Growing Tobacco

RONNIE CARMACK, long time vegetable producer, ventured into a new enterprise this spring. He is raising 20 plus acres of burley tobacco and turning heads in the process.

Ronnie researched his venture well before taking the plunge. Months of thought, several out-of-county trips to tobacco growing regions, numerous long distance phone calls, and the use of the Extension Service, ASCS, and local agri-businesses were necessary in order to avoid some pitfalls of an undertaking such as this. And this is a tremendous undertaking!

Ronnie says that he is better utilizing his labor force, his land, and his time by growing tobacco. While still growing tomatoes and other vegetable crops, Ronnie has cut back on second crop tomatoes because there usually is a saturated market. More tomatoes grown locally has also increased county acreage significantly.

Ronnie feels that he can mechanically harvest the tobacco and cure it in the field. Current plans will keep him from building expensive curing barns, one of the high cost items of tobacco raising.

Ronnie's burley acreage includes older tobacco and a few acres of younger tobacco. This will spread the harvest some and allow him the latitude of correcting any minor problems encountered.

Ronnie says success will be measured only when his crop is sold in Kentucky and a significant return is realized. To this point Ronnie has made a success and he has probably shown the way for a few other producers to better utilize land, labor, and capital.

Announces

HOWARD SPIVEY, SR. has filed a qualifying petition and will challenge first-term incumbent Don Smith for the position of Lauderdale County Assessor of Property in the Aug. 6th, 1992 general election.

A native of Lauderdale County, Spivey and his wife of 15 years, Nerissa, live in Ripley with their two children, Aprile, 12, and Karen, 3. The family attends Mount Pleasant Missionary Baptist Church in Ripley.

'As the economic pace quickens and this community continues to grow and prosper, it is imperative to have qualified, competent and honest leadership in important positions such as assessor of property, which affects so many people in the county,' Spivey says.

'As a certificated architectural draftsman with nearly 20 years of experience in designing homes, churches, and other structures, also a carpenter, building and remodeling houses and other structures, I feel I am uniquely qualified to hold this position,' Spivey continued. 'College training in engineering and special computer surveying also will be an asset in this post.'

Spivey was graduated from Lauderdale High School in 1960. In 1961, he volunteered for the Air Force, where he trained as an aircraft mechanic, aircraft technician, aircraft maintenance supervisor, and aircraft assistant flight engineer. He earned his aircraft crew member wings in 1966, just before embarking on his first of five Viet Nam Tours.

During his 10-year military career, Spivey received numerous citations, commendations, ribbons and medals, including the National Defense Service Medal, Viet Nam Service Medal with four Bronze Stars, the Republic of Viet Nam Campaign Medal, Air Force Good Conduct Medal with two Oak Leaf Clusters, Air Force Longevity Service Award with one Oak Leaf Cluster, Outstanding Unit Award with two Oak Leaf Clusters, and three Honorable Discharges with retirement.

Spivey's educational background includes two years at Dyersburg State College, where he completed the Tennessee Department of Transportation's course in surveying, in addition to numerous other technical courses at other schools and institutions related to the building field.

'In these rapidly changing times, we, the citizens of Lauderdale County, need a tax assessor with the knowledge, ability, and education required to competently fill this position,' Spivey says.

'Adaptability to change is also a necessary quality, as are honesty and fairness in appraising. I feel that my education and experience in related fields has prepared me to meet these challenges.

'I have served both the federal and state governments honorably,' Spivey says. 'Now, I am asking you, the citizens of Lauderdale County, for your vote on Aug. 6th.'

'Your support will be greatly appreciated.'

For Miles Around

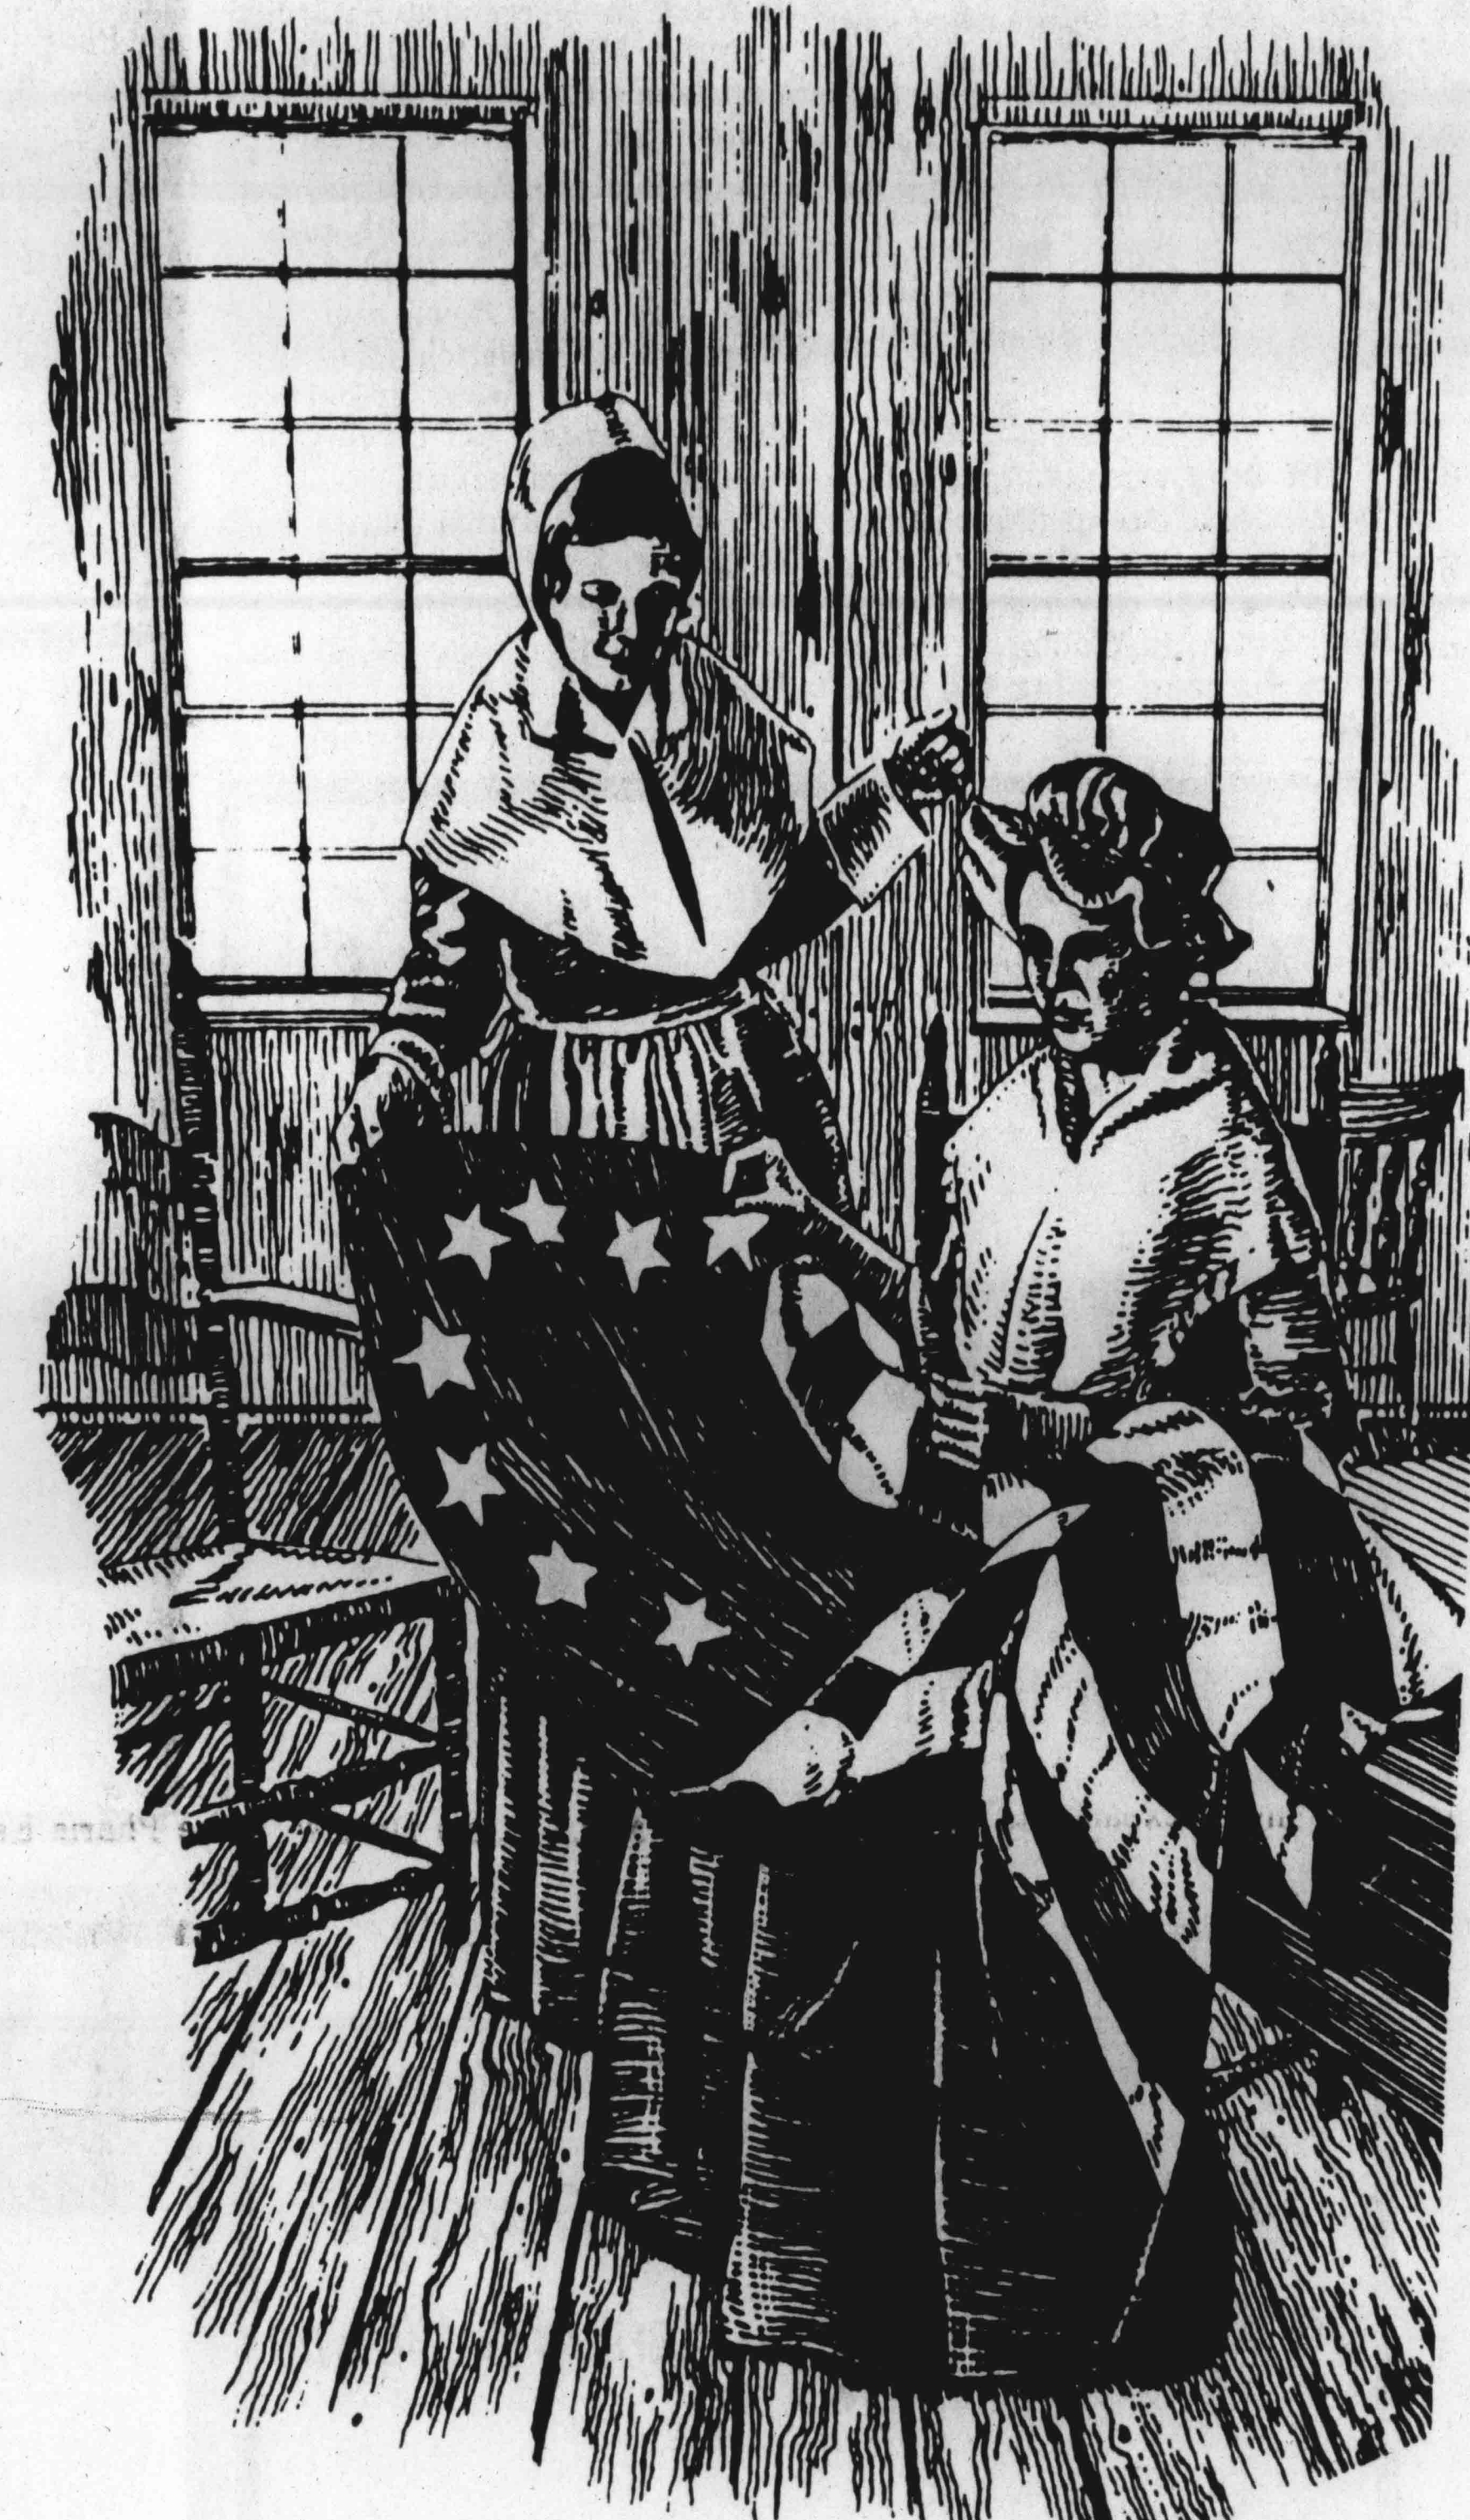

By Murray Miles
Tennessee Farm Bureau

I suppose cattle rustling has been going on ever since farmers and ranchers began raising cattle. We've never had the problem here in Tennessee compared to the western states, but we do have them. There are fewer in our area because our cattle are usually in pastures surrounded by good fencing, and relatively close to the owner's the cattle into another state for sale. But now enters the computer age. Dairy farmers have been using computers for some time now. They have their cows equipped with collars and a computer chip, and when the cows go to eat, the collar tells the main computer how much each cow should be fed, and the feeder dishes out the correct amount. The dairyman can look at the printout of the day to see how much milk each cow has produced. He can see if every cow has eaten. If not, then he finds out why. Possibly one is ill, or she may have drifted off, or, but unlikely, someone has stolen her in the last 24 hours. Many dairy farmers in Tennessee have such a system and it's helped them tell whether or not a cow is paying her way. Now the computer has moved into the rustling prevention business.

Utah's Saunders says an Idaho rancher implanted special computer chips in the hides of his calves. Some of the calves were stolen this year, but the suspect was caught. When he tried to sell the animals at auction, the chips set off a transponder at the sale barn, and he was nabbed on the spot. The chips therefore saved the rancher thousands of dollars in lost income. They also saved taxpayers thousands of dollars that law enforcement agencies might have spent trying to track down the cattle thief. There may be another side benefit from this, too. There are those who think branding is cruel, and it is also a time-consuming job. Computer chips would eliminate the need for branding. They would also help ranchers find their grazing cattle easier in those wide open western spaces.

Congressman JOHN TANNER REPORTS TO THE EIGHTH DISTRICT

QUALITY EDUCATION, SKILLED WORKFORCE GO HAND-IN-HAND IN ACHIEVING ECONOMIC PROSPERITY

A 1988 study known as "The Forgotten Half" revealed that an estimated 20 million Americans between the ages 16 and 24 do not go on to college. Moreover, the study reported, of those who do attend college only half complete a four-year program.

That means that roughly 75 percent of American youths entered the workforce without a bachelor's degree. These figures were highlighted recently in a story in The Wall Street Journal describing the growing emergence of apprenticeship programs for high school students with no plans to attend college. The programs are sponsored by employers like Sears, Roebuck & Co., and often can "mean the difference between a low-wage, low-skill job and a fruitful career . . ."

Sure, those are disturbing figures, but here in Tennessee we are doing things to ensure the future of those kids who don't choose college after high school. It's a cooperative effort among public sector, private sector, and the state's greatest resource — our people.

For example, the Teamwork West Tennessee project we initiated three years ago now is producing dividends. Through the assistance of the Tennessee Valley Authority, computerized learning labs have been installed in five West Tennessee counties including Carroll, Haywood, and Madison.

The labs are being used for continuing education and literacy programs and are conveniently located in schools, public libraries, and even one hospital for easy access. Cooperative efforts like this are critical to the economic, social, and cultural success of our communities, particularly when we consider that 1.2 million Tennesseans over the age of 25 have less than a high school diploma and as many as 20 percent of those in the state's workforce lack the basic skills to be retained.

Equally important is the success of Tennessee's School-To-Work program, which was launched in 1990 to train high school students who plan to pass up college and enter the state's workforce. It is our expectation the program will ensure that the state maintains a vibrant, skilled workforce.

Tennessee's School-To-Work program was recently recognized as one of our nation's 11 best. The recognition came in the Secretary's Commission on Achieving Necessary Skills report released by the U.S. Department of Labor. The SCANS report is the result of a two-year study designed to look at ways to make sure America's workforce has the skills it needs to compete in the 21st Century.

School-To-Work programs are in place in Haywood, Tipton, Lauderdale, Weakley, Dyer, Crockett, and Carroll counties in the Eighth Congressional District. A skilled workforce is critical to economic development plans and attracting good-paying jobs.

We also are working to get a job corps training center for Memphis that would serve West Tennessee. Now there are only two centers in Tennessee and both are in East Tennessee in Bristol and Knoxville. Only 1,230 young people are trained and educated in those two centers, while roughly 114,000 impoverished youth live in Tennessee. In fact, many of our people are forced to travel out of state to obtain this training.

I've said before that job training and education are viable steps toward welfare reform that can help ensure a skilled workforce for the future.

We must never stop working to make sure we have the most skilled workforce, the best schools, the best health care, and the best roads. That's the only way we can hold onto our technological edge in a global economy and ensure that we improve our competitive position in an expanding marketplace.

Mourning

ROGER CHAREST was installed as Governor of Rotary District No. 6760 on Monday evening, June 29th at his home clubs' annual Installation of Officers and Partners night.

Sixty-four were in attendance at the event that was held at the Tupperware Recreation Building and catered by ARA services. In addition to club members and their guest were district representatives from other clubs and Past District Governors who came to witness the installation.

Past District Governor, Fred Faulk, of the Ripley Rotary Club, performed the installation ceremony for Governor Roger and did the same for incoming Halls-Gates Rotary Club President, Shea Harris, and her incoming officers and Board of Directors.

Past District Governor, Charles Laine, made a combined motivational speech along with humorous jokes and related Rotary stories. Governor Laine is a member of the Rotary Club of Franklin (Noon).

Assuming his official duties on July 1st, 1992, his major concern will be 'add membership to existing clubs as well as adding clubs in areas deemed able to support a new Rotary club, increasing contribution to the Rotary Foundation and supporting Rotary International's many projects throughout the Rotary World, within the capabilities of District 6760.

There are 39 counties in District 6760 with 57 Rotary Clubs in 34 counties, plus 4 clubs in the process of being formed.

Rotary Clubs in District 6760 are involved in many community service activities throughout the district.

The outgoing District Governor, Dr. Allen (Al) Williams, has served since July 1st, 1991.

Rotary International is an organization of business and professional leaders united worldwide which provided humanitarian service, encourages high ethical standards in all vocations, and promotes international understanding and good will. There are more than 1,138,918 men and women in 25,715 clubs throughout the world, representing 184 countries and geographical regions.

A member of the Rotary Club of Halls-Gates, Charest served as charter president and first full year president of his club, chartered March 30th, 1979. He is the Vice President of Security Bancorp of Tennessee, Inc., and the Bank of Halls. History Recalled

DYERSBURG ARMY AIR BASE, at Halls, has been approved by the Tennessee-Historical Commission for a historical site, on June 19th, 1992.

The drive to get approval for the designation as a historical site was led by Earl Willoughby, a member of the Dyer County Historical Society's Board of Directors. Later, according to Willoughby, the society will work to get a monument erected at the site in Dyersburg where, in 1945, two B-17s collided near the current industrial complex.

Willoughby is working closely with the local effort to establish the Dyersburg Army Air Base Memorial Association. Since this is the 50th anniversary of the construction of DAAB, the organizers feel it is most appropriate to erect the marker and establish the association this year.

The air base marker will be located on the south-bound side of U.S. 51, about a tenth of a mile south of highway mile marker number 22 and will read as follows: "The airfield located one-half mile east of here was in operation from 1942-1945. Thousands of airmen took their last state-side training here before going into combat overseas. Training received here in flying B-17 Flying Fortresses played a key role in preparing U.S. bomber crews for combat in World War II."

Contributions to pay for the marker can be mailed to the Dyer County Historical Society in care of First Citizens National Bank, Box 370, Dyersburg, TN 38025-0370. Locally, contributors may contact Pat Higdon or Martha Crites.

In the photo, furnished by Tim Bivens, of Dyersburg, is a B-17G bomber from the base.

County Holds Tax Rate With COLA, Insurance

County Commissioners Monday unanimously adopted a budget up 17%, to $21,931,385, but held the real estate tax rate at $2.33 per $100 assessed valuation. The wheel tax remains $25.

The budget includes a 4% cost-of-living increase, from July 1st, for hourly wage workers (and the Commissioners, from Sept. 1st), but not for full-time elected officials, whose salaries are set by state law.

Under state law, census figures bring General Sessions Judge Billy Wayne Williams a 2% increase, to $33,280 a year, Sept. 1st.

The budget also includes the county's offering to pay half the cost of health insurance for hourly wage workers noted above, through a group plan awarded to Dolan Craig, Ripley insurance agent. No group insurance has previously been offered to them. Some workers, already covered under other insurance from another source, such as a spouse's employment, are declining the county group.

The budget adds $5 a day to the payment of election workers, to $40 (for those who attend training), and to $45 for polling place officers. Election Commissioners will earn $45, instead of $30, for each meeting they attend (normally three or four per election).

The budget funds two new deputies in the sheriff's department and adds $2,000 a year to bring the salaries of six jailers from $13,124 to $15,124 each.

Down the road, the urgent need for a new jail, to meet county needs and state and federal standards (probably impossible on the present site at West Jackson and Monroe in Ripley), is part of the concern which County Executive Gwinn Matthews noted about drawing down the carry-over funds, which under the new budget will fall to about $491,000, historically a low level.

These aren't just left-over funds; they give the county a "cushion" with which to pay bills, including some big ones, which do not come in evenly during the year, and await reimbursements (often late, sometimes uncertain) from state and federal sources.

The first payment of state funds for county schools, a big part of the budget, is not expected here until September.

Paul Meadows, county trustee, almost daily invests all surplus funds, through county banks, to earn interest until they are needed to meet county obligations.

In the new budget, general fund expenses are up $218,000, which would have added 21 cents to the $2.33 tax rate, except for dipping into carry-over funds and adjusting the projections of revenues.

No one can predict revenues, but county budget estimates have usually been far on the conservative side.

In the previous fiscal year, budgeted revenue of $491,000 was easily topped by actual revenue of more than $600,000.

Budget planners are confident that despite a depressed economy, revenues will this year hit about $700,000, without increasing county taxes, and easily cover the general fund increases.

Public Meeting Will Weigh Prison Farm Timber Cuts

After Steve Brabec, of Ripley, Area Forester for the state, briefed County Commissioners in their monthly meeting Monday on plans for timber cutting on Fort Pillow State Prison Farm, he was asked to make a similar presentation at a public meeting of residents of the area, in the area, which is now being arranged, with ample notice to be given.

Brabec and Terry Mills, farm manager at the Prison Farm, came to the Commission meeting Monday to respond to a resolution the Commission adopted last month, submitted by Commissioner Carmon Garrison, with a petition with more than 200 names, objecting to plans to cut timber on the prison farm's 1,680 acres of timber.

Brabec said the state Dept. of Corrections asked the state Division of Forestry in 1989 to develop a plan for management of the prison farm's timber.

The plan divided the farm's timber into 90 stands of from eight to 32 acres each to be managed over a period of 60 years.

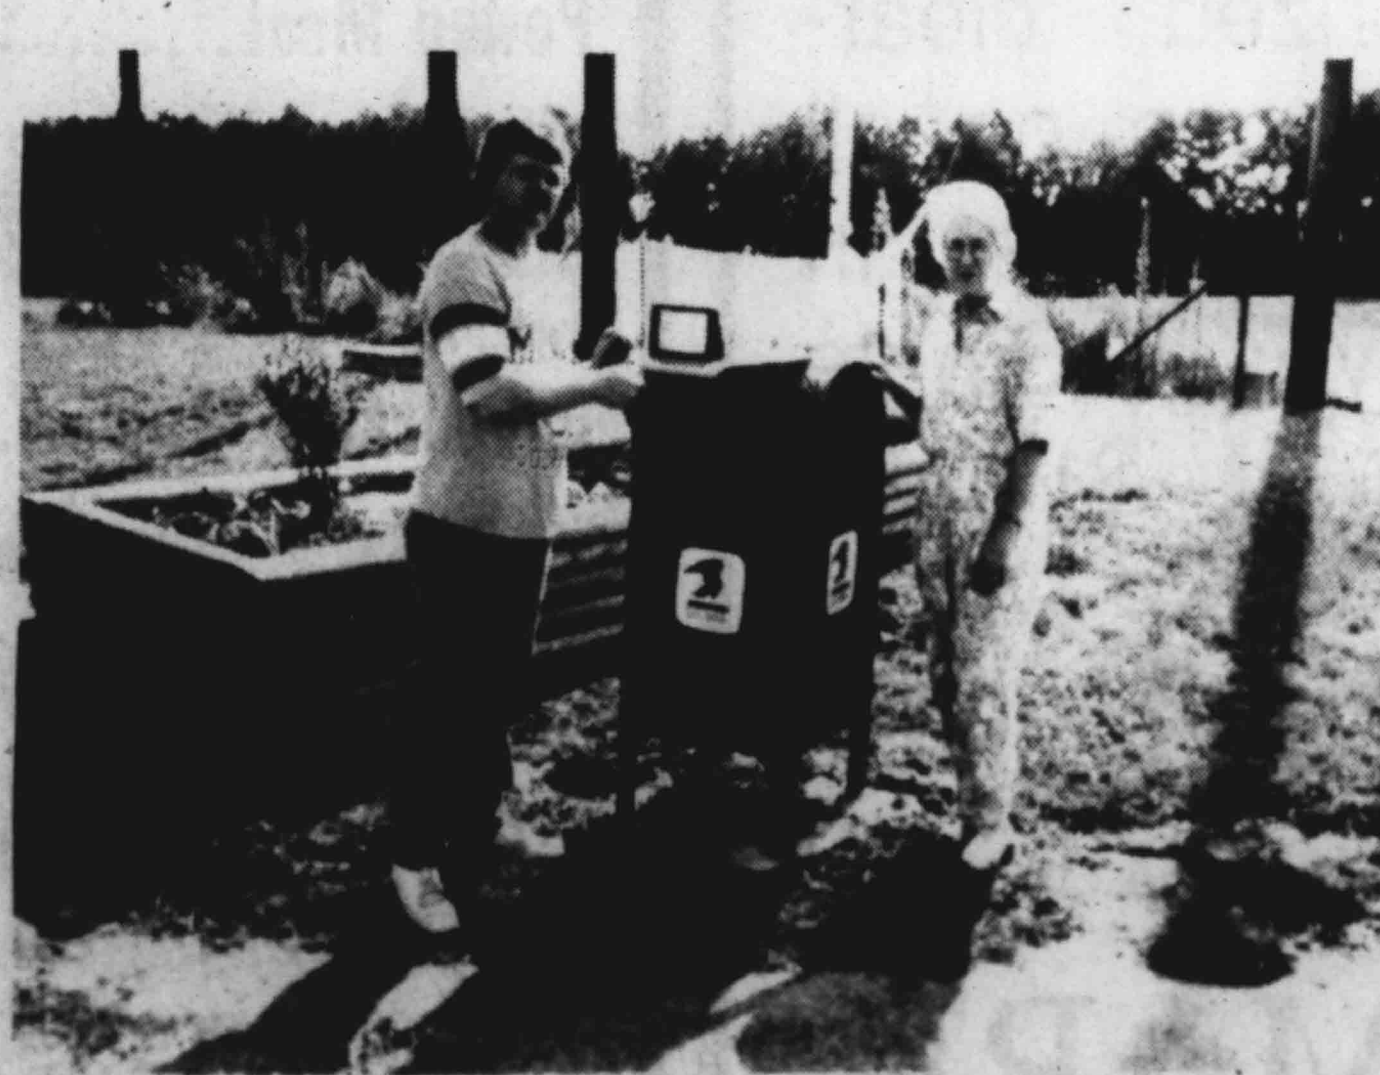

Cutting 60 to 80 acres every two to three years (3% to 4% of total timbered area per harvest) is planned to remove trees which will have no further productive growth and give room for new trees to grow, on a 60-year cycle.

Clear-cutting is proposed for these harvests because selective cutting would not leave room for high quality seedlings to develop, Brabec says.

Brabec said the plan would improve wild-life habitat by providing a variety of forest areas in various stages of development, from seedlings and saplings to mature trees.

Brabec said any logging on the area would have to meet state standards to avoid any harm to Cole Creek, the Hatchie River, or other major streams.

Pharmacy Topics
Youngsters with chicken pox seem to get a shorter breakout phase with acyclovir, the herpes drug, "The New England Journal of Medicine" reports. Lesions were cleared in just four days.
No need to be embarrassed about old tattoos. A q-switch ruby laser can remove them, say doctors at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center, Worcester. Method is quick and probably less painful than getting the tattoo in the first place.
Taxol, the tree-bark medicine used against ovarian cancer, seems to be effective for the treatment of breast cancer, too. Study at the M.S. Anderson Cancer Center in Houston reported complete or partial remission in almost half the cases.
Doctors at the Bronx Veterans Administration Medical Center in New York found two reasons ulcer patients shouldn't drink alcohol. The drink aggravates the ulcer, and anti-ulcer drugs slow down gastric acids so more alcohol goes to the brain, making the drinker more drunk.

- 40-ton airplane

Make a guess before you read the next paragraph. The answer means a lot to the cost of your everyday living.

Here are the facts. A dollar's worth of fuel moves two 20-ton trucks less than 12 miles, a 40-ton airplane a bit better than 3 miles, and a 40-ton box car 150 miles.

Does this help to explain why railroads like the Illinois Central perform three times as much freight service as any other form of domestic transportation?

Does it make clear why millions of American families believe that railroads help keep down the cost of almost everything people buy?

It does, indeed. It also makes clear why the Illinois Central looks forward to constantly improving its services and earning the right to handle more and more business for its friends and neighbors throughout Mid-America.

Crops Off To A Fast Start

By William G. "Jerry" Parker Extension Leader
Spring weather in Tennessee was more accommodating for planting row crops than in any of the past three years. Unlike the past three years, when the weather was too wet or too dry and farmers were forced to make last minute changes in planting intentions, farmers began planting in April and surged ahead of schedule by mid-month. As this planting season ends with the last of the double-crop soybeans in the ground, cotton, and tobacco acreage will exceed 1991 levels; grain sorghum acreage will be unchanged from a year ago; and soybean acreage will be below last year by 100,000 acres. The 1992 total planted acreage of soybeans, corn, cotton, sorghum, and tobacco is 1% larger than in 1991, but 2% smaller than in 1990.

Growing conditions have been generally favorable for crops, but weeds, insects and various diseases have presented problems. Corn is in good-to-excellent condition, cotton is good, and the other crops are in mostly good condition.

Cotton Acreage Rising

Cotton continued to find favor with farmers in 1992 after a record-setting year in 1991. The 625,000 acres this year is the most cotton planted since 1954 and corresponds to 620,000 acres planted in 1991. Lauderdale County has about 9% of the total. Last year's surprising record production coupled with good planting conditions this spring gave farmers the incentive to plant even more cotton in 1992. Cotton reached the squaring stage, slightly ahead of last year and is rated in fair condition. Weed control has been difficult because herbicides were ineffective during the early planting season when the weather was dry.

Burley More Popular

Burley tobacco, the top cash crop in 1991, was set on 59,000 acres, up 9% from last year, and the most acreage since 1984. Growers were encouraged by last year's good yields and favorable prices. Most of the acreage boost comes from large operations getting larger, but a notable number of farmers also are growing this crop for the first time in years. Numerous disease problems have left the crop in fair condition, but control measures and sunshine should insure a good crop.

Soybeans In Decline

Farmers have scaled back soybeans for the second consecutive year. Acreage devoted to soybeans in 1992 will total 1.0 million acres, down 100,000 from 1991 and the lowest acreage since 1966. This results from growers viewing corn and cotton as better economic choices.

County Cannery Open

County Commissioners once again encourage constituents to use the Public Canning Facility in Ripley's South Industrial Park. The use of the facility is free to the public. Hours of operation are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday and Wednesday and 7 a.m. to noon Saturday.

USMEF managed more than 10,000 promotions in 1991, including the operation of 1,200 U.S. meat shops in Japanese supermarkets, cooking contests and consumer seminars. Thanks to the U.S. beef industry's long-term commitment to international market development, per capita beef consumption in Japan has tripled in less than two decades and jumped another eight percent in 1991 alone.

"There's plenty of evidence that American business can compete in the Japanese market by working within the system," says Seng. "It's time we rolled up our shirt sleeves and turned down the rhetoric."

QUICK QUIZ

Is The Japanese Market Really Impregnable?

Question: What U.S. industry holds 22 percent of the Japanese market, has increased its sales nearly 60 percent in the last decade and expects to increase its market another 250 percent before the year 2000 (a) the computer industry (b) the textile industry (c) the beef industry?

Answer: The answer is (c), the beef industry, which in 1991 registered a record-shattering $1.2 billion in exports to Japan. By implementing a strategic 15-year master plan, the American beef industry successfully brought down the curtain on restrictive trade quotas blocking access to Japan's highly protected consumer beef market.

How did it do it? According to Philip M. Seng, president and chief executive officer of the U.S. Meat Export Federation (USMEF), the U.S. beef industry's successful penetration of the Japanese market was underpinned by patience, commitment and three strategies: learning the Japanese market; cultivating alliances with consumers and business leaders; and delivering quality products tailored to the Japanese market.

The USMEF-directed campaign channeled $37 million over the last seven years to develop the beef market in Japan, resulting in $5.6 billion in sales. This investment has been funded primarily by the industry's own beef check-off program and USDA export assistance programs.

Seng said one of USMEF's most critical strategies was to generate support from the Japanese hotel and restaurant industry and retail sectors, where premium-grade U.S. beef represented an attractive alternative to the limited supply of higher-priced domestic beef.

In addition, the U.S. tailored its

Congressman JOHN TANNER REPORTS TO THE EIGHTH DISTRICT

TANNER RAISES SECURITY QUESTIONS ABOUT PROPOSED SALE OF LTV Corp. TO FIRM PART-OWNED BY THE FENCH GOVERNMENT

Last week the House Armed Services Committee's investigations panel, on which I serve, held its second hearing regarding the proposed sale of LTV Corporation's missile division to Thomson CSF, a company half-owned by the French government. The Carlyle Group, an investment banking firm in which former Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci is a partner, is also involved in the deal with Thomson. Should the deal be approved Carlyle would take over LTV's aerospace structures group. The problem we face is ground in the fact that LTV is a significant U.S. defense company. And as Theodore H. Moran, a professor at Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service, testified: "... The LTV case fits precisely into that narrow range of exceptions to the free flow on investment in which the foreign acquisition should be blocked. "Indeed, it is difficult to imagine any exception more clear cut than this." LTV manufactures missiles and their related components as well as aerospace structures. It can be said without fear of contradiction that these are critical defense tools of which there are "few (if any) alternative suppliers worldwide," as Moran suggested in his written testimony. So the question has become whether the U.S. government, assuming it approves this sale, could assure that the American subsidiary would be so well insulated from its foreign owners that the risks of disclosure of sensitive technology to the French government would be nonexistent. Our national security could be at stake. In May, Paul Beach, the Department of Defense general counsel, assured us there would be no threat to our national security and, in fact, that defense technology possessed by the American subsidiary would be fully insulated from its foreign owners. My experience leads me to be a bit more skeptical. We should err on the side of caution with respect to this proposed sale. In fact, Joseph E. Kelley, a director in the National Security and International Affairs Division of the General Accounting Office, told our panel he would recommend that the sale not be approved. That might not be such an easy conclusion were it not for the fact that American-owned Martin-Marietta Corp. stands by with the second highest bid for LTV. A multi-agency committee is expected to decide by July 5 whether the takeover would jeopardize our national security. The bottom line is whether we can risk the disclosure of sensitive technology to a government that in the past has exhibited a willingness to be our friend only when it suits its purposes. Their dealings with Iraq raise questions. They re-

Paschal Outlines More Services
F. H. Paschal, County Agent, Lauderdale County farmers this year have a guaranteed price of 80c for cotton, $2.04 for soybeans, $1.45 for corn, and guaranteed prices at 90 percent of Parity for hogs, beef cattle, eggs, and other commodities. This puts farmers and the other people in Lauderdale County on a much more secure basis than they had after the first World War. These and other advantages are provided and administered through about 10 major government agencies and farm organizations not one of which was in existence 35 years ago. We continue the list started last week. 4. Production and Marketing Administration, formerly called the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. The first Law was passed in 1934 and declared unconstitutional. The second Law was passed in 1938, which still holds. The Law administered by this agency provide for the control of acreage of basic crops, cotton, corn, wheat, tobacco and potatoes under specified conditions and by a two-thirds vote of producers. Whenever acreage of these crops is limited, prices have a floor under them, except during a war emergency when prices are guaranteed to certain levels without acreage control. Price guarantee programs are made effective through the Commodity Credit Corporation, a two billion dollar corporation. The PMA provides information to CCC and otherwise helps them make cotton and other loans or purchases to hold prices up for farmers. The PMA also makes payments to farmers for liming land, terracing, and other soil conservation cover crops, and carrying out other soil building practices. The future of our civilization depends on the top 6 inches of the soil of the United States which we are still allowing to wash away at a dangerous rate. These payments are made to encourage land owners to practice soil conservation methods for the benefit of future generations of Americans who must live off this same land. Crop insurance on cotton is administered by PMA. The authority for directing this agency in the county is vested in a Committee of three farmers elected each year by interested parties. This Committee is now made up of R. I. Garrett, A. O. Chambers, and William Hall. The office work is directed by Mrs. Sarah Miller, assisted by Mrs. Lois Gamble. The County Agent is an ex officio member of the County Committee for this agency and is required to do the educational work for it, keeping farmers informed of the provisions of the various programs. The PMA office is now in the basement of the Court House where the Register-Banner is published. The office workers and the per diem of the regular members of the Committee are paid by the Federal Government. 5. Farmers Home Administration, formerly the Farm Security and Emergency Crop Production Loan. This agency administers the provisions of the Bankhead-Jones Tenant Purchase Loans, making loans to worthy tenants to purchase farms on 40 years time at three and one half percent interest. Only a few loans are made each year, because of the limitations on cost of land and improvements, the type of land, etc. They also make loans to sharecroppers to purchase equipment on 5 years time at about four and one half percent interest and for production purposes on one year time. They further make what were formerly called "Feed-and-Seed Loans" for farmers who have been the victims of floods, droughts or other catastrophes, or who just cannot get credit from any other source, provided the land-owning farmer agrees to accept them in passing on loans. All PERSONALS G. H. Adams of Ft. Worth, Texas, is the guest of his nephew, Graham Adams of Crockett county, and other relatives here. . . . Mrs. A. S. Kenley and Mrs. Angela Hurt of Memphis spent the weekend with her grandpa—posed of three farmers to assist them, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Hurt.

Air Base Fans

Veterans Ed Boyer and wife, Martha, Annville, Pa., and Bill Johnson and his wife, Elsie, of Memphis, joined area veterans Joe Cepparulo, Floyd Baxter, Henry Boerner, Jr., and Tony Troiana and wife, Dale, to make plans during the second meeting of the Dyersburg Army Air Base Memorial Association. Local residents also welcomed Dyersburg Mayor Bill Revell, Representative Floyd Crain, and Jimmy McCall, of Memphis. The Site Committee reported that the Medlin Equipment Company agreed to donate the former base treatment plant. This plant will be first development site for the organization. The fund for the historical marker designating DAAB as a historical site has received additional contributions from the Lauderdale County Executive office, Wymond Moore, Gale Cavnessa, and Leroy Neal. The State paid $550 of the cost with the Dyers County Historical County contributing $200. The group now lacks only $140 to get the $1100 marker delivered. With the publication of the second newsletter on July 27th, the 1992-93 membership drive begins. After reviewing the membership fees of similar organizations, the group agreed on the following fees: regular membership is $30; Supporting, $300; business, $100; and Corporate, $500. In addition, a $1000 lifetime membership for individuals was approved. Labor Day Weekend will launch activities for the Association. On Friday, September 4th, at 8 p.m., a 1940's dance will be held on the airbase in the Herbert Brown's Recreation Building. The Veterans' Band of Memphis, featuring Dr. Stuart Louis Nunn, formerly of Ripley, and Kathy Daws Gardner, formerly of Halls, will play. Then, on Sunday, September 6th, a 1 p.m., catered Barbecue lunch at the Halls Elementary School will provide food and fellowship for area residents and visiting veterans and guests. Following the luncheon, the marker will be displayed, the ceremony installing the marker on Highway 51 will conclude the weekend activities. After August 3rd, tickets will be on sale for both events and may be bought at most banks in Dyersburg, Halls, and Ripley or from Pat Higdon, Martha Crites, or Tim Bivens. The next regular meeting will be held October 6th, at Halls High School.

GATES held its first July 4th celebration on the grounds of the old Gates School. Fifteen shoulders, provided by the Gates Volunteer Fire Department, were cooked by Boe Dancy and sold to raise money for the new uniforms for the Fire Department. Mr. and Mrs. Gene Patton were in charge of the kitchen. Contests included sack and relay races and a greased pig contest (the pig donated by the Tommy Moore family). Door prizes were given as the event raised $1,964. Entertainment was provided by Bill Kelly, Johnny Kerby and living in the Florida family home that was built before the Civil War. He was a deacon and former Sunday School teacher in Fork Creek Presbyterian Church. Besides Mrs. Alsbrook, he leaves a daughter, Amy Frances Spence, and a brother, Jack, of Cambria, Calif. He was preceded in death by his parents, Eula and Lawson Spence, and two brothers, Claude Spence and Lawson Spence, Jr. Attending services were Jack Spence, of Cambria, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Lawson Spence and daughter, Leigh, of Dunwoody, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Michael Mason and children, Tip and Lawson, of Helena, Ala.; Miss Alice Coulter and Charlie Coulter, of Nashville; Dr. Cary Alsbrook and his son, Edward, of Murfreesboro; Mrs. James R. Chickasaw Bluff's History Recalled
Members and guests of the Lauderdale County Historical Society met Sunday at Fort Pilow State Park to hear Lee Christian discuss the history of the First Chickasaw Bluff. Christian, a historian for the State Park Service and a student in Memphis State University recounted the earliest recorded visit to the Bluff, that of the exploration party of LaSalle. The LaSalle visit, he said, resulted in area construction of Fort Prudhomme, named for the armorer who was lost in the area while hunting. He pointed out that there was evidence, however, of a Mayan Indian settlement there much earlier than LaSalle. His remarks included the founding of Fulton, the purpose for building Fort Pillow in 1861, and the controversy over the battle in 1864. Among 28 members and guests who registered was Mrs. Lucy Spiceland, of Sterling, Ill., guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Dickinson, of Denmark, Tenn. Others from out of the county included Mr. and Mrs. James O. Cox, Mrs. Clarice Hellum, and

A controversial conclusion from statistics gathered by the National Institute on Aging: The figures suggest that gaining a pound a year is associated with the lowest risk of death in people who began putting on weight when they were slim and healthy. Many doctors will disagree. High intake of wheat bran - raising total fiber to 30 mg. a day - seems to lower levels of estrogen. Researchers at the American Health Foundation, Valhalla, New York, suggest that lowering the hormone may protect against breast cancer. Even elderly patients with bowel cancer may benefit from surgery, doctors from Strasburg, France, report. Except for older patients who had life-threatening complications that required emergency surgery, the over-80 patients responded almost as well as younger ones. Use enough sunscreen for protection, about an ounce per application, the Skin Cancer Foundation warns. And toss out old sunscreen. Most formulations won't hold up more than two years. REPORTS TO THE
EIGHTH DISTRICT

SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFICIARIES SHOULD BE WARY OF SCAMS AND FALSE ADVERTISING CLAIMS

The House Ways and Means Committee's social security and oversight panels recently held hearings on a growing problem facing our nation's elderly, disabled, and poor.

Increasingly, Social Security beneficiaries, and even Medicare recipients in some cases, are finding themselves the unwitting targets of scam artists and misleading advertising practices promising to protect their benefits. The fact is that these private organizations in most cases, if not all, are designed more to bilk them out of part of their monthly check than to ensure the continued existence of such benefits.

These practices generally involve four areas: Fundraising efforts seeking $5, $10, or $25 to protect their benefits are simply ripoffs. SSA officials say these marketing schemes typically are designed to persuade people that the "must" send money to a given organization to "protect" the social security or Medicare benefits they are legally entitled to receive.

The practical effect of these practices is to play on the fears of recipients who might worry about whether they will lose all or part of their benefits.

Every Tennessee recipient should be aware that fundraising efforts seeking $5, $10, or $25 to protect their benefits are simply ripoffs. SSA officials say these marketing schemes typically are designed to persuade people that the "must" send money to a given organization to "protect" the social security or Medicare benefits they are legally entitled to receive.

Such contributions simply are not necessary.

Charges for services offered or information available from the SSA may be the most common area of abuse, some say. Often firms will offer to "assist" you in conducting your social security business — for a fee. For instance, for fees up to, say $50, firms will offer to get newborns social security numbers, notify the SSA of name changes for brides, or even obtain earnings or benefit statements.

The problem with this, officials tell us, is that all of these services are offered free of charge simply by calling the SSA's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213, between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. on weekdays. Social Security Administration Commissioner Gwendolyn S. King recently testified that the "practical effect (of these firms' pitches) is to delay the process, and there are no guarantees consumers will even get the service they paid for."

A third problem area has emerged with the evolution of 900 number telephone technology. Ms. King explained one example.

She said SSA officials are aware of one example involving an 800-number listing for Social Security and Medicare information. The listing appeared in telephone books across the country and was usually in the government section of the phone book near the SSA's own number.

The problem with this is when that 800 number was dialed, she said, the caller heard a message instructing he or she to call a 900 number, which is clearly not toll free. Dialing the 900 number, the caller would hear a series of recorded messages costing $4.99 for the first minute and $1 for every minute after. Ms. King has said this particular firm's practice was stopped and the company was fined $180,000.

Another problem exists when private firms send out mailings with envelopes stamped "Important Social Security Information." Typically, the mailing will offer some information about Social Security and then launch into a sales pitch for an insurance policy among other things. The U.S. Postal Service is working closely with the SSA to try to stop this kind of misleading practice.

Right now, public advocacy groups and the SSA are trying to spread the word particularly to Social Security and Medicare beneficiaries who are usually targeted by these private firms with often dubious claims and offers. The message on this is simply be careful.

Anyone who receives misleading information about Social Security from a private organization should send the entire solicitation to the Social Security Administration's Office of Public Affairs, Misleading Advertising, Post Office Box 17740, Baltimore, Maryland, 21235.
