* FAIRNESS: Treat all citizens with respect and apply the law to all equally, regardless of who they may be.* Russell X Thompson, a practicing attorney with offices at Bolivar, is a candidate for District Attorney for the Twenty-Fifth Judicial District in the August election. This judicial district includes the counties of Tipton, Lauderdale, Fayette, Hardeman and McNairy.

Russell X Thompson has practiced law in West Tennessee for more than twenty years. A former member of the Tennessee Legislature, Thompson is admitted to practice in all the trial and appellate courts in Tennessee, in addition to the United States District Courts of the Western Division of Tennessee and also in the United * States Supreme Court.

Russell X Thompson's message to you is, "I am absolutely committed to make every effort to cooperate with all of our law enforcement agencies who combat what seems to be the overwhelming problem of crime. Crime and disrespect for the law is perhaps our most challenging problem that is seriously affecting every one of us in this district and especially our young people."

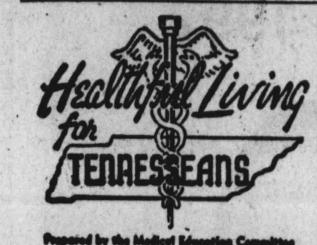

Thompson further states, "I will, as your District Attorney General, work to provide the confidence, leadership and respect that will make the people of the Twenty-Fifth Judicial District proud, and justifiably so, of the administration of justice."

A resident of Hardeman County, Thompson is married to Julia M. Thompson, who is the postmaster in Somerville. Throughout his career that spans more than twenty years, he has been a noted trial lawyer, handling numerous cases in all of the counties of the Twenty-Fifth Judicial District.

$1,500 Is Said Taken From Little General

Two black men are reported to have robbed the Little General convenience store in Ripley of about $1,500 early Monday evening.

The cashier, Doris Newlin, 28, of Porter's Gap, said they displayed no weapon when they entered the store, at 238 South Washington, at its intersection with Tucker Street, about 8 p.m.

She said one man forced her to sit down behind the counter while the other took a money bag, containing mostly cash. She said both men then fled on foot.

Banana Cream Pie

Pies with traditional pastry crusts are generally not considered sensible desserts for those restricting their intake of fat. Even more off limits is the rich cream pie in a pastry crust. Recently, however, I was able to do some rearranging and substitution of ingredients in my favorite banana cream pie; and the end result was a very acceptable and rich-tasting heart-healthy version. The meringue pie shell provided a nonfat "crust" for the bananas and low-fat cream filling. This, along with the elimination of the egg yolks and butter and the substitution of slim milk for whole milk, reduced the calories to less than half the original and rendered each serving of the pie virtually fat- and cholesterol-free. Now who said you can't have cream pie on a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet! Banana Cream Pie (Low-Fat Version) 3 egg whites

1/2 teaspoon vanilla

2 tablespoons sugar 3 bananas, sliced into 1/4-inch slices

1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar

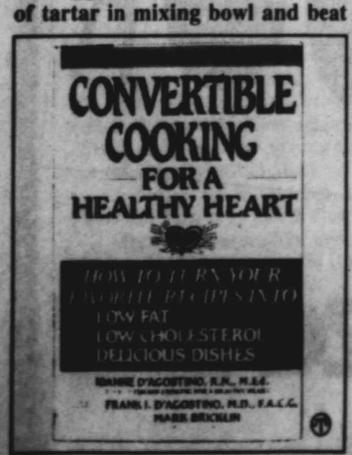

1/2 cup sugar 2 tablespoons cornstarch

1/2 teaspoon salt 2 cups slim milk

1 teaspoon vanilla 2 egg whites 1/2 teaspoon vanilla

1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar 2 tablespoons sugar To make meringue shell combine egg whites, vanilla and cream with electric beater until soft peaks form. Gradually add sugar and continue beating to stiff peak stage. Spoon meringue evenly over bottom and sides of 9-inch pie plate. Bake in 300 degree oven for about 45 minutes, or until shell is dry and lightly browned. Cool thoroughly; then arrange sliced bananas on bottom of shell. Prepare filling by combining sugar, cornstarch and salt in medium saucepan. Gradually stir in milk and cook over medium heat until mixture boils, stirring constantly. Add vanilla and cool for another minute or two, until pudding thickens. Cool slightly, then pour over bananas in pie shell. Prepare meringue by beating the egg whites, vanilla and cream of tartar with an electric beater until soft peaks form. Gradually add sugar and beat until stiff peaks form. Spread meringue in swirling fashion over hot pie filling, making certain to cover all filling, sealing to edge of pasty. Bake in 350 degree oven for about 12 minutes, or until meringue is lightly golden. Cool. Chill well before serving.

ORTEGA JALAPENO ICE CREAM-IT'S COOL TO BE HOT

It may never be a flavor of the month, but Ortega Jalapeno Ice Cream is a frozen flame of flavors that teases the palate and keeps you coming back for

You can make this "hot" frozen dessert by blending vanilla ice cream and finely chopped Ortega fire-roasted jalapenos. The end product is a unique creation that will surprise you with a creamy coolness that occasionally flares up with the fiery flavor of chiles.

"People expect the jalapenos to take over the flavor of the ice cream," says

Faye Egan, manager of the Nabisco Consumer Foods Center. "While there are indeed moments when your mouth comes alive with the pungent taste of peppers, most of the time the vanilla flavor of the ice cream comes through." Therein lies the hook that keeps you coming back for more. The creamy texture of ice cream is suddenly interrupted by a mini heat wave in your mouth. The natural reaction is to savor another spoonful of ice cream to cool things down. And it does-for a while. "This is a fun dessert," says Egan. "The idea of a hot and cold taste sensation in the same bowl of ice cream is intriguing, and the two flavors happen to taste great together."

Ortega Ice Cream is the perfect finish to any fiesta where friends and family come together. Ortega Jalapeno Ice Cream Makes One Quart

1 quart vanilla ice cream, slightly softened 3 teaspoons ORTEGA Diced Jalapenos 1/2 teaspoon grated lime peel

In large bowl, combine ice cream, jalapenos and lime peel. Return to ice cream container and re-freeze until firm.
