Demonstration Agent, employed March 5, 1914. Agents other than those above were Nellie Crabill, Juanita Bradley, Helen Weller, Dixie Ashcraft, Mary Fry, Mary Bailey, Cora Livingston (still in this area), Charmaine Robinson, Johnnie (Mrs. Gwinn) Matthews and Carol (Mrs. Dan) Walker, both still Riplians, Deborah Gresham and Gwendolyn Chapman (Joyner), still in this area.

Many of the home agents in the early years had to resign because they chose to marry. Not until about 1960 were women allowed to marry and continue their Extension Service positions.

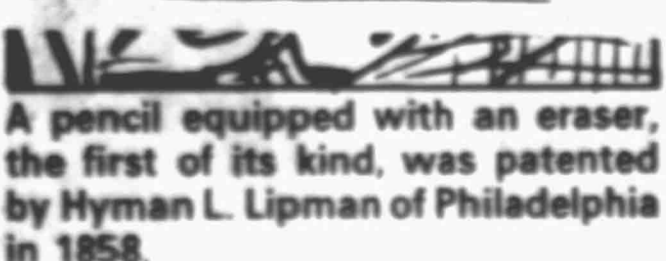

The Tenn. State University Family Living Program is administered by Christene Anderson. This program was initiated here in 1973.

The present team invites everyone to open house Monday.

Tara Hargett UTM Choice

Tara Hargett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al Bradford, of Halls, has accepted an Honors Seminar Scholarship/Workshop to enter the University of Tennessee in Martin this fall.

She will major in communications.

A pencil equipped with an eraser, the first of its kind, was patented by Hyman L. Lipman of Philadelphia in 1858.

Halls Wins $64,603 Grant From State

Halls Mayor Pat Higdon was advised Thursday of last week, in an announcement by Gov. Ned McWherter, that Halls has won a $64,603 state grant which with $9,653 in local funds and $1,200,000 from C-Line, Inc., a Tupperware warehouse and distributor, will finance water-line construction for C-Line, providing 96 jobs for the Halls area.

Mayor Higdon says she is grateful to State Sen. Leonard Dunavant, of Millington, and State Rep. Floyd Crain, of Ripley, for their aid.

CONFIDENTIAL CORNER

By Henry Murchison

As We See It

This Thursday, May 4th, the biennial Town of Halls election will be held. As has been our policy, we will make no effort to support any candidate or to influence the voters of Halls. We merely wish to remind citizens of their duty to vote and to select the persons they deem to be the most capable to carry out the duties of Mayor and Aldermen. More and more it has become vital that qualified people handle the business of the Town of Halls. It is your money which they will be spending to improve the life-style of the people of Halls. When you go to the polls, you should make your judgment on that basis.

It is a great thing to have good neighbors, and Nell and this writer have been especially blessed. Last week a young man knocked at our door and asked if we objected if he used his trimmer to cut the weeds and grass along the street curb and the edges of our driveway. He said he knew that we liked to keep a neat yard but also knew that I was unable to see to operate our trimmer and found it difficult to hire someone to do the job. You may believe that we didn't object but thanked Mack for his thoughtfulness. Mack is one of several of our neighbors who have done such jobs as cleaning the snow and ice off the driveway and steps, running their tillers to help us with our flower beds, picking up our newspapers and watching after things when we are away from home, and otherwise helping us. Why we should wish to live anywhere else but this neighborhood is inconceivable.

A few weeks ago, on two or three different occasions, we were asked if we were not becoming adjusted to our blindness. One will never be adjusted, although one can accept it. We miss too much the beautiful colors of the spring flowers, the green of the trees, and all the glory of nature. We miss the ability to recognize our friends unless we can pick up their voices, and we miss being able to walk the streets of Halls. We do not particularly miss watching television—we do listen—and the tapes and discs have replaced reading to some extent, but we are very frustrated that we cannot read newspapers. Nell does her best to keep me posted on the newspapers, but it is sometime weeks before I learn about some item which Nell did not realize would interest me. It is difficult for one person to know just what to read to another unless one goes over a newspaper item by item. No, I am not adjusted to being blind and never will be, but I do accept it. One of the bright sides is the consideration which other persons show you, and for that I am thankful.

DONALD M. LEVY, formerly of Halls, has been named an associate vice-president of A. C. Edwards & Sons, of St. Louis, Mo., whose 350 offices make it the largest U.S. investment firm with head-quarters outside New York City. He is a broker in the Memphis office. He is treasurer of Temple Israel and a board member of the Center for Southern Folklore. He and his wife, Shelley, reside in Memphis.

School Calendar Dates Adjusted

To make up school days lost by bad weather, county school classes will end May 26th, with May 29th a day of training for staff (no students to attend) and May 30th Records Day (report cards given out, schools dismissed, buses to run about 9:30 a.m.).

Graduation exercises are set at 7 p.m. May 25th on Knee Field (weather permitting) for Ripley High School and at 7 p.m. May 26th, in the Halls Junior High School gymnasium, for Halls High School.

NORTH SIDE PARK IN HALLS has been improved by completion of two projects—a pavilion and fencing. Barcroft Welding, of Ripley, had the $10,669 contract for the pavilion; Mid-South Fence Co., of Memphis, had the $10,444.21 contract for the fence.

A Report for Tennesseans

MAINTAINING OUR NATION'S INFRASTRUCTURE

This week, the first week in May, I held a hearing here in Washington to look into the problem of maintaining our nation's infrastructure. I talked to national experts, business people, and representatives of state and local government from Tennessee and around the nation. I came away more convinced than ever that we must act now to preserve our infrastructure or face serious consequences in the future.

Our cities' infrastructure is something we don't usually think about. It is our roads, water and sewer systems, bridges, landfills, and the like — parts of our communities that we use every day without second thought.

Unfortunately, the fact is that most of these structures were built many years ago, and are in great need of repair and rebuilding. The lesson we learned from the Hatcher River tragedy last month is that we must address these problems right now, and restore our facilities to a safe and usable state.

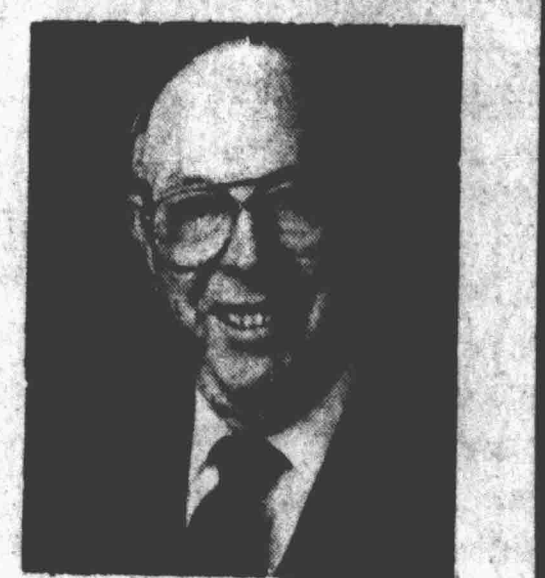

The challenges that we face as a result of infrastructure problems and deterioration are not unique to any one part of our state. For instance, there are 84,351 miles of roads and highways in Tennessee — enough to circle the world more than three times. The price that we pay for these roads, of course, is that they must continually be repaired and replaced. There are also 8,546 bridges in Tennessee, 7,380 of which have been classified as deficient in some way. And our bridges across the state worry about where they will put their solid state five years from now, or in some cases five months from now.

habilitation so we can use our resources to repair the bridges that need it most, require the Department of Transportation to review and encourage the compliance of all federal and state agencies with national bridge inspection standards; and work toward rapid completion of the national bridge inventory to provide the public with information about the safety of the bridges they travel.

There are no easy answers to our infrastructure problems, and no one level of government can tackle them alone. We must all pull together — cities, towns, states, counties, and the federal government — to provide our citizens with safe and reliable infrastructure facilities. I plan to do everything in my power to see that this goal is made a reality.

Your problem can be lightly referred to as ONLY nerve trouble. But your nerves are too important to be so easily dismissed.

Every function of your body is made possible by nerves. They transmit all sensation to and from the brain. Your sight, taste, hearing and smell are made possible by your nerves. Maintaining your balance and keeping your body temperature at 98.6 degrees is dependent upon your nerves. They control your bowels, your blood pressure, your stomach action, your blood flow, and your speech and your breathing. Nerves allow you to swallow...actually, the master system of the human body controls every function taking place in your body.

Congressman

JOHN TANNER REPORTS TO THE EIGHTH DISTRICT

The attention of the nation on the allegations brought against Speaker of the House Jim Wright will probably dictate more extensive media coverage of Congressional ethics reports due to be filed this week. These reports must be filed by May 15 of each year in compliance with the Ethics in Government Act of 1978.

The reports cover a federal official's outside income, financial holdings, and debt of the preceding year. The report I filed on Wednesday, May 10 covered my financial activities of 1988 prior to my election to the House of Representatives. As I assembled the information necessary to file my own report, it occurred to me that it may be worthwhile to look at the results of this ten year old law.

In the short time I have been in the Congress, I have found the overwhelming majority of Members of the House to be honest, dedicated, sincere, competent people. In general, they work hard on behalf of their districts and the nation. Unfortunately, the past actions of a few often obscure the contribution most Members make to the continued strength and success of our country.

Judging from events that have transpired since the enactment of the ethics law, it appears that the House has not retreated from taking appropriate disciplinary action when necessary. Some observers have suggested that the House has actually done a better job of self-discipline than either the executive branch or various professional organizations across the country.

Judging from events that have transpired since the enactment of the ethics law, it appears that the House has not retreated from taking appropriate disciplinary action when necessary. Some observers have suggested that the House has actually done a better job of self-discipline than either the executive branch or various professional organizations across the country.

Since 1978, four members of the House of Representatives have faced expulsion proceedings. Three of them resigned before they could actually be expelled. The fourth was indeed expelled. Additionally, four other Members of the House were formally censured. Of those four, two were defeated at the polls, one resigned, and one remains in office. Another dozen Members have been the recipients of less severe punishment such as formal reprimands.

Taking disciplinary action against any Member of Congress is not a pleasant task. Members are torn between their obligation to the people of this country to uphold standards that reflect traditional American values on the one hand, and the inherent reluctance all Americans share to make moral judgments about another's private life on the other.

Making judgements about legalities is definite and straightforward. Those can and should be made based upon evidence presented. Beyond that, however, judgements of one's behavior can be very subjective as questions regarding motive and expectations arise. Coloring those judgements and making them even more subjective is the need to apply moral standards to the actions of another person. That is one of the distinct differences in making judgements about criminal actions and actions that call into question one's judgement.

Aside from questions of guilt or innocence in matters such as these is the damage that ethical misconduct has on the faith the people have in the very institutions they depend upon for civil order and self-government. Maintaining public confidence in those institutions is critical to the continued success of an open, democratic society.

It was the recognition of the institution's responsibility to the public that led the Congress to develop standards of ethical conduct. Without question, public officials must maintain standards of behavior that are above reproach. However, those standards must not be judged on a partisan, political basis, but on standards that reflect the values of our great nation.

Viewed in that light, we should also remember that the final verdict on an individual office holder's ethical conduct is rendered by the people who put their trust, through their vote, in that official. Throughout our history, it has been the power of the people that has dictated the fate of those whose personal behavior in public office strays from the values on which our great country was established. It should always remain so.

The world's smallest flower is the duckweed, no larger than a tack-head.

Students Of The Month

school in Memphis; so does her husband, Paul L. Archibald. Others are Sunday School teachers in the communities in which they live.

These former members of Archer's Chapel are Christians and fine citizens. They speak well of our community through their lives and work.

Since 1976 to the present, Archer's Chapel and Maury's Chapel's records show that we have supported two student pastors. Our prayer and hope is that in some way have helped these fine student pastors to greater ministries in a needy world.

OTHER ITEMS OF INTEREST

In the year 1976, the Memphis Annual Conference, during its convention in Murray, Ky., saw fit to take Lebanon Church from the Archer's Chapel, Lebanon, and Maury's Chapel Circuit, leaving only Archer's Chapel and Maury's Chapel together.

In the beginning, Archer's Chapel had struggled along, with few members and receiving financial help from sister churches, but as the population increased in Frog Jump, so did the membership of the church.

Archer's Chapel has had only four Sunday School superintendents during its existence, namely, J. E. "Jim" Archer, N. L. (Lee) Archer, Mrs. Mattie Adcox, and Russell Garrett.

Lee Archer taught public school for Crockett County in Archer's Chapel Church for a short time in 1929. Harris Keen remembers the time as being about four months, while Gilliland's Schoolhouse was being built.

Frog Jump has two retired former pastors and their families living among us. When they retired from their Gospel ministries, they built homes here and are now our neighbors, sharing with us the riches of the creation of their experience from other churches and communities where they have served.

During these, the first days of October, 1978, the brick masons are putting the finishing touches on the bricking-up of the Archer's Chapel and Maury's Chapel parsonage.

Should one try to name all who have contributed much to the on-going and success that Archer's Chapel has had along the way, time and space would not permit, but there was one little woman who beat us all in her dedication of attendance.

Mrs. Rose (Little) Reese was the wife of the late Green Reese and daughter of the late Buck and Thursday (Palmore) Little, who were charter members of Archer's Chapel Church.

The minister's salary for Archer's Chapel in 1978 is $7,815. The budget for next year, 1979, has been increased $500.

When Lebanon was moved from the Archer's, Lebanon, and Maury's Chapel Circuit, Archer's and Maury's Chapel Churches paid back to Lebanon the money they had invested in the parsonage here in Frog Jump.

Archer's Chapel has had its problems, its failures. We hold no claim to perfection. The enemy has spurred blasts of his cold breath of indifference upon our venture from time to time.

Two World Wars have marched away with some of our brightest, most promising young men. They didn't return. This tore at our heart-strings, almost breaking them to pieces.

Let us say with a fellow Christian and brother, The Rev. Bob Ghast, of the State of Maine, "It will take more than a little breeze to blow this ship of course!"

After all, Archer's Chapel is a good church. Come to Archer's Chapel. We will do our best to share God's Love with you. God loves you! We do, too!
