Can You Imagine Living In A Country That Limits The Flow Of Information To Its Students? You Do

If you lived in Great Britain, your telephone line could connect your children to a computerized information service, developed and offered by the British Phone Company that would help them solve their school work problems and exchange ideas with other students in an instant. But we're not that lucky.

Here in the United States of America, the Bell Telephone Companies aren't allowed to work closely with educators to offer information services that can help students learn. Or for that matter, provide many other services that could improve the lives of Americans in ways that people in other countries take for granted. Nor are the Bell Companies allowed to design and produce equipment which could make these services easier to use.

New Economic Development Opportunities In addition to benefits for education, industry experts predict thousands of U.S. jobs would be created—including many in rural areas—by lifting restrictions imposed by the decree that broke up AT&T in 1984. Congress is presently considering legislation that, with appropriate safeguards, would relax these restrictions on the Bell Telephone Companies.

In Tennessee our modern telecommunications network gives us an opportunity to be highly competitive with other states for new businesses and jobs. Our network 1990...for the Information Age Construction Program is designed to ensure Tennesseans in all areas—urban and rural, and in all walks of life—access to the latest, most modern telecommunications services available anywhere in the world. But America is falling behind.

We need a public policy that allows the people of Lauderdale County, and throughout America, the privilege of full participation in the information age. There is something you can do to help. Legislation to lift restrictions on South Central has already been introduced in Congress. Please write and ask Representative John Tanner, and Senators Gore and Sasser to vote in favor of lifting restrictions from the Bell Telephone companies so that information services can become widely available in the U.S.

For more information our Employee Speakers' Bureau can help. Just call 901-668-1524 (toll free) to arrange for a speaker at your club or organization meeting. We are available to speak on a wide variety of telecommunications subjects. And there's no charge for the speaker.

A Report for Tennesseans

MAKING SENSE OF THE CENSUS

Just a few days ago, you received an extremely important envelope in your mailbox. It wasn't an academy award nomination, a notice that you'd won a sweepstakes, or a letter from your long-lost cousin Charlie. It was a 1990 U.S. Census form.

Although many citizens did send the form in, the unfortunate fact is that almost half of all Tennesseans failed to return it. This may not seem of great importance at first — another government form left blank — but, in fact, the few minutes it takes to fill out your census mean a great deal to Tennessee in the coming years.

The census is not just a tool for counting people. We need the data it generates to be as accurate as possible because it's used in ways that greatly affect our state.

For example, because distribution of federal money to state and local governments is based on population statistics, census numbers are the key to ensuring that Tennessee receives millions of dollars in federal funds. This funding goes toward building and repairing roads and other infrastructure, fighting crime, bettering our education and transportation systems, protecting our environment, and many other important projects. These projects and services have already been paid for by Tennesseans in their federal taxes. If all Tennesseans are not counted, our state receives less than its share of funds to pay for these programs. Instead, the money goes to some other state. The more Tennesseans who are counted, the more federal money we can receive to improve our state.

The census is also used to determine the number of Congressional representatives that each state has, and how the lines for Congressional and state legislative districts are drawn. In 1980, for example, we learned through the census that our state's population had increased enough to give us a ninth congressional district. It is imperative that we have an accurate census so that you and every other Tennessean are properly represented in government at all levels.

Finally, the census provides a wealth of information for both government and business about who we are and how we live. The federal government, for instance, uses the data to enforce fair lending practices, to allocate funds for grants, to gauge compliance with the Voting Rights act, and to determine an area's need for public housing, child care, and energy assistance.

These are just a few of the things that census data is used for. The bottom line is that it is very important both to Tennesseans individually and to us as a state that every citizen be counted. I strongly urge you to fill out and return your census form today, so that we can have the best possible Tennessee tomorrow.

Sick & Ailing

Lular Sumerlin, of Halls, was dismissed Thursday before last from Jackson-Madison County Hospital.

Thomas G. Wright, Sr. returned home Monday from Methodist Hospital in Memphis, after heart by-pass surgery.

It wasn't until 1863 that Americans started to take drugs in commercially made pills. Jacob Dunton, a Philadelphia wholesale druggist, originated the machine. His entire production from 1869 until 1876 was less than that now made daily in U.S. laboratories.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF SCOTT AMMONS

April 29, 1989, was the worst night of our lives. You were taken from us at only 18 years old, in the fiery crash. Three were pulled out of the car. Three were saved. One was your oldest brother and two friends. The brave men we must thank again are Johnny Nelson, Steven Deason, and Lee Vivian. We can never repay you for your help.

One year has passed, and oh, how we miss you and love you so much. We all wish so badly that we could see you just one more time. You brought happiness and smiles and laughter. We know we will see you again in heaven. There will be no pain or tears there. We have pictures and so many precious memories of your happy face.

Love, Mom, Norma Holloway
Dad, Thomas Ammons
Brothers, Thomas Ammons
Ricky Ammons
Michael Ammons
Sister, Michele Holloway
Step-parents and your many friends and relatives.

HALLS, TENNESSEE, MAY 10, 1990

VOLUME 92 - NUMBER 19

Halls History

By Mrs. Charles Alsbrook

Some weeks ago I started writing about the John Hargett House on West Tipton Street and the Hargett family. I visited the house today and the Buzz Young family that moved there about a week ago invited me to see the house. Buzz and wife, Marsha, have two daughters, Stacy, a freshman in Halls High School, and Jamie, a Halls 7th grader, and Casey, Halls 1st grader, and a black miniature poodle, Mickey Mouse. The Young family moved from the Knoxville area to West Tennessee about a year ago and especially like the Halls schools.

This is an old house that has been modernized but still has charm, especially inside. The rooms are spacious. Downstairs are three bedrooms, living room, dining room, kitchen, bath and enclosed back porch to make a utility room. Upstairs are two large bedrooms and bath. Mr. Young asked me when the house had been built, I told him that Garland Hargett, John's son, told me.

New M.D.

CASEY S. CRICHFIELD, son of Dr. and Mrs. L. S. Crichfield, of Bartlett, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Crichfield and the late Dr. and Mrs. John G. Olds, all of Halls, will be graduated May 5th from the Quillen College of Medicine of East Tennessee State University in Johnson City. He has accepted a residency in anesthesiology at the University of South Carolina Hospital in Charleston. He was graduated in 1981 from Harding Academy in Memphis and in 1985 from the University of Tennessee in Martin.

loved her. I remember my daughter, Lucinda, attended regularly with her little baptist friends although she attended Sunday school and church at the Methodist church.

Aliene Hargett married David Ragland, they had a dry cleaning business and men's store for many years in Halls.

Olive Hargett married Neil Ferguson. Olive was a Halls Elementary School teacher for many years. She taught, in fourth grade. She was the only teacher that my children had that not only had complete control over them at school but when they came home they did everything she told them to do in order to get those stars she gave them the next morning. Neil was manager and partner of Halls Frozen Food Lockers and one of the most accommodating men that most of us ever did business with.

Bonizaye Hargett married Norman Gwenn. Many people here remember when Charles Edward Wilson died, Zaye was engaged to him. Garland Hargett told me that Charles Edward's father Mr. Charles Wilson, loaned Zaye many money after they married to enter the advertising and radio business in Memphis. They were very successful there and later moved out west due to Zaye's health.

Ellen Hargett married Dr. Marion Cole and they live in Amarillo, Tex. Their son, Marion, Jr., or Sonny, as we knew him, spent many summers in Halls.

Rose Marie Hargett married Charles Rooks. She was Halls City Recorder for a number of years while Bill Beasley was Mayor. She was also elected Alderman. Halls has had a woman Mayor, Pat Higdon, but I believe Rose Marie was the only woman alderman serving in the town of Halls. Charles and Rosie had one son, Dr. Mickey Rooks, who lives in Houston, Tex. with his wife Dana.

Garland Hargett married Eleese Burse and they had one son, Garland Lee. Garland, Garland Lee and wife, Valerie, and little daughter, Sarah Lynn, live on their farm west of Halls.

Mildred Hargett married Billy Brown. They had one son, Dr. Joe Brown, who lives in Jackson with his wife, Dr. Jane Brown, and their daughter, a senior at Old Hickory Academy. Mildred, a widow, lives on the Brown farm near Selmer.

Later I plan to continue the Hargett saga.

Joe Tillman

Aubrey Joe Tillman, son of Aubrey and Doris Williams Tillman, of Memphis, former Ripleyan, died Tuesday of last week in his home in Kingwood, Tex.

Masonic services were held Friday in National Cemetery in Memphis.

Born and reared in Memphis, he took a bachelor of arts degree from Memphis State University. He served in the Army in Vietnam.

He leaves his wife, Sharon; a son, Aubrey Joe, Jr.; two daughters, Andrea and Tricia; a brother, Dr. Ronald Tillman, of Jackson; and two sisters, Mrs. Brenda Glissen and Mrs. Regina Glissen, of Memphis.

The penguin, a bird that can swim but can't fly, can go as fast as 25 miles per hour underwater.

Through the years I have been privileged to assist other families in writing their "Card of Thanks" when they had lost a loved one. Now, I find my usual flow of words very hard to write.

"Thank You" just does not seem to be adequate enough for the overwhelming feeling of love, support and sympathy that has been felt by our entire family.

Patti Lyn Meek Smith was a special, loving child who gave of herself to every person she met. Her tragic death has left a void that will never be filled, and a family that will never be the same because their "circle" has been broken.

To every person who helped in any way on the night of the accident, I thank you for your tender loving care. For every phone call, card, letter, gift of food, visit, memorial, and above all, your prayers that help us make it through the darkest hours of our lives, we are grateful—just remember that we still need them and for each one, we say "Thank You" from the bottom of our hearts. Your loving concern will never be forgotten.

Ule Reynolds, 82, of Gary, Ind., held without bond in the Tipton County Jail in Covington for the murders of two Lauderdale County sheriff's deputies, has been found mentally incompetent to stand trial.

Dist. Atty. Gen. Paul G. Summers, of Somerville, will recommend Reynolds' transfer to a mental institution, probably for the rest of his life.

"If he is ever found competent to stand trial, we'll start the trial process right away," Summers says. "He won't be freed."

Wright could have been sentenced to up to 16 months in prison, on his plea of guilty.

A Report for Tennesseans

MAKING SENSE OF THE CENSUS

Just a few days ago, you received an extremely important envelope in your mailbox. It wasn't an academy award nomination, a notice that you'd won a sweepstake, or a letter from your long-lost cousin Charlie. It was a 1990 U.S. Census form.

Although many citizens did send the form in, the unfortunate fact is that almost half of all Tennesseans failed to return it. This may not seem of great importance at first — another government form left blank — but, in fact, the few minutes it takes to fill out your census mean a great deal to Tennessee in the coming years.

The census is not just a tool for counting people. We need the data it generates to be as accurate as possible because it's used in ways that greatly affect our state.

For example, because distribution of federal money to state and local governments is based on population statistics, census numbers are the key to ensuring that Tennessee receives millions of dollars in federal funds. This funding goes toward building and repairing roads and other infrastructure, fighting crime, bettering our education and transportation systems, protecting our environment, and many other important projects. These projects and services have already been paid for by Tennesseans in their federal taxes. If all Tennesseans are not counted, our state receives less than its share of funds to pay for these programs. Instead, the money goes to some other state. The more Tennesseans who are counted, the more federal money we can receive to improve our state.

The census is also used to determine the number of Congressional representatives that each state has, and how the lines for Congressional and state legislative districts are drawn. In 1980, for example, we learned through the census that our state's population had increased enough to give us a ninth congressional district. It is imperative that we have an accurate census so that you and every other Tennessean are properly represented in government at all levels.

Finally, the census provides a wealth of information for both government and business about who we are and how we live. The federal government, for instance, uses the data to enforce fair lending practices, to allocate funds for grants, to gauge compliance with the Voting Rights act, and to determine an area's need for public housing, child care, and energy assistance.

OBION RIVER BRIDGE on the Lauderdale-Dyer County line, on Highway 88 about 14 miles west of Halls, collapsed (further) about 9:30 a.m. Thursday of last week, about 15 minutes after Tim Begnoche, 30, of Edgewood, Ky., began operating a 14-ton whip hammer to tear apart its deck (already sagging, and never used). Begnoche swam to the Dyer County bank from his truck, of which only the hood remained visible. A fellow worker for Crackers East Corp., of Lansing, Mich., on its first day on the project, Charles Kennedy, 36, of Alpena, Mich., received broken ribs in a 20-ft. fall into the river. State inspector Bill Chism, of near Ripley, slid about 20 feet down the deck, scraping his elbows and knees; Larry Patterson, of Dyersburg, helped him away before the deck sank. The rest of the bridge appears likely to collapse at any moment.

Callers will hear a concise, informative report on the mission and live astronaut communications with mission control. It will carry, live, important mission events such as the launch and landing, satellite deployments, space walks, press conferences, and crew wake-up calls.

The Hubble Space Telescope is an astronomical observatory in space that will fulfill a decades-old aspiration of astronomers to observe the universe with a telescope from outside Earth's atmosphere. The telescope will see planets, stars, and other objects about 10 times better than we can now with our best optical telescopes on Earth. It is named after Dr. Edwin P. Hubble (1889-1953), the astronomer who discovered that star systems (galaxies) exist outside of our own Milky Way galaxy.

TENNESSEE TRAVELER

Sergeant York: Hero from the Valley of the Three Forks

PALL MALL, Tenn. — Tucked away in the Cumberland Mountains of Fentress County, Tennessee lies the Valley of the Three Forks of the Wolf River. A patchwork of farmland and forest sheltered by towering ridges, the valley has produced a fair living for generations of small family farmers. The Valley of the Three Forks also produced one of America's most celebrated military heroes — Sergeant Alvin York.

In 1968, the State of Tennessee purchased a large tract of land in the valley and established a park in honor of the backwoods marksman who became one of the most decorated soldiers of the First World War.

The park ranger is none other than the famous soldier's son, Andy York.

"Daddy was born and raised, lived and died here," said Andy. "Aside from the time he spent abroad during the war, he lived his entire life right here in the Valley."

During that two-year interval, the poor, ill-educated farmboy — who had never before traveled beyond the Tennessee mountains — became one of the most admired and acclaimed men in America.

York's rise to fame resulted from his legendary firefight with the German Army in France on October 8, 1918. Leading a small patrol in the Argonne Forest, York killed 25 German soldiers and, almost single-handedly, effected the capture of 132 others.

His exploits were rewarded with more than 40 Allied decorations. A feature in the Saturday Evening Post brought York's story home to millions of Americans. The tale of his mountain upbringing, of his simple piety and patriotism, and his battlefield heroics captured the heart of the nation. When he returned from France in May 1919, Alvin was shocked to find he was now a bonafide American hero.

York was greeted by a tumultuous public welcome that included ticker tape parades, honorary banquets, and a visit to the White House. He was besieged by the media, and by a flood of business propositions that offered as much as $50,000 for his testimonial.

York stubbornly refused to cash in on his sudden popularity and returned to a quiet life in his Tennessee mountains. He finally gave consent to a movie based on his life, the now-classic film "Sergeant York" which starred Gary Cooper. Much of the remainder of his life was spent in public service, working to improve the living conditions of his mountain neighbors.

The old soldier died in 1964, and lies buried in the Wolf River Cemetery, set in a peaceful glen in the center of the Valley. Across the road stands a small chapel which he served as elder and often led services in the pastor's absence.

His gravestone lists three accomplishments: Served in World War I; Awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor and Croix de Guerre; Established Alvin C. York Institute.

"Daddy was awfully proud of the medals they gave him, but you could never get him to talk much about the battle," Andy said. "I don't think he took much pride in what happened that day."

"But that school, the York Institute, he'd talk to you all day about that!"

The Alvin York Institute, established in Jamestown in 1929, has provided generations of mountain children with educational and vocational opportunities that before were unavailable. The school is still thriving today.

The Alvin York State Historic Area includes the family farm and the grist mill York operated on the Wolf River.

"Daddy bought the mill back in the Forties and ran it until his health failed," said Andy. (His full name is Andrew Jackson York. Alvin and Miss Gracie named their ten children after famous Americans.)

"After the State bought it, my brother Tommy (Thomas Jefferson York) served as the ranger until 1972. I took over then and have been here ever since."

The park is visited by a steady stream of admirers and history lovers. Andy readily chats with visitors about his father's life in the valley and his exploits in the war — even if the Sergeant himself would not.

The park is located on U.S. Hwy. 127, seven miles north of Jamestown, and is open year-round. Other points of interest in the area include:

The Big South Fork National River and Recreation Area: One of America's newest national parks offers plenty of hiking, fishing, camping and horseback riding along with spectacular scenery.

Rugby Historic British Colony: This unique community founded by British author Thomas Hughes in the 1890s is noted for its rural Victorian architecture. A number of the public buildings, such as the Hughes Public Library, are open to the public.

Cordell Hull Birthplace: This small log cabin was the birthplace of the famed statesman and Nobel Peace Prize winner who served as secretary of state under Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Pickett State Park: This lesser known park contains some of Tennessee's most interesting scenery. The rugged terrain includes geological formations, caves, natural bridges, and an abundant variety of vegetation.

Accommodations in the area include several motels in Jamestown and Oneida, cabins at Pickett State Park and a wonderful Victorian lodge at Rugby.

You'll Enjoy An Electric Heat Pump

Only the electric heat pump offers the most energy-efficient heating and cooling system available to the home owner. And, when your home is properly insulated and weatherized, the savings are even more dramatic. The electric heat pump actually delivers two to three times as much energy as it consumes. And it keeps working in the summertime, cooling and dehumidifying your home. What's more, because it is flame-free, the electric heat pump does not emit the pollutants that occur with flame-type heating systems. Small wonder that so many families make electricity the power of choice for cost-effective, whole-house comfort all year long. Call Ripley Power and Light Company and ask about their Heat Pump Financing Program—with no money down and up to ten years to repay.

MAKING LIFE MORE FUN

Feeding Hummingbirds: Do's and Don'ts

The world's smallest bird is widely popular with bird fanciers, who find it great fun to rig up bird feeders so they can see the delightful hummingbird up close.

For such a tiny creature, the hummingbird achieves some great accomplishments. It plays a major role in plant reproduction as it transfers pollen from flower to flower. To be able to hover backwards and forwards as they feed, hummingbirds beat their wings 50 to 75 times a second. They maintain a level flight speed of 30 mph. This high level of activity demands that hummingbirds consume up to half their body weight daily. However, their chief source of food, nectar from flowers, sometimes cannot be found in sufficient amounts in nature.

That's why bird lovers can be a big help. Here are some do's and don'ts for feeding hummingbirds properly:

Do use a brightly colored container. Since hummingbirds are attracted to jewelweed, hibiscus, salvia and trumpetvine flowers, choose a feeder that's red, orange or yellow. Hang the feeder near flowers from a tree or other object from which it may easily hang.

Don't feed hummingbirds with homemade solutions that contain colored sugar water or soluble powders that contain sugar and dyes mixed with water. These solutions often don't have the vitamins, minerals and liquid organic compounds necessary to the hummingbird diet, says Brooks Pennington, President of Penn Pak, Inc. They also are not sterile and need to be changed often.

Do use a nutritionally-complete hummingbird nectar. The first such nectar is called Natural Springs Nectar from Penn Pak, the bird feed manufacturing unit of Pennington Enterprises. It contains nearly all of the nutrients found in flowers and is made with only natural waters to ensure there are neither fluorides nor chlorides that can be found in chemically-processed waters. The nectar is available with an accompanying feeder kit through a nationwide group of independent lawn and garden stores, hardware and feed stores, gardening departments of major discount retail chains such as K mart, Wal-mart and other mass merchandisers.

Don't leave your feeder out after the first frost. Start feeding hummingbirds in the spring and remove the feeder early in fall so as not to interfere with fall migration.

For free brochures on hummingbirds and their feeding habits, write: "Hummingbird Hints," Dept. P30, P.O. Box 290, Madison GA 30650.

Most Children Now Survive Bout With Cancer

Each year, more than 6,500 children in the U.S. are diagnosed with cancer. However, according to statistics released by one of the world's leading pediatric research institutions, most of these childhood cancer victims now survive to lead normal adult lives.

A comparison with the survival rates 25 years ago provides some remarkable success stories. "Twenty five years ago, a child stricken with the most common childhood cancer, acute lymphocytic leukemia (ALL), had less than a 10 percent chance of survival," said Dr. Elizabeth Thompson of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital in Memphis. "Today, the vast majority of ALL victims, over 90 percent, will be cured of the disease."

The news is equally positive with other children's cancers.

Hodgkin's Disease—a cancer of the lymph nodes—has gone from a 50 percent survival rate to 90 percent.

Non-Hodgkin's Lymphoma—another lymph node cancer—increased from only 6 percent survival to 80 percent.

Osteosarcoma—bone cancer—has risen from a 20 percent cure rate to 60 percent.

The progress has been encouraging and is due, in substantial part, to therapies pioneered at St. Jude. Researchers there developed the treatments that have been so successful in combating ALL and other children's cancers.

One of St. Jude's success stories is teenager Daniel Jackson. When he was five years old, he showed every symptom of a common cold. The only problem was that it lasted far longer than a cold normally would, and was far more debilitating. A blood test showed that young Daniel had leukemia.

Daniel was referred to St. Jude. He responded to his chemotherapy far better than anyone had dared to hope and went into remission very quickly. "We're forever grateful to St. Jude, and to the research that uncovered the cure for Daniel's leukemia," said Teresa Jackson, Daniel's mother.

Across the board, improvements in treatments, including intensive chemotherapy, new drugs, new drug combinations, and new drug delivery systems have resulted in a dramatic increase in the survival rates of children with cancer. "We won't be satisfied, however, until we've developed therapies that can save all children with cancer. Even the 60 percent survival rate for ALL means that one in four children with the disease doesn't get a chance to grow up," said Dr. Thompson.

Founded by entertainer Danny Thomas, St. Jude Children's Research Hospital is one of the world's premier research centers for catastrophic diseases of children. Since opening its doors in 1962, St. Jude has treated more than 11,000 patients, regardless of their ability to pay. Its work is supported primarily through public contributions raised by ALSAC (American Lebanese Syrian Associated Charities).

ful look at a charitable organization's budget—especially its overhead, which represents the cost of raising money. There are some groups that use volunteers extensively and have very low fundraising costs. If a charity's fundraising costs consume more than 50 percent of all dollars raised, ask why.

Find out if a charity has an outside, independent financial audit done every year. This helps ensure that an organization is whistle-clean from top to bottom.

Call the philanthropy advisory service, which usually is connected to the Better Business Bureau. They often can tell you if a charity submits regular reports.

By taking a little time to get more information on a charity, you are doing yourself a service. More important, you are helping those who are less fortunate.

ABOUT YOUNG DRIVERS

Facts And Figures From The U.S. Department Of Transportation

Increasingly, wearing safety belts while driving is considered "cool" by young American males. A recent survey found several reasons for this.

According to many respondents, wearing the belts helped them make sure they were in control of their cars and their lives. This type of control can be a lifesaver when the guy coming the other way has had too much to drink. Others added that when passengers wore safety belts, it also made the driver feel more in control of the car, giving him "room to drive," particularly in an emergency.

Tips On Choosing A Charity

How can you be sure a charity uses your contribution effectively? United Way of New York City, one of the largest local United Ways, offers the following tips:

- Contact an organization by phone or mail and ask for help in learning more about what it does. If it isn't responsive, chances are the group doesn't appreciate modest contributions.
- If you have more than one "top" concern—for example, illiteracy and aid to the handicapped—then consider contributing to an organization that helps more than one group of people. Examples are United Way, and local Protestant, Catholic and Jewish charitable federations. They all channel money into aiding needy people in many ways.
- Obtain a copy and take a careful

Church Vows Pledged

MR. AND MRS. TONY LEE JONES exchanged traditional double-ring vows in candle-light at 7 p.m. Feb. 10th in First Baptist Church in Halls. Dr. John Adams, of Jackson, and The Rev. Rodney Alexander, pastor of the church, presented the vows.

The bride, Rhonda Leigh Hines, descended the candle-laden aisle on the arm of her father, Rodney C. Hines, of Halls, to two large entwined hearts of candles flanked by spirals, trees, and arches of tapers. Each brass complement was adorned with live lime springer and baby's breath. The choir loft held a swag of springer and baby's breath accented with peach bows. A peach unity candle and a kneeling bench completed the setting.

The bride wore a Victorian-style gown of white crystal organza whose high wedding-band collar held a lavaliere of pearls and crystal beads. A yoke of illusion introduced a promenade of floral lace appliques across the neck-line and down the fitted bodice. High shoulder puffs crowned long fitted sleeves with lace floral and jewel accents. A Basque waistline with a large butterfly by held yards of frosted material swirling into a full skirt. Pyramids of ruffles spilled out around the hem and trailed the cathedral train in scalloped, Rochelle lace trimmed each ruffle point and dotted the skirt's rear.

A head-piece of silk Venise lace dropped from the crown to a lace and pearl nosegay. Two tiers of tulle fell to finger-tip length. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white roses with stephanotis, accented by a pearl spray of English ivy and baby's breath.

The bride carried a New Testament her mother carried in her wedding.

The bride's aunt, Mrs. Vanessa Williams, of Ripley, was matron of honor. Kathy Emerson, of Martin, was maid of honor. Other bridesmaids were the bride's cousin, Natalie Pipkin, and Catherine Gaines, of Halls, and Lynne McDearman, of Valdosta, Ga. They wore teal-length gowns of peach satin, featuring puff sleeves accented by two satin roses at each shoulder. A butterfly bow with a satin rose in the back highlighted each dropped waist. Each wore baby's breath in her hair and carried a tear-drop shaped bouquet of peach roses, daisies, miniature carnations, and baby's breath.

The groom's father, Andrew, of Olive Branch, Miss., was best man. May Is Industry Appreciation Month In Tennessee
We Salute These Industries In Lauderdale County:
Due to the benefits that Tennessee communities gain from their businesses and industries, it is an appropriate gesture of our appreciation to join in a statewide observance of Business and Industry Appreciation Month in May.
High among those benefits is a better standard of living for Tennessee families. Tennessee industry provides jobs for more than a half million Tennesseans and contributes an estimated $9.8 billion in annual wages.
Over the years, Tennessee business and industry has been actively building a diversified, strong and sound economy. Growth of Tennessee's existing industry traditionally accounts for a significant share of total capital investments and new jobs each year. Since the late 1940's, the aggregate recorded capital investment in expansions of Tennessee's existing industry has accounted for 61% of total recorded manufacturing capital investments. Yet, too many Tennesseans take our existing industry for granted.
Governor Ned McWherter has proclaimed the observance of Appreciation Month, and we join him in recognizing business and industry's importance through improved family incomes and many civic and charitable contributions.
Let us take a different approach this year in our business and industry appreciation to expand our scope beyond our community. Let's examine what all of us can do together in this region to make Tennessee happen this year with new business and industry and expansion of existing industry. In this way, we will provide that special environment and attitude new business and industry look for when deciding to locate a new plant.
We must work together to support our existing business and industry. We urge each citizen's support and participation in our Business and Industry Appreciation Month activities. By observing May as a special month, we express our gratitude to management and employees of business and existing industry and commend them for their leadership and productivity.

REMOTE CONTROL AIRPLANE enthusiasts enjoying their hobby every weekend, weather permitting, include, from left, Jimmy Tolbert, James Kasinger, John McMurry, Don Sweat, Lynn Kennedy, John Ferguson, and Ron Hilliard. They use the north end of the Halls Air Base for their favorite pastime, and according to Dr. Larry Farris, another avid fan, flying these models is almost as difficult as flying the real thing (he can do both). Sunday afternoons will find 20-30 flyers out enjoying the sport, and they are in the process of forming their own club, with the first step being joining the national organization of Academy of Model Aeronautics in Reston, Virginia, which provides personal and liability insurance for its members. Because of the availability of the Halls Air strip, people come from Ridgely, Covington, Jackson, Dyersburg, Martin, and Union City, as well as Ripley and Halls.

The men and women in the group maintain the part of the field that they use for their fun and pleasure, and believe me when I tell you a lot of time and money go into each of these models. The rewards far outweigh the expense in this sport—you could see it in the eyes of the men (boys) as they flew their planes.

For further details concerning the organizational meeting of this local group, you may contact any of the men pictured above.

During the next mission of the space shuttle Discovery, you'll be able to eavesdrop on the crew by calling the National Space Society's Dial-A-Shuttle service (1-900-909-NASA). Heightening the excitement, the crew members will deploy the long-awaited Hubble Space Telescope during the mission, targeted for April.

The Dial-A-Shuttle service is a unique educational experience the entire family can enjoy. Callers will hear a concise, informative report on the mission and live astronaut communications with mission control. It will carry, live, important mission events such as the launch and landing, satellite deployments, space walks, press conferences, and crew wake-up calls.

The Hubble Space Telescope is an astronomical observatory in space that will fulfill a decades-old aspiration of astronomers to observe the universe with a telescope from outside Earth's atmosphere. The telescope will see planets, stars, and other objects about 10 times better than we can now with our best optical telescopes on Earth. It is named after Dr. Edwin P. Hubble (1889-1953), the astronomer who discovered that star systems (galaxies) exist outside of our own Milky Way galaxy.

Town Of Halls

Halls History
 By Mrs. Charles Alsbrook
 Frequently people write letters, call me on the phone or just stop to talk about my column when we meet at various places. Sometimes they have something to add to what I have written or maybe just to tell me of the memories my column brought back to them about Halls.
 Such was the letter I received from Ray Smith some months ago. Ray lives in Savannah, Ga., and is the son of Margaret Dyer and B. D. Smith, Margaret graduated from Halls High School and continues to return to Halls for a visit each year.
 Ray wrote, "While sorting through a never-ending pile of 'important junk', that I seem to accumulate on a regular basis, I came across the Sept. 14, 1989 issue of the Halls Graphic. I suppose that the newspaper found its way into my suitcase on one of my visits with my parents in Albany, Ga.
 "While looking through the Graphic, I came across your Halls History column. Mrs. J. R. Brown was the topic, but the paragraphs concerning College Street grabbed my attention. Some of my fondest childhood memories are of the summer visits I had with my grandmother in Halls. 'Mama Dyer' as we called her, lived on College Street and I will always cherish the memories of my visits with her.
 "Since I live in a fairly large city, I am unable to walk anywhere in town that I want to go or sleep with the windows and doors open like we were able to do in Halls. Thank you for allowing me to relive the times that I spent in what had to be the 'greatest little town' anywhere."
 Halls is still the greatest little town anywhere and most all who have lived or visited here have many fond memories attached to it.
 The churches, schools and people have molded many children here to become worthwhile citizens here and other places they have moved. Many have made contributions for the betterment of mankind, as the children who live and visit here today will make worthwhile contributions in life.

A police officer is . . .

Police officers are many things. They are sons, daughters, fathers, mothers, uncles, aunts, and sometimes even grandparents. They are protectors in time of need, and comforters in time of sorrow. Their job calls for them to be a diplomat, a psychologist, a lawyer, a friend and an inspiration.

They suffer from an overdose of publicity about brutality and dishonesty. They suffer far more from the notoriety produced by unfounded charges. Too often, acts of heroism go unnoticed and the truth is buried under all the criticism.

The fact is that less than one-half of 1 percent of police officers ever discredit their uniform. That's a better average than you'll find among clergymen.

A police officer is an ordinary person who is called upon for extraordinary bravery—for us! Their job may sometimes seem routine, but the interruptions can be moments of stark terror. They are people who may face a half-crazed gunman, who rescue a lost child, who challenge a mob, and who risk their necks more often than we realize. They deserve our respect and our profound thanks.

Police officers stand between the law abider and the lawbreaker. They are the prime reason your home hasn't been burned, your family abused, your business looted.

Try to imagine what might happen if there were no police officers around. And then try to think of ways to make their job more rewarding. Show them the respect you really have. Offer them a smile and a kind word, and see that they don't have to be magicians to raise their families on less-than-adequate salaries.

We think police officers are great. We thank God for all the little children who said they would be police officers, and who kept their promise. We hope you feel the same way, and we hope you'll show it, so there will always be enough good police officers to go around.

How To Get The Most For Your Postal Dollar

By Ann McK. Robinson
Consumer Advocate
United States Postal Service

Interested in getting the best possible deal from the Postal Service? Next time you're in a post office, pick up Publication 201, A Consumer's Directory of Postal Services and Products. This free publication offers valuable information on how to use the variety of postal services to your best advantage.

We're in business to serve people. Elevating the level of customer satisfaction is a corporate goal of the Postal Service. An important element in achieving this goal is keeping customers informed of the many ways in which we can serve them.

Making customers aware of the variety of services offered, and when and how to use those services is essential to good business. Customer satisfaction is directly related to customer understanding of a company's services and products. A misunderstanding of those services ultimately leads to customer frustration and disappointment when the wrong service is used and the end result is not achieved.

The Consumer's Directory is one way the Postal Service lets customers know about the variety of postal services offered. As the Consumer's Directory will show, there is a lot more to the Postal Service than just stamps. The directory is an attractive, easy-to-use guide that offers a variety of information about the following:

- When and How to File a Change of Address
- How to Purchase Stamps by Mail
- How to Properly Address Mail

A CONSUMER'S DIRECTORY OF POSTAL SERVICES AND PRODUCTS

- How to Prepare and Wrap Packages for Mailing
  - Certified Mail
  - Postal Insurance
  - International Mail
- Customers who would like a copy of the Consumer's Directory of Postal Services and Products can pick one up at any post office.

Dennis One Of Two Said Murdered In 30 Minutes

Royce Lee "Dino" Lane, 36, was charged with first degree murder not only of Dennis, but also, about 30 minutes earlier, of Michael A. Holder, 32, of Route 3, Dyersburg.

Dyer County Sheriff's Dept. investigator Charles Bane told the Dyersburg State-Gazette that a neighbor says he heard five shots and found Holder behind Beech Grove Presbyterian Church, off Carter Lane in the Middle City community.

Lane was arrested about 10:50 p.m. on Upper Finley Rd. in a white over burgundy Oldsmobile described by witnesses to both alleged murders.

Services for Mr. Dennis were at 4 p.m. Tuesday in Matthew Zion Baptist Church in Halls, of which he was a member, with burial in Old Chapel Cemetery, Thomas Robinson top cager, Gina Warren tops in girls' basketball and tennis, and Bobby Cain named Coach of the Year in girls' tennis.

Westate Junior Rodeo Is Here

West Tenn. Junior Rodeo performances are set at 1 and 7 p.m. Saturday, May 26th, at the Ripley Bit and Spur Club arena.

"I am proud to have led the fight for the new prison at Fort Pillow that employs more than 600 people," he says, "and I have worked hard, along with our local officials, to bring more than 50 special road projects to Haywood and Lauderdale Counties. Now, we must keep our momentum moving forward."

Crain, elected in 1978, is majority floor leader in the House, serving on the Transportation and Conservation and Environment Committees, in addition to being vice-chairman of the West Tenn. Democratic Caucus and chairman of a Transportation sub-committee.

"Our state is facing many difficult and complicated decisions as we enter the 1990's," he says, "and it is important to have working knowledge of the issues at hand. There is no time for on-the-job training for the biggest business in Tennessee."

"As a small businessman and a farmer, I understand that there is no such thing as a quick fix. The future of our children and grandchildren is at stake, and I want to apply my experience and seniority toward making Lauderdale and Haywood Counties even better places in which to live and raise families."

Crain has introduced and co-sponsored legislation to protect consumers against unscrupulous home builders and increase environmental awareness through his "Adopt a Stream" program, as well as supporting issues such as organ donor legislation and earthquake preparedness for grades K-12.

A native of Ripley, Crain is a graduate of Ripley High School and the University of Tennessee College of Pharmacy. He is active in numerous civic and professional organizations. A veteran of the Army Medical Corps, he served as a first lieutenant in the Korean conflict. A life-long supporter of the University of Tennessee, Crain served a 3-year term as its National Alumni president. He now serves on the advisory committee for the UT College of Pharmacy. He is active in the First United Methodist Church.

He and his wife, Joann, are parents of three children, Steve, Temple, and Ellen. They have one grandchild.

"I have tried to be a responsive representative to all the people—listening to the needs and helping when I could help. I will continue to represent everyone to the best of my ability. With your advice and support, we have reached a point in the legislature now where my seniority can make a difference. I humbly ask for your confidence and support in returning me to the legislature to represent you and Lauderdale and Haywood Counties."

ANNA (MRS. PETE) BIZZLE has been promoted to business office manager at Baptist Hospital Lauderdale in Ripley. Beacon
Corn producers who have the notorious problem of Johnson-grass will be happy to know that Beacon herbicide has received full registration for use in field corn. Beacon is one of the newer types of chemicals that is so helpful to agriculture in that it can be sprayed over the top of the weed or grass pest. The company that manufactures Beacon will, I am sure, try its very best to have an adequate supply by the time it is needed.

There are certain restrictions for the use of Beacon herbicide that farmers should be aware of and these restrictions are on the label. Please read the label prior to expected use or contact us at the Extension Office and let us tell you the restrictions.

CARD OF THANKS

On the afternoon of April 19th it came time for Sebo to leave us, after having entered Baptist Memorial Lauderdale around 5:00A.M. that morning. We would like to thank every one of them for their untiring efforts to administer their professional services to him and his family. They called the family physician, Dr. R.C. Robbins, who immediately left the Halls Clinic and came to aid and comfort Sebo. We shall always be grateful to Dr. Robbins, in the highest respect, as this is the time that a family never forgets.

The staff of the Halls Funeral Home, may we say a special thanks, as they extended extra and special courtesies to the family.

God's love then showered the family with food, words of comfort, floral contributions, calls, and their presence, offering any kind of help needed by the family, which will never be forgotten.

On April 21st the memorial service was held at Poplar Grove Cumberland Presbyterian Church, of which he had been a member 42 years and served as an Elder 37 years.

As the cortege arrived at the church, the pall bearers, namely, Mark Holder, Whitney Wright, Calvin Hardy, Joe Palmer Hardy, Joyce Rodgers and Larry Keen attended our father with awesome respect. A multitude of friends and neighbors standing by, instilled lasting comfort to the family, and immediately brought to our minds the scriptures, "Be still and know that I am God," and "Peace I leave with you."

Upon entering the church, ushers Ronnie Roberts, Sidney Hendren and the Swell, had seated someone in every corner of the church.

Mrs. Donna Swell rendering Sebo's favorite old hymns, and Mrs. Judy Burrough sang "Under His Wings" and "It is Well With My Soul".

Rev. Frank Ward, his pastor for the past 17 years delivered a sermon of Biology to Sebo. With no words adequate we extend our thanks to him for everything in the past and his continued support for Mother.

The interment was in the church cemetery. Rev. Frank Ward read a poem titled "God's Garden", which was a favorite of Lucille's.

Out in God's Garden, afterwards, Mother said, "Oh, if only he could hear all these nice things his friends are saying about him, it would be so great." Someone spoke up and said, "But he does hear."

One of God's greatest gifts to his children is "Memory", this we hold deeply in our hearts. Sebo gave us precious memories of gentleness, kindness, and especially forgiveness. He gave us, even in our sadness, peace and understanding.

Memories grow more precious still when loved ones have to part, and remain forever blooming, in the gardens of our heart."

May God bless each and every one of you.

Congressman JOHN TANNER REPORTS TO THE EIGHTH DISTRICT

TOURISM: IT'S A NATURAL

Tourists spent nearly $130 million in the Eighth District in 1988. Almost 95,000 Eighth District residents made their living because of this industry. The diversity of natural resources with which we have been blessed may help our region develop tourism as an even more significant factor of our economy.

Among the many natural attractions in the Eighth District are its lakes, rivers, and streams; its abundance of wildlife and the beautiful Land Between the Lakes. We also have a rich history behind us, full of Civil War sites and frontier homesteads. These monuments to by-gone eras are commemorated every year in the many local festivals held in communities across the Eighth District.

We Tennesseans already know about the many exciting attractions in our home state. About 30% of all Tennessee travelers consisted of in-state travelers. Promoting the many attractions in our area can be part of a successful effort to create jobs and stimulate the economy.

This summer, go on a day vacation to your neighboring county. Get to know all of the exciting things going on in our region. The Eighth District, and all of West Tennessee is a natural for tourism — and what better way to find out than to visit?

BE SAFE — BUCKLE UP

This week, May 21-28, is designated Buckle-Up America! Week. So, when you are planning your summer day-trips, make sure you plan to buckle your seat belt. It could save your life, or the life of someone you love.

CENSUS TAKERS HIT THE STREETS IN THE EIGHTH

How do cities and counties decide where to build new roads, whether to expand water and sewage services, or how many schools an area needs? They get these answers from the data obtained from the U.S. Census. The Census Bureau depends on the American people to help government, non-profit organizations, and private industry help us.

For the next several weeks, Census workers will be canvassing the Eighth District picking up questionnaires that have not yet been returned. If you still have yours, it is not too late to mail it in to the Census Bureau. Your answers will be kept confidential for 72 years, and will only serve to benefit you and your community.

Re: Loss of Cows and Other Items

Dear Mr. Osteen:

I received your letter on December 1, 1989; and I want to tell you what I have done. I know that you are upset about your loss of cows and other items, and I have asked the appropriate officials to investigate.

On December 4, 1989, I talked to Sheriff Durham and explained your problem to him. I asked him to investigate this matter, and he told me he would do everything he could to solve the case. He said that he would be assigning his Investigator, Lynn Gould, whom you know, to work the case.

I have confidence that if the case can be solved, Mr. Gould will do everything he can to come up with the answers. I suggest that you give him all of this information when he contacts you, and he will in turn contact my staff after the case has been worked. If additional assistance through other agencies is necessary, I will certainly keep an open mind as to asking for outside help.

I am mailing a copy of the letter you wrote to me to Investigator Gould. I am sure you will be talking with him in the near future.

Sincerely,

I AM STILL WAITING TO BE CONTACTED BY THE SHERIFF AND/OR HIS INVESTIGATOR

My complaint was: Within the past year I had eight cows shot. Three horses and my grandson's pony were poisoned. Upset? Sure I was.

Why did I not go direct to the Sheriff? I am aware of other crimes within the County whereby no action was taken. I simply felt I would receive the same treatment. And I did. Absolutely nothing has been done.

I am sure that because I was Sheriff once there are political and other reasons for the Sheriff's Department not responding to my above complaint. However, I am not the only citizen in the county who has been ignored by the Sheriff's Department. I also know that I am not the only one in the County who has suffered because of their inefficiencies. Those who can see how our county has deteriorated know how they are going to vote. Those who can't need to take a closer look.

Our County needs a new direction in Law-Enforcement. We need to clean house and we need a new broom to do it with.

I know all the candidates for Sheriff. They are all good men. Being a good man is definitely an important ingredient in being a good Sheriff. However, just being a good man will not get the job done. Our County is in bad condition and we need help now.

I have very carefully considered the overall qualifications of each candidate. After a most thorough evaluation of qualifications of all involved, I sincerely believe Jerry Crain to be best qualified to be our next Sheriff. Therefore, I sincerely urge, and hope, that each of you will support and elect Jerry Crain as our Sheriff on August 2nd.

Oldest Grave Stone Sought

The Lauderdale County Historical and Genealogical Society has announced a contest to find the tombstone bearing the earliest death date of someone buried in the county. Contest rules were announced at the Society's meeting Sunday at Baptist Hospital-Lauderdale.

The contest, open to any person or organization, begins at once and closes July 5th.

One enters by submitting a legible snapshot or rubbing of a tombstone. A good impression can be made by holding a piece of wrapping paper against the stone and rubbing over the paper with charcoal or a wax pencil—but take care, don't damage or deface the stone. A clearer snapshot will usually result if the inscription has been highlighted with a felt-tip pen or the face of the stone has been wiped with chalk or some powder that will wash off easily without damaging the stone.

Entries must be accompanied by directions to the cemetery and general location of the stone, and the name, address, and telephone number of the contestant.

A prize of $25 will be awarded to the person or organization whose snapshot or rubbing bears the earliest death date of someone buried in the county. Memorials to persons buried elsewhere are not eligible. In case of tie, the prize will be awarded on the entry bearing the earliest postmark.

Entries must be sent to Mrs. Charles Alsbrook, P. O. Box 265, Halls, TN. 38040.

The winner will be announced July 15th at the next meeting of the Society. For more information, call Mrs. Alsbrook, who is Awards Chairman for the Society, or Mrs. Gene F. Davis, also of Halls, who is president.

Pointers For Parents

Children Should Be Seen

Pictures, ceramic handcasts and cheerleading megaphones are just some of the mementos that can be framed so the memory will be preserved.

If you're like many parents, your closets and basement probably contain over 200 drawings brought home from school by your youngsters at various ages, over 30 report cards and tons of photos of your children at all ages. They're also likely to hold your daughter's ballet shoes and some of those wonderful letters from the grandparents.

Happily, a new campaign is underway in the nation designed to keep these treasured mementos from getting overlooked, damaged or lost. The theme of the campaign is "Children Should Be Seen," and encourages parents to display those keepsakes and artwork by having them framed.

"Today's kids are growing up so fast and accomplishing so much," says Rex P. Boynton, Executive Director of the Professional Picture

Framers Association, the group running the campaign. "Before you know it, children are adults and their childhood memories are fading. Items that can capture and preserve these memories are often times overlooked. Virtually any of these items can be preserved by custom framing to create a wonderful showpiece and family keepsake for the home or office."

Among the many items that can be custom-framed by a retail member of the association are children's birth announcements, plaster handprints, scout merit patches, report cards, the game-winning baseball, athletic ribbons or graduation diplomas and tassels. When it comes to children, it's worth remembering, it's worth framing. Your local PPA framer can help you create the perfect memento you'll cherish forever.

Most importantly, check out the reputation of the builder. If it's good, and you like the area, you may be halfway home to your new home.

How To Make The Perfect Steak

The perfect steak, whether rare or well-done, starts long before it hits the grill. But getting that T-bone to the table isn't always that easy.

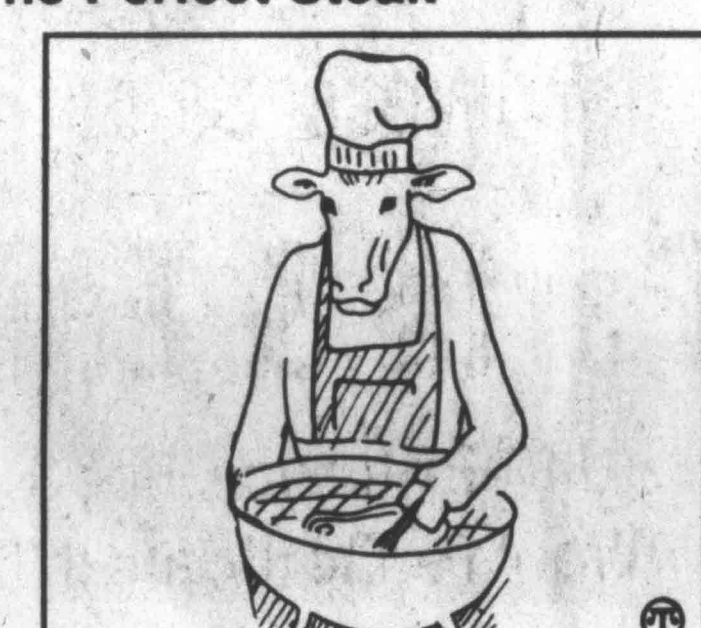

The next time you're driving down a country road, watching cows lazily grazing lush green pastures, remember that while it may look pastoral, there can be serious nutritional deficiencies—even in that tall, lush grass.

A big problem for many beef producers is selenium—or the lack of it. Selenium is a key dietary element that is scarce in many regions of the country.

Selenium deficient areas in the United States include the Pacific Northwest, the Northeast, East Coast, the Southeast and most of the Great Lakes area. There are also rising concerns of selenium deficiency in other geographic areas.

Cattle given feed grown in selenium-rich soil get enough of the element in their everyday diet. But cattle that don't get enough selenium in their diet are subject to poorer weight gains, reproductive problems, muscle degeneration, lowered immunity and generally poor health. These animals are just poor doers, so selenium must be supplemented.

Getting the proper amount of selenium into the cattle can be a headache. Simply adding it to the feed offers no guarantee that all the animals are getting their share and monthly injections may be impractical.

A new product allows producers to easily administer a long-lasting dose of selenium to their cattle.

The new selenium delivery system, Dura-Se™ 120, marketed by Schering-Plough Animal Health, is shaped like a bolus (a large pill). It can be administered orally by a balling gun into the cow's rumen or reticulum, the two large forestomachs. Water is gradually absorbed into one end of the bolus, which expands and pushes a selenium formulation out a small hole in the other end.

Dura-Se-120 reaches a steady state in two to three weeks and releases the correct amount of selenium into the cow's system every day through 120 days. This provides consistent daily supplementation to help avoid serious selenium-deficiency related health problems.

So next time you bite into that delicious, juicy steak, remember that there's a lot more involved in getting it to you than putting it in the meat case at your grocery store.

Walking Plus Good Nutrition—A Winning Lifestyle

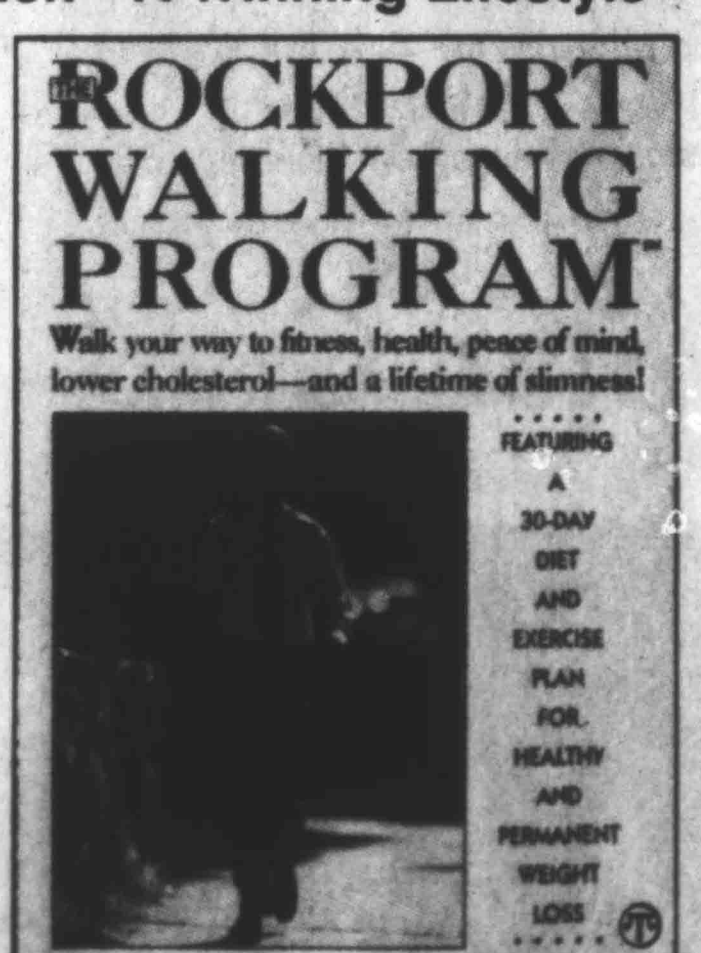

More than 48 million Americans are seriously overweight. Every year, millions subject themselves to deprivation diets in an effort to slim down. Medical experts report that a large number of these diets are not effective because they do not change lifestyle habits. In other words, they do not teach healthier eating and exercise habits. One that does, the Rockport Walking Program, is an easy-to-use, customized lifestyle program that helps individuals lose weight and teaches ways to maintain that weight loss and improve overall health.

A scientific study at the Institute for Aerobic Research in Dallas has shown that moderate daily exercise, as simple as a daily walk, can lead to improved overall health and a longer life by reducing the risk of heart disease and cancer.

The Rockport Walking Program (RWP) combines this exercise element with an American Heart Association approved low-fat diet.

Funded by The Rockport Company of Marlboro, Mass.—manufacturers of walking, dress and casual shoes—the RWP was developed by Dr. James Rippe at the University of Massachusetts Medical School where it was clinically tested and proven effective. Test subjects who followed both the walking and nutrition plan lost an average of 17 pounds (90% in the form of body fat) over a period of 16 weeks and improved their relative cardiovascular fitness level.

The RWP book begins with basic information on the importance of regular exercise and how to detect hidden fats in the foods you eat. To measure their cardiovascular fitness, individuals can take a simple

The RWP is a sensible combination of low-fat food choices and regular exercise that fits into your lifestyle and lets you feel satisfied rather than deprived.

Retirement Planning

If you're thinking about where to live when you retire, here are some hints that may help you:

• Spend some time in the area you choose before you decide to move. If the place is in the sunbelt, go down in the summer months, so you can sample the area off-season.

• One interesting program to investigate is offered by Del Webb's Sun City Tucson in the sun-drenched Southwest. You can vacation for a week in a garden home at special, two-person summer rates of $199 per week during June, July and August. The price includes a free round of golf and unlimited tennis. To make reservations, call for Special Operator Nine at Sun City Tucson Vacation Villas 1-800-433-9611.

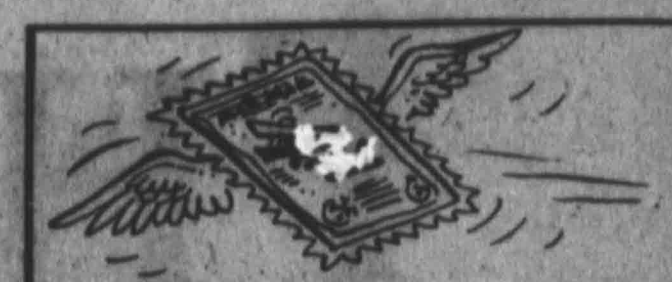

• When you go, check with the people living in the community. Then check out the shopping and banks and see if there are any businesses in the area. If there are, it may mean lower taxes.

Most importantly, check out the reputation of the builder. If it's good, and you like the area, you may be halfway home to your new home.

ATTENDS EXERCISES

Mrs. Mary E. Watson, of Halls, attended graduation exercises for her grandson, Melvin MacIn, and granddaughter, Malanie MacIn, from Howard University in Washington, D.C. Both received bachelor of science degrees with high honors and are members of Beta Kappa Chi Honor Society. Melvin, who will receive a 4-year full scholarship, and Malanie will attend Howard University Medical School with future plans to join their mother, Lula MacIn, a pediatrician, and their father, Melvin MacIn, a dentist, in Chicago, Ill.

Air mail stamps were already in use in 1918. There were three denominations—six cent, 16 cent and 24 cent. The pictures, not surprisingly, were all of airplanes.

"MAKING CONNECTIONS"

STRAIGHT TALK ABOUT TELEPHONE SERVICE.

Kay Gibson, Manager

A healthy relationship, like the one South Central Bell enjoys with this community, is not to be taken for granted.

It's not a natural consequence of doing business. It doesn't just happen. It takes mutual respect and understanding. And a lot of hard work.

At South Central Bell, we've never shied away from hard work, especially where the citizens of Tennessee are concerned.

Take our unflinching support for the United Way. We have a year-round education program to communicate the agency's importance to our employees.

We promote giving with United Way stories in company publications, in-house training, videos and agency tours.

We routinely loan the agency executives to serve on various United Way committees.

And not least of all, we contribute our "fair share"—1989 corporate contributions, combined with employee pledges, exceeded $1.3 million in Tennessee.

By the way, South Central Bell and the other BellSouth companies received the agency's coveted Spirit of America award last year "for sustaining company wide support for the United Way."

Take also our support for the Tennessee Sportsfest, the exciting Olympic-style, amateur athletic event set for June 17-24 in Nashville.

As with the United Way, we understand: what's good for our community is good for us.

South Central Bell has more than 8,000 employees in Tennessee. Our involvement in Sportsfest is a way of promoting fitness for each of them; of acknowledging the fact that the more physically fit we are, the better we can perform our jobs.

If you'd like more information on Sportsfest, call toll free 1 800 53-SPORT.

As you can see, there are more ways to maintain a connection with a community than by maintaining phone service. And you can be sure we at South Central Bell will always be looking for them.
