Scrumptious Summer Fruit Tart

Something even better than money grows on trees—health, fitness and taste—tempting delights in the form of fruit.

Luscious California summer fruits—peaches, plums, nectarines and Bartlett pears—work so well in so many easy-to-prepare, time-saving recipes. These terrific fruits—low in calories and high in nutrition—are in season through October. They ripen easily. Just place fruit inside a paper bag and close the bag loosely. Leave at room temperature and check daily. Most fruit is ripe when it gives to gentle palm pressure and has increased fragrance. Bartlett pears are ripe when they turn from green to sunshine yellow. Enjoy your fruit right away or store it in the refrigerator. Better yet, use these mouth-watering fruits in a scrumptious summer recipe:

- SUMMER FRUIT TART
- 3/4 cup low-fat milk
 - 1/4 cup sugar
 - 2 tablespoons cornstarch
 - 1 egg yolk
 - 2 tablespoons lemon juice
 - 1/2 teaspoon lemon zest
 - 1 cup plain low-fat yogurt
 - 1 baked 9-inch tart shell, cooled
 - 2 each fresh, ripe California peaches, plums, nectarines and Bartlett pears
 - Peach or apricot preserves, sieved (optional)
- Combine milk, sugar, cornstarch, egg yolk, lemon juice and lemon zest in saucepan. Cook, stirring, over medium heat until mixture comes to boil and is thickened. Boil gently, stirring constantly, 1 minute. Cool to lukewarm, then whisk in yogurt until smooth. Pour into prepared tart shell. Halve and pit or core fruit. Place halves, cut-side down; thinly slice, leaving all slices connected at one end, like a fan. Fan out fruit on top of filling. Glaze with sieved jam. Chill until ready to serve. 6 servings.

THEN NOW!

Amazing progress has been made against Parkinson's disease over the last two centuries.

Then: Parkinson's disease, once called shaking palsy, is a disorder of the nervous system that interferes with the smooth passage of messages between the nerves and muscles. The disorder is named for James Parkinson, an English physician, who first described it completely in 1817.

Now: Today, we know the symptoms of Parkinson's probably result from a loss of chemicals in the brain that help transmit nervous energy. There are new medications, and physical therapies are also being used to treat the condition. Parkinson scientists and support group leaders from all over the world are gathering for the first time this summer, in Rome, to discuss new approaches. For free brochures that can tell you more, write: Parkinson's Disease Foundation at Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center, 650 West 168th St., New York, NY 10032 or call 1-800-457-6676. In New York, call (212) 923-4700.

The name Tennessee comes from Tanasie, the name of a Cherokee village in the region.

QUICK QUIZ

Test Your Wilderness I.Q.

Preservationists and the forest industry are at loggerheads over designating undeveloped primitive lands as wilderness and managing those lands for commodity or non-commodity uses. Here's a chance to test your knowledge of an important environmental issue.

1. The U.S. has about a 128 b. 57,000 c. 92 million acres of wilderness lands protected in the National Wilderness Preservation System?
2. Most of the land designated for wilderness is in a. Alaska b. Colorado c. Washington state?
3. Land that has been designated a wilderness area cannot have roads constructed through it. a. True b. False?
4. The demand for wilderness recreation is expected to increase in the years ahead. a. True b. False?
5. Logging cannot take place on National Parks land. a. True b. False?
6. Logging can take place in low-elevation wilderness lands. a. True b. False?

ANSWERS

1. c. 2. a. 3. Some 56.5 million acres are in Alaska; the remainder is in the mainland. 4. That land is accessible to hikers only—no campers or cars. That means no access to many Americans who want recreational experience in forested areas, but who want or need to use cars. 5. As the baby boom population ages, fewer people will be willing or able to abandon their cars to hike into remote wild areas—and the demand for wilderness recreation will fall, say experts. 6. According to the American Forest Resource Alliance, logging also cannot take place on land set aside by state or local government as parks. The industry is concerned about preservationists' demands for even more wilderness areas. That could result in shortages of the timber we need for homes, wood and paper products. 6. b. Logging cannot take place anywhere in a wilderness. On federal lands, logging is allowed only in some portions of the national forests.

Aspirin was invented by Felix Hoffmann as a way to relieve his father's pain. A basic constituent of the analgesic comes from the spirea plant, which lead to the trade name aspirin.

Ed Neal McDaniel Seeks Judge Blackwood's Post

A McNairy County man says his experience as a prosecuting attorney would give him the experience to be a good judge.

Ed Neal McDaniel has formally announced his candidacy for the position of 25th District Circuit Court Judge - Part I, serving McNairy, Hardeman, Fayette, Tipton and Lauderdale counties.

McDaniel will go against incumbent Jon Kerry Blackwood for the Part I position.

"My varied experiences have given me the understanding of two very important things," said McDaniel, a 40-year-old lifelong McNairy County resident. "I'm familiar with the justice system and people's problems."

The judicial candidate resigned June 1 as assistant district attorney for the 25th District to turn his attention to his first political race.

He has been a prosecuting attorney since January, 1985 and prior to that, he had a private attorney practice in Adamsville for two years.

"Many judges are appointed. They should be elected," said the candidate, a product of Stantonville Elementary School and 1968 Adamsville High School graduate. "I will roll up my sleeves for the next eight weeks and meet the people of the district. The people should decide who their judge should be."

"It'll be a tough job," he said. "It's 300 miles roundtrip from Halls to Adamsville, one end of the district to the other."

McDaniel said the 25th District is familiar territory, where he has traveled for the past four years with the district attorney's office. "I've worked with people in every county in the district. People in all five counties have approached me to seek this position."

"I will faithfully and impartially perform the duties of Circuit Court Judge for the betterment and improvement of the justice system," said McDaniel, a 1979 graduate of Memphis State University's Law School. "I will see that justice is administered fairly, equitably and consistently."

The son of Edward McDaniel, the candidate is married to Kay McDaniel, an employee of IMI in Adamsville. They have a son, eight-year-old Jeremy, and they reside in the Mt. Vinson community near Adamsville.

McDaniel is active in many community activities, including Adamsville First Baptist Church, youth baseball and soccer coach and McNairy County Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors, where he serves as vice-president and chairman of the Community Livability Committee.

The candidate is a 1973 graduate of the University of Tennessee, where he obtained a B.A. in Political Science. He earned a Masters of Education from Memphis State in 1977.

"Second to church, the courtroom should be a sacred place. It's where life and death decisions are made," said McDaniel.

"We've gotten to the point in our society that the public doesn't think the justice system functions like it should," he said. "It does work, but some things could be improved."

"I understand people's problems," added the candidate. "I will bring some common sense into the justice system."

A lifelong resident of Lauderdale County, she is the daughter of Sheriff's Deputy and Mrs. Wesley Napper, Sr., of Ripley. She lives on College St. in Ripley with her 9 year-old daughter, LaTasha, and works at MagneTek, where she has been employed for nearly 15 years.

Taylor describes herself as a 'people person' active in several community organizations, including Concerned Citizens of Lauderdale County, Rice Park Improvement Committee, and the local concerned parents groups, which she chairs.

"I've lived in this county all my life, and I would like to play a part in helping improve the educational system here," Taylor says. "One of my principal concerns is drugs in our schools and on our school grounds. Drug and alcohol abuse among our youth is a huge problem that must be addressed immediately if we are to check its growth. But I feel we can accomplish this goal if we work together."

Taylor attends the Holiness Temple Church in Brownsville, of which she is a member.

Her name will appear on the ballot in the Aug. 2nd general election in this county.

A member of Salem Baptist Church, she also serves as treasurer for her church.

She is active in community activities, such as summer softball and Scouting.

She is the wife of Pat A. Mills and has three children; G. H., 16; Carole, 13; and Benton, 10.

"Your vote and support will be greatly appreciated," she says.

Commission Seat Asked By Gaines

Maurice Gaines, Jr., announces his candidacy for County Commissioner for the 6th District.

"Your vote and influence will be appreciated," he says.

Harris Fellowship

Ed Neal McDaniel

PAUL HARRIS FELLOWSHIP for the late Robert E. Craddock, Halls merchant, was presented Monday, at the Halls-Gates Rotary Club's meeting in Darrell's Restaurant in Gates, to his widow, Dorothy, and Bob, Jr., by C. Fred Faulk, right, of Ripley, past governor of Rotary District 676. Bob was a charter member of the Halls-Gates Club, in 1979. Rotary's Harris Fellowship notes $1,000 contributed to Rotary International's humanitarian work. The Halls-Gates Club is credited with ten others, for Roger and Theresa Charest, Jerry Criffield, David Nunn, Mildred and Warren Nunn, Bobby Webb, and (as memorials) Malcolm Alley, Robert Harris, and Louis Levy.

On Ballot

MARY MCKEE, of the Central community, is announcing her candidacy for the Lauderdale County Board of Education seat for District 6. Her name will be on the ballot in the Aug. 2nd general election.

Mary, married to Gary McKee, is a 1960 graduate of Ripley High School. She has been living in the Central community for the past 18 years.

Mary and Gary have one daughter, Kelli Renee, a student at Ripley Elementary School.

"I would like for the people in District 6 to give me the opportunity to represent our district as a member of the Lauderdale County Board of Education," she says.

"I'm very concerned as a parent to the needs that we have in our schools. We have got to try to up-grade our school system in all levels of education."

"Our children that are in the elementary schools now will graduate in the 21st century. What will our world of technology be like then? We already have computers running our country. We can push a few buttons and in seconds, we know what's happening around the world."

"Our doctors and hospitals use modern technology to receive vital information in seconds. Our telephone companies, automotive industries, banks, postal services, and airlines are using modern technology. The business world is going to modern technology."

This is why our children should have the best possible educational system that we can afford to give them. So they can learn first hand about the changes that are coming into our lives everyday. The biggest step that our children will ever take is the day they graduate and step out into the world of tomorrow."

"Will we as parents have our children prepared for this, by having the greatest educational system that we can afford or are we going to sit back and later see where we failed them?"

"The decisions made in school board meetings have a definite impact upon our educational system. Parents and board members working together and sharing ideas will keep our educational system going forward. We want to support parental involvement."

"Our schools are already grossly overloaded, averaging 24-25 per classroom. If for one would like to see the number of students per class lowered to 18. Our teachers would have more time to spend with each child thus resulting in possibly raising the grades per student. This would relieve some of the stress that our teachers face each day."

"Whether you agree or not our teachers deserve every cent and more than they are paid. Would you as a parent spend day after day in a classroom with 24-25 students? I have visited my child's classroom and I for one could not do it!"

"I say thanks to all of the teachers we have and for the love and dedication they share with our children. They are a special group of people."

I would appreciate your vote and support in this election. I will support you and your children in the board meetings. Keeping in mind that we are going to have the best school system anywhere in the country."

NEWS OF EDUCATION

Geography

Teachers and parents across America are delighted to find that with the help of a fascinating magazine, our youngsters can enjoy learning about geography.

This CIA-produced map of Moscow was highlighted in a recent issue of a unique geography magazine.

American children, studies show, are falling behind the rest of the world in their understanding of geography. Happily, many students have improved their knowledge of this important subject by reading a magazine called Focus. It's the only magazine published in the United States that is written solely by geographers in language easily understandable for the general public. Focus can be enjoyed by students, teachers and parents because of its newsweekly style. Published by The American Geographical Society, each issue of Focus focuses on the many facets of geography, its effects on history, politics, economics, and current events.

Recent issues included such articles as "Urban Resorts: A Bi-Coastal Look," "Lebanon: A Possible Future," "Cleaning Up Mount Everest," "Politics in a National Forest," and "Teaching Geography with Popular Movies." Focus articles are colorfully illustrated with photos and maps.

Many schools and school libraries are subscribing to this unique magazine, which also makes an attractive gift. A year's subscription—four issues for $15—may be obtained by writing to The American Geographical Society, 156 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10010-7002. Or call (212) 242-0214.

Halls-Based Group Buys Failed Thrift

Security Bank of Newbern, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Security Bancorp of Tenn., based at the Bank of Halls, has bought Century Federal Savings Bank, with offices in Alamo, Dyersburg, and Trenton, from the Federal Resolution Trust Corp., which is liquidating failed savings and loan institutions.

Purchase price was $226,953, for an institution with deposits of about $62,200,000.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. has controlled Century since March, 1989. FRTC had only three other bidders, of 651 invited. It estimates it will lose $20,800,000 on the sale.

Gould Nominated As Regional Star

Lynn Gould, Lauderdale County sheriff's department investigator, has been nominated for the Investigator Award of the Association of Professional Police Investigators.

The group's bulletin describes his nomination thus:

"Gould has performed his duties with the highest degree of integrity and dedication in the wake of both personal and professional tragedy.

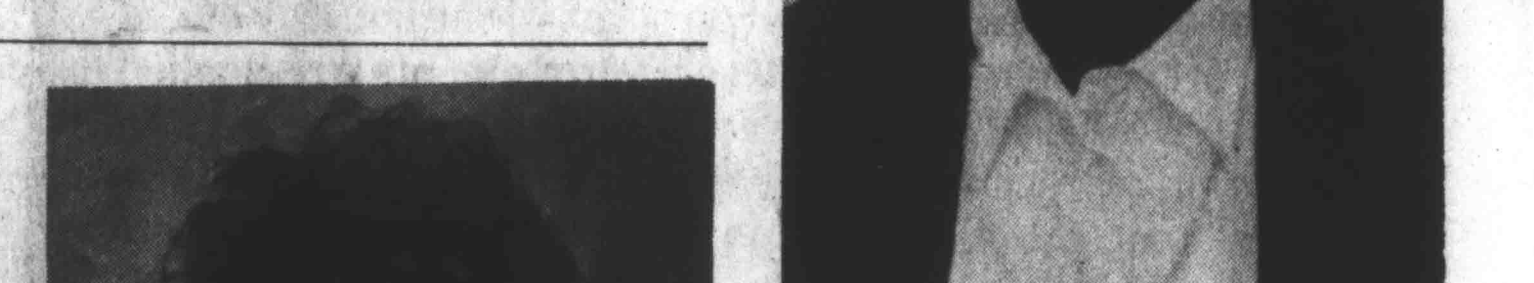

"His unrelenting courage and dedication has served as an example for his fellow officers as well as for the citizens of his community.

"In addition to performing his duties to a consistently high level of standards, Investigator Gould has dedicated himself to helping fellow officers in distress and has been instrumental in setting up a support group for police officers in his area.

"Detective Gould's unflinching professionalism is a tribute to all who wear the badge."

3 Counties Are Star Young Men

Lauderdale Countians included in the newest edition of Outstanding Young Men of America are John David Box, of Route 6, and Joe Ellis Stephens of Route 5, Ripley, and Michael D. Craig, of 118 Cedar Forrest Trail, Asheville, N.C.

BRANDY REED, owner and director of ABC Day Care and Pre-School in Ripley, pastor of God's House, a faith healing ministry on Washington, in Ripley, and an affiliate broker with Jennings Realty and Auction, is a candidate for General Sessions Judge in Aug. 2nd voting.

She took a bachelor of arts degree in social sciences from Chapman college in Orange, Calif., before taking her Juris doctor degree from the American College of Law, where she made the dean's list and earned the American Jurisprudence Award for excellence in the study of wills. She has earned 30 credits toward a master's degree in marriage, family, and child counseling.

She is a former member of the Black Women Lawyers Assn. in Los Angeles, Calif., and has been a member of the National Bar Assn.

After four years in the Air Force, during which she earned awards and commendations, she is serving in an Intelligence unit of the Tenn. Air National Guard.

"The only consideration any citizen should expect from any judge is fairness," she says. "I will serve all people in a fair and equitable manner."

"I am aware of over-crowding in our jails. Sentencing has its merits, but other forms of corrective measures can be employed in many instances. I advocate citizens attempting to reconcile their differences to avoid appearing in court. I understand that sometimes a mediator is necessary; that is the purpose of having a general Sessions Judge.

"I ask that you evaluate my credentials, believe in my sincerity, trust my leadership, and elect me as your next General Sessions Judge."

Notice Of Explanation

The Town of Halls intends to undertake improvements to Simmons Creek (North Creek) from Tigrett Street to the creek's discharge point in the south fork of the Forked Deer River. These improvements are needed to improve flooding in the area immediately adjacent to Simmons Creek (North Creek) with the Town of Halls. There is no practical alternative to the proposed project.

The proposed improvements to the existing drainage ditch are intended to increase the capacity of the creek. The proposed action will improve the flood plain values in the immediate vicinity of the creek.

Failure to provide these improvements would result in the continued flooding of the properties adjacent to the creek.

The other agency involved in this project is the State of Tennessee with funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

FACTS & FIGURES

When can we say goodbye to smog on the highways? Maybe soon, say energy experts, thanks to new natural gas vehicles that don't emit black soot and other pollutants. Natural gas—considered our safest alternative fuel—is the only fossil fuel that burns cleanly enough that we routinely use it in our kitchens. Yet this same fuel can be used to power the massive bus behemoths that move millions of commuters through our cities daily.

Currently, 30,000 cars, trucks and buses run on natural gas in the United States. Worldwide, a half million vehicles in 38 countries are fueled by natural gas. Natural gas-fueled vehicles achieve up to a 90 percent reduction in carbon monoxide emissions, up to a 20 percent reduction in nitrogen oxide emissions, and an 85 percent reduction in reactive hydrocarbons in comparison with those of gasoline and diesel vehicles.

Five percent of the total natural gas-powered fleet in the U.S.—some 1,500 vehicles—is operated by Consolidated Natural Gas Company, Pittsburgh. The company recently introduced a mass transit bus powered by clean-burning natural gas. The bus, manufactured by the Flexible Corporation of Delaware, Ohio—the largest manufacturer of transit buses in the U.S.—will be tested in 1990 in regular commuter service in Cleveland, Ohio and Altoona, Pennsylvania.

The conversion of eight million fleet vehicles—five percent of the nation's total transportation fuel market—to natural gas would require about a million cubic feet of gas. This would result in saving 500,000 barrels of oil imports a day, translating into a reduction of about $4 billion annually in foreign energy payments.

Around the country, natural gas is selling for the equivalent of about 40 to 80 cents a gallon, compared with gasoline prices of 95 cents to $1.15 per gallon. A natural gas car can be refueled in five minutes. A natural gas vehicle's top speed is the same as that of a gasoline-powered vehicle.

REPORTS TO THE
EIGHTH DISTRICT

EARTHQUAKE PREPAREDNESS INSUFFICIENT IN EIGHTH DISTRICT

In the future, earthquakes may not cause as many personal and property losses in our region as they may once have. Congress will be considering legislation which addresses several aspects of our national earthquake preparedness.

Here in the Eighth District we have first-hand knowledge of an earthquake's potential power. Reelfoot Lake was formed when the last major earthquake along the New Madrid Fault caused the Mississippi River to flow backwards and fill its basin.

The possibility of another major earthquake striking along the New Madrid Fault by the year 2030 is alarmingly high - as high as 90% according to some experts. Under current circumstances, destruction in our area could be devastating. A 1985 federal study found that a magnitude 7.6 quake on the New Madrid Fault during a weekday could potentially destroy 3000 structures, cause 225 governments and homeowners. This would sharply reduce the price of insurance, and increase its availability.

The October 1988 earthquake in San Francisco highlighted the need to take precautionary measures along the New Madrid Fault in the central United States. By preparing for an earthquake in our area, which experts say is long overdue, we can suffer as little damage as possible and be able to recover quickly.

Insurance for homeowners necessary

I have also cosponsored a bill which seeks to make earthquake insurance more available to homeowners throughout the Eighth District of Tennessee and the rest of the nation. Currently, few homeowners can purchase earthquake insurance because it is expensive and has very high deductibles. My bill would create a national framework for the sale of earthquake insurance, and would call for damage reduction measures to be taken by both governments and homeowners. This would sharply reduce the price of insurance, and increase its availability.

FOOD DELIGHTS from Spain

Olive Oil Health

You can look high and low for the most tasty and healthful foods, and in both places find olive oil, nutrition experts agree.

Olive oil is low in saturated fat, and high in vitamins A, E, D and K. That's one reason many doctors and nutritionists believe it can be an important element in maintaining good health. Olive oil, like all other vegetable oils, has no cholesterol. Its unsaturated fatty acids even lower the concentration of cholesterol in the blood!

Medical studies show that a diet low in saturated fats help reduce the risk of arteriosclerosis and heart disease. Mediterranean countries enjoy a heavy consumption of olive oil and their populations rank among those least prone to cardiovascular disease. Olive oils can also aid in digestion, boost growth and the healthy development of the brain and nervous system.

Many health-conscious people especially prefer olive oil from Spain. Spain grows 60 varieties of olives and produces a huge range of olive oils, each prized for its regional characteristics. Following centuries of tradition, master stesters judge the grading and blending of the annual olive oil harvest.

What's more, Spain actually guarantees its olive oil standards. Strict control procedures for all exported products are supervised by a government inspection agency. Short distances between growing field and state-of-the-art packing facilities minimize spoilage and ensure the optimum condition of Spanish olive oil once it reaches the consumer's table.

The following recipe is from Penelope Casas, a leading authority on Spanish cuisine and author of Foods and Wines of Spain.

Sherry Wine Vinegar Gazpacho

1 pound (about 2 cups) canned Spanish plum tomatoes

1 pound fresh tomatoes, skinned and seeded

4 tablespoons Spanish sherry wine vinegar

4 tablespoons Spanish olive oil

1 green pepper, seeded

1 small onion, cut in pieces

1 small cucumber (about 1/2 pound), peeled and cut in pieces

1 garlic clove, chopped

1 cup cold water

1/4 teaspoon dried tarragon

1 1/2 teaspoons sugar

Salt to taste

Place all ingredients in the bowl of a food processor (do this in two stages if necessary) and blend to a chunky or smoother consistency. If you prefer the gazpacho without pieces, strain. Taste for salt and vinegar and refrigerate several hours or overnight.

Serve well-chilled with, if you wish, croutons and/or diced cucumber, green pepper, tomato and onion. Serves 4-6.

Cancer: What You Should Know

Fortunately, by learning the symptoms of cancer and recognizing them early enough, you may dramatically increase your chances for a complete recovery. That's important, say experts, because cancer is one of the leading causes of death in the United States. Here are seven early warning signs to watch for:

1. Change in bowel or bladder habits.

2. A sore that does not heal.

3. Unusual bleeding or discharge.

4. Thickening or lump in breast or elsewhere.

5. Indigestion or difficulty swallowing.

6. Obvious change in wart or mole.

7. Nagging cough or hoarseness.

A person who has any of these symptoms longer than two weeks should consult a physician promptly.

Many people are glad to know that research being conducted by our nation's young scientists is bringing us closer to finding a cure for cancer. One of these scientists is Keith C. Cheng, M.D., Ph.D. With money provided by the Damon Runyon-Walter Winchell Cancer Research Fund, he is studying metastasis, the spreading of tumor cells throughout the body.

The Fund supporting Dr. Cheng's work was founded on the radio in 1946 by Walter Winchell in honor of his friend, author Damon Runyon, who died of cancer. Since then, it has given over $70 million to

Quick Solution For Teen Company

When teenagers come home with friends, they always seem to be hungry for food to satisfy their growing bodies and appetites.

"Convenient one-dish meals offer quick solutions to feeding active teenagers," says Donna Higgins, director of Del Monte Kitchens. "Dishes that offer nutritional balance and use convenience products present a real bonus to working mothers," she adds.

"Quick Tomato Beef fits the description and uses ingredients normally kept on hand—ground beef (in the freezer), onion, green pepper, canned stewed tomatoes, canned potatoes and cheese—all ingredients that kids like," says Higgins. Original style stewed tomatoes are pre-seasoned with herbs and spices adding zesty flavor to this 20-minute dish. There's only one skillet and a few dishes for the kids to wash before they're on-the-go again.

Quick Tomato Beef

1 lb. lean ground beef

1 can (14-1/2 oz.) DEL MONTE Original Style Stewed Tomatoes

1 medium onion, cut in chunks

1/2 green pepper, cut in strips

1/8 tsp. cayenne pepper

GREEN BEAN BAKE TURNS 35 SWEET AND SIMPLE

This year marks the 35th anniversary of one of the most popular recipes of all-time—Campbell's Classic Green Bean Bake.

Created in the Campbell Kitchens in 1955, Green Bean Bake is widely known for its great taste and simplicity; a combination of green beans, Campbell's cream of mushroom soup and French fried onion rings. Of all the recipes ever clipped from newspapers, magazines and labels, few have been made more often than the classic Green Bean Bake. It can even be prepared in the microwave oven!

For a free recipe booklet with more classic recipes from the Campbell Kitchens such as Glorified Chicken and Tuna Noodle Casserole, send a self-addressed, stamped, business size envelope to: Campbell's Classics, P.O. Box 964, Bensalem, PA 19020.

Green Bean Bake

- 1 can (10 3/4 ounces) Campbell's condensed cream of mushroom soup
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon soy sauce
- Dash pepper
- 4 cups cooked green beans
- 1 can (2.8 ounces) French fried onions

1. In 1 1/2-quart casserole, combine soup, milk, soy sauce and pepper. Stir in green beans and 1/2 of the onions.

2. Bake at 350°F. for 25 minutes or until hot; stir. Top with remaining onions. Bake 5 minutes more. Makes about 4 1/2 cups or 6 servings.

Microwave:
In 1 1/2-quart microwave-safe casserole, stir soup until smooth. Add milk, soy sauce and pepper; stir until well blended. Stir in beans and 1/2 of the onions. Cover with lid; microwave on HIGH 7 minutes or until hot and bubbling, stirring once during cooking. Sprinkle with remaining onions. Microwave, uncovered, on HIGH 1 minute.

TIP: Buy 1 package (16 to 20 ounces) frozen green beans, 2 packages (9 to 10 ounces each) frozen green beans, 2 cans (about 16 ounces each) cut green beans or about 1 1/2 pounds fresh green beans for this recipe.

One Step Jellyroll

Do you remember grandmother's jellyroll? It always tasted so good, but seemed like so much work to make. Not anymore. Here's a wonderful chocolate version that has the filling baked right into it. So all you have to do after taking it from the oven is roll it up.

Filled with a mixture of chocolate chips, chopped toasted almonds and coconut, it's rich but not heavy. To serve, just top with a puff of whipped cream.

Easy Chocolate Almond Roll

- 1/4 cup butter, melted
- 1 cup chopped, whole natural almonds, toasted*
- 1 cup flaked coconut
- 1 cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces
- 23 cup sweetened condensed milk
- 4 eggs
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 3 Tablespoons cold coffee
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1/4 teaspoon baking soda
- Powdered sugar
- Sweetened whipped cream

Line a 10x15x1-inch jellyroll pan with foil. Spread melted butter evenly in pan. Combine almonds, coconut and 1/2 cup chocolate pieces; sprinkle over butter. Drizzle with sweetened condensed milk; set aside. Melt remaining 1/2 cup chocolate pieces over warm, not hot, water. Remove from heat. In large bowl beat eggs with sugar until thick and light, about 10 minutes. Add flour, baking powder and salt; blend well. Stir coffee, vanilla and baking soda into melted chocolate; mix well. Fold into flour mixture. Spread evenly into prepared pan. Bake at 375°F, 20 minutes. Sift powdered sugar over cake and cover with cloth towel. Turn out and roll up jellyroll fashion starting from short side. Chill until filling is set, at least 1 hour. Serve with whipped cream.

Makes 1 (10-inch) roll.
*To toast almonds: spread whole almonds in a single layer in shallow pan. Place in cold oven; toast at 350°F, 12-15 minutes, stirring occasionally, until lightly toasted. Cool and chop.

CHECK FACTS AND FIGURES

That's a whole lot of bills to pay: Statistics show 53 billion checks were written in the U.S. in 1988, the most recent year for which figures are available.

To save money, many Americans find, you don't have to go to the bank—at least not when it comes to ordering checks. You can save up to 100 percent of the cost of ordering checks from the bank by buying direct from a leading full service printer instead, such as Checks In The Mail. That company, with nearly 70 years experience serving banking institutions in the U.S., markets personalized and business checks in a variety of graphic backgrounds. All checks meet American Bankers Association specifications, and are good at any bank. Nine different three-on-a-page business checks in a variety of styles and formats can be ordered in quantities of 250, 500 or in multiples of 500. One-part deposit slips can also be ordered. A full satisfaction, money-back guarantee is in effect on all orders.

Regular blood pressure checks can save you from "the silent killer."

County's Public Cannery Opens

By Jerry Parker
Lauderdale County Public Cannery opened at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, 1:30 to 6 p.m. Wednesdays, 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Thursdays, and 7 a.m. to noon Saturdays. The facility will be closed July 4th.

If it is seen that these hours do not meet the public's need, they may be altered.

The facility is funded by the county. All persons who use it are urged to treat the property with respect and keep it clean. Small fees will be charged for some processing, because of the wear and tear on expensive equipment.

Suggestions or criticism may be directed to Jerry Parker, County Extension Leader, 635-9551.

Blossom End Rot Seen

Numerous individuals have found blossom end rot in tomatoes, caused by over-use of nitrogen fertilizers, improper soil pH, and variations in environment and weather.

Excessive potassium or magnesium applications and a low ratio of calcium to other fertilizer salts in soils also contribute to blossom end rot.

Rot also increases when insufficient moisture is present to move calcium into the plant. This condition happened recently, when, after excessive rainfall, it was dry for about 10 days, and the first fruits on the plants came up with this malady.

Foliar materials, called blossom end rot stop, claim to cure this deficiency by entering the plant through the foliage. Old-timers use Epsom salts.

A proper soil pH would not only cure the problem but would, more than likely, not let it happen.

Tomatoes that are put on the plant from this point on will probably not be affected, unless environmental conditions remain as they have been.

Lawn, Garden Show

Everyone is encouraged to attend a Lawn and Garden Show at the West Tenn. Experiment Station in Jackson, July 12th, from 2 to 9 p.m.

There will be tours, displays and demonstrations concerning all aspects of ornamental horticulture, turf grasses, flowers, herbs, and gardening.

Avoid These Seven Common Gardening Goofs

Whether you're a professional grower or a weekend gardener with a growing interest, you can increase the health potential of your plants by avoiding these seven common misconceptions about indoor and outdoor plant care.

Misconception #1: You can't beat good, rich garden topsoil for producing healthy plants.
 "When a person enters a garden center, he seldom realizes that there is usually no natural soil in the pots growing the plants," says Dr. Fred Hulme, technical specialist, Grace Sierra Horticultural Products Company. Too heavy and dense to allow the root system proper access to water, oxygen and nutrients, natural soil is best replaced by the new "soiless" mixes now on the market.

Misconception #2: Selecting plants with the lushest, greenest foliage at the garden center will ensure their easy care and long life.

People tend to feel that a lush, healthy plant will remain that way with a minimum of care and attention, reminds Dr. Hulme. What they often don't see is the extent of the care that plant has been receiving at the greenhouse or nursery. It's important to make sure the environment at the nursery and in the home and garden match.

Misconception #3: Make sure the soil surface is always moist.
 A common practice but one that can keep plants and gardens from getting the air they need. The tale tale area is deeper within the soil. Before bringing out the watering can, put a finger about one to two inches into the soil to test the dryness. When watering, the liquid should go far beyond just the surface. The roots should be fully moistened and liquid should drain out the bottom.

Misconception #4: Plants do better with organic fertilizers.

Bushes and trees need the same type of care as other plants.

"Professional growers have long known that there is nothing inherently superior about organic materials, such as fish emulsion, bone meal and manure, when it comes to providing proper nutrition for plants," says Hulme. Today's manufacturers of water soluble fertilizers, such as Peters Professional® Plant Food, and time release plant food, such as Osmocote®, blend nitrogen, phosphorus sources and potash to provide a feed that's more efficient and better balanced than so-called "natural" products.

Misconception #5: The change of seasons makes no difference whatsoever when it comes to indoor plants.

Many amateur growers complain that, though their plants do well both indoors and out in the summer, they do poorly inside in the winter. This pattern can be called "winter shock" and is characterized by less light and humidity. The best remedies are to make full use of all the light that is available—southern exposures provide the most. In addition you might add a humidifier but be sure to carefully monitor watering.

Misconception #6: If a little fertilizer is good, a lot is better. Actually, too much fertilizer will lead to an overdose of salts, which can seriously damage that all-important root system. In order to prevent the "burning" of the plant, Hulme offers two options for the gardener who traditionally applies concentrated dosages of fertilizer at irregular intervals. The constant liquid feed method—regular diluted liquid feedings at each watering—ensures even distribution of nutrients in water soluble form, such as Peters' All Purpose 20-20-20 formulation. Consumers can also employ a time release fertilizer, like Osmocote, which makes it almost impossible to overfeed or under-feed plants.

Misconception #7: Trees and shrubs require little or no personal attention beyond periodic trimming.

Professional gardeners would never make such an assumption, knowing trees and shrubbery need the same type of care as any other plant—proper fertilization and watering. Remember, when it comes to keeping your plants lush and healthy, simple and consistent care are the watch-words.

A garbage can will stay firmly anchored if it is placed inside an old car tire.

Pointers For Parents

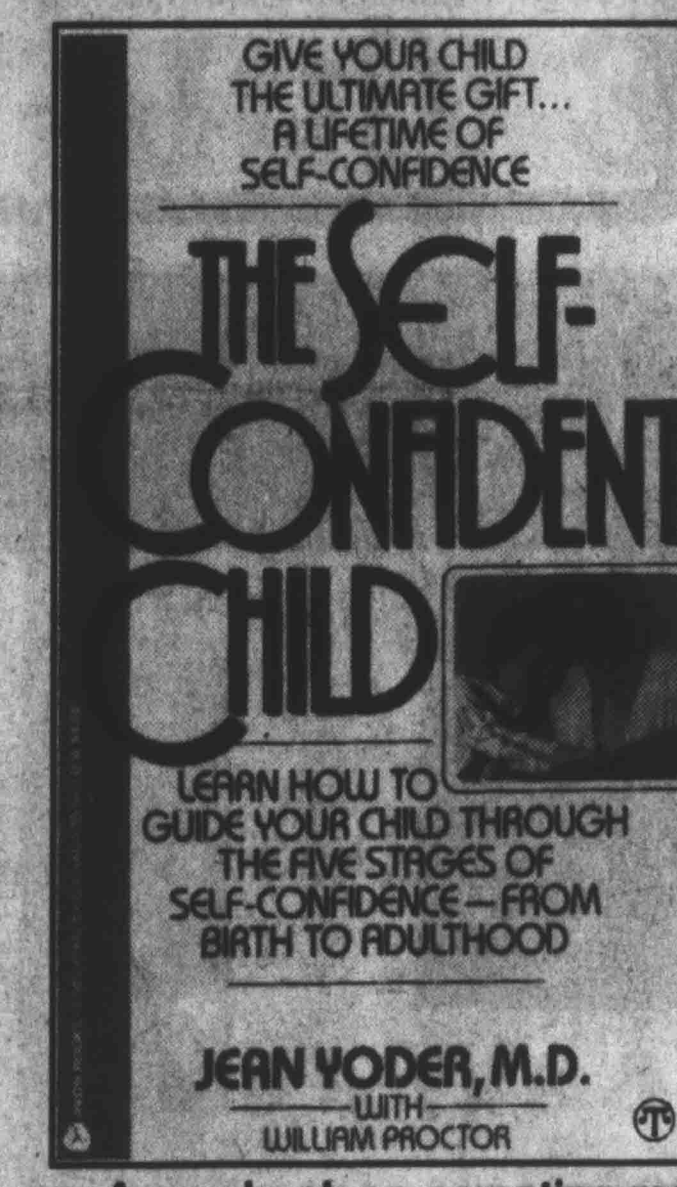

Sowing The Seeds of Success

Your child: self-confident? Experts agree that you, as a parent, possess the power to instill the essential quality of self-confidence in your son or daughter. A new book may help show you how.

According to pediatrician—and mother of two—Jean Yoder, M.D., author of The Self-Confident Child (Avon Books), when parents push for high achievement in their child, they often do irreparable damage to the child's self-image. When they concentrate on building inner confidence, however, outward abilities and achievements develop naturally.

Rejecting the high-pressure approach of raising "superbabies," Dr. Yoder shows you how to help your child gain the self-confidence that may lead to success and happiness as an adult. The book tells:

- How to foster basic trust and confidence in your newborn.
- The vital role mothering plays in nurturing a child's self-esteem.
- How you can turn your "no, no, no" toddler into a positive thinker.
- How to avoid confidence-zapping criticism.
- Tips for dealing with battling siblings.
- How to encourage healthy peer competition.
- How a pushy parent can destroy a child's self-confidence.
- How to handle teen-age rebellion.

DEMOCRACY IN ACTION

The happy news is that there seems to be ever more democracy in the world these days.

Voting may be an increasingly popular activity around the world.

One example: Austrian citizens living in the U.S. are eligible for the first time to cast their vote in parliamentary elections, in elections of the Federal President, as well as in plebiscites. A law to this effect became effective on March 15.

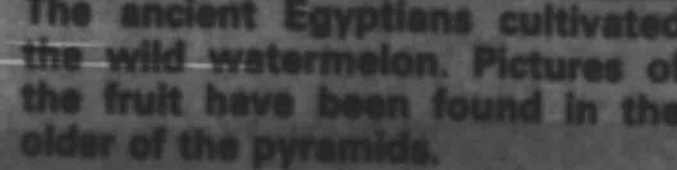

According to the Austrian Embassy in Washington, Austrian citizens age nineteen or older are eligible. They must have their names entered in the "Wahlverzeichnis" (voters' roll) in Austria. This is done through the proper Austrian representation (Embassy, Consulates General or Honorary, Consulates) depending on the person's place of residence.

Austrian representations will provide applications with forms as well as with detailed instructions on how to apply for inclusion in the "Wahlverzeichnis". They will also give guidance on the technical procedures of casting the ballot.

Some 400,000 Austrians, approximately eight percent of the electorate, currently live abroad. 20,000 to 30,000 live in the U.S. "The next parliamentary election will take place October 7th," Austria's Ambassador in the U.S., Friedrich Hoess, said. Therefore, the Ambassador urged, Austrians living abroad should apply for registration as soon as possible to ensure their participation in the forthcoming poll.

For more information contact the Austrian Embassy 2343 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington, DC 20008, (Tel. 202-483-4474) or one of the Austrian Consulates General in New York (Tel. 212-737-6400), in Chicago (312-222-1515) or in Los Angeles (Tel. 213-444-9310).

The ancient Egyptians cultivated the wild-watermelon. Pictures of the fruit have been found in the side of the pyramids.

To The Concerned Citizens of Lauderdale County:
I am Eva Jo Hensley, and I am a candidate for the office of General Sessions Judge on the August 2nd, ballot.

As many of you know, my husband, Jimmie, has been writing bonds in this county for several years. The company he wrote for was Williams Bonding Company, of Alamo, Tenn. After my husband took another job in Covington, Tenn., I started writing the bonds. When I decided to run for the office of General Sessions Judge, both my husband and myself agreed that this would be a conflict of interest. Neither my husband, myself, nor any member of our family will be writing bonds in this county. We have also made it a point to talk to each of the bonding companies here in Lauderdale County and assure them of this fact.

If there are any questions that might concern any of the people here in this county, please feel free to call me and if I am not at home, leave a message and I will gladly return your call.

I again solicit your help and your vote in the upcoming election and I appreciate all of the help I have received thus far.

Sincerely,
Eva Jo Hensley
Candidate, General Sessions Judge

America: A Fixer-Upper?

Many Americans are investing a quarter in their country. They're buying stamps to stick on letters to their legislators urging action on our infrastructure.

Infrastructure includes our roads, bridges, airports, dams, ports, public buildings, railroads, sewer and water systems and other basic physical needs of the United States. These things have not been kept up very well lately and the longer we let them deteriorate, the more it's eventually going to cost us all—in tax money and possibly even lives.

According to the experts at the National Stone Association (NSA), which supplies the crushed stone that's an important raw material for shoring up our infrastructure:

•More than 60 percent of the most heavily traveled roads are in need of rehabilitation.

•The number of potholes in our highways is estimated to exceed 56 million.

•Over 40 percent of the nation's bridges are seriously obsolete, some have even fallen down.

•In some places, delivery costs for goods and services have increased by 25 percent because key roads and bridges have been closed by deferred construction.

•Air travel has become increasingly snarled and replete with delays.

•Adequate treatment for solid waste and wastewater is lacking.

The Environmental Protection Agency reports that a total of 1,783 new wastewater treatment plants will be required over the next 10 years.

•Half the schools in America

For the sake of safety, environment and the economy, Americans need to shore up our infrastructure, especially our roads and bridges.

are nearly 50 years old.

•The federal highway trust fund, with a balance of 11 billion dollars from gasoline taxes supposed to be used for road and bridge improvements, is held hostage to the federal budget gap. To spend it as designated would make the deficit appear worse than it does now.

A deficient infrastructure can hurt our environment. The NSA says: "We must be responsible stewards of the land and acknowledge the need for a safe environment for our workers and our neighbors."

NSA says mounting the effort for infrastructure repair will be "monumental...yet it must be done if the nation is to retain its productivity and its ability to compete in the global marketplace."

For information about our infrastructure and the crushed stone industry write to the National Stone Association, Public Affairs Dept., 1415 Elliot Place, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20007-2599.

Tombstone Contest

STUART CRICHFIELD, of Halls, makes a rubbing of the tombstone of Jane Plummer, first wife of his great-great-grandfather, Henry Crichfield (date of death Feb. 1, 1851), as the Lauderdale County Historical and Genealogical society offers a $25 prize for the snapshot or rubbing of the tombstone with the earliest death date for a person buried in the county.

Jerry Crichfield, president of Lauderdale County Bank, told society members meeting May 20th in Baptist Hospital Lauderdale of Jane's husband, elected in May, 1836, to the county's first County Court as Justice of the Peace for District 7.

He said the old "squire" was born about 1778 in Hunterdon County, N. J., son of Arthur and Charity Crichfield, and grandson of William and Susannah Opldyke Crichfield (1698-1773).

Westward movement after the Revolution took the Crichfields to southwestern Pennsylvania and then to Taylor County, Va., where in 1798 Henry married Jane, daughter of Revolutionary War veteran Robert Plummer.

Henry and Jane had seven children - Charity, Robert, John, Arthur, Henry, Philip Fonder, and William.

In 1828, less than a decade after West Tennessee had been opened for settlement, Henry and Jane and their six sons moved west again - to the new county of Dyer.

A year later, he paid Thomas Knight $800 for 140 acres, and the next year, he bought from John Rutherford 86.5 acres, for $45.25.

Both tracts were in Dyer County, south of the South Fork of the Forked Deer River. Getting to the county seat was difficult for the Dyer Countians south of the Forked Deer, as well as for the Tipton Countians north of the Hatchie, especially when those rivers were in flood.

It was, therefore, a happy news when, in December, 1835, they learned that the legislature had formed a new county of the area between the rivers and named it Lauderdale.

Elections were set for the first Saturday in March, 1836. Crichfield took his seat on the court Monday in May, in the house of Samuel Lusk.

Among the business transacted that first day was the election of a chairman of the court, a coroner, and a ranger; appointment of a revenue commissioner for each district, to make a list of taxable property and polls, and commissioners to sell town lots in Ripley and to contract for the construction of public buildings; and a bounty to Harry S. Williams and William Matthews for having killed wolves!

On the second day of court, the justices appointed road overseers and the venire for the next session of circuit court.

Already 58 when elected, Henry resigned his office in 1840, with two years left in his term. Jane's tombstone was unearthed in a road-widening project on Nankipoo Road a century after her death and is now in the care of her descendant, Stuart Crichfield.

In 1852, Henry married Nancy Russell, a widowed neighbor, and made his home with her on the farm known today as Fairview Farm, just west of Halls Cemetery, until his own death in 1858. His will mentioned none of his children, so it is presumed they had already been provided for, or were dead. He made bequests to his wife, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren, and gave freedom and 25 acres on Knob Creek to his servant, Ned, whom his first wife, Jane, had inherited from her father, Robert Plummer.

Several of Henry's children - including Robert, John, and Henry, Jr. - have descendants in Lauderdale County today.

The families of Arthur, Philip Fonder, and William left the county before 1860. Jerry Crichfield has located some of them in Washington County, Ill. and Louisville, Ky.

The name has been spelled Crichfield, he says, as far back as William Crichfield, born in 1698, the earliest ancestor he has proved thus far, and many descendants still use that spelling. Branches of the family in West Virginia, Illinois, Kentucky, and Tennessee, however, vary the pronunciation from "Crich-field" and "Cry-field" to "Crutchfield" and "Critchfield".

Many of Henry's descendants have held positions of responsibility in their community and the county, some having even followed the old justice to a seat on the Lauderdale County Court.

Mrs. Gene F. Davis, president, urged further study of county founders and invited researchers to share their information with the Society.

Other members of the county's first court were Justices Robert C. Campbell, Benjamin F. Jordan, Jeremiah Penick, Milton G. Turner, John H. Maxwell, Able H. Pope, William Strain, Elijah B. Foster, Christopher G. Titworth, Henry Crawford, and Henry R. Chambers.

William Carrigan was county court clerk; Guy Smith, sheriff; William T. Moorehead, trustee; Isaac Braden, coroner; and Samuel Lusk, ranger.

Special guests at the meeting were Jerry's mother, Mrs. Mark Crichfield, and the Stuart Crichfields, all of Halls.

YOUR HEALTH Food Labeling Breakthrough

The Food and Drug Administration's recent proposal to overhaul food labeling was hailed by the United Food and Commercial Workers Union (UFCW) and consumer activists, who have been pushing for such reforms for years.

Shoppers are increasingly concerned about the link between diet and health, and rely on food labels to help them choose what products to buy.

Under the current voluntary system, however, labeling is required only for products that contain vitamin additives or make specific health claims. The result is misuse of words such as "organic," "natural," and "lite"—and confusion.

The proposed changes would require U.S. food products to include nutrition information on fat content, cholesterol, and fiber, among other data. Serving sizes listed on labels would be standardized. Terms such as "low fat" and "high fiber" would be defined and a uniform label format devised.

Labeling would be mandatory for almost all foods, including fresh produce and seafood. (Meat and poultry already are regulated by the Agriculture Department.)

Where to place the labels for some products has not been worked out yet. Suggestions include placing a sign above products such as fresh fish and produce, as already is done in some locations, or distributing booklets at stores.

Two bills similar to the FDA's plan, introduced last year by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum (D-Ohio) and Rep. Henry Waxman (D-Calif.), are pending in Congress. Either route—implementing rules through the FDA or by congressional legislation—will produce a significant improvement in nutrition information available to the consuming public. The UFCW thinks it's about time.

The Tombstone Contest ends July 5th.

Entries, with the contestant's name, address, and phone number, and directions for locating the tombstone, should be sent to Mrs. Charles Alsbrook, P. O. Box 265, Halls, 38040, in event of a tie, the entry bearing the earliest postmark will win the prize.

Also on the program May 20th, Susan Pattee (Mrs. J. S.) Scott, of Ripley, recounted the history of Sugar Hill Mansion, the first frame house in Ripley, and told of its builder, Joseph Wardlow. The house was deeded by its last private owner, to a board of trustees and is now serving the county as Sugar Hill, the Lauderdale County Library, dale County Library.

Mrs. Davis announced the election of Mrs. Billy Spence as the Society's vice-president for Halls, and the appointment of committee chairmen: Mrs. W. A. Dorris, publications; Mrs. Charles Alsbrook, awards; Mrs. Oliver Nunn, by-laws and parliamentary.

New members present included Mrs. Joyce B. Blake-more and Mrs. Rufus Smith, both of Ripley.

The Society meets next July 15th at the Interpretive Center of the Fort Pillow State Historic Area, west of Henning.

Congressman

JOHN TANNER REPORTS TO THE EIGHTH DISTRICT

AMERICA'S STRENGTH IS IN ITS FREEDOMS

Last year, when the Supreme Court ruled unconstitutional a Texas statute which protected the American flag from desecration, I was outraged. Like most Americans, I revere our flag as a banner for freedom, a symbol of liberty. I hold fast the patriotic values that have been so fervently defended by men and women in battlefields around the world.

My respect and love for our flag prompted me to quickly cosponsor legislation to amend the Constitution to prohibit the desecration of the American flag. Additionally, I supported a bill that would protect the flag statutorily without amending the Constitution. Unfortunately, the Supreme Court ruled that this law, too, was a violation of the Constitution's First Amendment. I disagree with this determination. The deplorable act which desecrates the honored flag of our nation should be punishable. The Court's ruling forced Congress to consider legislation to amend the Bill of Rights for the first time in 200 years. This is no light matter.

As the Congressman from the Eighth District of Tennessee, I have done my best to vote in the best interest of its people and the people of the nation as a whole. I have taken to heart each bill and resolution which has been presented to Congress. None have affected me the way this vote did.

I was raised to love my family and respect my country. I served on active duty in America's armed forces, and continue to serve in the Tennessee National Guard. The flag represents, to me, the freedoms on which the strength of our nation rests.

After a year of struggling with this issue, I have realized that my earlier decision to support a Constitutional amendment to overturn the ruling of the Supreme Court was wrong. Our nation's strength is in the freedoms the Bill of Rights guarantees us. It is the most perfect government policy ever written. The Bill of Rights gives us the right to free speech, the right to bear arms, the right to worship our own God, and much more. The framers of the Constitution were so wary of the government intruding into their lives that they guaranteed these freedoms in the Constitution, not to protect government but to protect people.

I do not want government to infringe upon my right to bear arms simply because a small number of people choose to use them recklessly. Nor do I want my right to worship restricted because it may not conform to another's version of truth. These freedoms, and the others guaranteed in the Bill of Rights, are the most valued in all the world.

I love and respect the flag. It should be held sacred by all Americans as a symbol of the freedoms which make our nation great—the freedoms embodied in our Constitution. For this reason I remain hopeful that we can craft a constitutionally acceptable statute that will alter the outlook of a Supreme Court that insists on misinterpreting the First Amendment.

Dr. Steel treats a young patient.

An alumnus of the Philadelphia Shriners Hospital, a member of the active medical staff and emeritus chief of staff, Steel began his career with Shriners almost 45 years ago. "There is no place more gratifying to work than Shriners Hospitals," says Steel. "It's a great place to work, because you can do what you have to do, and you get what you need. There is no other place left in the United States where you can get totally free care. You can see the expertise that every Shriners Hospital brings to the care of crippled children."

After four and a half decades of service, says Steel, "The basics haven't changed at all. Shriners is where residents learn orthopaedics—how to examine and diagnose and treat. That's why Shriners provides such a great service to orthopaedics. They don't just provide orthopaedic care—they teach orthopaedics. Everywhere you go, you see people who were educated at Shriners. Shriners Hospitals have survived because of that, and their role in teaching should never be forgotten."

Treasures Underwater: The Cultured Pearls of Tennessee

For more information, contact Tourist Development, P.O. Box 23170, Nashville, Tennessee 37202.

AMDEN, Tenn. - "Take any cultured pearl being sold today on world markets, and it's very likely that the heart of that pearl, the nucleus, came from right here."

John Latendresse - president and vice president of the Tennessee Shell Company and the American Pearl Company - stands beside a massive pile of mussel shells awaiting processing at the Camden, Tennessee facility.

Latendresse explained, "The mussel will continuously excrete a protective coating around the foreign substance to relieve the irritation. That coating, called nacre, is what creates the pearl."

All of the cultured pearls on the world market are produced from mussels that are commercially available. The Japanese only have three or four, and those do not have the composition and thickness suitable for implantation. They have to import American mussels."

The Tennessee Shell Company processed and shipped more than 60,000 tons of mussels in 1989. The raw mussels are purchased from independent fishermen and divers, a major enterprise in the region.

Most divers use a hose and helmet apparatus to dive for extended periods in murky waters where, even at shallow depths, the visibility is nearly zero. It is a profitable, albeit hazardous, occupation. According to Latendresse, there are close to 1,000 licensed divers working on the Tennessee River.

Latendresse, however, was not content with providing nuclei for Japanese pearl production. After years of research and experimental efforts, he established his own cultured pearl farms. In 1965, the American Pearl Company harvested its first crop of Tennessee produced pearls.

Selected mussels are nucleated in a Camden laboratory by technicians trained by Latendresse and his Japanese wife, Chessa. The implanted mussels are carefully transferred to a watery farm for cultivation.

One farm is located in a sheltered cove on Birdsong Creek, a few miles south of Camden. Suspended in wire nets from endless rows of floating plastic pipes, as many as 250,000 mussels are cultivated at the farm each season. Water conditions are monitored constantly, and the mussels are periodically cleaned of algae.

"The mussels are cultured near the surface, where the photosynthesis process is more active and provides a greater food supply than on the lake bed," Latendresse said. "The mussels are also stimulated by the moving currents. Pearls can be cultured in about one-fourth the time it would take nature to do it on the bottom."

A mussel can be nucleated several times to produce pearls of varying size and shape. Generally, the mussels are harvested after three years of cultivation. After processing, the pearls are marketed throughout the United States and abroad. With on-site designing and setting operations, the company also produces finished jewelry.

"It's a fascinating process to observe, especially since most people never associate pearls with Tennessee," said Bob Keast, owner of Birdsong Marina where the farm is located. "In the near future John will plan to set up an educational program, where groups can come in and learn about the entire operation."

Latendresse envisions one day establishing a major park, similar to the famous Pearl Island in Japan. Presently, exhibits at the nearby Tennessee River Folklife Center focus on some aspects of the mussel pearl operation. Located atop Pilot Knob overlooking the river, the center explores the lifestyles of those who make their living on its waters.

The centerpiece exhibit is a time-worn wooden boat belonging to Mr. C. Whitfield. Now retired, Whitfield is "a local legend among the mussel fishermen," according to Keast. An innovator in the "brailing" method of gathering mussels, Whitfield worked the waters of the Tennessee River for more than 45 years.

The center is located within Nathan Bedford Forrest State Park, six miles east of Camden on State Hwy. 191. Admission is free, and it is open daily April through September.

An Algonkian Indian village near what is now Boston got the name Mes-atu-set, meaning "large hill place," from the fact that it was located in the region of the Great Blue Hill. This later became the name of the American colony, Massachusetts.

State voters should reject money-grabbing lawmakers

ON Monday night in an astounding display of speed, greed, agility, and gall, state lawmakers slam-dunked a 43% increase in the state's pension fund.

Here is how it worked: a bill affecting the retirement benefits of former interns at state university hospitals had made its way to the Senate.

Tennessee is too needy for lawmakers so greedy

NO puny little words of William Shakespeare, "I'll be a fool" or "I'll be a madman" could describe the greed of the Tennessee legislature.

Lawmakers' pension hike should make voters sick

NEED some more reasons to be mad as hell about the 43% pension increase the legislature passed last week?

Legislators went for Cadillac model on pensions

The House of Representatives passed a bill last week that would increase the pension for legislators from $12,500 to $16,500 a year.

The Floyd Crain record on legislative pensions and pay raises:

- $ For a 1982 legislative pension raise to $3600 per year $ For a 1984 pay raise from $5000 to $12,500 $ For a 1984 legislative pension raise to $4800 per year $ For a 1986 legislative pension raise to $6000 per year $ For a 1987 pay raise from $12,500 to $16,500 $ For a 1987 legislative pension raise to $8400 per year $ For a 1988 legislative pay raise for retired legislators $ For a 1989 pension raise for retired legislators $ For a 1990 legislative pension raise from $8400 to $14,400 per year, plus $4800 yearly for military or $480,000 over the next 25 years

Pension increases and pay raises for them.

Higher taxes for us.

Let's remember that when we vote.

Can we afford this type of Leadership & Experience?
