Going To Russia

HARPIST Bill Butner, of Memphis, formerly of Ripley, has been invited to go on a two week tour with movie star Shirley Jones. His first performance, with a symphony orchestra from Washington, D. C., will be at Carnegie Hall in New York. From there, they will go to Moscow and St. Petersburg, Russia. He will be leaving the early part of December. He is a member of Ripley's Thursday Evening Musicale.

Sheriff Resigning? No Move Made Yet

Sheriff Jerry Crain, under investigation for civil rights violations, had not resigned, as this newspaper went to press early Wednesday morning.

A front page splash in the Memphis Commercial Appeal Friday said that County Executive Gwinn Matthews expected Crain's resignation Friday. It didn't happen.

Federal Bureau of Investigation Special Agent Ed Bradberry, of Memphis, confirms that the FBI has investigated civil rights complaints in this county, as in many other counties in West Tennessee.

But Bradberry says he can be quoted as saying the FBI "has never requested that Crain resign."

Results of FBI investigations are supplied, Bradberry notes, to the U.S. district attorney for action.

Ed Bryant, of Jackson, now holds that office.

Bryant declined Tuesday to confirm or deny that he has engaged in plea bargaining with Crain.

Bill Kelly and Mrs. Fred Jackson played the organ as those present were served cake and fruit punch.

The Trophy Shop in Halls sent a plaque, reading "Gates Public Library, Frewl B. Buffaloe, Director, Founded By Homecoming '86, Established July 8, 1992."

Anderson Hickey donated book cases. Mr. and Mrs. Boe Dancy gave a child's table with six chairs in memory of Shirley's father, the late Bill Doop. They also gave several pictures.

A number of books have been donated to join books supplied by the Forked Deer Regional Library. Miss Betty Goff, director, and Mrs. Marsha Chambers, on the Staff of the Regional Library, have helped with establishing the facility and cataloging the books.

The library is open Monday through Friday, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. It is hoped to have it open on Saturday soon.

Congressman

JOHN TANNER REPORTS TO THE EIGHTH DISTRICT

THE ELECTORAL COLLEGE: ELECTING A PRESIDENT; Its History, And How It Works

When Tennesseans go to the polls on November 3rd to cast their votes for President, many may not know that they don't vote directly for the President and Vice President.

The reason: The Electoral College. Each state has as many electoral votes as the total of its senators and representatives in Congress. Tennessee has 11.

The presidential candidate who wins a plurality of votes in the popular election typically receives all that state's electoral votes. Every vote counts. Participation is key. So, if your candidate wins the popular vote he likely will receive all that state's electoral votes. For Tennessee, the exception, however, was 1948 when Tennessee had 12 electoral votes. The electors split with 11 in favor of Harry S Truman, the eventual winner, and one for Strom Thurmond of South Carolina.

It wasn't until the 1824 presidential election that popular votes were cast. Our Founding Fathers at the Constitutional Convention in 1787 were faced with difficulties in developing a procedure to elect the president.

The Convention rejected a proposal calling for the Congress to elect the president. It also rejected a plan allowing the people to elect the president. The solution was an indirect popular election — the Electoral College.

The presidential election process goes like this: The American public goes to the polls and votes. In December, state electors usually meet in the state's capitol city and cast their ballots for President and Vice President.

Then in January at a joint session of the House of Representatives, the president of the Senate opens the certificates from the 50 states. The candidate who wins the most electoral votes is declared president. If no candidate has a majority, state delegations in the House, each with one vote, cast ballots to decide the presidency. In that case, 26 votes would be necessary to win.

It's important to remember that the dynamics of the Electoral College generally only come into play in tight presidential elections.

Ironically, it was the 1824 election when the first of three disputes opened the door to critics of the Electoral College.

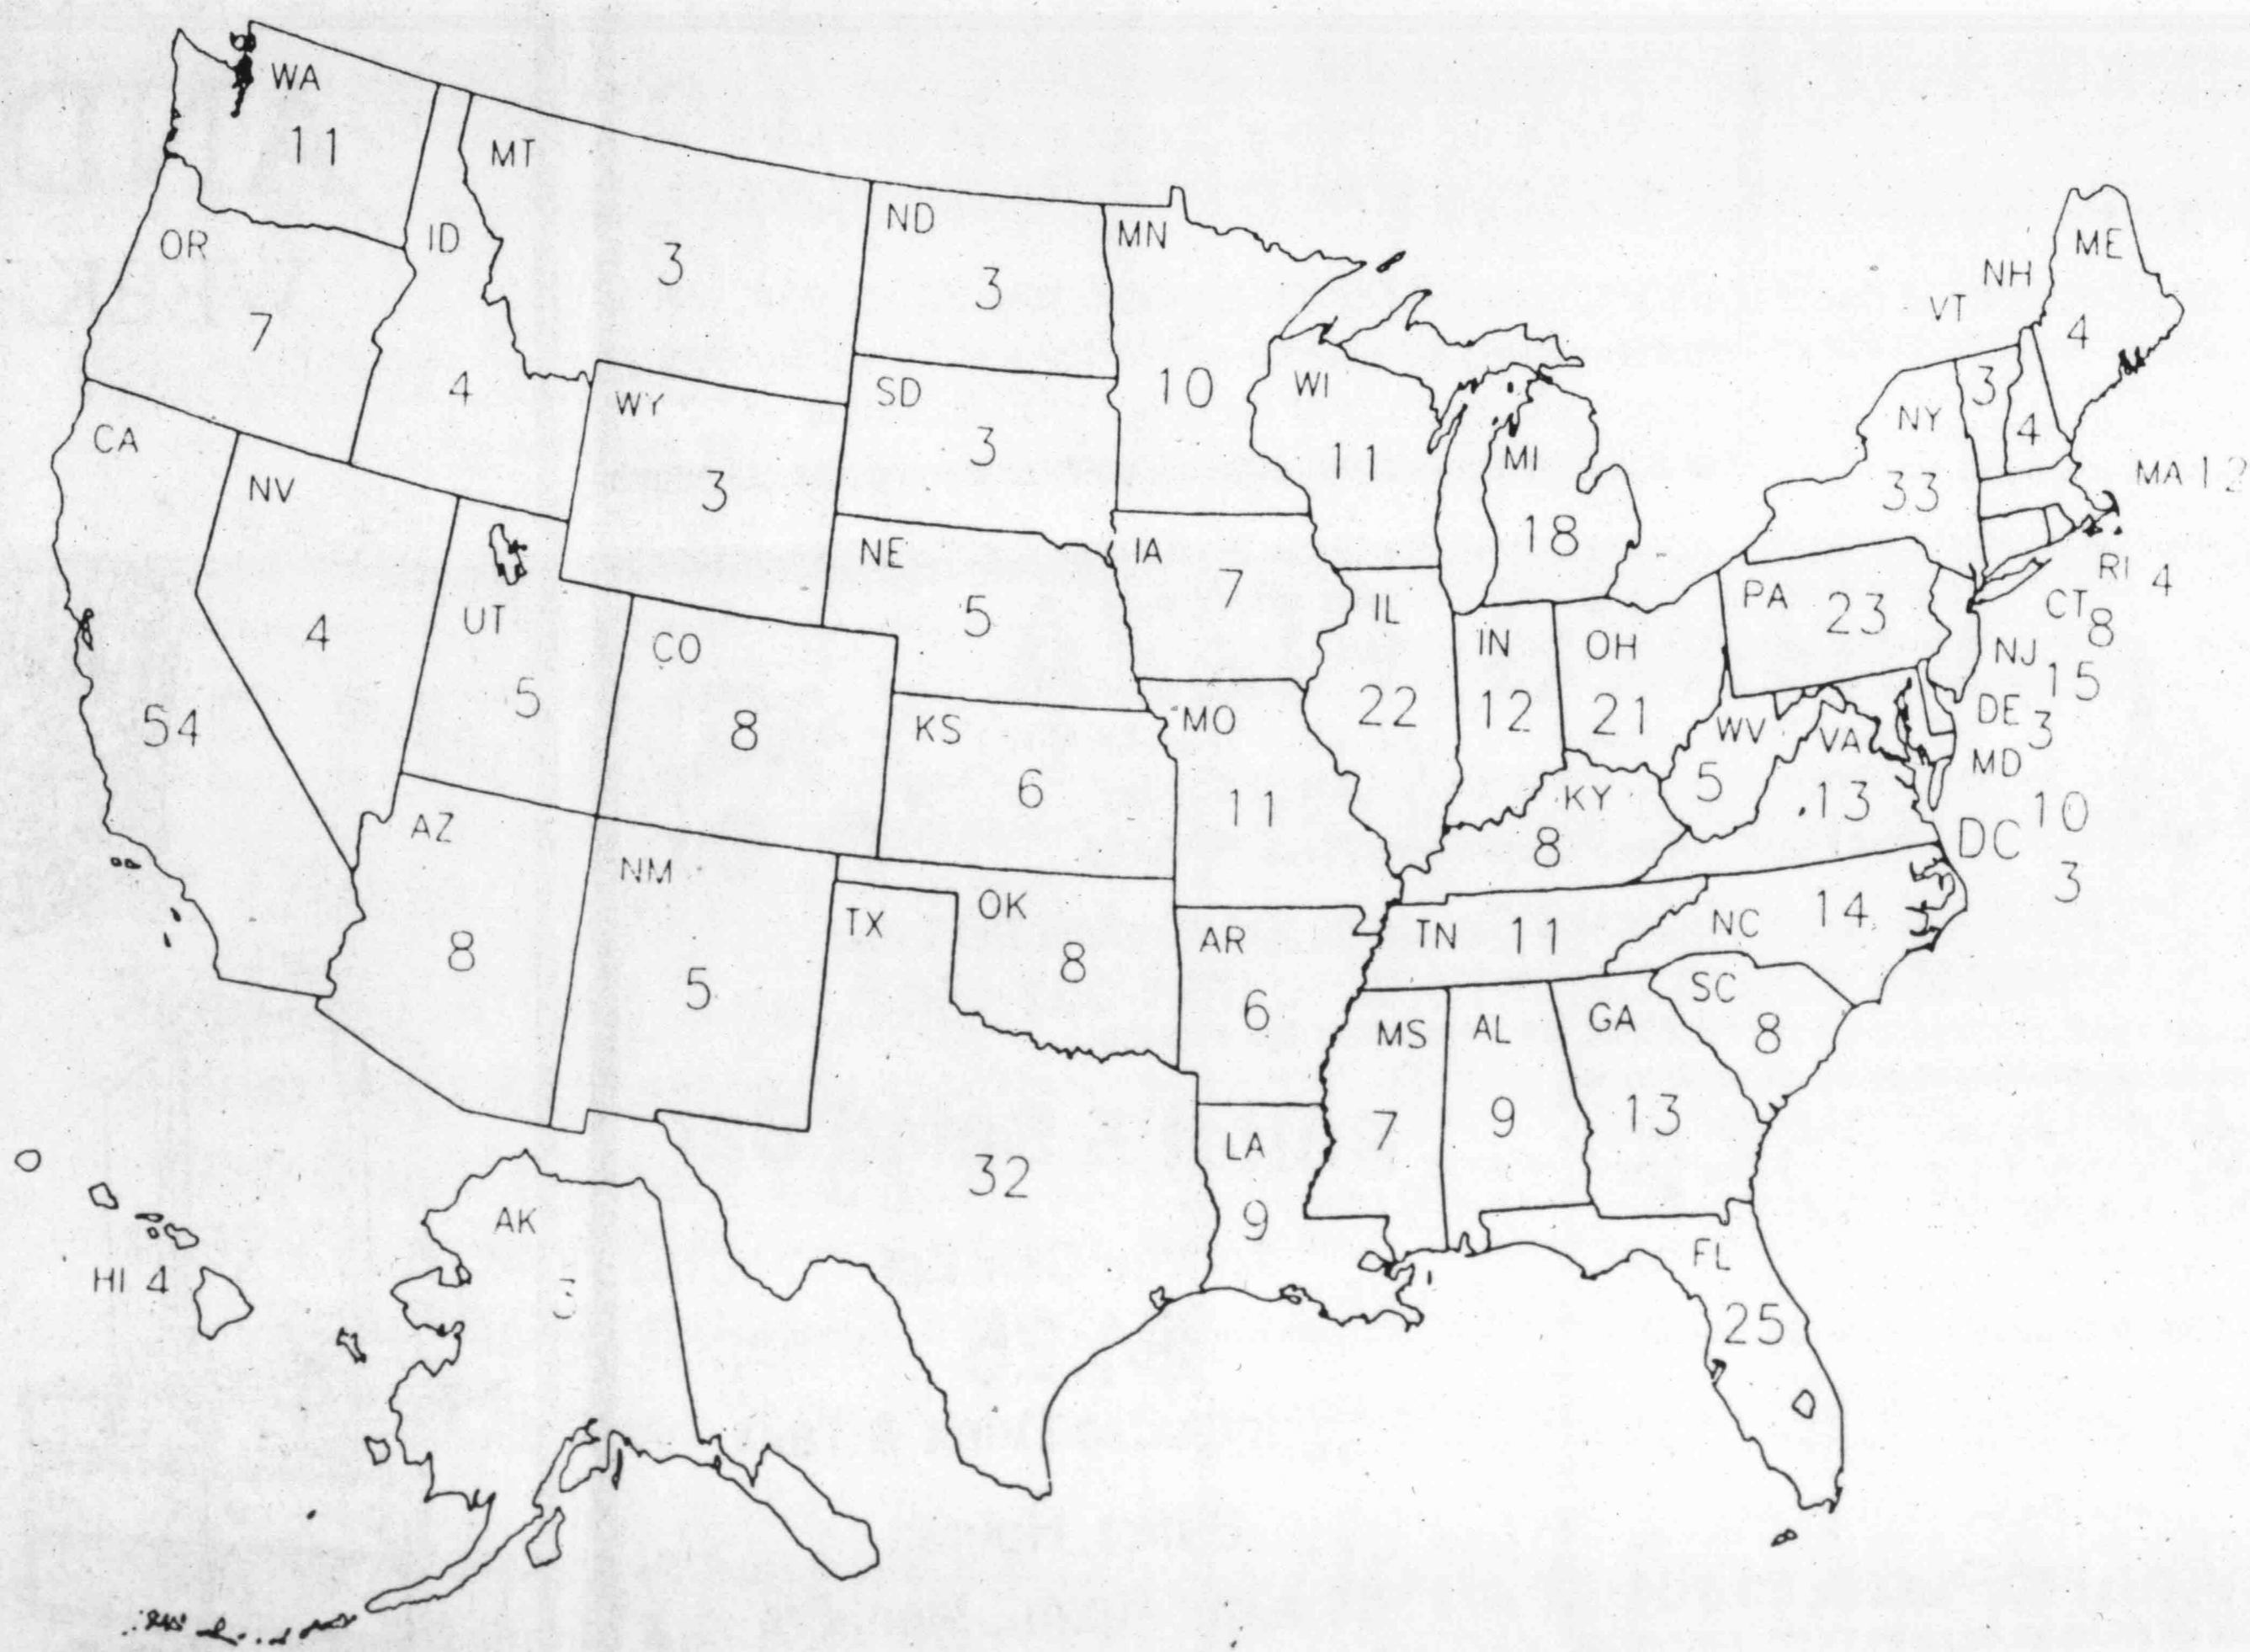

In that election Andrew Jackson received more electoral votes than the three others in the race. However, it was not a majority. John Quincy Adams was the runner-up, and Henry Clay was another candidate. Clay subsequently threw his support to Adams, who became president despite Jackson's bigger popular vote.

Critics of the Electoral College point to this example of electoral deficiency. Since 1824 there have been two other men elected who failed to win a majority of the popular vote. Rutherford B. Hayes trailed Samuel Tilden in the popular vote in 1876, however, Hayes received a majority of the electoral vote and won. The same can be said for Benjamin Harrison, who trailed Grover Cleveland in 1888 in the popular vote.

Those three elections and the effects of population shifts to bigger states cause many to call for the Electoral College's abolishment and its replacement with a simple majority of the popular vote.

Questions about the Electoral College come up every four years. But others argue that without the Electoral College, the influence of small states like Tennessee and Arkansas on the outcome of presidential elections would be severely reduced because the College, particularly in past elections, has compensated states with smaller populations.

County Corn Great But Cotton Chancy

By W. G. 'Jerry' Parker
Extension Leader

County corn growers are reporting up to 200 bushels per acre on limited acreage.

Extension Service variety plots have yielded as high as 198 bushels.

Generally, however, corn is providing an excellent increase over last year's bushels per acre, with a projected 140 to 150 bushel average for 1992.

The county cotton crop started backward about July 20th, with cool, wet weather, boll weevil, and cloud cover.

Prospects are still pretty good, and the actual yield will not be known until the crop is harvested.

If October is warm and dry with sun shining, the cotton can be good.

Musical Program Enchants Group

James O. Cox, born at Curve, and his wife, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Avery, of Gates, presented a musical program when the Lauderdale County Historical Society met Sept. 20th in Halls Community Center. They reside in Memphis, where Mrs. Cox, who holds undergraduate and graduate degrees in music from Memphis State University, teaches piano.

Mr. Cox narrated the program, The Songs We Sang, as his wife began the program with Sentimental Journey and closed with Good Night, Sweetheart.

Selections ranged from Green-sleeves, sung by the Mayflower pilgrims, to Are You Lonesome Tonight?, made famous by Elvis Presley.

Among those attending were Mrs. Cox's aunt, Mrs. J. H. Murchison, and Mr. Murchison, of Halls, and her uncle, Paul Avery, and Mrs. Avery, of Gates.

Other guests included Mrs. Eleanor Faye Bivens, of Jackson; Paul Childress, of Ripley; Mrs. E. M. Voss, of Gates; and Mrs. Jerre Jordan, Mrs. F. H. Paschal, and Mrs. J. W. Warren, Jr., of Halls.

Old musical instruments displayed included a Hawaiian-style violin, a mandolin, a harmonica, and a fife.

For Miles Around

By Murray Miles
Tennessee Farm Bureau

WHERE OUR MEAT AND BUTTER COMES FROM IN TENNESSEE

A couple of weeks ago, we pointed out that in 1991, Tennessee farmers received over a billion dollars in cash receipts from livestock, and $932 for their field crops. That's 52.8 percent for livestock and livestock products and 47.2 percent from field crops.

These figures only tell part of the story, however. Tennessee is a very diverse state when you have the delta like flat lands of west Tennessee to the rolling hills in middle Tennessee that get much more rolling when you get to east Tennessee.

Where are all the crops and livestock grown that created $3.9 billion of economic activity in the state last year? The Tennessee Agricultural Statistics Service recently issued their yearly summary by counties for 1991, and since livestock and livestock products are the top dollar makers, let's start with that.

Greene County heads the list with the most cattle and calves. This includes both beef and dairy. Greene County has 82,000 head grazing their lush hillsides. The next four counties are Maury, 72,000 head; Lincoln, 71,000; Giles, 70,000; and Robertson, 60,000. Four of the five are in middle Tennessee.

When you take just beef cows alone, the list changes a bit. Maury County jumps to the top with 35,000 head. Giles and Lincoln tie with 29,000, and Wilson and Greene tie with 27,000 each.

Greene County topped the first list because of their dairy industry. They are number one in that list with 13,900 dairy cows. McMinn comes in second with 11,000, and Washington is third with 8,500. All three of those are east Tennessee counties. The next two counties are tied with 8,000 head each. They are Lincoln and Marshall in middle Tennessee.

Now while beef and dairy cattle are on middle and east Tennessee farms, the top hog counties are in west Tennessee. That's because the feed for hogs is grown there as we'll point out in next week's column. The leading county in hogs is Weakley, with 59,000 head. Henderson is second with 35,000.

Next week, we'll cover the leading counties in crops, and you'll find, with the exception of tobacco, west Tennessee is the bread and corn flake basket of the state.

Brevities

Mayor and Mrs. Fred Kyser, of Woodburn, Ore., spent the weekend with Mrs. Frank Moore. They resided with the Moores while Fred was stationed at the Air Base in 1944.

Mrs. Junita Jimmerson, of Atlanta, Ga., spent the weekend before last with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Bill McGarrity. Mrs. Jimmerson visited in Memphis before returning to her home.

Among those from out-of-town attending the wedding of Miss Heather Hogue and William Scallions Sept. 19th in Halls First United Methodist Church, and the reception in the fellowship hall, were Mr. and Mrs. Jess Kendrick, Mr. and Mrs. Randy Kendrick, and Mrs. Dot Cochran, of Brownsville; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Sommer and Mr. and Mrs. Keven Hendren, of Memphis; and Mrs. Mike Gargus and Mrs. Mandy Gargus, of Fulton, Ky.

Pointers For Parents

Does your first grader know:
• How to use punctuation marks?
• How deciduous and evergreen plants differ?
Does your fourth grader know:
• What's the highest mountain in the U.S.?
• The three most famous classical composers from the 17th and 18th centuries?
Don't be surprised if they don't—but facts like these constitute a core of knowledge that is essential to success in high school, college and beyond, says educator E.D. Hirsch, author of the bestselling Cultural Literacy.

Hirsch advocates a grade-by-grade core of knowledge every child should know and outlines it in The Core Knowledge Series of Four books: What Your 1st Grader Needs To Know, What Your 2nd Grader Needs To Know (Doubleday, $17.50 each), What Your 3rd Grader Needs To Know and What Your 4th Grader Needs To Know (Doubleday, $20.00 each).

The series involved over 100 experts, 2,000 parents and teachers, and a multicultural advisory board. Each book focuses on American and World Civilization, Literature and Language; Fine Arts; Science and Technology; and Math and includes activity boxes and hundreds of illustrations.

TO: All Tupperware Employees

Dear Tupperware Friends:

All of us here at the Bank of Halls are deeply concerned over the announced closing of the Tupperware Manufacturing facility and the loss of jobs to our friends and neighbors. Some of our bank employees are directly affected, having spouses that presently work at Tupperware.

Now that the impending shutdown has been announced there are many institutions making pleas for your attention and proposing to advise you on where and how to best place your profit sharing.

As the oldest bank in Lauderdale county, the officers, directors and employees stand ready to serve you, understanding how difficult a time this is for all of you. With proven long term interest in Halls and the surrounding communities, we are committed to serving our customers and fellow citizens. Where you finally decide to invest your money is not as important as your being assured that you are doing what is best for you and your family.

Please feel free to make an appointment to see me or any of our officers to discuss your needs. As a former plant manager of Tupperware, I am familiar with some of you and known to most. Call and make an appointment or just stop by and we will discuss some options with the final decision being yours.

Sincerely,

Roger
