Jury: Death On Bluff Only Manslaughter

A Circuit Court jury, Wednesday of last week, astounded prosecutors and observers by convicting Jonathan Harris, 36, confessed killer of Catherine Covington, 22, not of murder, as charged, but of the lesser crime of manslaughter.

The jury found Harris guilty of attempted second degree murder of his brother, David, 26, and of theft of a truck from Ben Green.

Testimony: Catherine had a child by David before they broke up in summer, 2002.

She then began a relationship with Jonathan, living in Texas and Louisiana.

Jonathan returned to this county in November, 2002; Catherine soon joined him.

On Dec. 13-14, 2002, they took Ben Green's truck, and David drove on Hwy. 19, west of Arp, stopping, about 1 a.m., just above the bluff.

Jonathan's statement:

"Catherine gives me a kiss and says she loves me...I told her that I loved her very much and she would always be in my heart.

"Then I took the [.38 caliber] pistol out of the jacket pocket that she had on, placed it to her head, and brother and my wife. pulled the trigger.

"Then I turned the gun on my brother and told him that a rest area in Arkansas. I I loved him and would never called the Ripley Police Delet anyone ever come be- partment and told them tween us again, then closed my eyes and fired the gun...

of my mouth and pulled the trigger, but nothing happened.

"I drove the truck to the top of the hill, pulled to the side of the road, and removed them from the truck.

"I laid David on the ground first, because he was fully dressed.

"Then I laid Catherine on top of him, so she wouldn't have to lie on cold ground...I must have removed her shirt.

The bodies were discovered after dawn.

Catherine was dead. David survived but is confined to a wheel-chair, paralyzed below the waist, with little use of one arm.

Jonathan's statement:

"I couldn't find the gun anywhere in the truck.

(It was found at the scene)

"I was going to go to Wal-Mart and get more bullets and lay myself beside my

"But there was no gun.

"So I drove until I got to what I had done...

"I decided to drive to "I put the gun to the roof Crockett, Tex., to see my two sons and then turn myself in." He did so, Dec. 14th.

> Judge Joe Walker will sentence him next month.

DEFICITS CONTINUE

The United States spent $69.5 billion more in October than it brought in through revenues, according to U.S. Rep. John Tanner.

In fiscal year 2003, which ended in September, the federal government piled on a record $374 billion deficit, pushing the overall national debt close to $7 trillion.

"I hoped that Congressional leaders and the Administration would learned after last year's disastrous budget choices that it is time to reverse the trend and get back on path toward balanced budget," Tanner "Instead, they have continued growing governexpenditures beyond the amount of money that is coming in to pay for it."

Tanner, representing Tennessee's 8th Congressional District, serves on the House Ways and Means Committee and is a founding member of the Blue Dog Coalition, group of fiscally conservative House Democrats, who call for a balanced budget.

His web site, www.house. gov/tanner, features information about the national debt, including a real-time growth of the national debt and what it means for taxhave payers.

With Thanksgiving Comes Dressing

With the holidays upon us and the Halloween jacko-lantern drying up on the front porch, our thoughts are now turning to a time of wonderment. We each are thinking of good memories of family, our many blessings in life, home-cooked fattening foods and most of all, how we can combine all of these wonderful experiences into one jam packed day called Thanksgiving.

Thanksgiving used to be very important to me as a child, because I knew as soon as it was over Christmas was just around the corner. However, today children do not have the same understanding of Thanksgiving as I did due to our current society's commercialization of the holiday period.

Thanksgiving has become the official unofficial day to blow your life savings. Multitudes of people go out and buy things they don't need or really want in the first place for other people who wished they had gotten them something else. However, I feel we need to re-examine what Thanksgiving is all about. It is a time Mason Dixon Line. to give thanks for our many blessings and our country as a whole, has been well blessed. Thanksgiving is time to share those blessings and thank the God above for the families we have and the hopes we have for the future.

Yes, we are seeing some tough times right now with the war in Irag and individual problems of all types, but what generation has not had its own share of troubles Instead of dwelling on the negatives, we need to use this one special day of the year to put more prayer on as many positives as we can

One of our greatest blessings as Americans is the abundance we have in this country. As families gather around their dining room table this Thanksgiving, many will enjoy a safe and affordable bounty of food products. Nowhere else in the world will the amount and variety be found like what will be exhibitcountry. a day of eating like no other. I am sure many of you noticed I used the term "dressing" in the last sentence. For those of you who do not know what dressing is, let me translate. In the South stuffing is called dressing and in the North dressing is called stuffing. Since this is my column and my Thanksgiving pondering, I will use the term dressing because I am from the South and the term stuffing is not very appealing to those of us south of the

To me stuffing is something you would find in couch or a previously live animal that now hangs on the wall. Dressing is made from a mixture of cornbread and other great tasting items that no one can put together like my mother or wife. That is another thing to be thankful for on this special holiday. No matter where you live or what you call it, you have the freedom to do so without any problem or fear.

The Pilgrims started it all, as all of us know the origin of the day, but as reported on wilstar.com it was Sarah Josepha Hale, a magazine editor, whose efforts eventually led to what we recognize as Thanksgiving. Hale wrote many editorials for her cause in her Boston Ladies' Magazine, and later, in Godey's Lady's Book. Finally, after 40 years of writing editorials and letters to governors and presidents, in 1863, President Abraham Lincoln proclaimed the last Thursday in Novem-

The date was changed a couple of times, but in 1941 Thanksgiving was finally sanctioned by Congress as a legal holiday on the fourth Thursday in November.

Let's take advantage of this day and give thanks for what we have. The malls can wait, but the thanks we give to the One who created it all comes first. He should not be left to have to sit at the second-table.

MEDICARE CHANGES

Medicare changes leave many Tennesseans behind, according to U.S. Rep. John Tanner.

The U.S. House of Representatives overlooked needs of seniors, especially in rural areas, and agreed to a plan that would undermine the traditional Medicare program and do nothing to adthe ever-increasing costs of prescription drugs, Tanner said.

Recognizing the challenges facing Tennessee health care providers with inadequate: reimbursements, Tanner sponsored legislation H.R. 3539, to help them continue delivering quality care to the nation's seniors. Even though rural providers serve a higher percentage of Medicare beneficiaries, for years they have faced an unfair system that reimburses rural providers less than their urban counterparts for the same procedures. "I have worked on these rural issues for many years," Tanner said. "I am very disappointed that these provisions were attached to a bill that would create another inequity for those living in rural America."

Conservation Board

MEMBERS, of the Lauder-dale County Soil Conservation District Board of Supervisors, are celebrating 62 years of providing assistance to landowners in Lauderdale County to combat erosion.

In the fall of 1939, several landowners attended a field day in West Tennessee that provided information on how local counties could organize and petition the State of Tennessee to organize soil conservation districts in each county.

County landowners filed a petition to organize a soil conservation district in March of 1940. The State of Tennessee formerly created the Lauderdale County Soil Conservation District as a legal subdivision of State government in Feb. of 1941.

Each district would be governed by a board of supervisors, with responsibilities of developing a conservation program to combat soil erosion. One of the first goals was to promote seeding of Sericea lespedeza.

The first board of supervisors included J. F. Crutcher, A. K. Currie, J. Clyde Johnston, J. E. Dunavant and I. A. Keller.

Today, the Soil Conservation District still works to partner with federal, state and local agencies and groups that can help local landowners to achieve maximum production from the land, while working to eliminate serious erosion problems.

The commitment by the Board insures that land-owners are able to utilize the land today, while protecting it for use by future generations.

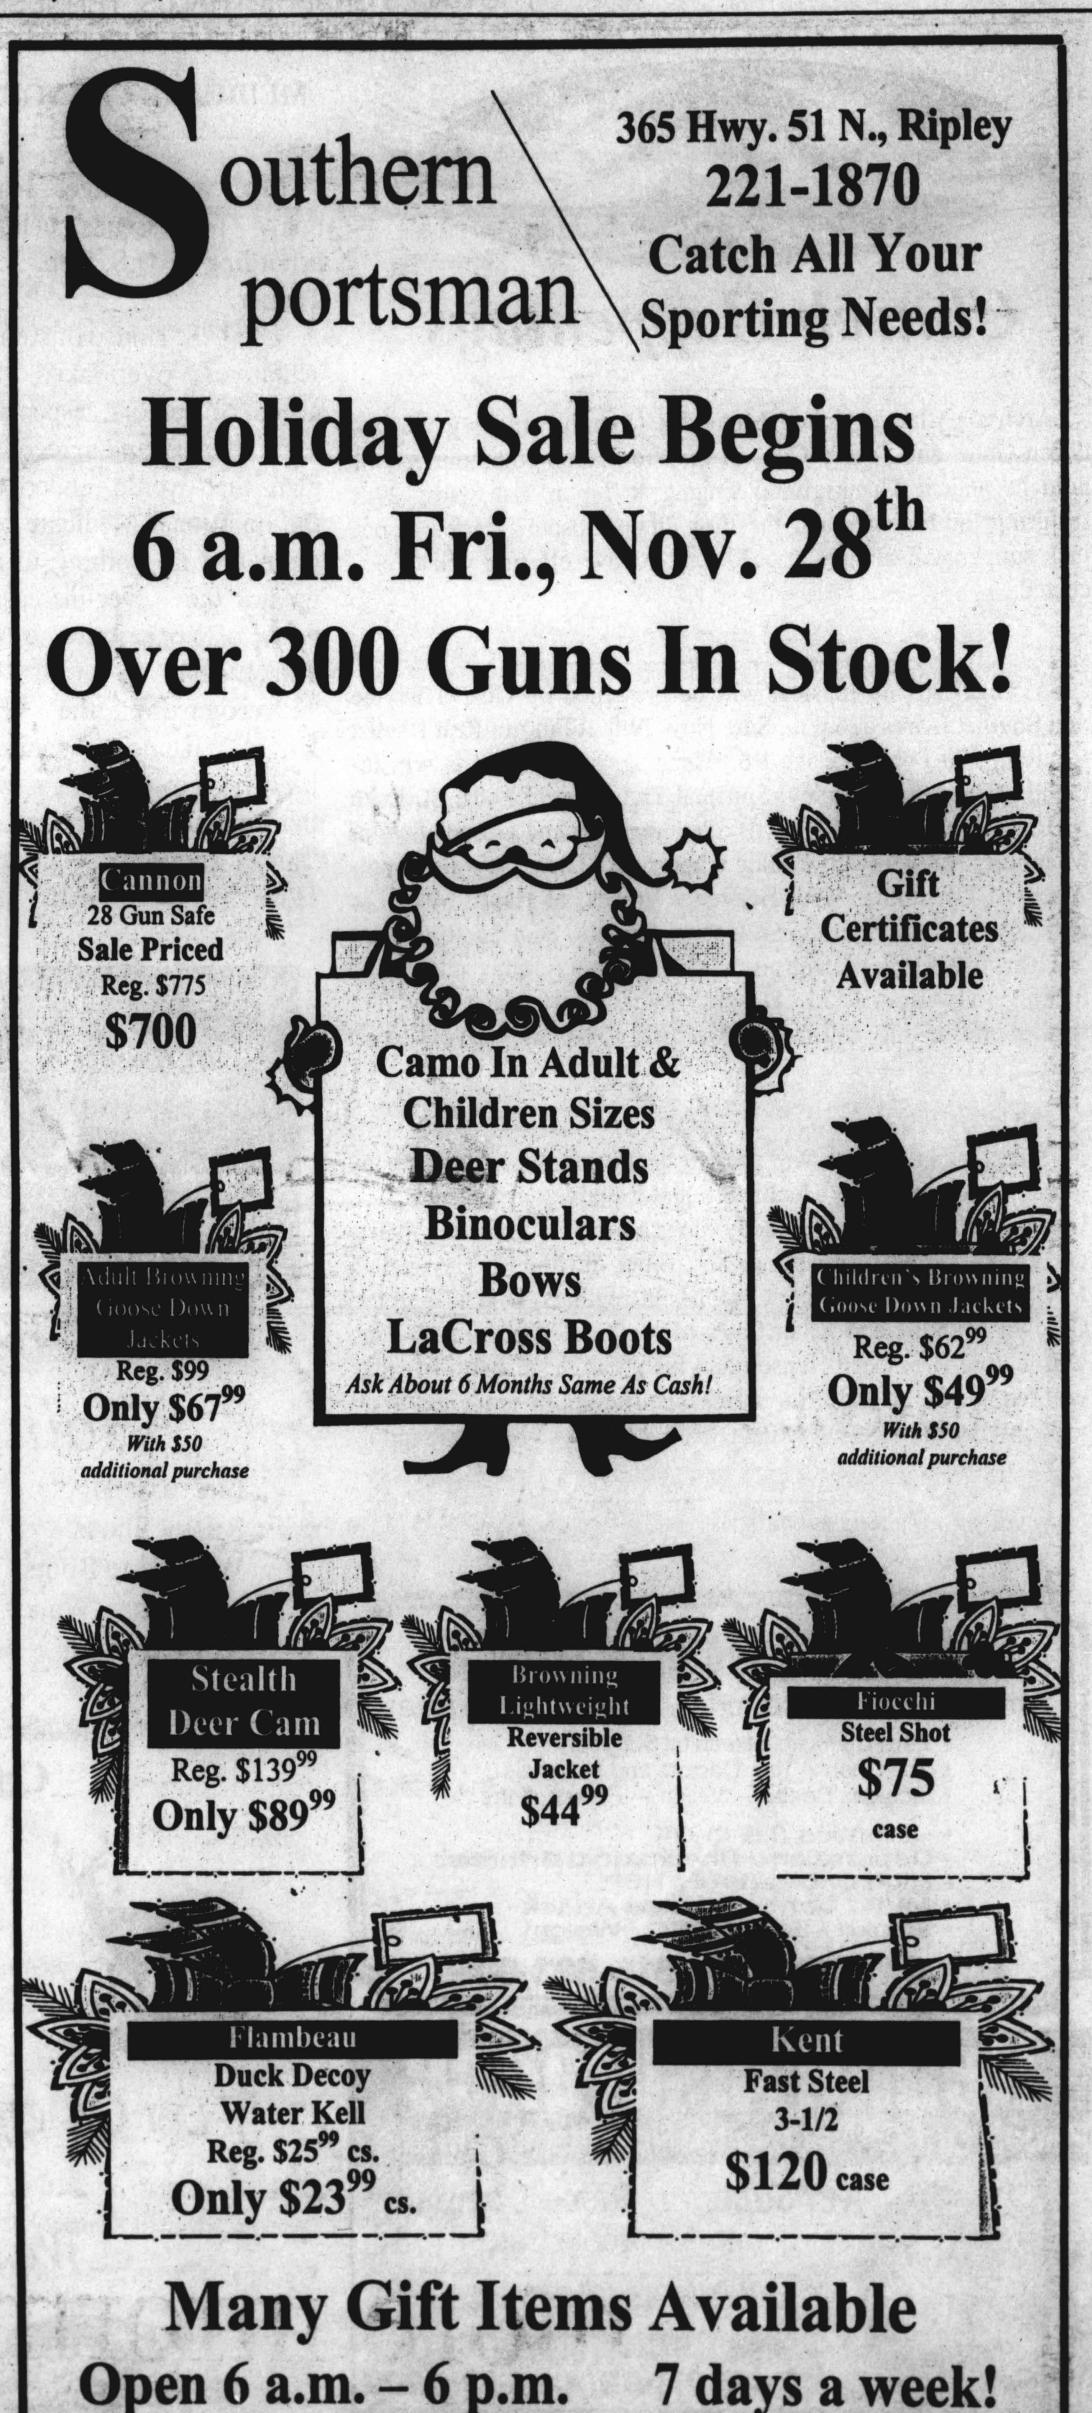

DENTAL NEWS

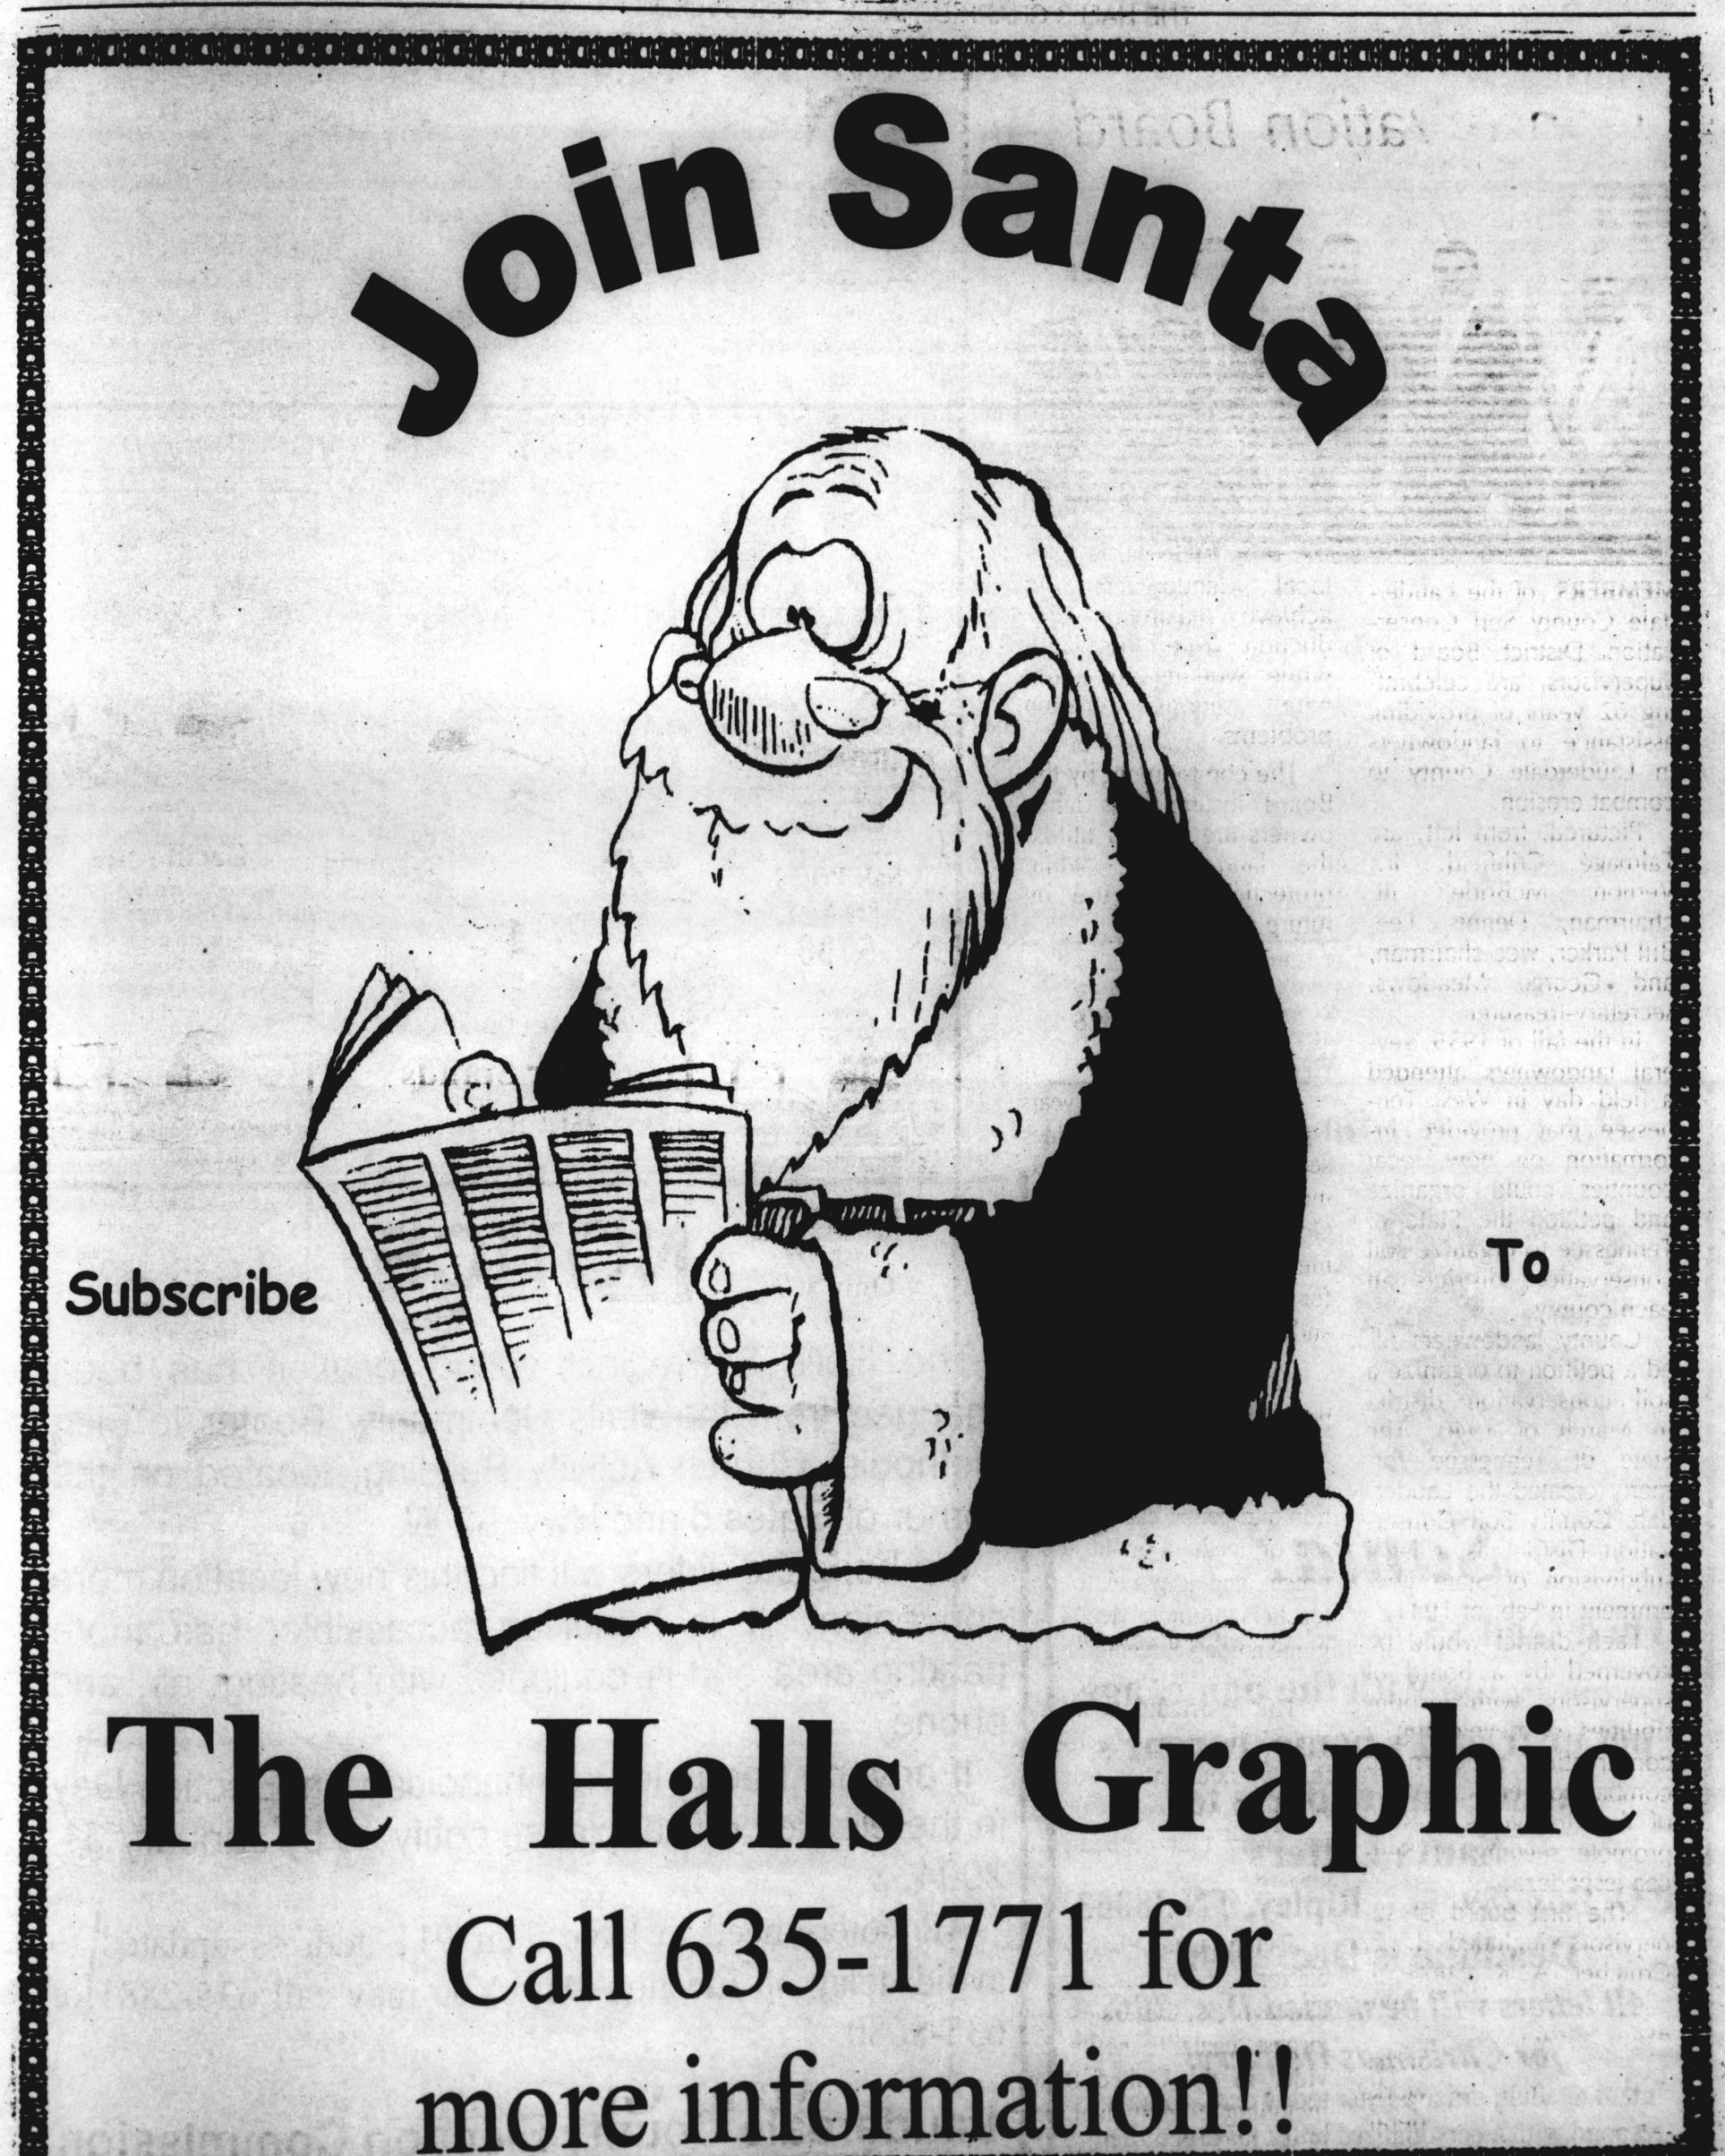

Over the next two years, Delta Dental Plan of Tennessee will distribute approximately 1,200 Teeth-on-the-Go kits to all Tennessee elementary schools, designed for children in grades one and two.

Each kit, valued at approximately $100, contains a video tape, an audio tape, children's books about nutrition and dental care, a model set of teeth, a giant toothbrush, and a guide to help teachers promote dental hygiene among students.

The curriculum is designed to provide activities for five hours of instruction. A school will receive one kit for every four second-grade classes.

Delta Dental Plans Association, headquartered in Chicago, is the oldest and largest dental benefits provider in the United States, including 39 individual plans in the U.S., Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands and Guam.
